Brazil: Bullying and Cyberbullying Criminalized

In recent years, Brazil has recorded a high number of cyberbullying cases ompared to other countries around the globe. In 2018, a Brazilian technology and cience news outlet reported that according to a survey, Brazil had the second highest nu s in the world. In a study conducted between January 2022 and May 2023 by the NGO Bullying Sin Fronteras, Brazil ranked fourth in the number of cyberbullying cases worldwide.

On January 12, 2024, President Luiz Inacio Lula da Silva signed Law No. 14,811 (Lei No. 14.811, de 12 de Janeiro de 2024), which establishes, among other things, measures to protect children against violence in educational or similar establishments, and amends the Brazilian Penal Code (Código Penal, Decreto-Lei No. 2.848, de 7 de Dezembro de 1940) to criminalize bullying and cyberbullying.

According to article 2 of the new law, the measures to prevent and combat violence against children and adolescents in educational or similar establishments, public or private, must be implemented by the municipal executive branch and the Federal District, in federative cooperation with the states and the Union. (Lei No. 14.811, art. 2.)

Law No. 14,811 adds article 146-A to the Penal Code to criminalize bullying and cyberbullying.... Such behavior is punishable by a fine if the conduct does not constitute a more serious crime." (Art. 6.)

The systematic virtual intimidation (cyberbullying), which occurs if the conduct is carried out through a computer network, social network, applications, online games, or any other means or digital environment, or transmitted in real time, is punishable by two to four years' imprisonment and a fine if the conduct does not constitute a more serious crime. (Art. 6.)

Ending violence against women

Violence against women and girls is a grave violation of human rights. Its impact ranges from immediate to long-term multiple physical, sexual and mental consequences for women and girls, including death. It negatively affects women's general well-being and prevents women from fully participating in society. Violence not only has negative consequences for women but also their families, the community and the country at large. It has tremendous costs, from greater health care and legal expenses and losses in productivity, impacting national budgets and overall development. Decades of mobilizing by civil society and women's movements have put ending gender-based violence high on national and international agendas. An unprecedented number of countries have laws against domestic violence, sexual assault and other forms of violence. Challenges remain however in implementing these laws, limiting women and girls' access to safety and justice. Not enough is done to prevent violence, and when it does occur, it often goes unpunished.
