Abebe proved to be the most famous Ethiopian runner of all time in Rome, in 1960. He won the Olympic marathon race barefoot. The time of completion was two hours, sixteen minutes and two seconds. Four years later, he repeated his success at the Tokyo Olympics. That time, the world record was his alone. His time was two hours, fifteen minutes, sixteen seconds.

Unusually, Abebe won this race only six weeks after having an appendix operation. However, being a man of talent and purpose, Abebe had done a series of rigorous exercises to beat all the other runners. Abebe was also the first man to win two Olympic marathons, one after the other.

Continued…

Abebe tried to achieve a third success at the 1968 Olympics in Mexico City. After only ten miles, a leg injury forced him to stop running. The victory went to another famous Ethiopian athlete Mamo Wolde.

The following year, Abebe Bikila's marathon career was over. He was crippled in a car crash and was confined to a wheelchair. However, by taking up archery, he competed in several games. Abebe died on the 25th of October 1973. Crowds lined the road and graveside to show respect to a national hero at his funeral in Addis Ababa.
