Adoption And Growing As Gods Children

Whatever God does, He does in processing to attain perfection through His word, by His spirit. We all are predestined sons of God not until the fall. However still, our place in God as sons still remained, but we were then casted out of God's family. The purpose of the sacrifice of Jesus is to adopt and restore all who are of willing heart, back into the arms of the Father and that through our willingness to grow in Him in spirit and truth; we'll grow from our fallen state into children and then, from children into sons, that we all shall function fully as sons in the household of God.

God made it so, that He'll be just in His system of giving inheritance unto every one He has called unto Himself. Meanwhile, it's unfortunate how many seem to have remained in the state of being children. For those who have being adopted recently, being born again of God's spirit as new born babes in Christ Jesus, I give glory to God for your faith. Now, you must grow and not choose to remain a child, for it is the will do God that every child should grow in Him.

The growth of every child is a necessity, even as God's word remains the standard of our growth and also, a life of ceaseless prayers so also, death is an important supplement in our nutrition to help us grow rapidly, being restored back to our original position in God's kingdom. As we have died to sin at the cross, so also, we must carry our cross and put to death the world and self.

" Verily, verily, I say unto you, Except a corn of wheat fall into the ground and die, it abideth alone: but if it die, it bringeth forth much fruit."
[John 12:24]

From death life is birthed, and just as we die daily in diverse ways to birth life, by the holy spirit, death in the aspect of trial will be revealed unto us.

I believe there's no one who's walking with Jesus or have decided to walk with Him in spirit and truth that haven't been disciplined through certain trials in life. It is through God's discipline by allowing the evil one to afflict or does whatever he wants according to God's permission, He uses to call us back to Himself. Of course, those who are illegitimate children sees God's discipline as punishment and wickedness and so, they run farther from Him. However, we who are called unto Him through the trials we have gone through, must grow in Him from new born babes of His spirit into sons. And our most important supplement as said earlier for our growth are " trials."

Our trials are like food substance taken by our soul for spiritual growth. Every child of God must face trial, even the ungodly are faced with trials not to destroy them, but rather, to restore them back unto God, only if they are willing, that is.

If you're not faced with trial then, you're not a child of God, because God wants for every of His child "growth," and that's the only way for our spiritual growth, building a relationship with Him and also building in us His character, His nature, in other to become a vessel for His spirit and a perfect conduit to channel His life.

You might be born again but still have pride lurking in you, or rather you might be lacking in love. It is through trials God will unveil by the holy spirit to prune and remove all that is not of Him. You can be a pastor and have a little essence of pride, now that doesn't mean you aren't born again, but that nature of the flesh, will stand as a hindrance of God's workings in you. And so, He'll bring a trial to unveil your heart, so that, through your faithfulness to come out of that trial, your heart will be reconfigured to become more like God. Then, your love for Him truly will be revealed.

God loves us all, but there are those He loves even more, you can deny it all you want, but if God really loves us all equal, He would have invested His kingdom on you already, because of the level of trust he has on you, through your faithfulness to Journey deeper in intimacy in whatever death (trials) He brings you way. God's trust in men is built through trails, how much you Journey deeper in him, or what you did to escape your trial will determine His trust in you.

God will use any foolish thing as a trail to draw you back to Him and to take you to greater dimensions of His glory. He can use poverty, financial struggles to stop you for awhile so, you can rely only on Him and not men or self, for students he can use failure, for the rich, this I know very well, He mostly uses death of a loved one or affliction by the devil, sickness, diseases, whatever foolish thing to call us back to order.

If you can have discernment, to discern demonic attacks from God's trials to Journey deeper in intimacy in Him, if you love God in good and in bad, then in all this you'll draw closer to Him, not for what He can do for you, but to restore and build your relationship with Him. And when he has found you faithful, rooted firmly in the foundation of His word then, all other thing will be added, not mainly for your sake, but to build you to become a functionary in His kingdom, your true purpose on earth.

" These things I have spoken unto you, that in me ye might have peace. In the world ye shall have tribulation: but be of good cheer; I have overcome the world."
[John 16:33]

Anyone who's born of the spirit of God must under go trials, whatever trials you undergo, don't complain. If you truly love God, you'd never complain, if you really are filled with His word, you'd never complain or murmur in the face of trial, because already, His word, His life dominating you will automatically build God faith in you, knowing that all thing are working out for good according to God's will both physically and even more spiritually.

Now, you might not curse God with your mouth or heart, but do know that whatever complain or murmuring is a curse you're throwing at God, and there, your relationship declines and the devil gets you even more.

Your trail is to nurture you from a sinner into a child born of God and from a child into a son. It's not enough being children of God, we must attain sonship in God. If the only dimension you see in God is for demands and supply, if all you do is demands from God and not God demanding of you then, you really are still a child, it doesn't matter if you've read the Bible back and forth, or how many years you've been in God. Only a child will ask for food, a son lives to fulfill the will of the Father, and His will is of " kingdom." of course, he'll be rewarded greatly in due time, not only on earth but greatly in eternity. Don't say we're all going to heaven, I tell you a great multitude of Christians will be homeless and of lesser glory in heaven.

I see so many believe today, complaining and murmuring;

"Oh! why the trial? Why the pain? The frustration?"

Jesus knew many will come after Him for their own selfishness and so He said;

" But I have prayed for thee, that thy faith fail not: and when thou art converted, strengthen thy brethren."
[Luke 22:32]

Surely, trials will come to sieve those who aren't really for Him and those who don't really care to Journey deeper in His love, only after what they can do on earth and eventually get to heaven, just like Lot.

Many believe when they get to Jesus all pains and problems will pass away at the snap of a finger, no, it doesn't work that way, even if it did, your faith still, must be tried for the unveiling of your heart. It is when you've been faithful in your relationship, never cursing God though your complaints then, you'll be brought out of it refined and ushered into a new dimension of God's glory.

We must attain maturity in spirit, without trials you can never grow, because just as Christ went as a sacrifice to be given the name "Jesus,' a mantle of authority above all authorities which is given unto us to bring the manifestation of the power and glory of God on earth. So also, you must undergo the path of death, you must experience death in other to gain a life of value in God's kingdom. Don't think the name Jesus is the real name given to Him, If you read revelation you'd have known the rider on a white horse. The name "Jesus" is an authority given to function in the office of the Christ, well let's not get there.

Death in Christ, isn't natural death, this death as I've said earlier; is whatever trial God will bring your way. It's all up to you to die successfully, or dwell in it longer, or rather escape it. It is for your promotion in Christ Jesus.

As you grow in maturity, then it affects the physical, because you've won and attained a higher level in the realm of the spirit above powers of darkness. Even as it influences the physical, we should not use because of that manifested in the physical to draw farther from God, rather, we should use it also to bring to death, "self" and the "world" so we can gain much life in eternity, vice verse.

You grow in your relationship with God to win more spiritually and just as the spiritual is made manifest in the physical, that success or victory which you've attained, you also must use as an investment unto eternity, it's a cycle. You build your relationship and again die to self to gain much life in eternity and then you walk the path of death again, not living in the pleasure of what you've gotten, but rather, for God's kingdom to gain more in eternity. The cycle goes on. This is the growth of one born of God, in the end it all sum up to your eternity. In eternity life has value just as currency has value in the earth realm.

However, in eternity you can only gain life through death by investing you time factor and self. For example; you righteousness to put to death the flesh to spend time in God's words, births life in eternity. If you have life of little value, you'll be irrelevant over there.

I have seen many believers who are faced with trials and then, instead of working on they relationship as it was intended, they'd turn to others to pray for them. While God is faithful to work through the anointing and authority upon His servant to deliver, you should also know that escaping that trial without doing the needful to get out of it is your loss in eternity. In eternity, you'll be irrelevant because you had someone take the exam for you, thereby losing your eternal promotion

That trial is your exam to promote you spiritually, you must pass it, no one will write it for you. God wants to bring to your realization through every trial, that prayers and dwelling In His word or whatever trial it may be, be it in character, will build and graft you spiritually into Him more and more. And also, restore you gradually back to the throne you've fallen from because of the fall of man.

For instance; if God wants to work on your faith, He might allow a situation where.. as you begin to trust in Him, at that very moment you think victory has come, He then adds another trial to that trial and makes it seems as if He's not there, if you fail to recognize His presence, if you fail to recognize it is meant to build your relationship with Him, you'll remain there and it'll be used by the devil as depression and eventually cause you to falter in faith.

Evey child of God must face trials at certain point in life, it's not because you're a sinner or you've done something wrong, it is for your benefit.

When you become a son, then trials aren't given to unveil your heart as a child who might falter from the path of life, rather trials are given then, unto sons; to build them in other to become a perfect conduit of the holy spirit, a vessel remolded and refined to bear the weight of the kingdom, a vessel of noble purpose fit and meet for the Master's use.

Only sons walk in fulfillment of God's written ordination pertaining to them before the dawn of creation and through their lives lived, they bring to manifestation in earth the original blue print God has designed them to be, a part of His kingdom building.

'Wherein ye greatly rejoice, though now for a season, if need be, ye are in heaviness through manifold temptations:

That the trial of your faith, being much more precious than of gold that perisheth, though it be tried with fire, might be found unto praise and honour and glory at the appearing of Jesus Christ:"
[1 Peter 1:6-7]

If you can come to knowledge that every trial given; is a death process to self, in other for more of God's life to be birthed in you, making of much relevance in eternity then, you'll find joy in it.

In eternity, value is measured in life, how much life you birth or harness through your obedience to live faithfully through death, not only in trials, but also to self, Journeying deeper in God and walking in your ordination according to His will, will determine your placing in eternity. Your will, righteousness to be faithful in perseverance, building yourself in spirit during trials, will determine your walk with God.

Remember, not specific people are called, we all are predestined by God. How far you walk in God will determine if you'll be called by God. Will you walk far in the world and less in God? It is your inability to willingly walk the path of death and use every trial as a means to draw much closer to God that'll hinder you from walking the path of your ordination. If you know this then, not only in trials, but at all times, you'll spend time with God, and pray for His will to be done in you, being ready to be used by Him.

Now that you're adopted as children, trials will come as hard food substance for your spiritual growth in Christ Jesus. It won't last, just as you eat your daily meals at consecutive Interval of shorts minutes, so also, your trails will be.

However, still, we should do well to take time in finishing our meals, to gain the necessary nutrients to grow into maturity, and not whiling away time in one meal all because you don't have the appetite for it. In other words; we should be faithful in times of trial and use it as an opportunity to draw even more closer to God in His word and in prayers, so He shall reveal unto us our true purpose as sons.

It's time we grow from children who think only of earthly things and then, sons; who think of only of that which is of the Father.

Many don't like the path of death whenever the holy spirit speaks about it or even whispering it to their heart. And so, we have many preaching against it, neglecting the truth, that through death glory is revealed.

If your life does not translate to eternity, if whatever you do end in the realm of time, then your life has been a waste. All the trials you neglected to build your relationship with God, were actually designed to restore you back to your original place In God as you live for Him as a sacrifice in the realm of time through that all which He has given you.
