- 5. You will know banks that 100% drop ACH and how to withdraw the money.
- 6. You will know where to buy these ACH Bank logs

• ACH PUSH BANK TRANSFER : Even though the name doesn't sound familiar but it's very easy to do. Is when you initiate the transfer from the Bank log you bought to your client/drop account, it's also sometimes called an ACH credit, or figuratively an ACH Push because you are pushing the money into the destination account which is the bank log you bought online to your Drop/Client account.

• A Bank Drop: is the bank where the transferred money will be sent to or will drop in. It can be a bank if your personal client or your picker in any state

• A Sourced Account: is the bank account we will be pulling the money out from to our drop account. If you wanna confirm whether the bank log account you purchased accepts PUSH ACH BANK TRANSFER;

1. First login the bank log you bought and click on Transfer

2. If you see External Transfer, then the account accepts ACH bank transfer.

- Now many there are many bank logs out there can can preform PUSH ACH bank transfers; However, banks like Wells Fargo and BOA are not good banks for ACH though they also have external transfer ACH option.

- Never use calling logs (company fullz) for ACH Transfer since most of them are already blacklisted even with balance, most will ruin your work

Q&A

1• Q: how old should be a bank before you can ACH on it

A: even a day-old bank can receive ACH transfer

2• Q: Which bank logos are good for ACH.

A: Any bank can be used provided it has balance in it.

4• Q: What is the ACH limit

A: Every bank has a limit, once you about to make a transfer, the bank itself will let you know if the amount u wrote is higher or lesser than the daily limit, but the least have seen is $2,000

5• Q: Do I need log with email access to run ACH or any 3rd party app will work.

A: Most 3rd party apps these days also ask for OTP code before log can be added, so it best to get log with
