CHRISTAIN DATING AND
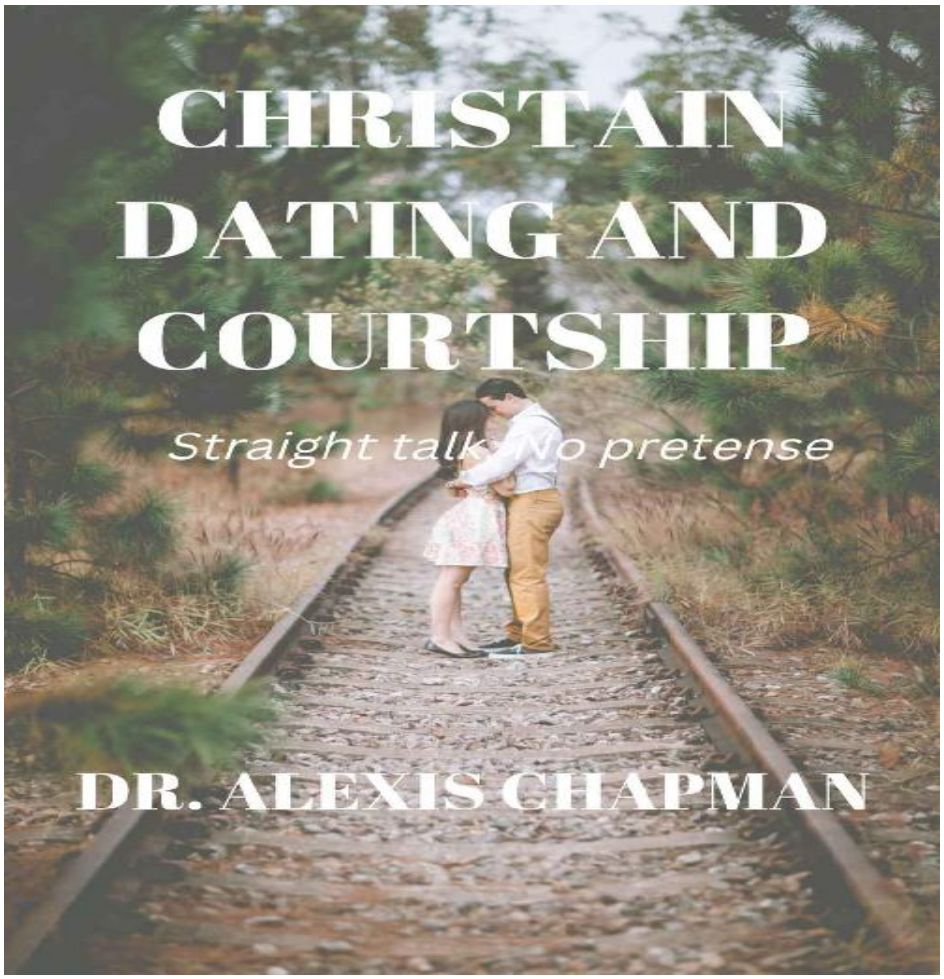
COURTSHIP
Straight talk No pretense
DR. ALEXIS CHAPMAN



CHRISTAIN DATING AND COURTSHIP
Straight talk. No pretense
DR. ALEXIS CHAPMAN

CHRISTIAN DATING AND COURTSHIP

Straight talk, No pretense

BY

DR. ALEXIS CHAPMAN

Copyright @ 2022 Dr.Alexis Chapman
All rights reserved

Table of Contents

CHRISTIAN DATING AND COURTSHIP

- Straight talk, No pretense
- BY
- ALEXIS CHAPMAN

INTRODUCTION

CHAPTER 1

- Single and not married

CHAPTER 2

- Being the chosen one

CHAPTER 3

- Living Alone

CHAPTER 4

- Personal development

CHAPTER 5

- Attitude

CHAPTER 6

- Insecurities

CHAPTER 7

- Understanding the Red Flags

CHAPTER 8

- The Spec

CHAPTER 9

- The Best Friend

CHAPTER 10

- Maturing

CHAPTER 11

Praying to God for a Life Partner
CHAPTER 12
Finding a man
CHAPTER 13
Saying No to different People
CHAPTER 14
Financial Independence
CHAPTER 15
Sex before marriage
CHAPTER 16
Dating
CHAPTER 17
Courtship
CHAPTER 18
Marriage
CHAPTER 19
Seeking Counselling
CHAPTER 20
Frequently asked Questions and Answers

INTRODUCTION

I have sadly observed how ignorance has allowed young people to continue moving away from full maturity. I do know, however, that excellent living necessitates discipline, and that this discipline begins with the mind and not the body. Because success does not depend on a person's gender, one must be able to set goals and be ambitious. Being independent and content is not a crime.

Finally, marriage is honourable; before you get married, learn how to successfully have a relationship and focus on achieving your objectives. Don't wait until the last minute to decide what's right; think creatively and set the right priorities. I hope everything turns out great for you!

CHAPTER 1

Single and not married

Someone who is not married or in a relationship is considered to be single. A person who is not in a relationship is often referred to as "single."He or she could be divorced or widowed. A solitary man is alluded to as an unhitched male while a solitary lady is alluded to as an old maid. The majority of the time, men are addressed as "mister," while women are addressed as "miss" rather than "mistress."The histories of these titles are historical.

According to Nigerian law, a single person is not considered to have been promised a marriage or to have had a marriage celebrated in accordance with the law, custom, or both.

A person who has legally tied the knot is considered to be married, not someone who serves as a dry cleaner when a man has not paid her bride price. When a person lives together with a partner who is not recognized by the family, they cannot be considered married.

There have been numerous misunderstandings regarding who qualifies as a single man or woman. Regardless of whether a person is referred to as a father or a mother, they are both single. Because there is no legal basis for it, the fact that a couple wed with only a biscuit and a ring rather than in the company of family and well-wishers does not make them legally married. A marriage is only recognized by law if it is celebrated in accordance with its provisions.

Singlehood is a significant time that should not be joked about. During this time, one grows and determines what they can bring to a marriage. The years a person is single ought to be spent; learning how to handle both personal and common problems, praying, and being business-oriented and supportive.

Keep these things in mind as you travel: practice sacrificial love, show support, be a problem solver, be a good listener, become educated, be hardworking, be friendly, live a good life, be a cheerful giver, serve in God's Kingdom, be obedient, pray, and avoid fornication. Hone your skills, improve your relationship with Christ, be the best, practice sacrificial love.

CHAPTER 2

Being the chosen one

You'll be interested to learn that other people share your characteristics. Currently, men make up 50.4% and 49.6% of the world's population, respectively. These people are not aliens; rather, they are people with similar minds, which means that you are constantly outwitted by someone or something. This should make you realize that you need to stop falling behind others and start getting better.

You are entitled to the belief that no one is like you, but if you are not up to standard, you cannot force someone to be in a relationship with you. If you don't learn this sooner, you'll only hate yourself because the world must have already moved on and left you behind when you did.

Being someone else's choice isn't risky. It's knowing exactly what to do and doing it well. A man or woman's attraction to their opposite like can be boiled down to the following: intellectualism, spirituality, and cleanliness. Before choosing a partner, these are the most important considerations for a man or woman. To tell you the truth, finding a partner takes work. It's like choosing a new dress. A man or woman won't be able to choose a dress that makes them feel uncomfortable because other customers have neglected it; instead, they will choose a dress that they love. In addition, he or she will always be excited to show it off.

The fundamentals are guiding principles that can be followed throughout one's life. They consist of intellectualism, spirituality, and cleanliness. The state of maintaining proper hygiene, both consciously and unconsciously, is cleanliness. It is always practicing good hygiene, not just occasionally, frequently, or as directed. Cleanliness is a personal choice and cannot be imposed on anyone; it requires discipline. The benefits of cleanliness are numerous; It makes you more attractive, makes you more valuable, boosts your self-worth, boosts your confidence, and helps you live a healthy lifestyle. It is not possible to pretend to brush your teeth when all you are doing is imagining it.

Cleanliness cannot be faked. Being able to brush your teeth and apply deodorant, roll-on, body spray, or perfume, as well as a body oil, without being told is cleanliness. Being able to use a handkerchief to clean your nose rather than picking it with your hand, being able to wash your under wears and towel without being reminded when you read a post on health and hygiene, being able to use the toilet brush without being reminded, being able to wear clean clothes at home when no one is watching you without repeating them, and being able to wash your clothes well and iron them neatly without looking for a drycleaner are all examples of cleanliness. You can't pretend to be clean. It is disastrous to purchase new underwear if, as a young adult, you cannot wash them but instead soak them until whenever. In reality, even if you use a lot of perfume, someone will always know that you haven't washed your underwear or stockings in three days because of the unpleasant smell. For instance, the colour of the material is the first clue that someone will use to identify dirty underwear; whether it is transparent, soiled, muddy, or flaky. Second, a man or woman will be able to tell if someone hasn't properly cleaned their belongings by the strong smell they give off. Thirdly, from how he or she rubs a body that is itching, the colour of their handkerchief, and how they react to living in a dirty environment.

An individual's positive or negative connection to the spirit world can be referred to as spirituality. Positively, it is having a spiritual relationship with God. As a Christian, it is essential to be aware of your spiritual relationship with God and to be willing to mature from a milk-fed infant to a spiritually mature Christian who can only boast of Christ's salvation.

There are tongues that are inspired by the devil and tongues that are inspired by God, and speaking in tongues is not a sign that you are a mature Christian. The requirements are fire baptism, the indwelling of the Holy Spirit, communion with the Holy Spirit, holiness, and the manifestation of the Spirit's fruit.

The fact that those who have been called to Christ are free from servitude is not a secret. If God has not deemed you worthy, you cannot be chosen.

Also, you can't pretend to be spiritually mature because spiritually unsound people are easy to spot. A person who is spiritually unsound lacks the Holy Spirit, requires pastoral support, and is unaware of the significance of salvation. He or she professes to be a god, lies, wants to be used by the devil, and defiles the body.

The ability to comprehend and apply information well is intelligence. Intelligence encompasses everything that relates to interaction and management, including the capacity to control one's emotions under pressure, the capacity to manage the reactions of others, the capacity to discern the Spirit of God, and the capacity to respond well to practical questions. Intelligence is not just head knowledge.

Intelligence cannot be faked, but stupidity can be. A person who lacks intelligence will blindly accept everything they hear and believe every lie. Even though it is widely acknowledged that an opinion on beauty is purely subjective and that the ugliest individuals can also be daft and unintelligible, stunning individuals have been branded dumb due to ignorance, despite the fact that the opposite is true.

Making a good first impression is not difficult. Admire, but be able to make sound decisions without spitting on disabled people. Be unique in your own way while remaining able to think forward rather than backward. If you are unable to speak English, attend evening classes where you can learn the language while still rocking your native tongue whenever you can; if you are unable to calculate well, carry a calculator with you at all times; and if you are unable to spell, study. Despite your desire to be paired with another person, choose to be a better person.

CHAPTER 3

Living Alone

I think about how important it is to learn to be alone every day, and I think it should be taught the same way sex education is taught to children.

For the most part of your life, you'll live with other people, whether they're your family or not. Particularly if you have cohabited with others for a significant amount of time, this communal living has a tendency to make it extremely difficult and problematic to separate from others and live independently. Nigerians are very likely to live by themselves when they are young adults. You will enrol as a student as a young adult at any tertiary institution of your choice, which may or may not be nearby. As a result, you'll have to choose whether to live on campus or in the hostel. Because you have never been there or lived alone for an extended period of time, you will need to spend a significant amount of time at school adjusting to your new environment and making friends.

Living on your own is not scary; it will only be scary if you want to. If you want it to be, living can be dangerous, living alone can be risky, and living alone can also be a learning experience. Living alone, in my opinion, is a learning experience.

Living by yourself gives you a chance to appreciate your weaknesses, work on them, and make good use of your strengths. When a person lives on their own, they will need to take care of themselves physically, spiritually, emotionally, and mentally—they will need their own physical, emotional, and mental support systems.

It is likely that a person who lives alone will be lonely. A feeling of emptiness, unworthiness, and hatred may result from this loneliness. He or she will need to learn how to communicate with loved ones, participate in extracurricular activities, and work both inside and outside the home in order to beat it. They will also need to study the Bible not because they want to beat time but because it is good for spiritual growth.

If you don't feel motivated, keep things in your home that make you happy and encourage you to move forward. Keep pictures of yourself and your family in a binder, write notes to yourself that make you feel good, listen to worship music and motivational music, and watch movies. To keep this from happening, do it every day, not just for one day. Never let your loneliness lead you to do anything that isn't worthy of Christ.

If you're a single man or woman living on your own, use it as an opportunity to learn how to be yourself without the support of others. Learn how to leave home without being greeted with hugs and kisses or told about all the good things in life. Learn how to get back from a busy journey to a quiet house without food. Learn how to complete a task that may not be appreciated or noticed with full concentration without being hurt or angry. You need to learn this because there will be days when you work like a donkey at work and are never appreciated. However, you need to relax and smile rather than react negatively. Also, learn so you don't become a burden; it will be very bad if you always need your partner at home to do anything productive at home or in the office. You don't want to start crying like a baby about how much you miss the love of your life, who will be away for a day for training, I think.

Being able to wisely handle your responsibilities comes from living alone. A person who lives on their own will be able to wrong financial choices and rectify them. Because a kiosk is close by and manageable, he may believe he does not need to purchase an item beforehand. However much this is valid, an individual living alone figures out how to be purposeful in all his/her monetary activity. If you know a lot about finances, get training, go to seminars, put what you've learned into practice, and then do something that makes money. The fact that you are living on your own shouldn't give you reason to spend your money recklessly and in a manner in which you want to impress friends knowing that you will be able to hide at home sipping garri for three days straight. Don't sideline saving, save promptly, and invest promptly when you get your profit.

As a young person, building your future is critical. Because you are not committed to anyone, do what your hand considers to be right. Do it well rather than merely. Prioritize your requirements; you are not required to watch the most recent film, purchase the most recent pair of shoes, or purchase the most fashionable dress. Make a donation, buy gifts, and give to orphans if you have enough to show kindness and compassion to those who are limited and begging.

When you are a single person living on your own, your silent moments are not the time to fantasize about the ugliest creatures you can imagine or engage in fornication. Nor is it the time to ask that hormonal person to have sex with you because you think you own the space .Nothing is concealed by the sun, you lie. Spend this time with God, studying the Bible, reflecting on your life, reading a book, or volunteering with a non-profit organization. Find one of the many non-governmental organizations (NGOs) in your area and give your time and expertise to it. Don't let your mind wander; don't use the time to smoke illegal drugs or plan a wicked scheme; rather, work on yourself and resist giving in to the devil.

Living on your own as a Christian should not allow you to forget the fundamentals of salvation that you were taught as a child. When you arrive in a new area, assign it to yourself to locate a functioning Church or other place of worship. Try not to do it single-handedly, by your solidarity you will fall flat, let your decision be founded on the motivation of the Essence of God. Attend events that will benefit you when you find one; don't sit around.

Value your life and be mindful of your safety. Be ready for anything, pray, and have a security number you can call at any time. Practice being alone, learn to be inside, and use this time to do things you won't have time for when you get married because you are single and unattached.

CHAPTER 4

Personal development

Is the process of enhancing one's abilities and strengths. Personal development is a choice that involves every conscious and unconscious effort to improve your life, not motivation. It's about adding value, boosting one's status, and choosing excellence. Personal development is essential if you want to succeed in life and become a better parent, co-worker, or partner. It is not for the benefit of anyone else. Personal development raises one's self-esteem, doubles one's social status, has an effect on one's social influence, and makes it possible to appreciate life. If you want to succeed in life, become a better partner, colleague, or parent, you must develop yourself.

Before you read and spend money on books, you shouldn't let anyone label you as an olodo. learn why you act the way you do, gain an understanding of social influence, read ahead of time, read extensively, and read right now; if you don't read, you aren't ready for marriage. You should be able to understand how marriage works if you want to get married. You can read about the dynamics of marriage as a single man or woman. Learn how to be financially successful; you don't want to beg for food or feel intimidated by your spouse's wealth, and you don't want your child's peers to think of him or her as someone who begs for everything; gasoline, leaf, matches, seasoning, and money.

If you're a single man or woman with an opinion on a contentious topic that could end your marriage, learn more about it and decide if you're willing to take the risk. Give genuine justifications for why a man or woman must work from home if you support equality. This is not something you will do during courtship; it is for now that you are single.

Participate in educational lectures, attend trainings, and seminars, and know your strengths. If you want to be great, you have to discover who you are for yourself and take steps to become great; nobody will tell you who you are. Know how your body reacts to certain things, be prepared, and give intelligent responses to questions. Don't be someone who doesn't know their blood group and genotype, or what they are allergic to. Don't be embarrassed when the results are revealed; go for the tests, spend the money to do the right tests. If you need to take medication, do so right away.

Improve your skills and learn important things now rather than waiting until you get married. Let marriage be the place where you show off what you learned while you were single. Know how to cook, be prepared to carry out responsibilities without complaining, and learn how to change a nappy now because you won't learn it in marriage or school. Because you will face pressure in marriage, be able to multitask, have problem-solving skills, learn to be resilient, learn to be compassionate, learn to remain humble, and learn how to manage pressure. Don't be the shy man or woman who gets married but doesn't know how to talk to the wife or husband, and don't be a researcher case study of couples who talk on the phone to solve problems instead of meeting in person. Develop excellent communication skills.

If you have a B.Sc., make a point and look beyond yourself. Now, work toward more. If you don't move along with the world's progress, you'll get lost. Be confident in yourself, take advantage of opportunities, and attend professional trainings. There is something wrong if you are unsure of your eligibility for a promotion; seek clarification. Be brave and switch careers if you are dissatisfied with your current position. Allow your work to bring you riches and not neediness.

Quit killing your otherworldly life, you are misleading be loaded up with the Essence of God in the event that you can endeavour watching erotic entertainment without a second thought. The Bible says that Christians should never stop praying, so pray often. Build on your salvation, get to know Christ, worship God with your whole heart, and don't do it just to look good. Your heart is truly empty, seek God, and he will save you, it is very obvious when you position yourself where the photographer takes pictures and pretend to cry so that you will be called a true worshipper.

A person who is unhealthy is not liked. You really don't need to eat after 12 a.m.; you're going to die. Avoid junk food. Don't smoke and drink fruit juice instead of alcohol; smokers are more likely to die young. When you lead an unhealthy lifestyle and pray to live to 100 years, you deceive yourself. You are actually lying to yourself.

Set goals that are specific, measurable, and doable if you want to improve. Be able to track your progress and have clearly defined strategies for achieving these objectives, knowing that you will share your success story. Have a good character now and be determined to keep it throughout your marriage; a change in character is a major factor in partners losing interest after a few years together.

Be mindful of your health and don't rush. If you hurry, you'll fail a lot of people. Take your time to grow as a person or you'll be ridiculed. Be honest with yourself about whether you are moving forward or not if, as a married woman, you prefer wrappers and adieu papa shirts to lingerie and bum shorts when you were a single woman. Keep your focus on you and not on another person. Last but not least, you should eat before you feed the person who comes over every night and never neglect or put yourself last. Before you sponsor another person, sponsor yourself first. Purchase architects and flex before you purchase for somebody. Never put yourself last, and be as committed to your own development as you are to the development of others. Many marriages have developed out of love, so don't stop working, striving, or being kind because this attitude was not learned or practiced when both parties were single.

CHAPTER 5

Attitude

Human nature is significantly influenced by attitude. A positive attitude can make a big difference in your relationship. It is very easy to believe that being single is depressing. You begin to believe that you deserve all the love that is shown to someone else, and as a result, you behave badly.

Whether you are trying to impress someone, mean, approachable, or need validation before you know you are beautiful, your attitude defines who you are. It also reveals a lot about you. Do you exhibit negative behaviour that deters people from your life as a single person? Do you put yourself down on other people? Are you truly single because you have been rejected or because you are not ready to marry?

Challenge preconceptions, have self-assurance, love yourself, be happy, and be exceptional. If you're a single man, remember to wear deodorant, be honest but polite, and respect your feelings. Refrain from pursuing a relationship with her and work on yourself if you believe you are not up to the standards of a woman. Be self-assured; nobody likes to see a man who is shy, unable to speak up, only able to gossip, or who needs to smoke before doing anything difficult.

You're single, and many people know it. Stop attaching too much; what's yours will find you. You are a human being; don't turn into a nuisance or a pest. It's disgusting to attach yourself recklessly to anyone because people will easily recognize that you are seeking attention. The woman who walked by doesn't feel threatened by you; rather, she despises your mean and touchy attitude.

Set limits and don't let a single person control your life. As a woman, don't tell stories about your past when you don't have to, only speak when you have to, and think before you speak. Don't speak out of control like a tap whose noose is broken. If you talk about nothing at all, you will only become depleted and get into trouble because you will share your story and end, share the story of another person, and then lie, lie, lie.

Maintain friendships, explore new areas of life, be adventurous, and schedule time to spend with friends.

You are not poor; stop requesting immediate cash. Get your hands dirty and work, don't be dependent on a man, work hard and make your own money, don't make yourself into a sex object, and even if a man supports you, set limits and show that you can take care of yourself. Show a man that it doesn't matter to you that he supports you and earn his respect by appreciating him for it.

Work, don't be lazy. Be a growth promoter; if you are a gold digger, you have it all wrong. In the event that you are not monetarily free now you will resemble a kid that necessities to suck the mother's bosom to make due in marriage.

When you go out for dinner as a single woman, order what you can afford to pay for. Don't order too much because your date might not pay. If you want to avoid being viewed as a helpless individual or a charity project, place your order for two and pay for it.

Learn how to get out of a bad financial situation. Keep your "vex money" with you at all times. A "vex money" is money that has been set aside to pay for an embarrassing situation.

Be forgiving, don't hold on to hurts from the past, and look past your flaws. Don't let your anger last until the sun goes down; if you're unhappy with what has been done, voice your displeasure; don't pretend to be having mood swings; don't say "no" when you should say "yes."

Recognize differences. Be able to resolve disagreements and discuss ways to improve your relationship. You can't always win an argument; you have to be able to listen and remain silent. Pride comes from feeling like you have to. Be humble and accept your mistakes; don't say things like;"I know all this, but the fact still remains the fact," "okay, is that why you've been making noise?" "why you come dey open eyes for me?"etcetera.

Respect is earned, so show it. Demand and treat everyone with respect. Don't put any man down. Refuse to be devalued and marginalized as a woman wherever you find yourself. Don't sell yourself short. Respect every man you meet. Challenge anyone who asserts that, as a woman, you can only provide sex and emotional support. Be noble. Women are taking centre stage, leading the way in policymaking, and demonstrating their worth around the world. In the Bible, God used Deborah, Hannah, Queen Esther, Hannah, and Hannah, Hannah, to raise a prophet in Israel, deliver her people with the help of God, and Mary, Mary, Mary, Mary. God chose Mary because she was a woman he favoured greatly and gave birth to Emmanuel. You're a woman, you do well, and no one should ever make you feel less than.

Respect yourself, don't hurt yourself, invest in yourself, go to counselling, listen to lectures from great women leaders, and don't compare yourself to men. You can't get everything from sex. Be kind to one another, be yourself, love one another, and support one another.

As a single man, you should avoid being cruel, misleading, and heartless. Don't criticize or discourage someone who needs your support; instead, guide them. Be careful with your word at all times.

CHAPTER 6

Insecurities

A lack of confidence is called insecurity. It can be displayed in a variety of ways. There is every chance that we humans have gotten our act together, but that is a lie. That's just self-righteousness at work, and self-righteousness is a sneaky, wicked thing. We all have flaws, so we strive for perfection.

Never make fun of anyone, be willing to learn from others, and never despise them because insecurity tends to cause unreasonable behaviour. Improve yourself and discover opportunities. If you're afraid of your loved ones, don't betray them. Don't bully someone into giving in to pressure.

If you're having trouble gaining self-assurance, start thinking and acting confidently. Your most frequent prayer should be one that asks God for help when you're dealing with insecurity. You will continue to struggle if you do not address your problems with God and seek assistance. You will be more miserable and devastated if you struggle.

If you have prayed in Jesus' name to God for the grace to be better, keep praying instead of worrying, have faith that it will all work out, and begin to enjoy being alive and productive. The path of God and more are open to those who believe.

Accept yourself, love yourself, and believe in yourself. Manage your problems on your own. Never be overly pessimistic or insecure; doing so will only lead you to unintentionally drive people away. As a single man who knows women detest desperate men and a single woman who knows men detest desperate women, desperate people are not appreciated.

Be humble and don't let what other people say down you. Learn from your mistake and strive to be your best if you don't judge yourself negatively or have low self-esteem.

Don't be envious; being envious is overprotective. Don't overreact or question a person's innocence and superiority. Be careful not to slander the successful. Because you feel challenged, you should not share secrets or engage in gossip. Don't judge someone because you're not a perfect man. If you've learned anything about someone, it's because you had the chance to learn about them; this privilege does not give you the right to decide how they will treat you.

You really don't have anything important to say, so keep quiet. Be consistent, but don't be too prone. Be brave, but don't be proud of yourself as a man or woman; the village's grandmothers and grandfathers were once as beautiful and handsome as you were. Don't do something you'll regret in the future; your wealth will fade away, but your life will live on forever.

Your thoughts have an impact on the world and will have repercussions. Negativity is not true. Christian being despite your efforts. Don't think you're not making progress in Christ. Keep a positive attitude and listen to God with a pure spirituality rather than a fleshly mind. Things that will benefit you should be your focus.

CHAPTER 7

Understanding the Red Flags

A red flag is a sign that you and your partner are not compatible. It serves as a cautionary tale against problematic people and toxic relationships.

The indications that a marriage is unlikely to succeed are observations made over time. It is not recorded in a book but rather passed down through the generations. These guidelines ought to serve as a blueprint for a happy marriage for a single person.

A man can spot warning signs in a woman of interest or a potential partner. Finding it is not difficult.

If a woman is eager to get married and says she loves you more than God knows what, she's just here to have fun. Jesus Christ, the Son of God, is the only man who has demonstrated love beyond self. No other man has. If you notice these characteristics, it could be for their own benefit. The lady will not want to leave the relationship because she is dependent, needy, and believes she cannot survive without a man.

Such a relationship tends to be very toxic. Separate yourself from the lady in a polite manner if you find yourself in such a situation. If she still has feelings for you, pray to God about it and stop all communication with her immediately. She will probably stalk you and follow your movements if you don't end all communication with her. If such a woman is easily enraged and destructive, she probably will kill you because she thinks you rejected her and thought you weren't worthy of her.

You are not required to recommend a counsellor to her because she might believe she is ill and harm you in some way.

A woman who demands attention even when you are losing her is destructive. This does not apply to any women who are physically disabled or ill; these women require specialized love, care, and attention. A woman who demands recognition wherever she goes is not prepared to submit to you. A woman who refuses to take this role, even for a short time, is struggling to share the spotlight with you. There will be times when your woman needs to be kept in the background and watch over you. She is willing to do anything to earn the praise of others. It has been observed that these women pretend to be in need of attention because they have been through a lot, but this is a lie; a woman who has been through difficulties will be able to humble herself in order to be promoted.

A pretender lacks a signature. Be on your guard because a pretender has the patience to strike at the right time. Don't do things in a hurry; take your time to learn about the people you're hanging out with. Don't judge a woman based on how she treats you or behaves around you; instead, just observe. Don't give a woman what she wants without first having the moral authority to do so.

You can opt out of a relationship with a woman if you find that she is not a good match for you and does not have any unusual characteristics. Because of your story of struggle, there is every indication that she is communicating with you out of compassion. It's scary to be in a relationship with such a woman because you'll always appear helpless to her and she'll think everything she does is to help you. When a woman thinks of herself as your helper, she is seen as the head indirectly. In a marriage, there can only be one head with a neck to support it.

If you force a woman to marry you, the relationship will be bitter, she will accept you out of compassion, and there will be no reason for her to commit to marriage. If you are attracted to a woman and tell her you want to marry her, you should give it a shot and pray about it if she says "no." However, you should respect her decision and never try to force her to marry you. Move on, you'll find someone better.

Women who want to do well are busy, but this can sometimes be a red flag on its own. Don't go any further if the woman you're interested in claims to be busy every eighty-six thousand, four hundred second. She clearly shows that she doesn't see a future with you by acting this way. When her loved ones contact her, a busy woman may not always be busy. A woman will make time for the people she wants because it is a heart matter.

A problem arises when acts of affection are not reciprocated. Affection can be shown in a variety of ways and should be shown in return. It's important to learn and do what your partners love in life. It is normal for a woman to become accustomed to receiving messages, gifts, and encouraging words from you and to wonder why you have stopped doing so. Don't spend money or love on a woman who doesn't love you because you'll be disappointed and blame other women for your mistake, thinking they're all the same. Choose your partner carefully to avoid serious heartbreak and disappointment. Never lose sight of the importance of reciprocity and appreciation—it takes two to tango.

A woman who loves you will not lie to you, pretending is trying to be someone you are not. A woman who is honest should be able to live her normal life and be honest. If the woman you're interested in can't talk about her life without lying to look good or weak, she has a character problem. She has no reason to lie and pretend to be someone she is not if your relationship was established by the Holy Spirit. If you're in a relationship with a fake partner, you won't be able to live and give as well as you should.

Your Lady ought to be able to pray for you and the vision you have, and she ought to share your vision and support it. She ought to be able to see the God factor in everything she does and dream big. If the woman you're interested in doesn't share your vision, she probably won't be willing to put money into your future together as husband and wife.

There are warning signs that you can look for in a man you're interested in as a single woman. A man is expected to respect a woman's dignity, prioritize her, and not treat her like an object. A man's words are his first sign of abuse before his actions. Don't be in a relationship with a man who is easily irritated or abusive. No matter how much he promises to change, your man will never respect you if he does not respect you.

He is not demonstrating headship when he makes disparaging remarks like "you don't know you're left from your right," but rather he is outright abusing you. He is destroying your self-esteem. Such a man will shut you up in public, he will have no regard for how you feel, he will not border on the impact of his words, and he will not love you. Any woman who wants to marry such a man will regret it for the rest of her life.

Despite his personality, an abusive man is proud, egotistic, and domineering. He wants you to always be modest, but he never is. He is very in control and doesn't always follow his own rules. Your man shouldn't despise you for nagging, but he shouldn't despise you for being dirty when he's very messy. To accept criticism, your man ought to be humble. A man's upbringing may have an impact on him, but he can choose to be good or bad. He can choose his disgusting nature, and if he puts it down to his upbringing, he is not to blame.

Avoid men who assert that they own you. A man cannot give what he does not possess, and he cannot own what he does not possess. Predatory men manipulate women into falling in love with them by using words of attachment. They use phrases such as sugar, baby, dear, sweetheart, honey, heartbeat, sunshine, light, gold, passion, dearest, and other similar expressions. These men act as though they are madly in love with you. They will assure you that nothing in the world can alter your love for yourself. He is manipulating her, and a man's love is not eternal because love will end, problems will arise, frustration will grow, and losses will occur.

A man who hasn't even married you is not ready to commit if he's already calling you his wife. A man is not ready to commit if he calls you his baby mama. You shouldn't give yourself a status that hasn't been earned by any man. If a man refers to you as his "Financial Woman," "Dubai Woman," or any other name used to describe an independent woman, he is only in the relationship for the money. This kind of man is willing to do anything to protect you, and he won't mind lying to you or going to your parents to show his interest in you even if he doesn't want to marry you. He is not to blame. It is common knowledge that a man feels fulfilled when he is financially secure; on the other hand, if your man does not care about being financially secure, he is only there to steal from you.

A man who is financially dependent on you and refuses to work is a slow poison, a gold digger, and a manipulator. It is detrimental to wed such a man because he will not only be a nuisance but also make your disadvantage your advantage. Such a person commits fraud because he can obtain your password and forge your signature in order to steal a significant amount of money from your account. Regardless of whether he is dressed in an ironed shirt, designer suit, or rag, a man who does not post a status on you for any reason is a suspect who needs to be avoided.

A man who is egotistic and proud should be avoided. He will always look down on you and think that you lack class. If your man is happy to make fun of you and thinks you won't be able to help him grow physically, mentally, emotionally, financially, spiritually, or socially, he should get out of the relationship. This kind of man will kill your purpose and make you feel bad about yourself. He will consider you to be unsuitable for marriage and unworthy of his attention and devotion. He won't be able to appreciate what you've done beyond himself. When he makes a mistake, he shows no remorse or apologies. You will never be considered valuable by a proud man. Don't think you'll change him; rather, you should be able to end that relationship with whatever dignity you have left.

A man ought to be able to accept you for who you are and forgive your mistakes. He ought to be able to let go of the past without causing you harm. He should not make any comparisons between you and any other woman. He ought to treat you with respect and be able to offer an apology for his errors. Avoid men who treat you like a rag when you treat them like kings. Don't leave a man who won't take responsibility for his actions or apologize.

Your man should be supportive and attentive at all times. He should be funny, respectful, honest, and genuine. He should be able to surprise you with gifts and support even when you didn't expect it, and he should always tell you how special you are. He shouldn't judge you based on your past. Never forget that your man will disgrace you in public and tear you down in private, and he will never respect you if he is an unforgiving man who is unable to care for you.

A man doesn't need to know who he is or what he should do. A man ought to be able to comprehend his own capabilities, limitations, and strengths. He ought to be aware that he must trust you to be able to make sound decisions and support you, care for you, and provide for you.

Avoid a man who does not have a goal or vision, avoid a man who is trying to impress, avoid a man who wants to do more than he can afford, or avoid a man who wants to follow the crowd. Never date a man who cannot make decisions on his own. Your man ought to be spiritually mature and able to control his tongue, serving God in spirit and truth.

CHAPTER 8

The Spec

The term “Spec” is used to describe a person's options. This decision takes into account the potential traits and personality of a potential partner. The ideal person to marry is your spec. Around the world, people have imagined their partner to be complete and flawless. Although this is not incorrect thinking, it has led to destructive marriages. Sometimes a person's choice is elusive and unrealistic. The individual looks for excellence in a fictitious person that he or she believes will marry. Some examples of these options include: A person needs to be extremely wealthy, a woman needs to be well-built in the right places, a man needs to have broad shoulders and a six-pack, a man needs to have beards, a woman needs to be fair and not dark, a man needs to not be a nerd, a man needs to be able to cuddle, a man needs to be able to take an offensive joke, a woman needs to be short, someone needs to have the fear of God Despite the fact that people have the right to make decisions, bias and lack of futuristic thinking can happen.

Your specification must be determined with the guidance of the Holy Spirit, not with care. Your ideal partner should complement you rather than replace you. You are not the second parent of your spec; rather, you are a potential help meet. Your spec is not someone you will begin training as a son or daughter. Never base your character on appearance, wealth, or social acceptance. If you're going to make a decision based on these factors, keep in mind that beauty begins to fade after a few years, and people will get bored of seeing the same face every day, losing interest. Second, old money will disappear and cannot be maintained without effort. Lastly, one only needs to be reasonable to be accepted everywhere.

You can choose who should be your spec, but it should have a good heart. He or she must be possessed of excellent character and the Holy Spirit. You will regret it if you marry out of pressure or pity, regardless of whether the person is your ideal match. Be a person who has a heart that is kind to others. When you get married to your dream girl, death is the only thing that can separate you from her because she respects you. As a man, let her be someone who can disagree with you and still apologize honestly. You have failed woefully if your spec is one who is packaged and uses a seductive voice but does not have a heart that is forgiving and respects you. In a marriage where there will be no pretense, forgiveness is essential because you will see each other make mistakes frequently.

The Holy Spirit must be present in your model. Since the Holy Spirit is a gift from God, he will show you genuine love because he knows that God is Love and that God loved the world so much that he gave his only son to the world without second thoughts. He or she is aware that only Christ's love can sustain a marriage, and that love will not. Only Christ's love will. The fruit of the Spirit is manifest in him or her. I think you don't want a spell that requires you to ward off demons each year or to pray every night for problems for which you have no idea where they came from.

Your specification ought to be honest and not merely designed to please you. He or she ought to be able to live alongside you and develop alongside you. He or she should be content and not begging you for 100,000 naira that you don't even have.

Your idea of the person should be able to change and be updated with your spec. Let him or her know what you want from your marriage and be willing to collaborate with you. The majority of marriages fail because the couple did not know what they were getting into, did not anticipate the in-laws to be antagonistic, the brothers to be free-spirited, or the partner to be casual.

Consistency should be possible with your specification. In marriage, consistency pays off. When you marry your partner, he or she will be able to continue doing whatever good deed they have achieved without stopping. He or she ought to be able to continue doing the thing that drew you both together. It should not be reduced to "eat, wash your mouth"

Your spec ought to be your companion and not your foe. Marriage is more enjoyable when a friend marries. Someone who is able to accept your shortcomings is a friend. He or she respects those you love and does not criticize you for your obvious differences. He or she listens to what is said and not said, and they help without being told. A friend is committed to your development and keeps your fire burning. He or she always shows support and genuine concern for you.

It is beautiful to be drawn to an amazing person, such as a man who is tall and muscular or a woman who has a curvy frame, a great thigh, and is fleshy despite not being skinny or plus size. However, it is pitiful to be drawn to a walking corpse.

Your spec should be healthy, in addition to being beautiful. Your spec should also be someone who is healthy and doesn't like to be dirty. He or she should be able to avoid junk food, be aware of their health status, and be aware of what the body rejects and does not like. Your candidate ought to be able to exercise, consume nutritious meals, eat fruits, drink water, and fall asleep on time.

Your specification ought to maintain honesty. He or she must be able to stand by what they say and not lie. A man who acts with honesty is highly prized. You should be able to trust your specification to tell you the truth. He or she must be loyal. In spite of the pressure, he or she ought to have the resolve not to violate one's personal ethics.

Any topic or issue should be able to be discussed intelligently with your spec. He or she must be able to question preconceived notions and offer novel concepts. Being well-informed and having a mature sense of comprehension are essential. It draws people in. Your spec should be able to understand messages, have common sense, and be humble enough to freely share knowledge with you. The goal is not to be the smartest person in the relationship; rather, it is to avoid being in a ship with two fools.

Someone who is financially secure and interested in business must be your spec. Even if they don't have any money, they should take part in what looks promising. They must be content with what they have and strive for greater things. He or she needs to be able to manage money. He or she ought to work for a living and generate their own income. The value of money is better understood by those who earn their own money without begging or stealing than by those who are perfect and do nothing profitable.

CHAPTER 9

The Best Friend

The informal term for a person's best friend is "bestie". As human beings, we typically align with those whose interests align with our own. An acquaintance lacks the special qualities of a best friend.

Your dearest companion is your compatriot, he/she is the individual you share your most profound mystery with. Your best friend is committed to your development and does not serve themselves.

A source of support is your best friend. He or she is there to cheer you up and give you hope. Your cheerleader is your best friend; even if no one else wants to be there, they will still be there.

You don't let your best friend hurt you or stab you in the back. He or she will assist you honestly and is always available. Your best friend always backs you up and says the right things about you. You don't have sexual relationships with your best friend. He or she is not the sex buddy you need or the warmth you require when you're cold. The person you kiss in the morning, kiss in the afternoon, and have sex with at night while pretending to be helping each other before getting married is not your best friend. When your partner is out of town, your best friend is not the one who warms your bed.

Your best friend is aware that your friendship serves a purpose and acts in accordance with that purpose. Together with you, your best friend works toward achieving goals.

The person who is able to resist the urge to fornicate is your best friend—not the person with whom you are intimate. Your best friend is not someone who tells other people that you are sleeping with him while praying. A friend who is brave enough to set boundaries and honours them is your best friend.

You can get honest feedback from your best friend because they don't try to impress you with flattering remarks and a fake smile. The person who can candidly identify your strengths and weaknesses is your best friend. Your accountability partner is your closest friend. He or she is concerned about your development and is looking for ways to advance you. The person who can confidently recommend you for a well-paying job is your best friend. The person who will keep your milestones in mind and celebrate them with you is your best friend. You won't be distracted from your objective by your best friend. Instead of speaking, he or she listens. He or she is completely behind you.

A god does not have a best friend. The person who plays the role of being there is your best friend. Despite their sincere desire to see you succeed, your best friend may regretfully reject your association. You will not pass on enemies to your best friend. Spiritually, they won't contaminate you. He or she respects what you believe in and won't force you to break your own personal ethics.

CHAPTER 10

Maturing

Being referred to as a wife or husband indicates that you have been trusted to carry out responsibilities. This is not a game for fun. In the same way that men can become husbands but not all men can be considered good husbands, women can be wives but not all women can be considered good wives. These roles clearly differ from one another.

A mature person is able to effectively carry out all of their responsibilities, including those that come with marriage. You will not mature in marriage; rather, you will grow and prepare for marriage as a single man or woman. When a man or woman is mature in marriage, he or she does not feel the need to share his or her life goals with others but rather quietly works on them.

Marriage is not a place where you experiment and believe you can leave at any time. You are mistaken if you are considering this option. Prepare for marriage as a single man or woman now that you are not committed. Take the time to listen to married people, ask questions, and gain knowledge. Make learning your sole focus during your one-on-one time. When you see a happy marriage, you shouldn't be typing and shouting, "God when?"Are you ready as a single person? Are you in charge? Do you think outside the box? Can you truly live? Are you conceited? Are you inept? Are you irrational? Are you growing as a person? Are you caught in a web? Are you expanding? It is impossible to conceal a single man or woman who has successfully prepared for marriage.

These individuals enter a relationship anticipating marriage. They are not sluggish; they believe that dating, courtship, and marriage require more. A man who is well-prepared for marriage will do exceptionally well both before and after marriage.

A man who is single and enters a relationship without first preparing for it is referred to as a child, whereas a man who has made preparations for marriage is referred to as a boyfriend, a fiancé, an excellent husband, or a good husband .He is a boyfriend when they are dating, a fiancé when there is a promise to marry, a husband when he marries, and a good father when he takes care of his siblings, the less fortunate, and orphans in addition to his own children.

A man is made rather than born. Every great man is the result of learning, changing, and growing. An excellent man is not one who is unable to express his emotions, but rather one who is able to do so while maintaining a positive outlook on them. If you're in a relationship that you think will end in marriage, it's important not to be dating a child. You should be able to tell when a male partner is having a child and leave.

A twenty-seven-year-old man who cannot control his anger is a child, not a mature person. A man, on the other hand, is a twenty-year-old who can rely on his partner. If your man in your relationship believes that he is the only one who matters, he is still a child. If he still refuses to grow, if he has trust issues, if he doesn't believe you can make the right decision, if he thinks he's competing with your male friends, if he still handles problems without thinking about how you'll react to them, if he doesn't respect his church leaders, his community leaders, his boss, or any other institutionalized authority, if he doesn't listen to his parents or talk to his siblings, if he does not think of the future and is not futuristic, then such a man is a grown child in an adult body.

Although it is an amazing process, selecting a female partner can be very risky if carelessness is not exercised. Being married to a virtuous woman is a joyous occasion. A virtuous woman is rare, far superior to diamond, and she effectively manages the home front in spiritual, physical, and other ways. She is not a free spirit. She supports and builds. A moral woman has her husband's trust and his faith in her. She is not a criminal; rather, she is a lowly and submissive woman who wants to encourage, help her partner, and help the partner's vision grow.

It is impossible to imitate a moral woman. If the woman with whom you are romantically involved claims to be moral, but you observe; She is a gold digger, she lies and pretends to be who she is not, she needs to be dolled up before she can consider herself beautiful, she can't react understandably to your needs, she considers your act of giving as unnecessary and uncalled for, she cannot take corrections, she is not financially independent, she relies on someone for affirmation, she cannot become better, she needs you to be always with her without being concerned about your productivity, she believes sex is sexual, she believes the world She does not respect authority, believes you must inherit her enemies, cannot accept she is wrong, and is not futuristic before marriage get out. You will regret her later in life.

CHAPTER 11

Praying to God for a Life Partner

Dating a man whom God has blessed you with is a wonderful thing. God safeguards these relationships, but they will fail if both parties fail to understand why they are together.

As a single man or woman, you'll be hurt when you see your classmates, friends, or colleagues getting married because you're either older than them, better than them, or have waited a long time with nothing to show for it.

You are not alone, so you must invite God into your love life. You do this by acknowledging God's power and reminding him of his promise that those who wait on the Lord will never be shamed. Knowing that you can communicate with God in a variety of ways, including through prayers, is essential.

You are taught to pray effectively as a Christian so that you can effectively pray to God for a man with this background. By knowing what you want, you can pray to God for a man effectively. If you don't have a specific need, don't go to the altar of prayer. If you want to know when your prayer has been answered, tell God what you want and ask for a sign. For instance, if you are a Nigerian student and are required to pay your school fees by the following week, you not only inform your sponsor of this information but also specify the requirement. It would be absurd to request one hundred thousand or one thousand naira for school fees if you were to pay fifty thousand naira. Therefore, if you want someone who will complement you, neither pray for someone who will complete you nor pray for any kind of person so long as she loves God, ask for what you want and trust God to grant your request. If you need someone who will complement you, pray for them. God isn't a creator of disarray, he wants you to address him like a dad expressing your requirements.

Properly pray. The Christian body is taught how to pray in the Bible, and it even says that you should pray consistently as a Christian. Supplicate with the motivation of the Essence of God and allowed the Essence of God to give testimony. We can use the power that the Holy Spirit gives us to pray with groaning to bring God into action. Be deliberate when asking God for a partner in life.

Don't ask questions, just make requests."God where is my own" is not a prayer but a question, and "God when" is not a prayer. Make requests rather than asking questions. When you pray, don't tell your life story. Instead, tell God where you are going and thank him in advance for it. If you really want to sleep, lay down and sleep. Do not begin to sleep. If it continues during each prayer session, in the name of Jesus, command that demon to leave.

Don't pretend that you're getting older quickly and have nothing left to show for it. Shut up; God should be praised for the fact that you are life. Numerous individuals are currently dying, many of whom are ill, and many of whom do not even have the opportunity to have a partner who merely wishes to survive. When praying, don't overdo it. If you are above average, you shouldn't complain to God that you are poor and want a rich partner. Change, you despise those who do not even have anything, you despise those who beg for their lives, and you despise the disabled who are attempting to maintain their financial stability.

Remind God of your service in his kingdom and his promises to you, which are written in the Bible, rather than exaggerating. In the name of Jesus, humbly ask. The Bible teaches that we will receive our requests in Jesus' name. This is a power, so use it and do things that make you and God agree that your prayers will be answered.

Be sincere because only you know your flaws and what you do in the darkest hours. Don't be afraid to ask God for mercy if you need it. In the event that you have sinned against God and your body, beg for mercy. Talk to God about your mistakes and how much you've changed with his help. Cry out to God for new life and purity. Cry out to God to spare you and use you as a vessel.

Because Satan, not God, is your king, you will never have a share in Christ if you are lost to the world. Accept Christ as Lord and King to share in God's blessing. God is hanging tight for you, it's not past the point of no return come into the full salvation in Christ. Recognize that God lives you and gave his one and only son to die for you. If you did something of which you are ashamed, don't show it to God. Only God, not a man or even the God you're praying for, can understand why you did it. God is your guide. Wait to hear from God as you pray.

Pay close attention, refrain from bringing your feelings into the conversation, ask questions, and seek clarification. Make it a priority to always listen to God because he speaks constantly. When you listen to God, you gain insight, an understanding of what ought to happen and why, strength, and a personal conviction. Before you know what God is saying, you won't have to rely on a pastor for advice on how to live your life.

Like you, your pastor has a life of his own and is in charge of it. Take control of your life; your pastor can't be your life's driver. With the guidance of the Holy Spirit, study the Bible and read it. Instead of reading with your own understanding, ask the Holy Spirit to help you comprehend everything that has been written. Learn about the early Christians' lives by reading the Bible.

Learn how to deal with pressure and wait patiently for the fulfilment of God's promises and words. A Christian man or woman who studies the Bible is distinct from a non-Christian man or woman. When you study the words, you get access to God's word, it opens you up, it propels you, it inspires you to not settle for less, and it gives you the courage to tell the devil that he is a loser and that you are more than conqueror. Know where God wants you to go. Choose to obey God or fail in your marriage; neither man nor woman can force you to make a decision about God. Don't say that God told you in a dream that she is the one for you and don't buy books on marriage to give to someone you don't want to marry.

Be kind to yourself. Have a personal conviction and take steps to appreciate the man or woman if God is leading you to marry them. Be able to go on a date and discuss like humans, refrain from fidgeting or speaking in a manner that will not be understood, and don't start bombarding them with verses from Songs of Solomon. Also, don't send them unnecessary text messages or call her mother. God will make it perfect if he has led you to marry a man or woman. Be calm and don't rush the timing. The race is won by slow and steady.

Take note of impressions—impressions are inspirations from God. Your decision to marry a man was prompted by God, but that does not mean it is binding. Make sure that any impressions you have speak to God are genuine and seek God's guidance on how to carry out the task at hand.

Effectively pray. It is common knowledge that you pray for a life partner; however, when you pray, express gratitude. Thank God for the marriage, for a blessed process, for your future spouse's life, for his or her improvement, and for your unborn children. We should give thanks to God for everything. Allow it to be a culture. Come to the altar of prayer with humility and humility. God despises proud people. By praying for your life partner, you are not doing God a favour; rather, you are doing yourself a favour.

Be humble when you ask, when you seek him, and when you steadfastly worship him, even when you are unsure of what you can accomplish. Be reliable in petition, ask intensely. Pray without ceasing. The righteous' fervent prayer has a significant impact. Pray for others, pray for the nation, and not because you have a request. Keep praying, even if your prayers are answered. You have been blessed with a favour that someone needs, so pray that God will grant their wishes.

CHAPTER 12

Finding a man

You shouldn't be surprised if you go to a wedding with the idea that your potential husband might be there, and you shouldn't be surprised if you go to a birthday party, training, seminar, church, or any other event with the idea that your life partner might be there. Many people are going through the same thing as you.

It is important to look in the right places if you want to meet your life partner, but it is not necessarily wrong to do so. A Christian man or woman who wants to marry a Christian woman or man must look for them in Christ. You don't have to go to a club house where you have to order a drink, light a cigarette or shisha, and grind with strippers in the hopes of finding her.

A Christian man or woman will never be found in such a place. The Christian individual who asserts to be evangelizing must be questioned appropriately. A Christian person's role in evangelism is not to live out the world's sins but rather to bring them to repentance through the word of God. If you don't know how to dress well, you won't find a man or woman with good taste in clothes. If you wear clothes that show off your body, you will never find a man or woman who covers his or her body. You will never succeed because you are not the same, and God will never marry a rouge. In addition, you will never come across a person who has undergone transformation while remaining unchanged. You will never be able to be in a relationship with someone whose life has been fixed and their problems addressed if you have a negative attitude, lack vision, are bad, or are dirty.

Go do something for yourself. Don't make it seem like life has always been bad to you; package yourself and look presentable. Nobody has it right in this life, so don't make it seem like it has. Know yourself, love yourself, get better, stop being lazy, find your purpose, and live your purpose. Be able to walk away from a man or woman if you are turned down if you have seen them and are interested in them. It's not a bad idea to try. Never assume a relationship just because you think they feel the same way about you. Most of the time, people confuse agape Love with romantic attraction. Maintain self-control and rely on God for direction. Never put your feelings on the line. These days, intuition is nothing more than a person's accumulated decisions and ideas—nothing serious.

Value yourself, but not in an excessive or unnecessary way. Know when it gets too extreme if you're a woman trying to play the "hard to get" game. We have insecure individuals, but no one is cheap. The individual who labels you as cheap has a problem with their identity and has low self-esteem. Stop wasting time in the name of proving your worth if you are attracted to someone and they are attracted to you. Pair a rouge with his own.

In addition, you will never come across a person who has undergone transformation while remaining unchanged. You will never be able to be in a relationship with someone whose life has been fixed and their problems addressed if you have a negative attitude, lack vision, are bad, or are dirty. Go do something for yourself. Don't make it seem like life has always been bad to you; package yourself and look presentable. Nobody has it right in this life, so don't make it seem like it has.

Know yourself, love yourself, get better, stop being lazy, find your purpose, and live your purpose. Be able to walk away from a man or woman if you are turned down if you have seen them and are interested in them. It's not a bad idea to try. Never assume a relationship just because you think they feel the same way about you.

Most of the time, people confuse agape Love with romantic attraction. Maintain self-control and rely on God for direction. Never put your feelings on the line. These days, intuition is nothing more than a person's accumulated decisions and ideas—nothing serious. Value yourself, but not in an excessive or unnecessary way. Know when it gets too extreme if you're a woman trying to play the "hard to get" game. We have insecure individuals, but no one is cheap. The individual who labels you as cheap has a problem with their identity and has low self-esteem. Stop wasting time in the name of proving your worth if you are attracted to someone and they are attracted to you.

CHAPTER 13

Saying No to different People

Individuals love consideration and you are no special case. You should be able to say no to other men or women who might want your attention when you are committed to a relationship. It doesn't matter if your partner has more experience or is wealthier.

Avoid implying that you are available through your words or actions if you are unable to say no or if you do say no but men or women still come to you. Men shouldn't say things like, "I'm dreaming of having sex with you under the rain," "I want a fleshy girl to ask you to massage her laps in front of your friends and she will do the same," or "I'm dreaming of having sex with you under the rain." Women shouldn't say things like, "someone should come and romance me."

Be careful how you communicate. Use the missing you emoji sparingly, the love emoji sparingly, and the can we have a family emoji sparingly. You are only deceiving yourself if you do these things, and you are not ready to commit. Don't send nude photos if you're told to. You may believe that sending it does not change your virginity status, but in fact, it does worse and breeds sin. A man or woman who tells you that not sending them shows you don't love them is just lying to you. He or she may threaten to blackmail you or block you, but tell them to go ahead because a relationship is bound to fail badly, whether you send nudes or not, and it will become clear quickly.

Reduce the amount of time you spend talking to other people, tell them you're busy, and they'll stop bothering you. A man or woman with whom you chat 24 hours a day on WhatsApp will believe that you have time for them. He or she will expect you to completely focus on them and give up everything else.

Avoid thinking about them. You shouldn't spend your waking hours thinking about or picturing a person you aren't committed to. You should be brave enough to turn off everything else that doesn't help your relationship and be able to control your thoughts so that you don't think about how you would do better with him or her than with your partner.

Say that you need some alone time or a break and that you don't see them as a problem, but it would be wise for them to keep their distance. Let everyone know that you don't need to be distracted because you're concentrating on what life has to offer and planning for the future.

Unwanted gifts should be rejected. Refuse any gifts that a man or woman sends you without a valid reason because they are a trap. A person who gives a gift to another person always has an interest in them, and by accepting the gift, you give your permission for them to do whatever they want. A gift given without justification is a trap.

Know when to look away from something that will buy your soul and be able to tell. Keep an eye on your actions and let them speak for you loudly. Be able to respect others while maintaining distance. Don't make people feel loved, and don't act like you have a close relationship when you don't. Consistently, let your activity be fair. Posting and filming a twerk video in a room with ten men is an invitation for unwanted sexual advances for women.

You are insensible if you are a man and take pleasure in discussing the length and size of your phallus. Don't act like a rogue and expect to be treated like a king; don't act like a person who doesn't have sex and expect to be treated like a normal person; and don't suggest sex and scream when you're cornered and raped. Don't be the one who created your own issue. Be able to convey to your friend that you won't be able to connect with them as you have in the past by using words. If you want to end a secret relationship with your best friend that just warms your bed, tell them right away. Don't let your actions fool you into thinking you're not interested.

Act and speak it. Let someone know if you don't want to be friends with them for a good reason. Keep them in the background, don't ghost them, and communicate well and well.

Be bold in what you say and stand by it, communicate effectively. Quiet isn't suggested assent and can never be nevertheless obliviousness will constantly be delight. You've learned, you know what to do, don't pretend, and don't expect anyone to help you mature. Help yourself, or the result will be destructive, which will happen quickly. Be aware that you are entering a relationship rather than a house. Don't bring everything you've got; bring a new heart. Don't lie if you're in a relationship. Act like it.

You are either single or in a relationship. You can't be in a relationship and not be in one, nor can you be in a relationship that is complicated. Be aware of what you want and stand up for it. You can't have everything you want. Be aware of the things that your relationship means to you and ensure that it matures. Try not to help your accomplice to remember your obligation to the relationship yet at the same time visit with another man who is letting you know the amount he cherishes you grinning timidly.

Be dependable. Don't hook up with other women when you're single, don't have sex with a woman, and don't lie when you're caught saying you were just going to the bathroom. The truth is that you lack self-control, shamelessness, and empathy. If you don't follow your sexual urge, it won't kill you. Sending a video of yourself masturbating to a man while you are a single woman is sheer stupidity. Don't fool yourself into thinking that it doesn't change anything; it does. This particular act demonstrates that you can be unfaithful to any extent. Keep in mind that the internet will never forget what you did, regardless of the promise that the video will be deleted to a certain extent.

Be brave. If when you tell a man off, be brave and stick to your decision. Even if you don't criticize someone, don't go to them for help that shouldn't be there. You'll have to pay for the assistance you get.

Don't be needy or vulnerable. Don't act as though you regret your decision if you are in a relationship and have made it clear that you are not interested in another man. When you are praying in church, you are not allowed to hold hands with that person before you can feel the Holy Spirit. Because a man or woman is not your god, you can succeed without them sending you encouraging messages.

Help yourself by finding who you are. Don't put yourself in a position where you'll have to run to someone you were once drawn to for assistance if you're going through a course knowing everything that needs to be done and carrying everything that needs to be done.

CHAPTER 14

Financial Independence

Financial independence is the status of having enough income and what it can provide, as well as learning how to make a product accessible to those who need it most in your environment.

Avoid investing nothing. Instead of working and investing nothing, put your money in the right places. There are honest people in the financial sector, as well as criminals. Learn how to invest without complaining during an economic recession and price inflation.

Refrain from purchasing debts. Avoid purchasing something that will lose value over time. Don't let what you buy waste your money; instead, let it serve you well. Don't buy the clothing you want if you know it's a trend and won't help you in the long run. Don't buy that car because you want to because it's cheap. Before it works well, that car needs total maintenance every time. Don't spend money on things you won't use.

Don't spend your salary right away; it's there for later. Don't feel compelled to touch it; instead, use your side income to work on it. Don't let your partner pressure you into using your salary in advance if you're in a relationship. Once you start doing this, it will continue. Your partner's needs to please other people and feel welcome are sometimes pointless. If your partner is unable to provide you with compelling reasons to buy the most recent wristwatch or artificial hair, they should not exert pressure on you to do so. Financial Independence having enough money to cover one's living costs without relying on others is considered financial independence. Unfortunately, young people in our society are still financially dependent. Sometimes it's not their fault, but rather the situation they're in and the strength of the nation's economy. However, you shouldn't let this stop you from becoming financially independent; instead, you should learn how to save wisely.

There is always a call to save, and you are told to save your income at seminars and meetings. However, it is not said to avoid saving incorrectly. If your daily income is one thousand naira and you save seven hundred naira, you are not saving correctly. When you save this way, you are not taking into account the provision of your basic needs, investments, and money for personal development. In short, you need to start saving money when you have extra money. You will have to use the money you save to buy food, medicine if you get sick, toiletries, and transportation, so saving with money that is roughly your lowest possible income is a recipe for disaster.

Keep your extra cash in a savings account. You won't see any immediate benefits from saving, but investing is a scam. Spend wisely. The fact that there are businesses that say they will pay you every day if you invest money in them is no longer news. You should be able to buy shares from an organization that wants you to make money off of them. If you are compelled to invest in a company and do not inquire, there is every possibility that the company is not even legally registered. Some people want your money so they can fulfil a personal need, while others just want to encourage you to keep hoping and refer more people so they can earn more points. If you want to put your money into anything, you should first talk to a financial professional about your options. So that you don't get high blood pressure at a young age, learn the ins and outs of the market, how much you'll make, and how much you'll lose.

Avoid impulsive purchases. Don't buy a product because you want to; if you don't need it, don't buy it. Don't bring your emotions into financial matters. Don't buy a product if you don't need it right away. Don't buy a product if you haven't budgeted for its purchase. Avoid gratification in a flash. Try not to trick yourself that you are helping the advertiser business to develop, you are not on the grounds that you won't utilize the item neither will you give the maker a criticism or prescribe the item to other likely clients.

Loyalty is not the same as buying something you like if you don't need it. Being able to support the manufacturer directly, raising awareness of the product, purchasing the product, and asking the manufacturer whether the product will appreciate or decrease in value in the next five years are all examples of loyalty. Don't buy food from "mama put" every day; cook your own meals. Learn to cook if you cannot cook. In a week, you'll spend one thousand and fifty naira if you buy fifty naira worth of food three times a day. Even though it may appear insignificant at first, this sum will eventually make a significant difference when you realize how low your funds have become. If it's a treat for yourself or you can't make your own food, you can eat out. You should get it.

Be responsible. Take charge of how you spend your money. Create a budget and be able to keep track of your income and expenses. If you have a modification, take it and save it. Don't charge too much or too little. Don't put yourself in a position where you'll have to work with a deficit in your budget. Instead, make financial moves that will give you a lot of advantages and don't wait for everyone else to do it first. The receipts that you don't need should go in the trash. Don't put off paying your bills until they're past due.

Avoid inheriting debt, do not borrow, and do not make late payments. Take good care of yourself. Eat well, exercise, and have health insurance. Make the most of your financial opportunities at work, take advantage of them all, work smart, and be acknowledged by your boss. Enjoy the advantages of working above and beyond average.

CHAPTER 15

Sex before marriage

Before getting married, sex is when the penis enters the vagina. The act of inserting the phallus into the vagina for sexual pleasure, reproduction, or both is known as sexual intercourse. Vaginal sex, not oral sex, domineering sex, or masturbation, constitutes sexual activity.

Typically, sex is only performed with both parties' consent; male and female Sexual intercourse without consent will be considered rape. In Nigeria, having sexual relations with anyone under the age of eighteen or with anyone who has not been legally recognized as an adult is against the law and punishable by law. Rape is not committed through forced sex with consent.

Sex is reserved for married people, not for single people. Dating can't grow if you have sex with someone. Most young people have had sex before marriage, engaged in bestiality, or masturbated as a result of pressure. A man or a woman may have justifications for such an act, including homosexuality and lesbianism, but it is completely wrong. There may be written research on the advantages of such actions, but Christians are not to follow the world.

The Bible says that men and women should avoid immorality and impurity, and it says that people who are impure, immoral, or who practice homosexuality or lesbianism won't be able to enter the Kingdom of God. Christians are warned by the Bible not to do anything impure or immoral. Sexual immorality is a sin against the body, which is the dwelling place of the Holy Spirit who dwells within each of us. Sexual immorality contaminates a person and renders him unsuitable for God's dwelling place.

As a man or woman, wanting to have sex before getting married is sinful and unholy. In order to suppress your sexual desires, you need to exercise self-control and discipline. There is a tendency to be turned on in a relationship, but it is your responsibility to resist the desire for sex. Don't kiss, smooch, or cuddle; these actions only exacerbate a situation you may not be able to control.

Around the world, a lot has been said about having sex before marriage, but whether someone chooses to resist or accept it is up to them. Avoid staying alone as a single person if you want to know no one until you get married. If you need to talk to your partner, do so in a group setting. Participate in activities with other people rather than alone. Be able to live independently and communicate with others; if you need privacy, you can talk in a busy restaurant, a restaurant, or any other public place.

Stay away from isolated areas. If you want to visit your partner, do so when your family is nearby. Don't invite him or her over to talk, rest, or do anything else because when you finish what you set out to do, you'll think of having sex in the absence of anyone else.

Avoid kissing; a single kiss has resulted in numerous events. If you are not careful, a kiss can result in smooching, touching, massaging, and other activities. You won't die if you avoid heart warming stories, don't kiss your partner until you get married, and exercise self-control.

Prevent foreplay. Do not touch your partner without discretion; if you do, you will be forced to have sex with him or her because you are physically attracted to him or her and they are appealing. This is what many people find attractive. Keep an eye on what you read and watch.

Don't read books that make you think of sexual pleasure as a responsible partner. Guessing what such writing permits you might be thinking to truly envision each scene depicted with your accomplice in your mind. You will want to have sex, whether there is penetration or not, whether you are being touched in the right places or deeply kissed, even if it wasn't planned.

Don't watch pornographic content or movies with sexual content. Take care of yourself. If you absolutely need to watch a romantic comedy, consider the reasoning behind your decision.

Walk away politely if your phallus is rising. If you need privacy, ask for it and make sure you get it—as a woman, you shouldn't walk around without a bra or pants in front of your partner. When your partner comes to check on you, the fact that you are tying up a towel should not be taken as an invitation to have sex in the shower or anywhere else. Instead, tell your partner to wait for you while you get dressed. Although you may be partners, you are not permitted to act freely.

Discipline yourself and be able to uphold rules. Be a partner who is able to tell their partner, "no, I can't kiss you," "no, I can't see you makes before marriage," and "we need to leave now."

Also, don't masturbate. Never have sex with an artificial object. Avoid touching oneself. Invoke the Holy Spirit for assistance. You are the same as a man or woman who practices homosexuality or lesbianism if you have the courage to masturbate.

Be careful with your communication; we know you love your partner, but you shouldn't sex text or make sexually suggestive gestures.

CHAPTER 16

Dating

Dating is the first phase of a relationship that eventually leads to marriage. Dating is a time when two people connect, communicate, and talk about the future. The person you are dating might or might not get married.

If it leads to marriage, dating is a phase. Grow together for at least three years. Either a man or woman can be rejected or accepted. It serves as the foundation for those contemplating marriage. It grows over time and is a process.

A man and a woman should be attracted to one another before they date. Both parties cannot date if there is no attraction. Friends call this situation "friend zoning."Pride can cause a person to be friend zoned.

A man or woman who is self-assured runs the risk of being friend zoned. If a man or woman is egotistical, incapable of apologizing for being late, and lousy, they will probably also be friend zoned.

A man or woman who has no character and only wants to get down will always be considered a friend and never a partner. He or she will always want to have sex and be horny. Additionally, bad manners are demoralizing.

A person who is extremely introverted will be friend zoned. Such a person cannot interact with other people because they are extremely shy and vulnerable. A person who tells many lies and promises things that aren't true is fake.

It is insane for someone to promise to change your life, the life of your family, and the life of your community after meeting you for the first time. A person who is dirty will unquestionably be friend zoned.

It is expected of one to maintain cleanliness at all times. Because they are not futuristic, a person who does not have a vision will be friend zoned. He or she has no idea what the future holds. When a man or woman simply says "hi," the person who has unrealistic expectations and imaginations, such as getting married and having children, will be friend zoned. Dating is a revelatory experience that reveals both men and women's past, present, and future. Men and women ought to be able to talk about what they value while dating. Give your partner an idea of what you care about, value, and appreciate. This will direct their actions and improve their comprehension of you. It will likewise permit him/her to see the value in you for what your identity is and not what he/she needs.

Have discussions about your dislikes; if there are things you don't like or do well, tell your partner about them. Betrayers should be informed by your partner if you dislike liars. Talk a lot about your problems and limitations. If you try to change your partner, you'll only make a monster out of them. Be the kind that he or she is. Allow him or her to be unique in their own way. If he wants to change, he should be able to. Don't be opposites; instead, work well together. It won't be fun to date someone like you.

Align, because two people can't walk together unless they agree. You ought to share similar values. Be the ideal person to yourself. Be mature Christians with comprehension. Have wisdom, but not the world's wisdom. Your partner ought to be morally upright and have personal convictions. For a relationship to last, the word of God must be the ultimate authority. Know your partner's identity and the reasons behind his or her behaviour.

Don't be naive. Respect not only your partner but also those below you. Watching how your partner treats other people will help you learn more about who they really are. Be considerate and kind. Be concerned about your partner's well-being and development. If you don't think they're doing well, talk to them and make sure they're fine. Maintain a positive attitude, be courteous, and be able to compliment and encourage your partner. Know your genotype and blood group, as well as your health status. Know your partner's genotype and blood group.

Finally, be trustworthy and honest. Know what he or she is allergic to or comfortable with. Truth sustains a successful relationship.

CHAPTER 17

Courtship

After a promise to marry, a phase known as courtship begins. This is a very important phase. Even though you have promised to get married, you shouldn't live together during the courtship. Instead, you should be able to use your sense of discernment when you talk about life issues with your partner.

During this time, you can get to know your partner's parents and find out if they are more traditional than conventional or vice versa, if they have expectations that need to be met, and if you will need to perform a traditional ceremony to show your commitment to fidelity in the marriage. Understand what they like and aversion, find out about their qualities, what they maintain and set as a norm and understand what they confidence in. Be bold and ask them why you are not wanted in the family if they do not appreciate you as a potential son-in-law or daughter-in-law. Make an effort to present yourself in a positive light when you talk to your partner, but don't force it. You and your partner should be able to choose the church where you will worship. Will the both of you love together? Be able to decide in advance whether you will serve as a family or separately as church leaders or workers? Will he or she want to worship in a different church, or will they prefer to remain in the church they belong to? Does he or she believe that they can worship at any location? Avoid situations in which a husband and wife must worship in different denominations by not suggesting a balance when you have not discussed it.

Discuss the possibility of further development as partners in the future. You can find out if the person you want to marry is ready to focus on the family by asking them questions. Know what he or she thinks about child delaying, losing a job, dying, being disabled, divorce, separation, managing anger, sex without consent, and abuse. Know what your partner thinks about your marriage's growth and development; marriage shouldn't be the reason he or she doesn't advance academically or professionally. Make decisions regarding your finances, spirituality, social standing, and influence, the number of children you will have or adopt, child spacing, and birth control. Will they prefer to share a vehicle or have their own? Will they desire to start with a car or furniture for the house?

Be able to ask yourself how you want to advance and what you're doing wrong. Even if they seem insignificant, learn about things that your partner considers non-negotiable. Place a demand on your partner to answer questions about the possibility of a future together with you and the children rather than guessing the answers. Have discussions about the kind of house you'll live in and the possible location. Know where you'll live. Find out if your partner is ready to live in a "face me face you" compound, a single room, or a self-contained unit after living in a rented house for at least a year, in a family home, or with a senior family member.

Will he/she stand by till you complete a venture prior to building a house? How does he or she feel about being given a house, car, or other item that raises one's social status? Find out if your partner will be able to afford to live in a rural area rather than an urban one. Does he or she consider a farm or garden to be part of a house? If you are unable to complete your house due to financial difficulties, will he or she be committed to being subject to a land lord or land lady for more than three years? In an effort to get married quickly, don't let your partner pretend that he or she will be able to handle things when he or she won't be able to. Instead, ask questions and demand truthful responses from them. You shouldn't marry someone who can't keep his or her word.

Determine how you will spend the holidays. Consider whether you'll prefer to spend the holidays alone with your partner or with your children. Will you be required to visit your parents and give them gifts during the holidays, or will they be required to visit you? Will you go to your in-laws separately or together? Do you prefer to go on vacation by yourself or with your loved ones? Will you make a purchase? Will you get presents? Will you plan delicious meals? Will you furnish the home?

Decide how the youngsters will be taught, will the kids need to spend their early stages self-taught or being signed up for a school? Which of the two schools will the children attend? Will they need to start school at a young age? Will school be held at home or overseas? Will they attend school at home or stay in the hostel? Find out at what age your partner will begin teaching children about sex and abuse. Will they be required to learn it in school, or will you instruct them at home first? Will the youngsters be permitted to use technology or only read books? Are they able to inquire? When will they be allowed to make their own decisions? When do you anticipate them to complete the higher education?

Know how your partner feels about disciplining children. Will they let the child be beaten? Will he or she gently correct the child or scold them? Decide how the family's earnings will be distributed and how the money will be managed. Will each person manage their own funds or will they use a joint account? Make decisions about how much should come from your partner, who should pay the bills, and whether you will invest or save your money.

Are you covered by insurance? Will you or whoever brings something to the table make contributions? Find out who will pay for the children's school fees, groceries, house and shop rent, house and shop maintenance, gifts for the children and their parents and in-laws, etc. Learn about your partner's approach to financial responsibility. Does he or she travel to pay bills? When you ask for money, does he or she turn off their phone and mark it as "phone shut down"? Does he or she avoid responsibility? Does he or she effectively manage money? Discuss family visits and whether you will welcome in-laws to your home.

Find out if your partner allows visitors to stay at home. Does he or she have to invite an in-law to stay at home for more than a year? Can he or she let relatives visit and stay for a long time? Is it possible for them to let your in-laws use the tools? What is his or her opinion about living with your mother, father, or both parties until they pass away, regardless of whether they are ill or not? Is it possible for him or her to care for a family member who is an orphan, fatherless, or motherless person without treating them like slaves?

Can your partner let your family cook or enter the kitchen? Know your partner's thoughts on being called "our wife" or "our husband" by everyone in the village and beyond, as well as on relatives who feel they must share everything with the family, including the bedroom and the bathroom. Does he or she like the idea of old women who love you calling you husband or wife? Does he or she welcome the idea that people who are not your biological children will refer to you as "mama," "papa," or "father"?During courtship, ask your partner sensitive and important questions about your in-laws to find out if he or she is ready to treat those who raised you as family, even if they are not your blood relatives. Discuss the children's names and know how they will be named. Can your in-laws, friends, or co workers identify them, or is it just you?

Will the difficulties encountered during childbirth influence a child's name or the inspiration of the Holy Spirit? Find out what your partner thinks about giving a child a native or English name. Can the child be given a name in another language? Learn more about naming a child after a deceased relative, friend, or co worker. Will your partner be okay with naming a child after a spiritual or national leader? Will he or she want the child to be identified at home, at school, in the church, in the community, and in society with a variety of specialized names? Discuss the ways in which you will live while working in various states. If your partner works in a different state, will you relocate to that location or live separately?

Be aware of your partner's thoughts on living apart as a family; will he or she take care of the family while you work in a different state? When you're out of the country, will he or she be able to run the home front? Know your partner's capacity to manage a family on their own in times of emergency and without you. Find out if he or she will require assistance carrying out responsibilities when you are not there.

CHAPTER 18

Marriage

God recognizes marriage as a religious institution. The Bible commands men to get married for the purpose of having children.

You will go through a lot in marriage, but it should not lead to a divorce; you can choose to separate. You will face challenges, especially in the first five years of your marriage, but you must remember what brought you and your partner together as husband and wife, and you must be able to pray effectively and cry out to God. Marriage is not all sweetness and glory. There will be spiritual forces attempting to influence your marriage; however, you must be able to rise to the occasion and serve as the gatekeeper for your family.

You must be understanding, don't beat your significant other/spouse with the words that continue out of your mouth. Have the option to empower when him/her turns into a casualty of extortion, don't insult him/her however learn all the more so you could be in a superior spot to counsel.

There will be days when you won't be able to eat and you won't have any money when you get home from work. There will also be times when the school fees for your children won't be paid or a child will get very sick and you won't have any hope. But if you call on God, he will help you. You might have to take care of the family on your own if your partner becomes disabled.

You must be able to effectively support your family and advocate on their behalf .Keep in mind that your partner did not always have a disability; rather, life just happened, so instead of crying and wailing, rise to the occasion and carry out your obligation with love and the support of others.

Make an effort to rekindle love in your marriage. Keep doing the things that made you attractive to your partner. In the event that it is your melody, sing consistently and get the kids to deliver their voice, assuming it is your sympathy, don't quit offering grace. If you always surprised your partner with gifts before you got married, keep doing that, even though it won't be the same as it was before. Improve your strategy.

You are not required to host a large gathering; it can be just you, your partner, and your children or just you and your partner. Do things together, talk about God's promises to you, laugh together, play with the kids, cook together, try new foods together, shop together, dance together. Just take a few minutes to yourself without worrying that the baby might be crying or that your child might still be awake because he or she doesn't want to sleep without being embraced.

Be deliberate about getting to know your partner and get involved in everything he or she does. If he or she wishes to further his or her education, encourage him or her to apply, assist in interview preparation, and revise with them. Marriage is not a reason not to get to know your partner better. Know what colour brush he or she likes to use, what kind of dress he or she likes to wear, and how he or she combs or brushes their hair.

Always show your partner appreciation. Tell the person who changed the nappies that you appreciate it. Say thank you if he or she helped you with the dishes and housework, if they came back earlier from work to celebrate your wedding anniversary, if they helped you get ready for work, etc.

Be in touch with your partner, not apart. Tell him or her about what you saw at work or at home. Discuss your development and how much better you both have become. Regardless of whether your partner works remotely or abroad, take the time to inquire about how their day was. Be able to deal with losing a job and losing money. Life occurs. Be there for your partner when he or she loses their job and encourage them to find a new one.

You can suggest jobs for him or her and even recommend them to your connections and the best players in the business sector. Assume greater responsibility and work toward personal development. Support your partner's growth by helping with household chores. Enjoy your marriage, be aware of what works in it, follow your rules, and avoid side conversations.

CHAPTER 19

Seeking Counselling

The act of seeking professional assistance and direction in resolving personal or psychological issues is known as counselling. Counsellors share the same characteristics, but they do not advise on the same topics. They have good training and don't care about themselves. A counselor has tough skin because they have been through what you are going through.

Counselors are people whose life's mission is to assist you in achieving marital and romantic success. A person who is authorized by law to deal with specific issues that pertain to you is known as a counselor. Counselors are people who have successfully overcome similar challenges to yours. You can learn from a counselor because they won't lie to you. He or she is not a counselor; rather, they are your pastor. Your instructor isn't a guide, he/she is an educator. A market woman is a businesswoman, not a counselor. A great relationship is earned rather than wished for.

You won't find two egotistic people in an excellent relationship who want to speak first and last. It is one in which both partners strengthen one another and are redirected rather than rejected.

You will encounter difficulties in your relationship, disagreements, feelings of withdrawal, and challenges, but remain resilient and seek assistance when necessary. Don't be afraid to seek relationship counseling if you don't believe you can handle it on your own. Seek counseling from a person you can submit to and obey. Be honest with yourself and willing to learn. Learn from them, listen to their messages, read their books, attend seminars hosted by them, and identify yourself with them—God has raised people to enforce his kingdom in relationships and marriages.

Your mentor isn't to be your dad or your mom, your folks are as yet yours whether they succeeded in their marriage or bombed in their marriage. Keep clear boundaries between you and your therapist, and don't be afraid to go to sessions with your partner. Your counselor ought to be able to speak with experience and wisdom. The Holy Spirit should be present in your counselor. He or she cannot be sexual. A disrespectful counselor will want you to end a promising relationship because they are interested in themselves and wouldn't mind seducing you. Relax and hold onto the word of God and his promise that those who put their trust in him will never be shamed. Don't get lost on this journey; many people may make you feel like you're wasting your time and not enjoying life.

Give your relationship a chance and give it time to develop. The man who does not call you round the clock is working on becoming a better husband. Because he is working on himself, he won't have enough time to write you poems, send love letters, or express his appreciation for you. A woman, on the other hand, is praying for the future if she does not call you at the most inopportune time. Don't discount such noble deeds. Keep praying to God for your partner's survival and give thanks for the actions they are taking that are hidden from view.

Love never ceases to be love. Make it a personal choice to value the people you have in your life. If you don't make this choice, you'll go to the best counseling session but never get the answers you need, and you'll even meet the best counselor but never find your way. If your partner is working on himself, the fact that he is financially unstable now does not mean that he will remain so in the next five years. Your partner won't be ill forever if you stand by him or her and give them emotional support. Don't judge your partner because he or she isn't whole because they are disabled in the body; instead, look at them as the person you see.

In your relationship, your challenge is to not say "I love you" more than once in a day, week, or year. Your challenge is to make your relationship more valuable and fulfill its purpose. If you don't change your perspective, the problems you think you're having will never be solved. Stop comparing yourself to others and take pride in your achievements. Many people want a relationship in which Christ is at the center, but they constantly eat with the devil, not even his agent. Others want a good woman but only date a woman who is manipulative.

If you are content in your relationship, move forward and do not resent others who have not succeeded. Pray for them because many people have lost their lives, property, reputation, worth, value, self-respect, sanity, joy, passion, and zeal due to the relationship part of life. Others have given up on the idea of being with a good person who will appreciate them for who they are rather than what they look like.

You should never lose your faith, courage, or hope; rather, you should persevere through the storm and emerge victorious, confident that you are prepared for whatever challenges your marriage may present. The negative remarks made by your in-laws, co workers, friends, and strangers will seem insignificant to you because your experience will strengthen you to such an extent. You are strong, even though you don't know how strong you are right now. You keep your cool and don't break down when you're overwhelmed; you can carry a burden; you are happy with yourself and don't pretend to be happy; you care about other people and know that they care about you as well; you hold on even when all hope is lost; you choose to look at things from a positive angle; you choose to smile even when you're broken.

CHAPTER 20

Frequently asked Questions and Answers

Asked Questions

What Should I Do If My Partner Is Cheating On Me? Would it be a good idea for me to excuse a conning accomplice? Yes, if he apologizes and promises to change, but if he does it again, break up with him. How do you feel about being hurt? Because they won't hurt you back, never hurt people you love. If you hurt them, it will only make them move away from you, and they may be forced to leave you forever. How can I show my partner my affection? Organize a surprise birthday party for them, tell them how you feel about them, and brag about your partner. I'm so desperate to be single, what should I do? Live life to the fullest, love and be loved, and set and achieve goals. Keep in mind that love will find you. Before entering a relationship, what fundamental information should I have? Don't let anyone see you finish, don't let anyone see you finish, have good character, be clean, be skilled, make your own money, set your priorities right, get rid of jealousy, be wise, humble, and pray. Don't let anyone see you finish. What should I know if I want to marry the man I'm dating? You've done the right thing, but you shouldn't stop asking questions about the relationship's future. Lastly, be your own person. What characteristics does a man despise in a woman? Alcoholism, jealousy, and pride

What can I do to help my potential partner who is not financially unstable? Don't be greedy and work with him to build wealth. What keeps a man happy? Your values, common sense, and self-respect. I just saw a post via virtual entertainment and I'm discouraged? The majority of what you see on social media is fake; instead, keep working hard and never lose sight of who you are. My accomplice is harmful how would it be advisable for me to respond? Leave the relationship and seek assistance. Improve yourself and never get back into the relationship. Don't ask for his attention or give it to him. How can I spoil myself when I'm single? Take yourself out of the equation, not yourself. He inquired about my virginity shortly after we began our conversation. Shall I respond? Don't respond, no. Without any prior positive communication, any man who asks you if you are a virgin or employed is on a mission to waste your life.