1, 2, 3, 4

Greeting

2Timothy 1 From Paul, an apostle of Christ Jesus by God's will, to promote the promise of life that is in Christ Jesus.
2 To Timothy, my dear child.
Grace, mercy, and peace from God the Father and Christ Jesus our Lord.

Thanksgiving and prayer

3 I'm grateful to God, whom I serve with a good conscience as my ancestors did. I constantly remember you in my prayers day and night. 4 When I remember your tears, I long to see you so that I can be filled with happiness. 5 I'm reminded of your authentic faith, which first lived in your grandmother Lois and your mother Eunice. I'm sure that this faith is also inside you. 6 Because of this, I'm reminding you to revive God's gift that is in you through the laying on of my hands. 7 God didn't give us a spirit that is timid but one that is powerful, loving, and self-controlled.

Don't be ashamed of the testimony

8 So don't be ashamed of the testimony about the Lord or of me, his prisoner.
Instead, share the suffering for the good news, depending on God's power. 9 God is the one who saved and called us with a holy calling. This wasn't based on what we have done, but it was based on his own purpose and grace that he gave us in Christ Jesus before time began. 10 Now his grace is revealed through the appearance of our savior, Christ Jesus. He destroyed death and brought life and immortality into clear focus through the good news. 11 I was appointed a messenger, apostle, and teacher of this good news. 12 This is also why I'm suffering the way I do, but I'm not ashamed. I know the one in whom I've placed my trust. I'm convinced that God is powerful enough to protect what he has placed in my trust until that day. 13 Hold on to the pattern of sound teaching that you heard from me with the faith and love that are in Christ Jesus. 14 Protect this good thing that has been placed in your trust through the Holy Spirit who lives in us.

15You know that everyone in Asia has turned away from me, including Phygelus and Hermogenes. 16May the Lord show mercy to Onesiphorus' household, because he supported me many times and he wasn't ashamed of my imprisonment. 17After I arrived in Rome, he quickly looked for me and found me. 18May the Lord allow him to find his mercy on that day (and you know very well how much he served me in Ephesus).

Pass on the message and share suffering

2Timothy 2 So, my child, draw your strength from the grace that is in Christ Jesus. 2Take the things you heard me say in front of many other witnesses and pass them on to faithful people who are also capable of teaching others.

3Accept your share of suffering like a good soldier of Christ Jesus. 4Nobody who serves in the military gets tied up with civilian matters, so that they can please the one who recruited them. 5Also in the same way, athletes don't win unless they follow the rules. 6A hardworking farmer should get the first share of the crop. 7Think about what I'm saying; the Lord will give you understanding about everything.

8Remember Jesus Christ, who was raised from the dead and descended from David. This is my good news. 9This is the reason I'm suffering to the point that I'm in prison like a common criminal. But God's word cannot be imprisoned.
10This is why I endure everything for the sake of those who are chosen by God so that they too may experience salvation in Christ Jesus with eternal glory.
11This saying is reliable:

"If we have died together, we will also live together.
12If we endure, we will also rule together.
If we deny him, he will also deny us.
13If we are disloyal, he stays faithful" because he can't be anything else than what he is.

Speak, instruct, and act correctly

14Remind them of these things and warn them in the sight of God not to engage in battles over words that aren't helpful and only destroy those who hear them. 15Make an effort to present yourself to God as a tried-and-true worker, who doesn't need to be ashamed but is one who interprets the message of truth correctly. 16Avoid their godless discussions, because they will lead many people into ungodly behavior, 17and their ideas will spread like an infection. This includes Hymenaeus and Philetus, 18who have deviated from the truth by claiming that the resurrection has already happened. This has undermined some people's faith.

19God's solid foundation is still standing with this sign: The Lord knows the people who belong to him,[a] and Everyone who confesses the Lord's name must avoid wickedness.[b] 20In a mansion, there aren't just gold and silver bowls but also some bowls that are made of wood and clay. Some are meant for special uses, some for garbage.[c] 21So if anyone washes filth off themselves, they will be set apart as a "special bowl." They will be useful to the owner of the mansion for every sort of good work.

Avoid conflict with opponents

22Run away from adolescent cravings. Instead, pursue righteousness, faith, love, and peace together with those who confess the Lord with a clean heart.
23Avoid foolish and thoughtless discussions, since you know that they produce conflicts. 24God's slave shouldn't be argumentative but should be kind toward all people, able to teach, patient, 25and should correct opponents with gentleness.
Perhaps God will change their mind and give them a knowledge of the truth.
26They may come to their senses and escape from the devil's trap that holds them captive to do his will.

Avoid people like this 2Timothy 3 Understand that the last days will be dangerous times.

2People will be selfish and love money. They will be the kind of people who brag and who are proud. They will slander others, and they will be disobedient to their parents. They will be ungrateful, unholy, 3unloving, contrary, and critical.
They will be without self-control and brutal, and they won't love what is good.
4They will be people who are disloyal, reckless, and conceited. They will love pleasure instead of loving God. 5They will look like they are religious but deny God's power. Avoid people like this. 6Some will slither into households and control immature women who are burdened with sins and driven by all kinds of desires. [7]These women are always learning, but they can never arrive at an understanding of the truth. [8]These people oppose the truth in the same way that Jannes and Jambres opposed Moses. Their minds are corrupt and their faith is counterfeit. [9]But they won't get very far. Their foolishness will become obvious to everyone like those others.

Take Paul as your model

[10]But you have paid attention to my teaching, conduct, purpose, faithfulness, patience, love, and endurance. [11]You have seen me experience physical abuse and ordeals in places such as Antioch, Iconium, and Lystra. I put up with all sorts of abuse, and the Lord rescued me from it all! [12]In fact, anyone who wants to live a holy life in Christ Jesus will be harassed. [13]But evil people and swindlers will grow even worse, as they deceive others while being deceived themselves.

[14]But you must continue with the things you have learned and found convincing. You know who taught you. [15]Since childhood you have known the holy scriptures that help you to be wise in a way that leads to salvation through faith that is in Christ Jesus. [16]Every scripture is inspired by God and is useful for teaching, for showing mistakes, for correcting, and for training character, [17]so that the person who belongs to God can be equipped to do everything that is good.

Timothy's commission and Paul's departure

2Timothy 4 I'm giving you this commission in the presence of God and of Christ Jesus, who is coming to judge the living and the dead, and by his appearance and his kingdom. [2]Preach the word. Be ready to do it whether it is convenient or inconvenient. Correct, confront, and encourage with patience and instruction. [3]There will come a time when people will not tolerate sound teaching. They will collect teachers who say what they want to hear because they are self-centered. [4]They will turn their back on the truth and turn to myths. [5]But you must keep control of yourself in all circumstances. Endure suffering, do the work of a preacher of the good news, and carry out your service fully.

6 I'm already being poured out like a sacrifice to God, and the time of my death is near. 7 I have fought the good fight, finished the race, and kept the faith.
8 At last the champion's wreath that is awarded for righteousness[d] is waiting for me. The Lord, who is the righteous[e] judge, is going to give it to me on that day.
He's giving it not only to me but also to all those who have set their heart on waiting for his appearance.

Final instructions

9 Do your best to come to me quickly. 10 Demas has fallen in love with the present world and has deserted me and has gone to Thessalonica. Crescens has gone to Galatia, and Titus has gone to Dalmatia. 11 Only Luke is with me. Get Mark, and bring him with you. He has been a big help to me in the ministry. 12 I sent Tychicus to Ephesus. 13 When you come, bring along the coat I left with Carpus in Troas. Also bring the scrolls and especially the parchments.
14 Alexander, the craftsman who works with metal, has really hurt me. The Lord will pay him back for what he has done. 15 But watch out for him, because he opposes our teaching.

16 No one took my side at my first court hearing. Everyone deserted me. I hope that God doesn't hold it against them! 17 But the Lord stood by me and gave me strength, so that the entire message would be preached through me and so all the nations could hear it. I was also rescued from the lion's mouth! 18 The Lord will rescue me from every evil action and will save me for his heavenly kingdom. To him be the glory forever and always. Amen.

Final greetings

19 Say hello to Prisca and Aquila and the household of Onesiphorus. 20 Erastus stayed in Corinth, and I left Trophimus in Miletus because of his illness. 21 Try hard to come to me before winter. Eubulus, Pudens, Linus, Claudia, and all the brothers and sisters say hello.

22 The Lord be with your spirit. Grace be with you all.

Titus

1, 2, 3

Greeting

Titus 1 From Paul, a slave of God and an apostle of Jesus Christ. I'm sent to bring about the faith of God's chosen people and a knowledge of the truth that agrees with godliness.
2 Their faith and this knowledge are based on the hope of eternal life that God, who doesn't lie, promised before time began. 3 God revealed his message at the appropriate time through preaching, and I was trusted with preaching this message by the command of God our savior.
4 To Titus, my true child in a common faith.
Grace and peace from God the Father and Christ Jesus our savior.

Appointing elders

5 The reason I left you behind in Crete was to organize whatever needs to be done and to appoint elders in each city, as I told you. 6 Elders should be without fault. They should be faithful to their spouse,[a] and have faithful children who can't be accused of self-indulgence or rebelliousness. 7 This is because supervisors[b] should be without fault as God's managers: they shouldn't be stubborn, irritable, addicted to alcohol, a bully, or greedy. 8 Instead, they should show hospitality, love what is good, and be reasonable, ethical, godly, and self-controlled. 9 They must pay attention to the reliable message as it has been taught to them so that they can encourage people with healthy instruction and refute those who speak against it.

Correcting rebellious people

10 In fact, there are many who are rebellious people, loudmouths, and deceivers, especially some of those who are Jewish believers.[c] 11 They must be silenced because they upset entire households. They teach what they shouldn't to make money dishonestly. 12 Someone who is one of their own prophets said, "People from Crete are always liars, wild animals, and lazy gluttons." 13 This statement is true. Because of this, correct them firmly, so that they can be healthy in their faith. [14]They shouldn't pay attention to Jewish myths and commands from people who reject the truth. [15]Everything is clean to those who are clean, but nothing is clean to those who are corrupt and without faith. Instead, their mind and conscience are corrupted. [16]They claim to know God, but they deny God by the things that they do. They are detestable, disobedient, and disqualified to do anything good.

Teaching all people how to be godly

Titus 2 But you should talk in a way that is consistent with sound teaching.
[2]Tell the older men to be sober, dignified, sensible, and healthy in respect to their faith, love, and patience.

[3]Likewise, tell the older women to be reverent in their behavior, teaching what is good, rather than being gossips or addicted to heavy drinking. [4]That way they can mentor young women to love their husbands and children, [5]and to be sensible, morally pure, working at home, kind and submissive to their own husbands, so that God's word won't be ridiculed. [6]Likewise, encourage the younger men to be sensible [7]in every way. Offer yourself as a role model of good actions. Show integrity, seriousness, [8]and a sound message that is above criticism when you teach, so that any opponent will be ashamed because they won't find anything bad to say about us.

[9]Tell slaves to submit to their own masters and please them in everything they do. They shouldn't talk back [10]or steal. Instead, they should show that they are completely reliable in everything so that they might make the teaching about God our savior attractive in every way.

[11]The grace of God has appeared, bringing salvation to all people. [12]It educates us so that we can live sensible, ethical, and godly lives right now by rejecting ungodly lives and the desires of this world. [13]At the same time we wait for the blessed hope and the glorious appearance of our great God and savior Jesus Christ. [14]He gave himself for us in order to rescue us from every kind of lawless behavior, and cleanse a special people for himself who are eager to do good actions.

[15]Talk about these things. Encourage and correct with complete authority.

Don't let anyone disrespect you.

Titus 3 Remind them to submit to rulers and authorities. They should be obedient and ready to do every good thing. 2 They shouldn't speak disrespectfully about anyone, but they should be peaceful, kind, and show complete courtesy toward everyone. 3 We were once foolish, disobedient, deceived, and slaves to our desires and various pleasures too. We were spending our lives in evil behavior and jealousy. We were disgusting, and we hated other people. 4 But "when God our savior's kindness and love appeared, 5 he saved us because of his mercy, not because of righteous things we had done. He did it through the washing of new birth and the renewing by the Holy Spirit, 6 which God poured out upon us generously through Jesus Christ our savior. 7 So, since we have been made righteous by his grace, we can inherit the hope for eternal life." 8 This saying is reliable. And I want you to insist on these things, so that those who have come to believe in God might give careful attention to doing good. These things are good and useful for everyone.

Final instructions and greetings

9 Avoid stupid controversies, genealogies, and fights about the Law, because they are useless and worthless. 10 After a first and second warning, have nothing more to do with a person who causes conflict, 11 because you know that someone like this is twisted and sinful--so they condemn themselves.

12 When I send Artemas or Tychicus to you, try to come to me in Nicopolis, because I've decided to spend the winter there. 13 Help Zenas the lawyer and Apollos on their journey with enthusiasm so that they won't need anything. 14 But our people should also learn to devote themselves to doing good in order to meet pressing needs so they aren't unproductive.

15 Everyone with me greets you; greet those who love us faithfully.

Grace be with all of you.

Philemon

Greeting

Philemon 1 From Paul, who is a prisoner for the cause of Christ Jesus, and our brother Timothy.
To Philemon our dearly loved coworker, 2 Apphia our sister, Archippus our fellow soldier, and the church that meets in your house.
3 May the grace and peace from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ be with you.

Paul's prayer for Philemon

4 Philemon, I thank my God every time I mention you in my prayers 5 because I've heard of your love and faithfulness, which you have both for the Lord Jesus and for all God's people. 6 I pray that your partnership in the faith might become effective by an understanding of all that is good among us in Christ. 7 I have great joy and encouragement because of your love, since the hearts of God's people are refreshed by your actions, my brother.

Paul's appeal for Onesimus

8 Therefore, though I have enough confidence in Christ to command you to do the right thing, 9 I would rather appeal to you through love. I, Paul--an old man, and now also a prisoner for Christ Jesus--10 appeal to you for my child Onesimus.
I became his father in the faith during my time in prison. 11 He was useless to you before, but now he is useful to both of us. 12 I'm sending him back to you, which is like sending you my own heart. 13 I considered keeping him with me so that he might serve me in your place during my time in prison because of the gospel.
14 However, I didn't want to do anything without your consent so that your act of kindness would occur willingly and not under pressure. 15 Maybe this is the reason that Onesimus was separated from you for a while so that you might have him back forever--16 no longer as a slave but more than a slave--that is, as a dearly loved brother. He is especially a dearly loved brother to me. How much more can he become a brother to you, personally and spiritually in the Lord!

[17]So, if you really consider me a partner, welcome Onesimus as if you were welcoming me. [18]If he has harmed you in any way or owes you money, charge it to my account. [19]I, Paul, will pay it back to you (I'm writing this with my own hand). Of course, I won't mention that you owe me your life.

[20]Yes, brother, I want this favor from you in the Lord! Refresh my heart in Christ. [21]I'm writing to you, confident of your obedience and knowing that you will do more than what I ask. [22]Also, one more thing--prepare a guest room for me. I hope that I will be released from prison to be with you because of your prayers.

Final greeting

[23]Epaphras, who is in prison with me for the cause of Christ Jesus, greets you, [24]as well as my coworkers Mark, Aristarchus, Demas, and Luke.

[25]May the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ be with your spirit.

Hebrews

The Son is God's ultimate messenger

Hebrews 1 In the past, God spoke through the prophets to our ancestors in many times and many ways. [2] In these final days, though, he spoke to us through a Son. God made his Son the heir of everything and created the world through him. [3] The Son is the light of God's glory and the imprint of God's being.
He maintains everything with his powerful message. After he carried out the cleansing of people from their sins, he sat down at the right side of the highest majesty. [4] And the Son became so much greater than the other messengers, such as angels, that he received a more important title than theirs.

Speaking to the Son and angels

[5] After all, when did God ever say to any of the angels:

You are my Son.
Today I have become your Father?[a]

Or, even,

I will be his Father,
and he will be my Son?[b]

[6] But then, when he brought his firstborn into the world, he said,

All of God's angels must worship him.[c]

[7] He talks about the angels:

He's the one who uses the spirits for his messengers and who uses flames of fire as ministers.[d]

[8] But he says to his Son,

God, your throne is forever and your kingdom's scepter is a rod of justice.
9*You loved righteousness and hated lawless behavior.*
That is why God, your God, has anointed you with oil instead of your companions.[e]

10And he says,

You, Lord, laid the earth's foundations in the beginning, and the heavens are made by your hands.
11*They will pass away,*
but you remain.
They will all wear out like old clothes.
12*You will fold them up like a coat.*
They will be changed like a person changes clothes,
but you stay the same,
and the years of your life won't come to an end.[f]

13When has he ever said to any of the angels,

Sit at my right side until I put your enemies under your feet like a footstool?[g]

14Aren't all the angels ministering spirits who are sent to serve those who are going to inherit salvation?

Listen to the Son's message

Hebrews 2 This is why it's necessary for us to pay more attention to what we have heard, or else we may drift away from it. 2If the message that was spoken by angels was reliable, and every offense and act of disobedience received an appropriate consequence, 3how will we escape if we ignore such a great salvation? It was first announced through the Lord, and then it was confirmed by those who heard him. 4God also vouched for their message with signs, amazing things, various miracles, and gifts from the Holy Spirit, which were handed out the way he wanted.

Jesus is the enthroned human being

5 God didn't put the world that is coming (the world we are talking about) under the angels' control. 6 Instead, someone declared somewhere,

What is humanity that you think about them?
Or what are the human beings that you care about them?
7 For a while you made them lower than angels.
You crowned the human beings with glory and honor.
8 You put everything under their control.[h]

When he puts everything under their control, he doesn't leave anything out of control. But right now, we don't see everything under their control yet.
9 However, we do see the one who was made lower in order than the angels for a little while--it's Jesus! He's the one who is now crowned with glory and honor because of the suffering of his death. He suffered death so that he could taste death for everyone through God's grace.

Qualified to be a high priest

10 It was appropriate for God, for whom and through whom everything exists, to use experiences of suffering to make perfect the pioneer of salvation. This salvation belongs to many sons and daughters whom he's leading to glory. 11 This is because the one who makes people holy and the people who are being made holy all come from one source. That is why Jesus isn't ashamed to call them brothers and sisters when he says,

12 I will publicly announce your name to my brothers and sisters.
I will praise you in the middle of the assembly.[i]

13 He also says,

I will rely on him.[j]

And also,

Here I am with the children whom God has given to me.[k]

14 Therefore, since the children share in flesh and blood, he also shared the same things in the same way. He did this to destroy the one who holds the power over death--the devil--by dying. [15]He set free those who were held in slavery their entire lives by their fear of death. [16]Of course, he isn't trying to help angels, but rather he's helping Abraham's descendants. [17]Therefore, he had to be made like his brothers and sisters in every way. This was so that he could become a merciful and faithful high priest in things relating to God, in order to wipe away the sins of the people. [18]He's able to help those who are being tempted, since he himself experienced suffering when he was tempted.

We are Jesus' house

Hebrews 3 Therefore, brothers and sisters who are partners in the heavenly calling, think about Jesus, the apostle and high priest of our confession.
[2]Jesus was faithful to the one who appointed him just like Moses was faithful in God's house. [3]But he deserves greater glory than Moses in the same way that the builder of the house deserves more honor than the house itself. [4]Every house is built by someone, but God is the builder of everything. [5]Moses was faithful in all God's house as a servant in order to affirm the things that would be spoken later.
[6]But Jesus was faithful over God's house as a Son. We are his house if we hold on to the confidence and the pride that our hope gives us.

Respond to Jesus' voice now

[7]So, as the Holy Spirit says,

Today, if you hear his voice,
[8]don't have stubborn hearts
as they did in the rebellion, on the day when they tested me in the desert.
[9]That is where your ancestors challenged and tested me, though they had seen my work for forty years.
[10]So I was angry with them.
I said, "Their hearts always go off course, and they don't know my ways." [11]Because of my anger I swore:
"They will never enter my rest!"[l]

[12]Watch out, brothers and sisters, so that none of you have an evil, unfaithful heart that abandons the living God. 13Instead, encourage each other every day, as long as it's called "today," so that none of you become insensitive to God because of sin's deception. 14We are partners with Christ, but only if we hold on to the confidence we had in the beginning until the end.

15When it says,

Today, if you hear his voice, don't have stubborn hearts as they did in the rebellion.[m]

16Who was it who rebelled when they heard his voice? Wasn't it all of those who were brought out of Egypt by Moses? 17And with whom was God angry for forty years? Wasn't it with the ones who sinned, whose bodies fell in the desert? 18And against whom did he swear that they would never enter his rest, if not against the ones who were disobedient? 19We see that they couldn't enter because of their lack of faith.

Enter the rest

Hebrews 4 Therefore, since the promise that we can enter into rest is still open, let's be careful so that none of you will appear to miss it. 2We also had the good news preached to us, just as the Israelites did. However, the message they heard didn't help them because they weren't united in faith with the ones who listened to it. 3We who have faith are entering the rest. As God said,

And because of my anger I swore:
"They will never enter into my rest!"[n]

And yet God's works were completed at the foundation of the world. 4Then somewhere he said this about the seventh day of creation: God rested on the seventh day from all his works.[o] 5But again, in the passage above, God said, They will never enter my rest![p] 6Therefore, it's left open for some to enter it, and the ones who had the good news preached to them before didn't enter because of disobedience. 7Just as it says in the passage above, God designates a certain day as "today," when he says through David much later,

Today, if you hear his voice,

don't have stubborn hearts.[q]

[8]If Joshua gave the Israelites rest, God wouldn't have spoken about another day later on. [9]So you see that a sabbath rest is left open for God's people. [10]The one who entered God's rest also rested from his works, just as God rested from his own.

First summary of the message

[11]Therefore, let's make every effort to enter that rest so that no one will fall by following the same example of disobedience, [12]because God's word is living, active, and sharper than any two-edged sword. It penetrates to the point that it separates the soul from the spirit and the joints from the marrow. It's able to judge the heart's thoughts and intentions. [13]No creature is hidden from it, but rather everything is naked and exposed to the eyes of the one to whom we have to give an answer.

[14]Also, let's hold on to the confession since we have a great high priest who passed through the heavens, who is Jesus, God's Son; [15]because we don't have a high priest who can't sympathize with our weaknesses but instead one who was tempted in every way that we are, except without sin.

[16]Finally, let's draw near to the throne of favor with confidence so that we can receive mercy and find grace when we need help.

Introduction to a deeper teaching

Hebrews 5 Every high priest is taken from the people and put in charge of things that relate to God for their sake, in order to offer gifts and sacrifices for sins. [2]The high priest is able to deal gently with the ignorant and those who are misled since he himself is prone to weakness. [3]Because of his weakness, he must offer sacrifices for his own sins as well as for the people. [4]No one takes this honor for themselves but takes it only when they are called by God, just like Aaron.

[5]In the same way Christ also didn't promote himself to become high priest.
Instead, it was the one who said to him,

You are my Son.
Today I have become your Father, 6as he also says in another place,

You are a priest forever,
according to the order of Melchizedek.[r]

7During his days on earth, Christ offered prayers and requests with loud cries and tears as his sacrifices to the one who was able to save him from death. He was heard because of his godly devotion. 8Although he was a Son, he learned obedience from what he suffered. 9After he had been made perfect, he became the source of eternal salvation for everyone who obeys him. 10He was appointed by God to be a high priest according to the order of Melchizedek.

11We have a lot to say about this topic, and it's difficult to explain, because you have been lazy and you haven't been listening. 12Although you should have been teachers by now, you need someone to teach you an introduction to the basics about God's message. You have come to the place where you need milk instead of solid food. 13Everyone who lives on milk is not used to the word of righteousness, because they are babies. 14But solid food is for the mature, whose senses are trained by practice to distinguish between good and evil.

Let's press on to maturity

Hebrews 6 So let's press on to maturity, by moving on from the basics about Christ's word. Let's not lay a foundation of turning away from dead works, of faith in God, 2of teaching about ritual ways to wash with water, laying on of hands, the resurrection from the dead, and eternal judgment--all over again. 3We're going to press on, if God allows it.

4Because it's impossible to restore people to changed hearts and lives who turn away once they have seen the light, tasted the heavenly gift, become partners with the Holy Spirit, 5and tasted God's good word and the powers of the coming age. 6They are crucifying God's Son all over again and exposing him to public shame. 7The ground receives a blessing from God when it drinks up the rain that regularly comes and falls on it and yields a useful crop for those people for whom it is being farmed. [8]But if it produces thorns and thistles, it's useless and close to being cursed. It ends up being burned.

Make your hope sure

[9]But we are convinced of better things in your case, brothers and sisters, even though we are talking this way--things that go together with salvation. [10]God isn't unjust so that he forgets your efforts and the love you have shown for his name's sake when you served and continue to serve God's holy people. [11]But we desperately want each of you to show the same effort to make your hope sure until the end. [12]This is so you won't be lazy but follow the example of the ones who inherit the promises through faith and patience.

Our hope in Jesus' priesthood

[13]When God gave Abraham his promise, he swore by himself since he couldn't swear by anyone greater. [14]He said, I will certainly bless you and multiply your descendants.[§] [15]So Abraham obtained the promise by showing patience. [16]People pledge by something greater than themselves. A solemn pledge guarantees what they say and shuts down any argument. [17]When God wanted to further demonstrate to the heirs of the promise that his purpose doesn't change, he guaranteed it with a solemn pledge. [18]So these are two things that don't change, because it's impossible for God to lie. He did this so that we, who have taken refuge in him, can be encouraged to grasp the hope that is lying in front of us. [19]This hope, which is a safe and secure anchor for our whole being, enters the sanctuary behind the curtain. [20]That's where Jesus went in advance and entered for us, since he became a high priest according to the order of Melchizedek.

Hebrews 7 This Melchizedek, who was king of Salem and priest of the Most High God, met Abraham as he returned from the defeat of the kings, and Melchizedek blessed him. [2]Abraham gave a tenth of everything to him. His name means first "king of righteousness," and then "king of Salem," that is, "king of peace."[3]He is without father or mother or any family. He has no beginning or end of life, but he's like God's Son and remains a priest for all time.

[4]See how great Melchizedek was! Abraham, the father of the people, gave him a tenth of everything he captured. [5]The descendants of Levi who receive the office of priest have a commandment under the Law to collect a tenth of everything from the people who are their brothers and sisters, though they also are descended from Abraham. [6]But Melchizedek, who isn't related to them, received a tenth of everything from Abraham and blessed the one who had received the promises. [7]Without question, the less important person is blessed by the more important person. [8]In addition, in one case a tenth is received by people who die, and in the other case, the tenth is received by someone who continues to live, according to the record. [9]It could be said that Levi, who received a tenth, paid a tenth through Abraham [10]because he was still in his ancestor's body when Abraham paid the tenth to Melchizedek.

[11]So if perfection came through the levitical office of priest (for the people received the Law under the priests), why was there still a need to speak about raising up another priest according to the order of Melchizedek rather than one according to the order of Aaron? [12]When the order of the priest changes, there has to be a change in the Law as well. [13]The person we are talking about belongs to another tribe, and no one ever served at the altar from that tribe. [14]It's clear that our Lord came from the tribe of Judah, but Moses never said anything about priests from that tribe. [15]And it's even clearer if another priest appears who is like Melchizedek. [16]He has become a priest by the power of a life that can't be destroyed, rather than a legal requirement about physical descent. [17]This is confirmed:

You are a priest forever,
according to the order of Melchizedek.[t]

Able to save completely

[18]On the one hand, an earlier command is set aside because it was weak and useless [19](because the Law made nothing perfect). On the other hand, a better hope is introduced, through which we draw near to God. [20]And this was not done without a solemn pledge! The others have become priests without a solemn pledge, [21]but this priest was affirmed with a solemn pledge by the one who said,

The Lord has made a solemn pledge and will not change his mind:

You are a priest forever.[u]

22 As a result, Jesus has become the guarantee of a better covenant. 23 The others who became priests are numerous because death prevented them from continuing to serve. 24 In contrast, he holds the office of priest permanently because he continues to serve forever. 25 This is why he can completely save those who are approaching God through him, because he always lives to speak with God for them.

26 It's appropriate for us to have this kind of high priest: holy, innocent, incorrupt, separate from sinners, and raised high above the heavens. 27 He doesn't need to offer sacrifices every day like the other high priests, first for their own sins and then for the sins of the people. He did this once for all when he offered himself. 28 The Law appoints people who are prone to weakness as high priests, but the content of the solemn pledge, which came after the Law, appointed a Son who has been made perfect forever.

Meeting tents, sacrifices, and covenants

Hebrews 8 Now the main point of what we are saying is this: We have this kind of high priest. He sat down at the right side of the throne of the majesty in the heavens. 2 He's serving as a priest in the holy place, which is the true meeting tent that God, not any human being, set up. 3 Every high priest is appointed to offer gifts and sacrifices. So it's necessary for this high priest also to have something to offer. 4 If he was located on earth, he wouldn't be a priest because there are already others who offer gifts based on the Law. 5 They serve in a place that is a copy and shadow of the heavenly meeting tent. This is indicated when Moses was warned by God when he was about to set up the meeting tent: See that you follow the pattern that I showed you on the mountain in every detail.[v] 6 But now, Jesus has received a superior priestly service just as he arranged a better covenant that is enacted with better promises.

7 If the first covenant had been without fault, it wouldn't have made sense to expect a second. 8 But God did find fault with them, since he says,

Look, the days are coming, says the Lord,

when I will make a covenant with the house of Israel, and I will make a new covenant with the house of Judah.
9*It will not be like the covenant that I made with their ancestors* on the day I took them by the hand to lead them out of the land of Egypt, because they did not continue to keep my covenant, and I lost interest in them, says the Lord.
10*This is the covenant that I will make with the house of Israel* after those days, says the Lord.
I will place my laws in their minds,
and write them on their hearts.
I will be their God,
and they will be my people.
11*And each person won't ever teach a neighbor* or their brother or sister, saying, "Know the Lord," because they will all know me,
from the least important of them to the most important; 12*because I will be lenient toward their unjust actions,* and I won't remember their sins anymore.[w]

13When it says new, it makes the first obsolete. And if something is old and outdated, it's close to disappearing.

Christ's service in the heavenly meeting tent

Hebrews 9 So then the first covenant had regulations for the priests' service and the holy place on earth. 2They pitched the first tent called the holy place. It contained the lampstand, the table, and the loaves of bread presented to God. 3There was a tent behind the second curtain called the holy of holies. 4It had the gold altar for incense and the chest containing the covenant, which was covered with gold on all sides. In the chest there was a gold jar containing manna, Aaron's rod that budded, and the stone tablets of the covenant. 5Above the chest there were magnificent winged creatures[x] casting their shadow over the seat of the chest, where sin is taken care of. Right now we can't talk about these things in detail. 6When these things have been prepared in this way, priests enter the first tent all the time as they perform their service. 7But only the high priest enters the second tent once a year. He never does this without blood, which he offers for himself and for the sins the people committed in ignorance. 8With this, the Holy Spirit is showing that the way into the holy place hadn't been revealed yet while the first tent was standing. [9]This is a symbol for the present time. It shows that the gifts and sacrifices that are being offered can't perfect the conscience of the one who is serving. [10]These are superficial regulations that are only about food, drink, and various ritual ways to wash with water. They are regulations that have been imposed until the time of the new order.

[11]But Christ has appeared as the high priest of the good things that have happened. He passed through the greater and more perfect meeting tent, which isn't made by human hands (that is, it's not a part of this world). [12]He entered the holy of holies once for all by his own blood, not by the blood of goats or calves, securing our deliverance for all time. [13]If the blood of goats and bulls and the sprinkled ashes of cows made spiritually contaminated people holy and clean, [14]how much more will the blood of Jesus wash our consciences clean from dead works in order to serve the living God? He offered himself to God through the eternal Spirit as a sacrifice without any flaw.

[15]This is why he's the mediator of a new covenant (which is a will): so that those who are called might receive the promise of the eternal inheritance on the basis of his death. His death occurred to set them free from the offenses committed under the first covenant. [16]When there is a will, you need to confirm the death of the one who made the will. [17]This is because a will takes effect only after a death, since it's not in force while the one who made the will is alive. [18]So not even the first covenant was put into effect without blood. [19]Moses took the blood of calves and goats, along with water, scarlet wool, and hyssop, and sprinkled both the Law scroll itself and all the people after he had proclaimed every command of the Law to all the people. [20]While he did it, he said, This is the blood of the covenant that God established for you.[y] [21]And in the same way he sprinkled the meeting tent and also all the equipment that would be used in the priests' service with blood. [22]Almost everything is cleansed by blood, according to the Law's regulations, and there is no forgiveness without blood being shed.

than these. [24]Christ didn't enter the holy place (which is a copy of the true holy place) made by human hands, but into heaven itself, so that he now appears in God's presence for us. [25]He didn't enter to offer himself over and over again, like the high priest enters the earthly holy place every year with blood that isn't his. [26]If that were so, then Jesus would have to suffer many times since the foundation of the world. Instead, he has now appeared once at the end of the ages to get rid of sin by sacrificing himself. [27]People are destined to die once and then face judgment. [28]In the same way, Christ was also offered once to take on himself the sins of many people. He will appear a second time, not to take away sin but to save those who are eagerly waiting for him.

Christ's once-for-all sacrifice

Hebrews 10 The Law is a shadow of the good things that are coming, not the real things themselves. It never can perfect the ones who are trying to draw near to God through the same sacrifices that are offered continually every year. [2]Otherwise, wouldn't they have stopped being offered? If the people carrying out their religious duties had been completely cleansed once, no one would have been aware of sin anymore. [3]Instead, these sacrifices are a reminder of sin every year, [4]because it's impossible for the blood of bulls and goats to take away sins.

[5]Therefore, when he comes into the world he says,

You didn't want a sacrifice or an offering,
but you prepared a body for me;
[6]you weren't pleased with entirely burned offerings or a sin offering.
[7]So then I said,
"Look, I've come to do your will, God.
This has been written about me in the scroll."[z]

[8]He says above, You didn't want and you weren't pleased with a sacrifice or an offering or with entirely burned offerings or a purification offering,[a] which are offered because the Law requires them. [9]Then he said, Look, I've come to do your will.[b] He puts an end to the first to establish the second. [10]We have been made holy by God's will through the offering of Jesus Christ's body once for all.

[11]Every priest stands every day serving and offering the same sacrifices over and over, sacrifices that can never take away sins. [12]But when this priest offered one sacrifice for sins for all time, he sat down at the right side of God. [13]Since then, he's waiting until his enemies are made into a footstool for his feet, [14]because he perfected the people who are being made holy with one offering for all time.

[15]The Holy Spirit affirms this when saying,

[16]This is the covenant that I will make with them.
After these days, says the Lord,
I will place my laws in their hearts and write them on their minds.
[17]And I won't remember their sins and their lawless behavior anymore.[c]

[18]When there is forgiveness for these things, there is no longer an offering for sin.

Second summary of the message

[19]Brothers and sisters, we have confidence that we can enter the holy of holies by means of Jesus' blood, [20]through a new and living way that he opened up for us through the curtain, which is his body, [21]and we have a great high priest over God's house.

[22]Therefore, let's draw near with a genuine heart with the certainty that our faith gives us, since our hearts are sprinkled clean from an evil conscience and our bodies are washed with pure water.

[24]And let us consider each other carefully for the purpose of sparking love and good deeds. [25]Don't stop meeting together with other believers, which some people have gotten into the habit of doing. Instead, encourage each other, especially as you see the day drawing near.

Judgment for intentional sin

[26]If we make the decision to sin after we receive the knowledge of the truth, there isn't a sacrifice for sins left any longer. [27]There's only a scary expectation of judgment and of a burning fire that's going to devour God's opponents.
[28]When someone rejected the Law from Moses, they were put to death without mercy on the basis of the testimony of two or three witnesses. [29]How much worse punishment do you think is deserved by the person who walks all over God's Son, who acts as if the blood of the covenant that made us holy is just ordinary blood, and who insults the Spirit of grace? [30]We know the one who said,

Judgment is mine; I will pay people back.[d]

And he also said,

The Lord will judge his people.[e]

[31]It's scary to fall into the hands of the living God!

Confidence and faith to endure

[32]But remember the earlier days, after you saw the light. You stood your ground while you were suffering from an enormous amount of pressure.
[33]Sometimes you were exposed to insults and abuse in public. Other times you became partners with those who were treated that way. [34]You even showed sympathy toward people in prison and accepted the confiscation of your possessions with joy, since you knew that you had better and lasting possessions.
[35]So don't throw away your confidence--it brings a great reward. [36]You need to endure so that you can receive the promises after you do God's will.

[37]In a little while longer,
the one who is coming will come and won't delay; [38]but my righteous one will live by faith, and my whole being won't be pleased with anyone who shrinks back.[f]

[39]But we aren't the sort of people who timidly draw back and end up being destroyed. We're the sort of people who have faith so that our whole beings are preserved.

Description of faith

Hebrews 11 Faith is the reality of what we hope for, the proof of what we don't see. [2] The elders in the past were approved because they showed faith.

Acts of faith by God's people

[3] By faith we understand that the universe has been created by a word from God so that the visible came into existence from the invisible.

[4] By faith Abel offered a better sacrifice to God than Cain, which showed that he was righteous, since God gave approval to him for his gift. Though he died, he's still speaking through faith.

[5] By faith Enoch was taken up so that he didn't see death, and he wasn't found because God took him up.[g] He was given approval for having pleased God before he was taken up. [6] It's impossible to please God without faith because the one who draws near to God must believe that he exists and that he rewards people who try to find him.

[7] By faith Noah responded with godly fear when he was warned about events he hadn't seen yet. He built an ark to deliver his household. With his faith, he criticized the world and became an heir of the righteousness that comes from faith.

[8] By faith Abraham obeyed when he was called to go out to a place that he was going to receive as an inheritance. He went out without knowing where he was going.

[9] By faith he lived in the land he had been promised as a stranger. He lived in tents along with Isaac and Jacob, who were coheirs of the same promise. [10] He was looking forward to a city that has foundations, whose architect and builder is God.

[11] By faith even Sarah received the ability to have a child, though she herself was barren and past the age for having children, because she believed that the one who promised was faithful. [12] So descendants were born from one man (and he was as good as dead). They were as many as the number of the stars in the sky and as countless as the grains of sand on the seashore. [13]All these people died in faith without receiving the promises, but they saw the promises from a distance and welcomed them. They confessed that they were strangers and immigrants on earth. [14]People who say this kind of thing make it clear that they are looking for a homeland. [15]If they had been thinking about the country that they had left, they would have had the opportunity to return to it. [16]But at this point in time, they are longing for a better country, that is, a heavenly one.

Therefore, God isn't ashamed to be called their God--he has prepared a city for them.

[17]By faith Abraham offered Isaac when he was tested. The one who received the promises was offering his only son. [18]He had been told concerning him, Your legitimate descendants will come from Isaac.[h] [19]He figured that God could even raise him from the dead. So in a way he did receive him back from the dead.

[20]By faith Isaac also blessed Jacob and Esau concerning their future.

[21]By faith Jacob blessed each of Joseph's sons as he was dying and bowed in worship over the head of his staff.[i]

[22]By faith Joseph recalled the exodus of the Israelites at the end of his life, and gave instructions about burying his bones.

[23]By faith Moses was hidden by his parents for three months when he was born, because they saw that the child was beautiful and they weren't afraid of the king's orders.

[24]By faith Moses refused to be called the son of Pharaoh's daughter when he was grown up. [25]He chose to be mistreated with God's people instead of having the temporary pleasures of sin. [26]He thought that the abuses he suffered for Christ were more valuable than the treasures of Egypt, since he was looking forward to the reward.

[27]By faith he left Egypt without being afraid of the king's anger. He kept on going as if he could see what is invisible.

[28]By faith he kept the Passover and the sprinkling of blood, in order that the destroyer could not touch their firstborn children.

29By faith they crossed the Red Sea as if they were on dry land, but when the Egyptians tried it, they were drowned.

30By faith Jericho's walls fell after the people marched around them for seven days.

31By faith Rahab the prostitute wasn't killed with the disobedient because she welcomed the spies in peace.

32What more can I say? I would run out of time if I told you about Gideon, Barak, Samson, Jephthah, David, Samuel, and the prophets. 33Through faith they conquered kingdoms, brought about justice, realized promises, shut the mouths of lions, 34put out raging fires, escaped from the edge of the sword, found strength in weakness, were mighty in war, and routed foreign armies. 35Women received back their dead by resurrection. Others were tortured and refused to be released so they could gain a better resurrection.

36But others experienced public shame by being taunted and whipped; they were even put in chains and in prison. 37They were stoned to death, they were cut in two, and they died by being murdered with swords. They went around wearing the skins of sheep and goats, needy, oppressed, and mistreated. 38The world didn't deserve them. They wandered around in deserts, mountains, caves, and holes in the ground.

39All these people didn't receive what was promised, though they were given approval for their faith. 40God provided something better for us so they wouldn't be made perfect without us.

Let's also run the race

Hebrews 12 So then, with endurance, let's also run the race that is laid out in front of us, since we have such a great cloud of witnesses surrounding us. Let's throw off any extra baggage, get rid of the sin that trips us up, 2and fix our eyes on Jesus, faith's pioneer and perfecter. He endured the cross, ignoring the shame, for the sake of the joy that was laid out in front of him, and sat down at the right side of God's throne.

Run the race with discipline

3 Think about the one who endured such opposition from sinners so that you won't be discouraged and you won't give up. 4 In your struggle against sin, you haven't resisted yet to the point of shedding blood, 5 and you have forgotten the encouragement that addresses you as sons and daughters:

My child, don't make light of the Lord's discipline or give up when you are corrected by him, 6 because the Lord disciplines whomever he loves, and he punishes every son or daughter whom he accepts.[j]

7 Bear hardship for the sake of discipline. God is treating you like sons and daughters! What child isn't disciplined by his or her father? 8 But if you don't experience discipline, which happens to all children, then you are illegitimate and not real sons and daughters. 9 What's more, we had human parents who disciplined us, and we respected them for it. How much more should we submit to the Father of spirits and live? 10 Our human parents disciplined us for a little while, as it seemed best to them, but God does it for our benefit so that we can share his holiness. 11 No discipline is fun while it lasts, but it seems painful at the time. Later, however, it yields the peaceful fruit of righteousness for those who have been trained by it.

12 So strengthen your drooping hands and weak knees! 13 Make straight paths for your feet so that if any part is lame, it will be healed rather than injured more seriously. 14 Pursue the goal of peace along with everyone--and holiness as well, because no one will see the Lord without it. 15 Make sure that no one misses out on God's grace. Make sure that no root of bitterness grows up that might cause trouble and pollute many people. 16 Make sure that no one becomes sexually immoral or ungodly like Esau. He sold his inheritance as the oldest son for one meal. 17 You know that afterward, when he wanted to inherit the blessing, he was rejected because he couldn't find a way to change his heart and life, though he looked for it with tears.

Priestly service in heavenly Jerusalem

18 You haven't drawn near to something that can be touched: a burning fire, darkness, shadow, a whirlwind, [19]a blast of a trumpet, and a sound of words that made the ones who heard it beg that there wouldn't be one more word. [20]They couldn't stand the command, If even a wild animal touches the mountain, it must be stoned.[k] [21]The sight was so frightening that Moses said, "I'm terrified and shaking!"

[22]But you have drawn near to Mount Zion, the city of the living God, heavenly Jerusalem, to countless angels in a festival gathering, [23]to the assembly of God's firstborn children who are registered in heaven, to God the judge of all, to the spirits of the righteous who have been made perfect, [24]to Jesus the mediator of the new covenant, and to the sprinkled blood that speaks better than Abel's blood.

[25]See to it that you don't resist the one who is speaking. If the people didn't escape when they refused to listen to the one who warned them on earth, how will we escape if we reject the one who is warning from heaven? [26]His voice shook the earth then, but now he has made a promise: Still once more I will shake not only the earth but heaven also.[l] [27]The words "still once more" reveal the removal of what is shaken--the things that are part of this creation--so that what isn't shaken will remain. [28]Therefore, since we are receiving a kingdom that can't be shaken, let's continue to express our gratitude.[m] With this gratitude, let's serve[n] in a way that is pleasing to God with respect and awe, [29]because our God really is a consuming fire.

Our acts of service and sacrifice

Hebrews 13 Keep loving each other like family. [2]Don't neglect to open up your homes to guests, because by doing this some have been hosts to angels without knowing it. [3]Remember prisoners as if you were in prison with them, and people who are mistreated as if you were in their place. [4]Marriage must be honored in every respect, with no cheating on the relationship, because God will judge the sexually immoral person and the person who commits adultery. [5]Your way of life should be free from the love of money, and you should be content with what you have. After all, he has said, I will never leave you or abandon you.[o] [6]This is why we can confidently say,

The Lord is my helper,

and I won't be afraid.
What can people do to me?[p]

[7]Remember your leaders who spoke God's word to you. Imitate their faith as you consider the way their lives turned out. [8]Jesus Christ is the same yesterday, today, and forever!

[9]Don't be misled by the many strange teachings out there. It's a good thing for the heart to be strengthened by grace rather than by food. Food doesn't help those who live in this context. [10]We have an altar, and those who serve as priests in the meeting tent don't have the right to eat from it. [11]The blood of the animals is carried into the holy of holies by the high priest as an offering for sin, and their bodies are burned outside the camp. [12]And so Jesus also suffered outside the city gate to make the people holy with his own blood.

[13]So now, let's go to him outside the camp, bearing his shame. [14]We don't have a permanent city here, but rather we are looking for the city that is still to come.

[15]So let's continually offer up a sacrifice of praise through him, which is the fruit from our lips that confess his name. [16]Don't forget to do good and to share what you have because God is pleased with these kinds of sacrifices.

Closing greeting and blessing

[17]Rely on your leaders and defer to them, because they watch over your whole being as people who are going to be held responsible for you. They need to be able to do this with pleasure and not with complaints about you, because that wouldn't help you. [18]Pray for us. We're sure that we have a good conscience, and we want to do the right thing in every way. [19]I'm particularly asking you to do this so that I can be returned to you quickly.

[20]May the God of peace, who brought back the great shepherd of the sheep,
our Lord Jesus,
from the dead by the blood of the eternal covenant, [21]equip you with every good thing to do his will,
by developing in us what pleases him through Jesus Christ.

To him be the glory forever and always. Amen.

22 I urge you, brothers and sisters, to put up with this message of encouragement, since I've only written a short letter to you! 23 You should know that our brother Timothy has been set free. If he comes soon, we will travel together to see you.

24 Greet your leaders and all of God's holy people. The group from Italy greets you.

25 May grace be with all of you.

James

Greeting

James 1 From James, a slave of God and of the Lord Jesus Christ.
To the twelve tribes who are scattered outside the land of Israel.
Greetings!

Stand firm

2 My brothers and sisters, think of the various tests you encounter as occasions for joy. 3 After all, you know that the testing of your faith produces endurance.
4 Let this endurance complete its work so that you may be fully mature, complete, and lacking in nothing. 5 But anyone who needs wisdom should ask God, whose very nature is to give to everyone without a second thought, without keeping score. Wisdom will certainly be given to those who ask. 6 Whoever asks shouldn't hesitate. They should ask in faith, without doubting. Whoever doubts is like the surf of the sea, tossed and turned by the wind. 7 People like that should never imagine that they will receive anything from the Lord. 8 They are double-minded, unstable in all their ways.

9 Brothers and sisters who are poor should find satisfaction in their high status.
10 Those who are wealthy should find satisfaction in their low status, because they will die off like wildflowers. 11 The sun rises with its scorching heat and dries up the grass so that its flowers fall and its beauty is lost. Just like that, in the midst of their daily lives, the wealthy will waste away. 12 Those who stand firm during testing are blessed. They are tried and true. They will receive the life God has promised to those who love him as their reward.

Our cravings versus God's gifts

13 No one who is tested should say, "God is tempting me!" This is because God is not tempted by any form of evil, nor does he tempt anyone. 14 Everyone is tempted by their own cravings; they are lured away and enticed by them. 15 Once those cravings conceive, they give birth to sin; and when sin grows up, it gives birth to death.

16 Don't be misled, my dear brothers and sisters. 17 Every good gift, every perfect gift, comes from above. These gifts come down from the Father, the creator of the heavenly lights, in whose character there is no change at all. 18 He chose to give us birth by his true word, and here is the result: we are like the first crop from the harvest of everything he created.

Welcoming and doing the word

19 Know this, my dear brothers and sisters: everyone should be quick to listen, slow to speak, and slow to grow angry. 20 This is because an angry person doesn't produce God's righteousness. 21 Therefore, with humility, set aside all moral filth and the growth of wickedness, and welcome the word planted deep inside you-- the very word that is able to save you.

22 You must be doers of the word and not only hearers who mislead themselves. 23 Those who hear but don't do the word are like those who look at their faces in a mirror. 24 They look at themselves, walk away, and immediately forget what they were like. 25 But there are those who study the perfect law, the law of freedom, and continue to do it. They don't listen and then forget, but they put it into practice in their lives. They will be blessed in whatever they do.

26 If those who claim devotion to God don't control what they say, they mislead themselves. Their devotion is worthless. 27 True devotion, the kind that is pure and faultless before God the Father, is this: to care for orphans and widows in their difficulties and to keep the world from contaminating us.

Don't show favoritism

James 2 My brothers and sisters, when you show favoritism you deny the faithfulness of our Lord Jesus Christ, who has been resurrected in glory.
2 Imagine two people coming into your meeting. One has a gold ring and fine clothes, while the other is poor, dressed in filthy rags. 3 Then suppose that you were to take special notice of the one wearing fine clothes, saying, "Here's an excellent place. Sit here." But to the poor person you say, "Stand over there"; or,
"Here, sit at my feet."4 Wouldn't you have shown favoritism among yourselves and become evil-minded judges?

5 My dear brothers and sisters, listen! Hasn't God chosen those who are poor by worldly standards to be rich in terms of faith? Hasn't God chosen the poor as heirs of the kingdom he has promised to those who love him? 6 But you have dishonored the poor. Don't the wealthy make life difficult for you? Aren't they the ones who drag you into court? 7 Aren't they the ones who insult the good name spoken over you at your baptism?

8 You do well when you really fulfill the royal law found in scripture, Love your neighbor as yourself.[a] 9 But when you show favoritism, you are committing a sin, and by that same law you are exposed as a lawbreaker. 10 Anyone who tries to keep all of the Law but fails at one point is guilty of failing to keep all of it.
11 The one who said, Don't commit adultery, also said, Don't commit murder.[b] So if you don't commit adultery but do commit murder, you are a lawbreaker. 12 In every way, then, speak and act as people who will be judged by the law of freedom. 13 There will be no mercy in judgment for anyone who hasn't shown mercy. Mercy overrules judgment.

Showing faith

14 My brothers and sisters, what good is it if people say they have faith but do nothing to show it? Claiming to have faith can't save anyone, can it? 15 Imagine a brother or sister who is naked and never has enough food to eat. 16 What if one of you said, "Go in peace! Stay warm! Have a nice meal!"? What good is it if you don't actually give them what their body needs? 17 In the same way, faith is dead when it doesn't result in faithful activity.

18 Someone might claim, "You have faith and I have action." But how can I see your faith apart from your actions? Instead, I'll show you my faith by putting it into practice in faithful action. 19 It's good that you believe that God is one. Ha!
Even the demons believe this, and they tremble with fear. 20 Are you so slow? Do you need to be shown that faith without actions has no value at all? 21 What about Abraham, our father? Wasn't he shown to be righteous through his actions when he offered his son Isaac on the altar? 22 See, his faith was at work along with his actions. In fact, his faith was made complete by his faithful actions. 23 So the scripture was fulfilled that says, Abraham believed God, and God regarded him as righteous.[c] What is more, Abraham was called God's friend. 24 So you see that a person is shown to be righteous through faithful actions and not through faith alone. [25]In the same way, wasn't Rahab the prostitute shown to be righteous when she received the messengers as her guests and then sent them on by another road? [26]As the lifeless body is dead, so faith without actions is dead.

Taming the tongue

James 3 My brothers and sisters, not many of you should become teachers, because we know that we teachers will be judged more strictly. [2]We all make mistakes often, but those who don't make mistakes with their words have reached full maturity. Like a bridled horse, they can control themselves entirely.
[3]When we bridle horses and put bits in their mouths to lead them wherever we want, we can control their whole bodies.

[4]Consider ships: They are so large that strong winds are needed to drive them.
But pilots direct their ships wherever they want with a little rudder. [5]In the same way, even though the tongue is a small part of the body, it boasts wildly.

Think about this: A small flame can set a whole forest on fire. [6]The tongue is a small flame of fire, a world of evil at work in us. It contaminates our entire lives. Because of it, the circle of life is set on fire. The tongue itself is set on fire by the flames of hell.

[7]People can tame and already have tamed every kind of animal, bird, reptile, and fish. [8]No one can tame the tongue, though. It is a restless evil, full of deadly poison. [9]With it we both bless the Lord and Father and curse human beings made in God's likeness. [10]Blessing and cursing come from the same mouth. My brothers and sisters, it just shouldn't be this way!

[11]Both fresh water and salt water don't come from the same spring, do they?
[12]My brothers and sisters, can a fig tree produce olives? Can a grapevine produce figs? Of course not, and fresh water doesn't flow from a saltwater spring either.

Wisdom from above

[13]Are any of you wise and understanding? Show that your actions are good with a humble lifestyle that comes from wisdom. [14]However, if you have bitter jealousy and selfish ambition in your heart, then stop bragging and living in ways that deny the truth. 15This is not the wisdom that comes down from above. Instead, it is from the earth, natural and demonic. 16Wherever there is jealousy and selfish ambition, there is disorder and everything that is evil. 17What of the wisdom from above? First, it is pure, and then peaceful, gentle, obedient, filled with mercy and good actions, fair, and genuine. 18Those who make peace sow the seeds of justice by their peaceful acts.

Conflict with people and God

James 4 What is the source of conflict among you? What is the source of your disputes? Don't they come from your cravings that are at war in your own lives? 2You long for something you don't have, so you commit murder. You are jealous for something you can't get, so you struggle and fight. You don't have because you don't ask. 3You ask and don't have because you ask with evil intentions, to waste it on your own cravings.

4You unfaithful people! Don't you know that friendship with the world means hostility toward God? So whoever wants to be the world's friend becomes God's enemy. 5Or do you suppose that scripture is meaningless? Doesn't God long for our faithfulness in[d] the life he has given to us?[e] 6But he gives us more grace. This is why it says, God stands against the proud, but favors the humble.[f] 7Therefore, submit to God. Resist the devil, and he will run away from you. 8Come near to God, and he will come near to you. Wash your hands, you sinners. Purify your hearts, you double-minded. 9Cry out in sorrow, mourn, and weep! Let your laughter become mourning and your joy become sadness. 10Humble yourselves before the Lord, and he will lift you up.

11Brothers and sisters, don't say evil things about each other. Whoever insults or criticizes a brother or sister insults and criticizes the Law. If you find fault with the Law, you are not a doer of the Law but a judge over it. 12There is only one lawgiver and judge, and he is able to save and to destroy. But you who judge your neighbor, who are you?

Warning the proud and wealthy

such a town. We will stay there a year, buying and selling, and making a profit."[14]You don't really know about tomorrow. What is your life? You are a mist that appears for only a short while before it vanishes. [15]Here's what you ought to say: "If the Lord wills, we will live and do this or that."[16]But now you boast and brag, and all such boasting is evil. [17]It is a sin when someone knows the right thing to do and doesn't do it.

James 5 Pay attention, you wealthy people! Weep and moan over the miseries coming upon you. [2]Your riches have rotted. Moths have destroyed your clothes. [3]Your gold and silver have rusted, and their rust will be evidence against you. It will eat your flesh like fire. Consider the treasure you have hoarded in the last days. [4]Listen! Hear the cries of the wages of your field hands. These are the wages you stole from those who harvested your fields. The cries of the harvesters have reached the ears of the Lord of heavenly forces. [5]You have lived a self-satisfying life on this earth, a life of luxury. You have stuffed your hearts in preparation for the day of slaughter. [6]You have condemned and murdered the righteous one, who doesn't oppose you.

[7]Therefore, brothers and sisters, you must be patient as you wait for the coming of the Lord. Consider the farmer who waits patiently for the coming of rain in the fall and spring, looking forward to the precious fruit of the earth. [8]You also must wait patiently, strengthening your resolve, because the coming of the Lord is near. [9]Don't complain about each other, brothers and sisters, so that you won't be judged. Look! The judge is standing at the door!

[10]Brothers and sisters, take the prophets who spoke in the name of the Lord as an example of patient resolve and steadfastness. [11]Look at how we honor those who have practiced endurance. You have heard of the endurance of Job. And you have seen what the Lord has accomplished, for the Lord is full of compassion and mercy.

[12]Most important, my brothers and sisters, never make a solemn pledge--neither by heaven nor earth, nor by anything else. Instead, speak with a simple

"Yes" or "No," or else you may fall under judgment.

13 If any of you are suffering, they should pray. If any of you are happy, they should sing. 14 If any of you are sick, they should call for the elders of the church, and the elders should pray over them, anointing them with oil in the name of the Lord. 15 Prayer that comes from faith will heal the sick, for the Lord will restore them to health. And if they have sinned, they will be forgiven. 16 For this reason, confess your sins to each other and pray for each other so that you may be healed. The prayer of the righteous person is powerful in what it can achieve.
17 Elijah was a person just like us. When he earnestly prayed that it wouldn't rain, no rain fell for three and a half years. 18 He prayed again, God sent rain, and the earth produced its fruit.

19 My brothers and sisters, if any of you wander from the truth and someone turns back the wanderer, 20 recognize that whoever brings a sinner back from the wrong path will save them from death and will bring about the forgiveness of many sins.

1 Peter

1, 2, 3, 4, 5

Greeting

1Peter 1 Peter, an apostle of Jesus Christ,
To God's chosen strangers in the world of the diaspora, who live in Pontus, Galatia, Cappadocia, Asia, and Bithynia.
2 God the Father chose you because of what he knew beforehand. He chose you through the Holy Spirit's work of making you holy and because of the faithful obedience and sacrifice of Jesus Christ.
May God's grace and peace be multiplied to you.

Thanksgiving

3 May the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ be blessed! On account of his vast mercy, he has given us new birth. You have been born anew into a living hope through the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead. 4 You have a pure and enduring inheritance that cannot perish--an inheritance that is presently kept safe in heaven for you. 5 Through his faithfulness, you are guarded by God's power so that you can receive the salvation he is ready to reveal in the last time.

6 You now rejoice in this hope, even if it's necessary for you to be distressed for a short time by various trials. 7 This is necessary so that your faith may be found genuine. (Your faith is more valuable than gold, which will be destroyed even though it is itself tested by fire.) Your genuine faith will result in praise, glory, and honor for you when Jesus Christ is revealed. 8 Although you've never seen him, you love him. Even though you don't see him now, you trust him and so rejoice with a glorious joy that is too much for words. 9 You are receiving the goal of your faith: your salvation.

10 The prophets, who long ago foretold the grace that you've received, searched and explored, inquiring carefully about this salvation. 11 They wondered what the Spirit of Christ within them was saying when he bore witness beforehand about the suffering that would happen to Christ and the glory that would follow. They wondered what sort of person or what sort of time they were speaking about. 12 It was revealed to them that in their search they were not serving themselves but you. These things, which even angels long to examine, have now been proclaimed to you by those who brought you the good news. They did this in the power of the Holy Spirit, who was sent from heaven.

Response of obedience

13 Therefore, once you have your minds ready for action and you are thinking clearly, place your hope completely on the grace that will be brought to you when Jesus Christ is revealed. 14 Don't be conformed to your former desires, those that shaped you when you were ignorant. But, as obedient children, 15 you must be holy in every aspect of your lives, just as the one who called you is holy. 16 It is written, You will be holy, because I am holy.[a] 17 Since you call upon a Father who judges all people according to their actions without favoritism, you should conduct yourselves with reverence during the time of your dwelling in a strange land. 18 Live in this way, knowing that you were not liberated by perishable things like silver or gold from the empty lifestyle you inherited from your ancestors. 19 Instead, you were liberated by the precious blood of Christ, like that of a flawless, spotless lamb. 20 Christ was chosen before the creation of the world, but was only revealed at the end of time. This was done for you, 21 who through Christ are faithful to the God who raised him from the dead and gave him glory. So now, your faith and hope should rest in God.

22 As you set yourselves apart by your obedience to the truth so that you might have genuine affection for your fellow believers, love each other deeply and earnestly. 23 Do this because you have been given new birth--not from the type of seed that decays but from seed that doesn't. This seed is God's life-giving and enduring word. 24 Thus,

All human life on the earth is like grass, and all human glory is like a flower in a field.
The grass dries up and its flower falls off, 25 but the Lord's word endures forever.[b]

This is the word that was proclaimed to you as good news.

Your identity as believers

1Peter 2 Therefore, get rid of all ill will and all deceit, pretense, envy, and slander. [2]Instead, like a newborn baby, desire the pure milk of the word. Nourished by it, you will grow into salvation, [3]since you have tasted that the Lord is good.

[4]Now you are coming to him as to a living stone. Even though this stone was rejected by humans, from God's perspective it is chosen, valuable. [5]You yourselves are being built like living stones into a spiritual temple. You are being made into a holy priesthood to offer up spiritual sacrifices that are acceptable to God through Jesus Christ. [6]Thus it is written in scripture, Look! I am laying a cornerstone in Zion, chosen, valuable. The person who believes in him will never be shamed.[c] [7]So God honors you who believe. For those who refuse to believe, though, the stone the builders tossed aside has become the capstone. [8]This is a stone that makes people stumble and a rock that makes them fall. Because they refuse to believe in the word, they stumble. Indeed, this is the end to which they were appointed. [9]But you are a chosen race, a royal priesthood, a holy nation, a people who are God's own possession. You have become this people so that you may speak of the wonderful acts of the one who called you out of darkness into his amazing light. [10]Once you weren't a people, but now you are God's people. Once you hadn't received mercy, but now you have received mercy.

[11]Dear friends, since you are immigrants and strangers in the world, I urge that you avoid worldly desires that wage war against your lives. [12]Live honorably among the unbelievers. Today, they defame you, as if you were doing evil. But in the day when God visits to judge they will glorify him, because they have observed your honorable deeds.

[13]For the sake of the Lord submit to every human institution. Do this whether it means submitting to the emperor as supreme ruler, [14]or to governors as those sent by the emperor. They are sent to punish those doing evil and to praise those doing good. [15]Submit to them because it's God's will that by doing good you will silence the ignorant talk of foolish people. [16]Do this as God's slaves, and yet also as free people, not using your freedom as a cover-up for evil. [17]Honor everyone. Love the family of believers. Have respectful fear of God. Honor the emperor.

all respect. Do this not only to good and kind masters but also to those who are harsh. [19]Now, it is commendable if, because of one's understanding of God, someone should endure pain through suffering unjustly. [20]But what praise comes from enduring patiently when you have sinned and are beaten for it? But if you endure steadfastly when you've done good and suffer for it, this is commendable before God.

[21]You were called to this kind of endurance, because Christ suffered on your behalf. He left you an example so that you might follow in his footsteps. [22]He committed no sin, nor did he ever speak in ways meant to deceive. [23]When he was insulted, he did not reply with insults. When he suffered, he did not threaten revenge. Instead, he entrusted himself to the one who judges justly. [24]He carried in his own body on the cross the sins we committed. He did this so that we might live in righteousness, having nothing to do with sin. By his wounds you were healed. [25]Though you were like straying sheep, you have now returned to the shepherd and guardian of your lives.

1Peter 3 Wives, likewise, submit to your own husbands. Do this so that even if some of them refuse to believe the word, they may be won without a word by their wives' way of life. [2]After all, they will have observed the reverent and holy manner of your lives. [3]Don't try to make yourselves beautiful on the outside, with stylish hair or by wearing gold jewelry or fine clothes. [4]Instead, make yourselves beautiful on the inside, in your hearts, with the enduring quality of a gentle, peaceful spirit. This type of beauty is very precious in God's eyes. [5]For it was in this way that holy women who trusted in God used to make themselves beautiful, accepting the authority of their own husbands. [6]For example, Sarah accepted Abraham's authority when she called him master. You have become her children when you do good and don't respond to threats with fear.

[7]Husbands, likewise, submit by living with your wife in ways that honor her, knowing that she is the weaker partner. Honor her all the more, as she is also a coheir of the gracious care of life. Do this so that your prayers won't be hindered.

[8]Finally, all of you be of one mind, sympathetic, lovers of your fellow believers, compassionate, and modest in your opinion of yourselves. [9]Don't pay back evil for evil or insult for insult. Instead, give blessing in return. You were called to do this so that you might inherit a blessing. [10]For those who want to love life and see good days

should keep their tongue from evil speaking and their lips from speaking lies.
[11]They should shun evil and do good;
seek peace and chase after it.
[12]The Lord's eyes are on the righteous and his ears are open to their prayers.
But the Lord cannot tolerate those who do evil.[d]

[18]Christ himself suffered on account of sins, once for all, the righteous one on behalf of the unrighteous. He did this in order to bring you into the presence of God. Christ was put to death as a human, but made alive by the Spirit. [19]And it was by the Spirit that he went to preach to the spirits in prison. [20]In the past, these spirits were disobedient--when God patiently waited during the time of Noah. Noah built an ark in which a few (that is, eight) lives were rescued through water. [21]Baptism is like that. It saves you now--not because it removes dirt from your body but because it is the mark of a good conscience toward God. Your salvation comes through the resurrection of Jesus Christ, [22]who is at God's right side. Now that he has gone into heaven, he rules over all angels, authorities, and powers.

1Peter 4 Therefore, since Christ suffered as a human, you should also arm yourselves with his way of thinking. This is because whoever suffers is finished with sin. [2]As a result, they don't live the rest of their human lives in ways determined by human desires but in ways determined by God's will. [3]You have wasted enough time doing what unbelievers desire--living in their unrestrained immorality and lust, their drunkenness and excessive feasting and wild parties, and their forbidden worship of idols. 4They think it's strange that you don't join in these activities with the same flood of unrestrained wickedness. So they slander you. 5They will have to reckon with the one who is ready to judge the living and the dead. 6Indeed, this is the reason the good news was also preached to the dead. This happened so that, although they were judged as humans according to human standards, they could live by the Spirit according to divine standards.

7The end of everything has come. Therefore, be self-controlled and clearheaded so you can pray. 8Above all, show sincere love to each other, because love brings about the forgiveness of many sins. 9Open your homes to each other without complaining. 10And serve each other according to the gift each person has received, as good managers of God's diverse gifts. 11Whoever speaks should do so as those who speak God's word. Whoever serves should do so from the strength that God furnishes. Do this so that in everything God may be honored through Jesus Christ. To him be honor and power forever and always. Amen.

Stand firm in the last times

12Dear friends, don't be surprised about the fiery trials that have come among you to test you. These are not strange happenings. 13Instead, rejoice as you share Christ's suffering. You share his suffering now so that you may also have overwhelming joy when his glory is revealed. 14If you are mocked because of Christ's name, you are blessed, for the Spirit of glory--indeed, the Spirit of God--rests on you.

15Now none of you should suffer as a murderer or thief or evildoer or rebel. 16But don't be ashamed if you suffer as one who belongs to Christ. Rather, honor God as you bear Christ's name. Give honor to God, 17because it's time for judgment to begin with God's own household. But if judgment starts with us, what will happen to those who refuse to believe God's good news? 18If the righteous are barely rescued, what will happen to the godless and sinful? 19So then, those who suffer because they follow God's will should commit their lives to a trustworthy creator by doing what is right.

1Peter 5 Therefore, I have a request for the elders among you. (I ask this as a fellow elder and a witness of Christ's sufferings, and as one who shares in the glory that is about to be revealed.) I urge the elders: [2]Like shepherds, tend the flock of God among you. Watch over it. Don't shepherd because you must, but do it voluntarily for God. Don't shepherd greedily, but do it eagerly. [3]Don't shepherd by ruling over those entrusted to your care, but become examples to the flock. [4]And when the chief shepherd appears, you will receive an unfading crown of glory.

[5]In the same way, I urge you who are younger: accept the authority of the elders. And everyone, clothe yourselves with humility toward each other. God stands against the proud, but he gives favor to the humble.

[6]Therefore, humble yourselves under God's power so that he may raise you up in the last day. [7]Throw all your anxiety onto him, because he cares about you. [8]Be clearheaded. Keep alert. Your accuser, the devil, is on the prowl like a roaring lion, seeking someone to devour. [9]Resist him, standing firm in the faith. Do so in the knowledge that your fellow believers are enduring the same suffering throughout the world. [10]After you have suffered for a little while, the God of all grace, the one who called you into his eternal glory in Christ Jesus, will himself restore, empower, strengthen, and establish you. [11]To him be power forever and always. Amen.

[12]I have written and sent these few lines to you by Silvanus. I consider him to be a faithful brother. In these lines I have urged and affirmed that this is the genuine grace of God. Stand firm in it. [13]The fellow-elect church in Babylon greets you, and so does my son Mark. [14]Greet each other with the kiss of love. Peace to you all who are in Christ.

1, 2, 3

Greeting

2Peter 1 From Simon Peter, a slave and apostle of Jesus Christ.
To those who received a faith equal to ours through the justice of our God and savior Jesus Christ.
2 May you have more and more grace and peace through the knowledge of God and Jesus our Lord.

Christian life in outline

3 By his divine power the Lord has given us everything we need for life and godliness through the knowledge of the one who called us by his own honor and glory. 4 Through his honor and glory he has given us his precious and wonderful promises, that you may share the divine nature and escape from the world's immorality that sinful craving produces.

5 This is why you must make every effort to add moral excellence to your faith; and to moral excellence, knowledge; 6 and to knowledge, self-control; and to self-control, endurance; and to endurance, godliness; 7 and to godliness, affection for others; and to affection for others, love. 8 If all these are yours and they are growing in you, they'll keep you from becoming inactive and unfruitful in the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ. 9 Whoever lacks these things is shortsighted and blind, forgetting that they were cleansed from their past sins.

10 Therefore, brothers and sisters, be eager to confirm your call and election.
Do this and you will never ever be lost. 11 In this way you will receive a rich welcome into the everlasting kingdom of our Lord and savior Jesus Christ.

Reminder of the Christian life

12 So I'll keep reminding you about these things, although you already know them and stand secure in the truth you have. 13 I think it's right that I keep stirring up your memory, as long as I'm alive. 14 After all, our Lord Jesus Christ has shown me that I am about to depart from this life. 15 I'm eager for you always to remember these things after my death.

Christ's return is true

16We didn't repeat crafty myths when we told you about the powerful coming of our Lord Jesus Christ. Quite the contrary, we witnessed his majesty with our own eyes. 17He received honor and glory from God the Father when a voice came to him from the magnificent glory, saying, "This is my dearly loved Son, with whom I am well-pleased."18We ourselves heard this voice from heaven while we were with him on the holy mountain. 19In addition, we have a most reliable prophetic word, and you would do well to pay attention to it, just as you would to a lamp shining in a dark place, until the day dawns and the morning star rises in your hearts. 20Most important, you must know that no prophecy of scripture represents the prophet's own understanding of things, 21because no prophecy ever came by human will. Instead, men and women led by the Holy Spirit spoke from God.

Appearance of false teachers

2Peter 2 But false prophets also arose among the people. In the same way, false teachers will come among you. They will introduce destructive opinions and deny the master who bought them, bringing quick destruction on themselves. 2Many will follow them in their unrestrained immorality, and because of these false teachers the way of truth will be slandered. 3In their greed they will take advantage of you with lies. The judgment pronounced against them long ago hasn't fallen idle, nor is their destruction sleeping.

Active judgment of God

4God didn't spare the angels when they sinned but cast them into the lowest level of the underworld and committed them to chains of darkness, keeping them there until the judgment. 5And he didn't spare the ancient world when he brought a flood on the world of ungodly people, even though he protected Noah, a preacher of righteousness, along with seven others. 6God condemned the cities of Sodom and Gomorrah to total destruction, reducing them to ashes as a warning to ungodly people. 7And he rescued righteous Lot, who was made miserable by the unrestrained immorality of unruly people. (8While that righteous man lived among them he felt deep distress every day on account of the immoral actions he saw and heard.) [9]These things show that the Lord knows how to rescue the godly from their trials, and how to keep the unrighteous for punishment on the Judgment Day. [10]This is especially true for those who follow after the corrupt cravings of the sinful nature and defy the Lord's authority.

Evil character of the false teachers

These reckless, brash people aren't afraid to insult the glorious ones, [11]yet angels, who are stronger and more powerful, don't use insults when pronouncing the Lord's judgment on them. [12]These false teachers are like irrational animals, mere creatures of instinct, born to be captured and destroyed. They slander what they don't understand and, like animals, they will be destroyed. [13]In this way, they will receive payment for their wrongdoing.

They even enjoy unruly parties in broad daylight. They are blots and blemishes, taking delight in their seductive pleasures while feasting with you. [14]They are always looking for someone with whom to commit adultery. They are always on the lookout for opportunities to sin. They ensnare people whose faith is weak. They have hearts trained in greed. They are under God's curse. [15]Leaving the straight path, they have gone off course, following the way of Balaam son of Bosor, who loved the payment of doing wrong. [16]But Balaam was rebuked for his wrongdoing. A donkey, which has no voice, spoke with a human voice and put a stop to the prophet's madness.

[17]These false teachers are springs without water, mists driven by the wind. The underworld has been reserved for them. [18]With empty, self-important speech, they use sinful cravings and unrestrained immorality to ensnare people who have only just escaped life with those who have wandered from the truth. [19]These false teachers promise freedom, but they themselves are slaves of immorality; whatever overpowers you, enslaves you. [20]If people escape the moral filth of this world through the knowledge of our Lord and savior Jesus Christ, then get tangled up in it again and are overcome by it, they are worse off than they were before. [21]It would be better for them never to have known the way of righteousness than, having come to know it, to turn back from the holy commandment entrusted to them. [22]They demonstrate the truth of the proverb: "A dog returns to its own vomit, and a washed sow wallows in the mud."

Delay of Christ's coming in judgment

2Peter 3 My dear friends, this is now my second letter to you. I have written both letters to stir up your sincere understanding with a reminder. [2] I want you to recall what the holy prophets foretold as well as what the Lord and savior commanded through your apostles. [3] Most important, know this: in the last days scoffers will come, jeering, living by their own cravings, [4] and saying, "Where is the promise of his coming? After all, nothing has changed--not since the beginning of creation, nor even since the ancestors died."

[8] Don't let it escape your notice, dear friends, that with the Lord a single day is like a thousand years and a thousand years are like a single day. [9] The Lord isn't slow to keep his promise, as some think of slowness, but he is patient toward you, not wanting anyone to perish but all to change their hearts and lives. [10] But the day of the Lord will come like a thief. On that day the heavens will pass away with a dreadful noise, the elements will be consumed by fire, and the earth and all the works done on it will be exposed.

[11] Since everything will be destroyed in this way, what sort of people ought you to be? You must live holy and godly lives, [12] waiting for and hastening the coming day of God. Because of that day, the heavens will be destroyed by fire and the elements will melt away in the flames. [13] But according to his promise we are waiting for a new heaven and a new earth, where righteousness is at home.

Preparing for Christ's coming in judgment

[14] Therefore, dear friends, while you are waiting for these things to happen, make every effort to be found by him in peace--pure and faultless. [15] Consider the patience of our Lord to be salvation, just as our dear friend and brother Paul wrote to you according to the wisdom given to him, [16] speaking of these things in all his letters. Some of his remarks are hard to understand, and people who are ignorant and whose faith is weak twist them to their own destruction, just as they do the other scriptures.

Final instruction

17 Therefore, dear friends, since you have been warned in advance, be on guard so that you aren't led off course into the error of sinful people, and lose your own safe position. 18 Instead, grow in the grace and knowledge of our Lord and savior Jesus Christ. To him belongs glory now and forever. Amen.

Announcement about the word of life

1John 1 We announce to you what existed from the beginning, what we have heard, what we have seen with our eyes, what we have seen and our hands handled, about the word of life. [2]The life was revealed, and we have seen, and we testify and announce to you the eternal life that was with the Father and was revealed to us. [3]What we have seen and heard, we also announce it to you so that you can have fellowship with us. Our fellowship is with the Father and with his Son, Jesus Christ. [4]We are writing these things so that our joy can be complete.

The message: God is light

[5]This is the message that we have heard from him and announce to you: "God is light and there is no darkness in him at all."[6]If we claim, "We have fellowship with him," and live in the darkness, we are lying and do not act truthfully. [7]But if we live in the light in the same way as he is in the light, we have fellowship with each other, and the blood of Jesus, his Son, cleanses us from every sin. [8]If we claim, "We don't have any sin," we deceive ourselves and the truth is not in us.
[9]But if we confess our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins and cleanse us from everything we've done wrong. [10]If we claim, "We have never sinned," we make him a liar and his word is not in us.

Living in the light

1John 2 My little children, I'm writing these things to you so that you don't sin. But if you do sin, we have an advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the righteous one. [2]He is God's way of dealing with our sins, not only ours but the sins of the whole world. [3]This is how we know that we know him: if we keep his commandments. [4]The one who claims, "I know him," while not keeping his commandments, is a liar, and the truth is not in this person. [5]But the love of God is truly perfected in whoever keeps his word. This is how we know we are in him. [6]The one who claims to remain in him ought to live in the same way as he lived.

7 Dear friends, I'm not writing a new commandment to you, but an old commandment that you had from the beginning. The old commandment is the message you heard. 8 On the other hand, I am writing a new commandment to you, which is true in him and in you, because the darkness is passing away and the true light already shines. 9 The one who claims to be in the light while hating a brother or sister is in the darkness even now. 10 The person loving a brother and sister stays in the light, and there is nothing in the light that causes a person to stumble. 11 But the person who hates a brother or sister is in the darkness and lives in the darkness, and doesn't know where to go because the darkness blinds the eyes.

Motivations for writing

12 Little children, I'm writing to you because your sins have been forgiven through Jesus' name. 13 Parents, I'm writing to you because you have known the one who has existed from the beginning. Young people, I'm writing to you because you have conquered the evil one. 14 Little children, I write to you because you know the Father. Parents, I write to you because you have known the one who has existed from the beginning. Young people, I write to you because you are strong, the word of God remains in you, and you have conquered the evil one.

Warning about the world

15 Don't love the world or the things in the world. If anyone loves the world, the love of the Father is not in them. 16 Everything that is in the world--the craving for whatever the body feels, the craving for whatever the eyes see and the arrogant pride in one's possessions--is not of the Father but is of the world.
17 And the world and its cravings are passing away, but the person who does the will of God remains forever.

Remaining in the truth

18 Little children, it is the last hour. Just as you have heard that the antichrist is coming, so now many antichrists have appeared. This is how we know it is the last hour. 19 They went out from us, but they were not really part of us. If they had been part of us, they would have stayed with us. But by going out from us, they showed they all are not part of us. [20]But you have an anointing from the holy one, and all of you know the truth. [21]I don't write to you because you don't know the truth but because you know it. You know that no lie comes from the truth. [22]Who is the liar? Isn't it the person who denies that Jesus is the Christ? This person is the antichrist: the one who denies the Father and the Son. [23]Everyone who denies the Son does not have the Father, but the one who confesses the Son has the Father also.

[24]As for you, what you heard from the beginning must remain in you. If what you heard from the beginning remains in you, you will also remain in relationship to the Son and in the Father. [25]This is the promise that he himself gave us: eternal life. [26]I write these things to you about those who are attempting to deceive you. [27]As for you, the anointing that you received from him remains on you, and you don't need anyone to teach you the truth. But since his anointing teaches you about all things (it's true and not a lie), remain in relationship to him just as he taught you.

[28]And now, little children, remain in relationship to Jesus, so that when he appears we can have confidence and not be ashamed in front of him when he comes. [29]If you know that he is righteous, you also know that every person who practices righteousness is born from him.

1John 3 See what kind of love the Father has given to us in that we should be called God's children, and that is what we are! Because the world didn't recognize him, it doesn't recognize us.

[2]Dear friends, now we are God's children, and it hasn't yet appeared what we will be. We know that when he appears we will be like him because we'll see him as he is. [3]And all who have this hope in him purify themselves even as he is pure. [4]Every person who practices sin commits an act of rebellion, and sin is rebellion. [5]You know that he appeared to take away sins, and there is no sin in him. [6]Every person who remains in relationship to him does not sin. Any person who sins has not seen him or known him.

Practicing sin or righteousness

7 Little children, make sure no one deceives you. The person who practices righteousness is righteous, in the same way that Jesus is righteous. 8 The person who practices sin belongs to the devil, because the devil has been sinning since the beginning. God's Son appeared for this purpose: to destroy the works of the devil. 9 Those born from God don't practice sin because God's DNA[a] remains in them. They can't sin because they are born from God. 10 This is how God's children and the devil's children are apparent: everyone who doesn't practice righteousness is not from God, including the person who doesn't love a brother or sister. 11 This is the message that you heard from the beginning: love each other. 12 Don't behave like Cain, who belonged to the evil one and murdered his brother. And why did he kill him? He killed him because his own works were evil, but the works of his brother were righteous.

Loving each other

13 Don't be surprised, brothers and sisters, if the world hates you. 14 We know that we have transferred from death to life, because we love the brothers and sisters. The person who does not love remains in death. 15 Everyone who hates a brother or sister is a murderer, and you know that murderers don't have eternal life residing in them. 16 This is how we know love: Jesus laid down his life for us, and we ought to lay down our lives for our brothers and sisters. 17 But if someone has material possessions and sees a brother or sister in need but refuses to help--how can the love of God dwell in a person like that?

18 Little children, let's not love with words or speech but with action and truth.
19 This is how we will know that we belong to the truth and reassure our hearts in God's presence. 20 Even if our hearts condemn us, God is greater than our hearts and knows all things. 21 Dear friends, if our hearts don't condemn us, we have confidence in relationship to God. 22 We receive whatever we ask from him because we keep his commandments and do what pleases him. 23 This is his commandment, that we believe in the name of his Son, Jesus Christ, and love each other as he commanded us. 24 Those who keep his commandments dwell in God and God dwells in them. This is how we know that he dwells in us, because of the Spirit he has given us.

Testing the spirits

1John 4 Dear friends, don't believe every spirit. Test the spirits to see if they are from God because many false prophets have gone into the world. 2 This is how you know if a spirit comes from God: every spirit that confesses that Jesus Christ has come as a human[b] is from God, 3 and every spirit that doesn't confess Jesus is not from God. This is the spirit of the antichrist, which you have heard is coming and is now already in the world. 4 You are from God, little children, and you have defeated these people because the one who is in you is greater than the one who is in the world. 5 They are from the world. So they speak from the world's point of view and the world listens to them. 6 We are from God. The person who knows God listens to us. Whoever is not from God doesn't listen to us. This is how we recognize the Spirit of truth and the spirit of error.

Love and God

7 Dear friends, let's love each other, because love is from God, and everyone who loves is born from God and knows God. 8 The person who doesn't love does not know God, because God is love. 9 This is how the love of God is revealed to us: God has sent his only Son into the world so that we can live through him.
10 This is love: it is not that we loved God but that he loved us and sent his Son as the sacrifice that deals with our sins.

11 Dear friends, if God loved us this way, we also ought to love each other.
12 No one has ever seen God. If we love each other, God remains in us and his love is made perfect in us. 13 This is how we know we remain in him and he remains in us, because he has given us a measure of his Spirit. 14 We have seen and testify that the Father has sent the Son to be the savior of the world. 15 If any of us confess that Jesus is God's Son, God remains in us and we remain in God.
16 We have known and have believed the love that God has for us.

God is love, and those who remain in love remain in God and God remains in them. 17 This is how love has been perfected in us, so that we can have confidence on the Judgment Day, because we are exactly the same as God is in this world. 18 There is no fear in love, but perfect love drives out fear, because fear expects punishment. The person who is afraid has not been made perfect in love. 19 We love because God first loved us. 20 Those who say, "I love God" and hate their brothers or sisters are liars. After all, those who don't love their brothers or sisters whom they have seen can hardly love God whom they have not seen! 21This commandment we have from him: Those who claim to love God ought to love their brother and sister also.

1John 5 Everyone who believes that Jesus is the Christ has been born from God. Whoever loves someone who is a parent loves the child born to the parent. 2This is how we know that we love the children of God: when we love God and keep God's commandments. 3This is the love of God: we keep God's commandments. God's commandments are not difficult, 4because everyone who is born from God defeats the world. And this is the victory that has defeated the world: our faith. 5Who defeats the world? Isn't it the one who believes that Jesus is God's Son?

Testimony about Jesus

6This is the one who came by water and blood: Jesus Christ. Not by water only but by water and blood. And the Spirit is the one who testifies, because the Spirit is the truth. 7The three are testifying--8the Spirit, the water, and the blood--and the three are united in agreement. 9If we receive human testimony, God's testimony is greater, because this is what God testified: he has testified about his Son. 10The one who believes in God's Son has the testimony within; the one who doesn't believe God has made God a liar, because that one has not believed the testimony that God gave about his Son. 11And this is the testimony: God gave eternal life to us, and this life is in his Son. 12The one who has the Son has life. The one who doesn't have God's Son does not have life.

Confidence in prayer

13I write these things to you who believe in the name of God's Son so that you can know that you have eternal life. 14This is the confidence that we have in our relationship with God: If we ask for anything in agreement with his will, he listens to us. 15If we know that he listens to whatever we ask, we know that we have received what we asked from him. 16If anyone sees a brother or sister committing a sin that does not result in death, they should pray, and God will give life to them--that is, to those who commit sins that don't result in death. There is a sin that results in death--I'm not saying that you should pray about that. [17]Every unrighteous action is sin, but there is a sin that does not result in death.

[18]We know that everyone born from God does not sin, but the ones born from God guard themselves,[c] and the evil one cannot touch them. [19]We know we are from God, and the whole world lies in the power of the evil one. [20]We know that God's Son has come and has given us understanding to know the one who is true. We are in the one who is true by being in his Son, Jesus Christ. This is the true God and eternal life. [21]Little children, guard yourselves from idols!

Greeting

2John 1 From the elder.
To the chosen gentlewoman and her children, whom I truly love (and I am not the only one, but also all who know the truth), 2 because of the truth that remains with us and will be with us forever.
3 Grace, mercy, and peace from God the Father and from Jesus Christ, the Son of the Father, will be ours who live in truth and love.

Love each other

4 I was overjoyed to find some of your children living in the truth, just as we had been commanded by the Father. 5 Now, dear friends, I am requesting that we love each other. It's not as though I'm writing a new command to you, but it's one we have had from the beginning. 6 This is love: that we live according to his commands. This is the command that you heard from the beginning: live in love.

Reject false teachers

7 Many deceivers have gone into the world who do not confess that Jesus Christ came as a human being. This kind of person is the deceiver and the antichrist. 8 Watch yourselves so that you don't lose what we've worked for but instead receive a full reward. 9 Anyone who goes too far and does not continue in the teaching about Christ does not have God. Whoever continues in this teaching has both the Father and the Son. 10 Whoever comes to you who does not affirm this teaching should neither be received nor welcomed into your home, 11 because welcoming people like that is the same thing as sharing in their evil actions.

Plans to visit

12 I have a lot to tell you. I don't want to use paper and ink, but I hope to visit you and talk with you face-to-face, so that our joy can be complete.

Final greeting

13 Your chosen sister's children greet you.

Greeting

3John 1 From the elder.
To my dear friend Gaius, whom I truly love.
2 Dear friend, I'm praying that all is well with you and that you enjoy good health in the same way that you prosper spiritually.

Encouragement for Gaius

3 I was overjoyed when the brothers and sisters arrived and spoke highly of your faithfulness to the truth, shown by how you live according to the truth. 4 I have no greater joy than this: to hear that my children are living according to the truth. 5 Dear friend, you act faithfully in whatever you do for our brothers and sisters, even though they are strangers. 6 They spoke highly of your love in front of the church. You all would do well to provide for their journey in a way that honors God, 7 because they left on their journey for the sake of Jesus Christ without accepting any support from the Gentiles. 8 Therefore, we ought to help people like this so that we can be coworkers with the truth.

Criticism of Diotrephes

9 I wrote something to the church, but Diotrephes, who likes to put himself first, doesn't welcome us. 10 Because of this, if I come, I will bring up what he has done--making unjustified and wicked accusations against us. And as if that were not enough, he not only refuses to welcome the brothers and sisters but stops those who want to do so and even throws them out of the church! 11 Dear friend, don't imitate what is bad but what is good. Whoever practices what is good belongs to God. Whoever practices what is bad has not seen God.

Approval of Demetrius

12 Everyone speaks highly of Demetrius, even the truth itself. We also speak highly of him, and you know that what we say is true.

Final greeting

[13]I have a lot to say to you, but I don't want to use pen and ink. [14]I hope to see you soon, and we will speak face-to-face.

[15]Peace be with you. Your friends here greet you. Greet our friends there by name.

1

Greeting

Jude 1 Jude, a slave of Jesus Christ and brother of James.
To those who are called, loved by God the Father and kept safe by Jesus Christ.
2 May you have more and more mercy, peace, and love.

Certain judgment of the false teachers

3 Dear friends, I wanted very much to write to you concerning the salvation we share. Instead, I must write to urge you to fight for the faith delivered once and for all to God's holy people. 4 Godless people have slipped in among you. They turn the grace of our God into unrestrained immorality and deny our only master and Lord, Jesus Christ. Judgment was passed against them a long time ago.

5 I want to remind you of something you already know very well. The Lord, who once saved a people out of Egypt, later destroyed those who didn't maintain their faith. 6 I remind you too of the angels who didn't keep their position of authority but deserted their own home. The Lord has kept them in eternal chains in the underworld until the judgment of the great day. 7 In the same way, Sodom and Gomorrah and neighboring towns practiced immoral sexual relations and pursued other sexual urges. By undergoing the punishment of eternal fire, they serve as a warning.

8 Yet, even knowing this, these dreamers in the same way pollute themselves, reject authority, and slander the angels. 9 The archangel Michael, when he argued with the devil about Moses' body, did not dare charge him with slander. Instead, he said, "The Lord rebuke you!" 10 But these people slander whatever they don't understand. They are destroyed by what they know instinctively, as though they were irrational animals.

Prophecies about the false teachers

11 They are damned, for they follow in the footsteps of Cain. For profit they give themselves over to Balaam's error. They are destroyed in the uprising of Korah. 12These people are like jagged rocks just below the surface of the water waiting to snag you when they join your love feasts. They feast with you without reverence. They care only for themselves. They are waterless clouds carried along by the winds; fruitless autumn trees, twice dead, uprooted; 13wild waves of the sea foaming up their own shame; wandering stars for whom the darkness of the underworld is reserved forever.

14Enoch, who lived seven generations after Adam, prophesied about these people when he said, "See, the Lord comes with his countless holy ones,15to execute judgment on everyone and to convict everyone about every ungodly deed they have committed in their ungodliness as well as all the harsh things that sinful ungodly people have said against him."16These are faultfinding grumblers, living according to their own desires. They speak arrogant words and they show partiality to people when they want a favor in return.

17But you, dear friends, remember the words spoken beforehand by the apostles of our Lord Jesus Christ. 18They said to you, "In the end time scoffers will come living according to their own ungodly desires."19These people create divisions. Since they don't have the Spirit, they are worldly.

A strategy for the faithful

20But you, dear friends: build each other up on the foundation of your most holy faith, pray in the Holy Spirit, 21keep each other in the love of God, wait for the mercy of our Lord Jesus Christ, who will give you eternal life. 22Have mercy on those who doubt. 23Save some by snatching them from the fire. Fearing God, have mercy on some, hating even the clothing contaminated by their sinful urges.

Blessing

24To the one who is able to protect you from falling, and to present you blameless and rejoicing before his glorious presence, 25to the only God our savior, through Jesus Christ our Lord, belong glory, majesty, power, and authority,
before all time, now and forever. Amen.

Revelation

Greetings

Revelation 1 A revelation of Jesus Christ, which God gave him to show his servants what must soon take place. Christ made it known by sending it through his angel to his servant John, [2] who bore witness to the word of God and to the witness of Jesus Christ, including all that John saw. [3] Favored is the one who reads the words of this prophecy out loud, and favored are those who listen to it being read, and keep what is written in it, for the time is near.

[4] John, to the seven churches that are in Asia:
Grace and peace to you from the one who is and was and is coming, and from the seven spirits that are before God's throne, [5] and from Jesus Christ--the faithful witness, the firstborn from among the dead, and the ruler of the kings of the earth.
To the one who loves us and freed us from our sins by his blood, [6] who made us a kingdom, priests to his God and Father--to him be glory and power forever and always. Amen.

[7] Look, he is coming with the clouds! Every eye will see him, including those who pierced him, and all the tribes of the earth will mourn because of him. This is so. Amen. [8] "I am the Alpha and the Omega," says the Lord God, "the one who is and was and is coming, the Almighty."

Christ appears to John

[9] I, John, your brother who shares with you in the hardship, kingdom, and endurance that we have in Jesus, was on the island called Patmos because of the word of God and my witness about Jesus. [10] I was in a Spirit-inspired trance on the Lord's day, and I heard behind me a loud voice that sounded like a trumpet.
[11] It said, "Write down on a scroll whatever you see, and send it to the seven churches: to Ephesus, Smyrna, Pergamum, Thyatira, Sardis, Philadelphia, and Laodicea."

12 I turned to see who was speaking to me, and when I turned, I saw seven oil lamps burning on top of seven gold stands. 13 In the middle of the lampstands I saw someone who looked like the Human One.[a] He wore a robe that stretched down to his feet, and he had a gold sash around his chest. 14 His head and hair were white as white wool--like snow--and his eyes were like a fiery flame. 15 His feet were like fine brass that has been purified in a furnace, and his voice sounded like rushing water. 16 He held seven stars in his right hand, and from his mouth came a sharp, two-edged sword. His appearance was like the sun shining with all its power.

17 When I saw him, I fell at his feet like a dead man. But he put his right hand on me and said, "Don't be afraid. I'm the first and the last, 18 and the living one. I was dead, but look! Now I'm alive forever and always. I have the keys of Death and the Grave. 19 So write down what you have seen, both the scene now before you and the things that are about to unfold after this. 20 As for the mystery of the seven stars that you saw in my right hand and the seven gold lampstands, here is what they mean: the seven stars are the angels of the seven churches, and the seven lampstands are the seven churches.

Message to Ephesus

Revelation 2 "Write this to the angel of the church in Ephesus:

These are the words of the one who holds the seven stars in his right hand and walks among the seven gold lampstands: 2 I know your works, your labor, and your endurance. I also know that you don't put up with those who are evil. You have tested those who say they are apostles but are not, and you have found them to be liars. 3 You have shown endurance and put up with a lot for my name's sake, and you haven't gotten tired. 4 But I have this against you: you have let go of the love you had at first. 5 So remember the high point from which you have fallen.
Change your hearts and lives and do the things you did at first. If you don't, I'm coming to you. I will move your lampstand from its place if you don't change your hearts and lives. 6 But you have this in your favor: you hate what the Nicolaitans are doing, which I also hate. 7 If you can hear, listen to what the Spirit is saying to the churches. I will allow those who emerge victorious to eat from the tree of life, which is in God's paradise.

Message to Smyrna

These are the words of the one who is the first and the last, who died and came back to life: [9]I know your hardship and poverty (though you are actually rich). I also know the hurtful things that have been spoken about you by those who say they are Jews (though they are not, but are really Satan's synagogue). [10]Don't be afraid of what you are going to suffer. Look! The devil is going to throw some of you into prison in order to test you. You will suffer hardship for ten days. Be faithful even to the point of death, and I will give you the crown of life. [11]If you can hear, listen to what the Spirit is saying to the churches. Those who emerge victorious won't be hurt by the second death.

These are the words of the one who has the sharp, two-edged sword: [13]I know that you are living right where Satan's throne is. You are holding on to my name, and you didn't break faith with me even at the time that Antipas, my faithful witness, was killed among you, where Satan lives. [14]But I have a few things against you, because you have some there who follow Balaam's teaching. Balaam had taught Balak to trip up the Israelites so that they would eat food sacrificed to idols and commit sexual immorality. [15]In the same way, you have some who follow the Nicolaitans' teaching. [16]So change your hearts and lives. If you don't, I am coming to you soon, and I will make war on them with the sword that comes from my mouth. [17]If you can hear, listen to what the Spirit is saying to the churches. I will give those who emerge victorious some of the hidden manna to eat. I will also give to each of them a white stone with a new name written on it, which no one knows except the one who receives it.

Message to Thyatira

[18]"Write this to the angel of the church in Thyatira:

These are the words of God's Son, whose eyes are like a fiery flame, and whose feet are like fine brass. [19]I know your works, your love and faithfulness, your service and endurance. I also know that the works you have done most recently are even greater than those you did at first. [20]But I have this against you: you put up with that woman, Jezebel, who calls herself a prophet. You allow her to teach and to mislead my servants into committing sexual immorality and eating food sacrificed to idols. [21]I gave her time to change her heart and life, but she refuses to change her life of prostitution. [22]Look! I'm throwing her onto a sickbed. I am casting those who have committed adultery with her into terrible hardship--if they don't change their hearts from following her practices--[23]and I will even put her children to death with disease. Then all the churches will know that I'm the one who examines minds and hearts, and that I will give to each of you what your actions deserve. [24]As for the rest of you in Thyatira--those of you who don't follow this teaching and haven't learned the so-called "deep secrets" of Satan--I won't burden you with anything else. [25]Just hold on to what you have until I come. [26]To those who emerge victorious, keeping my practices until the end, I will give authority over the nations--[27]to rule the nations with an iron rod and smash them like pottery--[28]just as I received authority from my Father. I will also give them the morning star. [29]If you can hear, listen to what the Spirit is saying to the churches.

Message to Sardis

Revelation 3"Write this to the angel of the church in Sardis:

These are the words of the one who holds God's seven spirits and the seven stars: I know your works. You have the reputation of being alive, and you are in fact dead. [2]Wake up and strengthen whatever you have left, teetering on the brink of death, for I've found that your works are far from complete in the eyes of my God. [3]So remember what you received and heard. Hold on to it and change your hearts and lives. If you don't wake up, I will come like a thief, and you won't know what time I will come upon you. [4]But you do have a few people in Sardis who haven't stained their clothing. They will walk with me clothed in white because they are worthy. [5]Those who emerge victorious will wear white clothing like this. I won't scratch out their names from the scroll of life, but will declare their names in the presence of my Father and his angels. [6]If you can hear, listen to what the Spirit is saying to the churches.

Message to Philadelphia

These are the words of the one who is holy and true, who has the key of David. Whatever he opens, no one will shut; and whatever he shuts, no one opens. [8]I know your works. Look! I have set in front of you an open door that no one can shut. You have so little power, and yet you have kept my word and haven't denied my name. [9]Because of this I will make the people from Satan's synagogue (who say they are Jews and really aren't, but are lying)--I will make them come and bow down at your feet and realize that I have loved you. [10]Because you kept my command to endure, I will keep you safe through the time of testing that is about to come over the whole world, to test those who live on earth. [11]I'm coming soon. Hold on to what you have so that no one takes your crown. [12]As for those who emerge victorious, I will make them pillars in the temple of my God, and they will never leave it. I will write on them the name of my God and the name of the city of my God, the New Jerusalem that comes down out of heaven from my God. I will also write on them my own new name. [13]If you can hear, listen to what the Spirit is saying to the churches.

Message to Laodicea

These are the words of the Amen, the faithful and true witness, the ruler[b] of God's creation. [15]I know your works. You are neither cold nor hot. I wish that you were either cold or hot. [16]So because you are lukewarm, and neither hot nor cold, I'm about to spit you out of my mouth. [17]After all, you say, 'I'm rich, and I've grown wealthy, and I don't need a thing.' You don't realize that you are miserable, pathetic, poor, blind, and naked. [18]My advice is that you buy gold from me that has been purified by fire so that you may be rich, and white clothing to wear so that your nakedness won't be shamefully exposed, and ointment to put on your eyes so that you may see. [19]I correct and discipline those whom I love. So be earnest and change your hearts and lives. [20]Look! I'm standing at the door and knocking. If any hear my voice and open the door, I will come in to be with them, and will have dinner with them, and they will have dinner with me. [21]As for those who emerge victorious, I will allow them to sit with me on my throne, just as I emerged victorious and sat down with my Father on his throne. [22]If you can hear, listen to what the Spirit is saying to the churches."

John sees God's heavenly throne

Revelation 4 After this I looked and there was a door that had been opened in heaven. The first voice that I had heard, which sounded like a trumpet, said to me, "Come up here, and I will show you what must take place after this."[2] At once I was in a Spirit-inspired trance and I saw a throne in heaven, and someone was seated on the throne. [3] The one seated there looked like jasper and carnelian, and surrounding the throne was a rainbow that looked like an emerald.
[4] Twenty-four thrones, with twenty-four elders seated upon them, surrounded the throne. The elders were dressed in white clothing and had gold crowns on their heads. [5] From the throne came lightning, voices, and thunder. In front of the throne were seven flaming torches, which are the seven spirits of God.
[6] Something like a glass sea, like crystal, was in front of the throne.

In the center, by the throne, were four living creatures encircling the throne.
These creatures were covered with eyes on the front and on the back. [7] The first living creature was like a lion. The second living creature was like an ox. The third living creature had a face like a human being. And the fourth living creature was like an eagle in flight. [8] Each of the four living creatures had six wings, and each was covered all around and on the inside with eyes. They never rest day or night, but keep on saying,

"Holy, holy, holy is the Lord God Almighty, who was and is and is coming."

[9] Whenever the living creatures give glory, honor, and thanks to the one seated on the throne, who lives forever and always, [10] the twenty-four elders fall before the one seated on the throne. They worship the one who lives forever and always. They throw down their crowns before the throne and say, [11] "You are worthy, our Lord and God, to receive glory and honor and power, because you created all things.

It is by your will that they existed and were created."

The Lamb takes the scroll

Revelation 5 Then I saw a scroll in the right hand of the one seated on the throne. It had writing on the front and the back, and it was sealed with seven seals. 2 I saw a powerful angel, who proclaimed in a loud voice, "Who is worthy to open the scroll and break its seals?" 3 But no one in heaven or on earth or under the earth could open the scroll or look inside it. 4 So I began to weep and weep, because no one was found worthy to open the scroll or to look inside it. 5 Then one of the elders said to me, "Don't weep. Look! The Lion of the tribe of Judah, the Root of David, has emerged victorious so that he can open the scroll and its seven seals."

6 Then, in between the throne and the four living creatures and among the elders, I saw a Lamb, standing as if it had been slain. It had seven horns and seven eyes, which are God's seven spirits, sent out into the whole earth. 7 He came forward and took the scroll from the right hand of the one seated on the throne. 8 When he took the scroll, the four living creatures and the twenty-four elders fell down before the Lamb. Each held a harp and gold bowls full of incense, which are the prayers of the saints. 9 They took up a new song, saying,

"You are worthy to take the scroll and open its seals, because you were slain,
and by your blood you purchased for God persons from every tribe, language, people, and nation.
10 You made them a kingdom and priests to our God, and they will rule on earth."

11 Then I looked, and I heard the sound of many angels surrounding the throne, the living creatures, and the elders. They numbered in the millions-- thousands upon thousands. 12 They said in a loud voice,

"Worthy is the slaughtered Lamb to receive power, wealth, wisdom, and might,
and honor, glory, and blessing."

13 And I heard every creature in heaven and on earth and under the earth and in the sea--I heard everything everywhere say,

"Blessing, honor, glory, and power belong to the one seated on the throne and to the Lamb

forever and always."

14 Then the four living creatures said, "Amen," and the elders fell down and worshipped.

Opening the first six seals

Revelation 6 Then I looked on as the Lamb opened one of the seven seals. I heard one of the four living creatures say in a voice like thunder, "Come!" 2 So I looked, and there was a white horse. Its rider held a bow and was given a crown. And he went forth from victory to victory.

3 When the Lamb opened the second seal, I heard the second living creature say, "Come!" 4 Out came another horse, fiery red. Its rider was allowed to take peace from the earth so that people would kill each other. He was given a large sword.

5 When he opened the third seal, I heard the third living creature say, "Come!" So I looked, and there was a black horse. Its rider held a balance for weighing in his hand. 6 I heard what sounded like a voice from among the four living creatures. It said, "A quart of wheat for a denarion,[c] and three quarts of barley for a denarion, but don't damage the olive oil and the wine."

7 When he opened the fourth seal, I heard the voice of the fourth living creature say, "Come!" 8 So I looked, and there was a pale green horse. Its rider's name was Death, and the Grave was following right behind. They were given authority over a fourth of the earth, to kill by sword, famine, disease, and the wild animals of the earth.

9 When he opened the fifth seal, I saw under the altar those who had been slaughtered on account of the word of God and the witness they had given. 10 They cried out with a loud voice, "Holy and true Master, how long will you wait before you pass judgment? How long before you require justice for our blood, which was shed by those who live on earth?" 11 Each of them was given a white robe, and they were told to rest a little longer, until their fellow servants and brothers and sisters--who were about to be killed as they were--were finished.

12 I looked on as he opened the sixth seal, and there was a great earthquake.
The sun became black as funeral clothing, and the entire moon turned red as blood. 13 The stars of the sky fell to the earth as a fig tree drops its fruit when shaken by a strong wind. 14 The sky disappeared like a scroll being rolled up, and every mountain and island was moved from its place. 15 Then the kings of the earth, the officials and the generals, the rich and the powerful, and everyone, slave and free, hid themselves in caves and in the rocks of the mountains. 16 They called to the mountains and the rocks, "Fall on us and hide us from the face of the one seated on the throne and from the Lamb's wrath! 17 The great day of their wrath has come, and who is able to stand?"

One hundred forty-four thousand sealed

Revelation 7 1 After this I saw four angels standing at the four corners of the earth. They held back the earth's four winds so that no wind would blow against the earth, the sea, or any tree. 2 I saw another angel coming up from the east, holding the seal of the living God. He cried out with a loud voice to the four angels who had been given the power to damage the earth and sea. 3 He said, "Don't damage the earth, the sea, or the trees until we have put a seal on the foreheads of those who serve our God."

4 Then I heard the number of those who were sealed: one hundred forty-four thousand, sealed from every tribe of the Israelites:

5 From the tribe of Judah, twelve thousand were sealed;
from the tribe of Reuben, twelve thousand;
from the tribe of Gad, twelve thousand; 6 from the tribe of Asher, twelve thousand;
from the tribe of Naphtali, twelve thousand;
from the tribe of Manasseh, twelve thousand; 7 from the tribe of Simeon, twelve thousand;
from the tribe of Levi, twelve thousand;
from the tribe of Issachar, twelve thousand; 8 from the tribe of Zebulun, twelve thousand;
from the tribe of Joseph, twelve thousand;

from the tribe of Benjamin, twelve thousand were sealed.

The great crowd and seventh seal

9 After this I looked, and there was a great crowd that no one could number.
They were from every nation, tribe, people, and language. They were standing before the throne and before the Lamb. They wore white robes and held palm branches in their hands. 10 They cried out with a loud voice:

"Victory belongs to our God who sits on the throne,
and to the Lamb."

11 All the angels stood in a circle around the throne, and around the elders and the four living creatures. They fell facedown before the throne and worshipped God, 12 saying,

"Amen! Blessing and glory and wisdom and thanksgiving and honor and power and might be to our God forever and always. Amen."

13 Then one of the elders said to me, "Who are these people wearing white robes, and where did they come from?"

14 I said to him, "Sir, you know."

Then he said to me, "These people have come out of great hardship. They have washed their robes and made them white in the Lamb's blood. 15 This is the reason they are before God's throne. They worship him day and night in his temple, and the one seated on the throne will shelter them. 16 They won't hunger or thirst anymore. No sun or scorching heat will beat down on them, 17 because the Lamb who is in the midst of the throne will shepherd them. He will lead them to the springs of life-giving water,[d] and God will wipe away every tear from their eyes."

Revelation 8 Then, when the Lamb opened the seventh seal, there was silence in heaven for about half an hour.

The first four trumpet plagues

[2]Then I saw the seven angels who stand before God, and seven trumpets were given to them. [3]Another angel came and stood at the altar, and he held a gold bowl for burning incense. He was given a large amount of incense, in order to offer it on behalf of the prayers of all the saints on the gold altar in front of the throne. [4]The smoke of the incense offered for the prayers of the saints rose up before God from the angel's hand. [5]Then the angel took the incense container and filled it with fire from the altar. He threw it down to the earth, and there were thunder, voices, lightning, and an earthquake.

[6]Then the seven angels who held the seven trumpets got ready to blow them. [7]The first angel blew his trumpet, and hail and fire mixed with blood appeared, and was thrown down to the earth. A third of the earth was burned up. A third of the trees were burned up. All the green grass was burned up. [8]Then the second angel blew his trumpet, and something like a huge mountain burning with fire was thrown down into the sea. A third of the sea became blood, [9]a third of the creatures living in the sea died, and a third of the ships were destroyed. [10]Then the third angel blew his trumpet, and a great star, burning like a torch, fell from heaven. It fell on a third of the rivers and springs of water. [11]The star's name is Wormwood, and a third of the waters became wormwood, and many people died from the water, because it became so bitter. [12]Then the fourth angel blew his trumpet, and a third of the sun was struck, and a third of the moon, and a third of the stars so that a third of them became dark. The day lost a third of its light, and the night lost a third of its light too.

[13]Then I looked and I heard an eagle flying high overhead. It said with a loud voice, "Horror, horror, oh! The horror for those who live on earth because of the blasts of the remaining trumpets that the three angels are about to blow!"

The fifth and sixth trumpet plagues

Revelation 9 Then the fifth angel blew his trumpet, and I saw a star that had fallen from heaven to earth, and he was given the key to the shaft of the abyss. [2]He opened the shaft of the abyss; and smoke rose up from the shaft, like smoke from a huge furnace. The sun and air were darkened by the smoke from the shaft. [3]Then locusts came forth from the smoke and onto the earth. They were given power like the power that scorpions have on the earth. [4]They were told not to hurt the grass of the earth or any green plant or any tree. They could only hurt the people who didn't have the seal of God on their foreheads. [5]The locusts weren't allowed to kill them, but only to make them suffer for five months--and the suffering they inflict is like that of a scorpion when it strikes a person. [6]In those days people will seek death, but they won't find it. They will want to die, but death will run away from them.

[7]The locusts looked like horses ready for battle. On their heads were what seemed to be gold crowns. Their faces were like human faces, [8]their hair was like women's hair, and their teeth were like lions' teeth. [9]In front they had what seemed to be iron armor upon their chests, and the sound of their wings was like the sound of many chariots and horses racing into battle. [10]They also have tails with stingers, just like scorpions; and in their tails is their power to hurt people for five months. [11]Their king is an angel from the abyss, whose Hebrew name is Abaddon,[e] and whose Greek name is Apollyon.[f]

[13]Then the sixth angel blew his trumpet, and I heard a voice from the four horns of the gold altar that is before God. [14]It said to the sixth angel, who had the trumpet, "Release the four angels who are bound at the great river Euphrates."[15]Then the four angels who had been made ready for that hour, day, month, and year were released to kill a third of humankind. [16]The number of cavalry troops was two hundred million. I heard their number. [17]And this is the way I saw the horses and their riders in the vision: they had breastplates that were fiery red, dark blue, and yellow as sulfur. The horses' heads were like lions' heads, and out of their mouths came fire, smoke, and sulfur. [18]By these three plagues a third of humankind was killed: by the fire, smoke, and sulfur coming out of their mouths. [19]The horses' power is in their mouths and their tails, for their tails are like snakes with heads that inflict injuries.

[20]The rest of humankind, who weren't killed by these plagues, didn't change their hearts and lives and turn from their handiwork. They didn't stop worshipping demons and idols made of gold, silver, bronze, stone, and wood--idols that can't see or hear or walk. [21]They didn't turn away from their murders, their spells and drugs, their sexual immorality, or their stealing.

John receives the open scroll

Revelation 10 Then I saw another powerful angel coming down from heaven. He was robed with a cloud, with a rainbow over his head. His face was like the sun, and his feet were like fiery pillars. 2 He held an open scroll in his hand. He put his right foot on the sea and his left foot on the land. 3 He called out with a loud voice like a lion roaring, and when he called out, the seven thunders raised their voices. 4 When the seven thunders spoke, I was about to write, but I heard a voice from heaven say, "Seal up what the seven thunders have said, and don't write it down."

5 Then the angel I saw standing on the sea and on the land raised his right hand to heaven. 6 He swore by the one who lives forever and always, who created heaven and what is in it, the earth and what is in it, and the sea and what is in it, and said, "The time is up. 7 In the days when the seventh angel blows his trumpet, God's mysterious purpose will be accomplished, fulfilling the good news he gave to his servants the prophets."

8 Then the voice I heard from heaven spoke to me again and said, "Go, take the opened scroll from the hand of the angel who stands on the sea and on the land." 9 So I went to the angel and told him to give me the scroll. He said to me, "Take it and eat it. It will make you sick to your stomach, but sweet as honey in your mouth." 10 So I took the scroll from the angel's hand and ate it. And it was sweet as honey in my mouth, but when I swallowed it, it made my stomach churn. 11 I was told, "You must prophesy again about many peoples, nations, languages, and kings."

Two witnesses

Revelation 11 Then I was given a measuring rod, which was like a pole.
And I was told, "Get up and measure God's temple, the altar, and those who worship there. 2 But don't measure the court outside the temple. Leave that out, because it has been given to the nations, and they will trample the holy city underfoot for forty-two months.

3 "And I will allow my two witnesses to prophesy for one thousand two hundred sixty days, wearing mourning clothes. 4 These are the two olive trees and the two lampstands that stand before the Lord of the earth. [5]If anyone wants to hurt them, fire comes out of their mouth and burns up their enemies. So if anyone wants to hurt them, they have to be killed in this way. [6]They have the power to close up the sky so that no rain will fall for as long as they prophesy. They also have power over the waters, to turn them into blood, and to strike the earth with any plague, as often as they wish.

[7]"When they have finished their witnessing, the beast that comes up from the abyss will make war on them, gain victory over them, and kill them. [8]Their dead bodies will lie on the street of the great city that is spiritually called Sodom and Egypt, where also their Lord was crucified. [9]And for three and a half days, members of the peoples, tribes, languages, and nations will look at their dead bodies, but they won't let their dead bodies be put in a tomb. [10]Those who live on earth will rejoice over them. They will celebrate and give each other gifts, because these two prophets had brought such pain to those who live on earth.

[11]"But after three and a half days, the breath of life from God entered them, and they stood on their feet. Great fear came over those who saw them. [12]Then they heard a loud voice from heaven say to them, 'Come up here.' And they went up to heaven in a cloud, while their enemies watched them. [13]At that hour there was a great earthquake, and a tenth of the city fell. Seven thousand people were killed by the earthquake, and the rest were afraid and gave glory to the God of heaven."

[14]The second horror is over. The third horror is coming soon.

Seventh trumpet

[15]Then the seventh angel blew his trumpet, and there were loud voices in heaven saying,

"The kingdom of the world has become the kingdom of our Lord and his Christ, and he will rule forever and always."

[16]Then the twenty-four elders, who were seated on their thrones before God, fell on their faces and worshipped God. [17]They said,

"We give thanks to you, Lord God Almighty, who is and was,
for you have taken your great power and enforced your rule.
18 The nations were enraged, but your wrath came.
The time came for the dead to be judged.
The time came to reward your servants, the prophets and saints, and those who fear your name, both small and great,
and to destroy those who destroy the earth."

19 Then God's temple in heaven was opened, and the chest containing his covenant appeared in his temple. There were lightning, voices, thunder, an earthquake, and large hail.

A woman, her child, and the dragon

Revelation 12 Then a great sign appeared in heaven: a woman clothed with the sun, with the moon under her feet and a crown of twelve stars on her head. 2 She was pregnant, and she cried out because she was in labor, in pain from giving birth. 3 Then another sign appeared in heaven: it was a great fiery red dragon, with seven heads and ten horns, and seven royal crowns on his heads. 4 His tail swept down a third of heaven's stars and threw them to the earth. The dragon stood in front of the woman who was about to give birth so that when she gave birth, he might devour her child. 5 She gave birth to a son, a male child who is to rule all the nations with an iron rod. Her child was snatched up to God and his throne. 6 Then the woman fled into the desert, where God has prepared a place for her. There she will be taken care of for one thousand two hundred sixty days.

Michael and the dragon

7 Then there was war in heaven: Michael and his angels fought the dragon. The dragon and his angels fought back, 8 but they did not prevail, and there was no longer any place for them in heaven. 9 So the great dragon was thrown down. The old snake, who is called the devil and Satan, the deceiver of the whole world, was thrown down to the earth; and his angels were thrown down with him. 10 Then I heard a loud voice in heaven say,

"Now the salvation and power and kingdom of our God, and the authority of his Christ have come.

The accuser of our brothers and sisters, who accuses them day and night before our God,
has been thrown down.
[11]They gained the victory over him on account of the blood of the Lamb and the word of their witness.
Love for their own lives didn't make them afraid to die.
[12]Therefore, rejoice, you heavens and you who dwell in them.
But oh! The horror for the earth and sea!
The devil has come down to you with great rage,
for he knows that he only has a short time."

The dragon pursues the woman

[13]When the dragon saw that he had been thrown down to the earth, he chased the woman who had given birth to the male child. [14]But the woman was given the two wings of the great eagle so that she could fly to her place in the desert. There she would be taken care of--out of the snake's reach--for a time and times and half a time. [15]Then from his mouth the snake poured a river of water after the woman so that the river would sweep her away. [16]But the earth helped the woman. The earth opened its mouth and swallowed the river that the dragon poured out of his mouth. [17]So the dragon was furious with the woman, and he went off to make war on the rest of her children, on those who keep God's commandments and hold firmly to the witness of Jesus.

The beast from the sea

[18]Then the dragon stood on the seashore,

Revelation 13 and I saw a beast coming up out of the sea. It had ten horns and seven heads. Each of its horns was decorated with a royal crown, and on its heads were blasphemous names. [2]The beast I saw was like a leopard. Its feet were like a bear's, and its mouth was like a lion's mouth. The dragon gave it his power, throne, and great authority. [3]One of its heads appeared to have been slain and killed, but its deadly wound was healed. So the whole earth was amazed and followed the beast. [4]They worshipped the dragon because it had given the beast its authority. They worshipped the beast and said, "Who is like the beast, and who can fight against it?"

5The beast was given a mouth that spoke boastful and blasphemous things, and it was given authority to act for forty-two months. 6It opened its mouth to speak blasphemies against God. It blasphemed God's name and his dwelling place (that is, those who dwell in heaven).

7It was also allowed to make war on the saints and to gain victory over them.
It was given authority over every tribe, people, language, and nation. 8All who live on earth worshipped it, all whose names hadn't been written--from the time the earth was made--in the scroll of life of the Lamb who was slain. 9Whoever has ears must listen: 10If any are to be taken captive, then into captivity they will go. If any are to be killed by the sword, then by the sword they will be killed.
This calls for endurance and faithfulness on the part of the saints.

The beast from the land

11Then I saw another beast coming up from the earth. It had two horns like a lamb, but it was speaking like a dragon. 12It exercises all the authority of the first beast in its presence. It also makes the earth and those who live in it worship the first beast, whose fatal wound was healed. 13It does great signs so that it even makes fire come down from heaven to earth in the presence of the people. 14It deceives those who live on earth by the signs that it was allowed to do in the presence of the beast. It told those who live on earth to make an image for the beast who had been wounded by the sword and yet came to life again. 15It was allowed to give breath to the beast's image so that the beast's image would even speak and cause anyone who didn't worship the beast's image to be put to death.
16It forces everyone--the small and great, the rich and poor, the free and slaves-- to have a mark put on their right hand or on their forehead. 17It will not allow anyone to make a purchase or sell anything unless the person has the mark with the beast's name or the number of its name. 18This calls for wisdom. Let the one who understands calculate the beast's number, for it's a human being's number.
Its number is six hundred sixty-six.

The Lamb and the one hundred forty-four thousand Revelation 14 Then I looked, and there was the Lamb, standing on Mount Zion. With him were one hundred forty-four thousand who had his name and his Father's name written on their foreheads. 2I heard a sound from heaven that was like the sound of rushing water and loud thunder. The sound I heard was like that of harpists playing their harps. [3]They sing a new song in front of the throne, the four living creatures, and the elders. And no one could learn the song except the one hundred forty-four thousand who had been purchased from the earth. [4]They weren't defiled with women, for these people who follow the Lamb wherever he goes are virgins. They were purchased from among humankind as early produce for God and the Lamb. [5]No lie came from their mouths; they are blameless.

Messages of three angels

[6]Then I saw another angel flying high overhead with eternal good news to proclaim to those who live on earth, and to every nation, tribe, language, and people. [7]He said in a loud voice, "Fear God and give him glory, for the hour of his judgment has come. Worship the one who made heaven and earth, the sea and springs of water."

[9]Then another angel, a third one, followed them and said in a loud voice, "If any worship the beast and its image, and receive a mark on their foreheads or their hands,[10]they themselves will also drink the wine of God's passionate anger, poured full strength into the cup of his wrath. They will suffer the pain of fire and sulfur in the presence of the holy angels and the Lamb. [11]The smoke of their painful suffering goes up forever and always. There is no rest day or night for those who worship the beast and its image, and those who receive the mark of its name."

[13]And I heard a voice from heaven say, "Write this: Favored are the dead who die in the Lord from now on."

"Yes," says the Spirit, "so they can rest from their labors, because their deeds follow them."

Two harvests of the earth

14 Then I looked, and there was a white cloud. On the cloud was seated someone who looked like the Human One.[g] He had a gold crown on his head and a sharp sickle in his hand. 15 Another angel came out of the temple, calling in a loud voice to the one seated on the cloud: "Use your sickle to reap the harvest, for the time to harvest has come, and the harvest of the earth is ripe."16 So the one seated on the cloud swung his sickle over the earth, and the earth was harvested.

17 Then another angel came out of the temple in heaven, and he also had a sharp sickle. 18 Still another angel, who has power over fire, came out from the altar. He said in a loud voice to the one who had the sharp sickle, "Use your sharp sickle to cut the clusters in the vineyard of the earth, because its grapes are ripe."19 So the angel swung his sickle into the earth, and cut the vineyard of the earth, and he put what he reaped into the great winepress of God's passionate anger. 20 Then the winepress was trampled outside the city, and the blood came out of the winepress as high as the horses' bridles for almost two hundred miles.[h]

Song of Moses and the Lamb

Revelation 15 Then I saw another great and awe-inspiring sign in heaven. There were seven angels with seven plagues--and these are the last, for with them God's anger is brought to an end. 2 Then I saw what appeared to be a sea of glass mixed with fire. Those who gained victory over the beast, its image, and the number of its name were standing by the glass sea, holding harps from God. 3 They sing the song of Moses, God's servant, and the song of the Lamb, saying,

"Great and awe-inspiring are your works, Lord God Almighty.
Just and true are your ways,
  king of the nations.
4 Who won't fear you, Lord, and glorify your name?
  You alone are holy.
All nations will come and fall down in worship before you, for your acts of justice have been revealed."

Seven bowl plagues

5 After this I looked, and the temple in heaven--that is, the tent of witness-- was opened. 6 The seven angels, who have the seven plagues, came out of the temple. They were clothed in pure bright linen and had gold sashes around their waists. 7 Then one of the four living creatures gave the seven angels seven gold bowls full of the anger of the God who lives forever and always. 8 The temple was filled with smoke from God's glory and power, and no one could go into the temple until the seven plagues of the seven last angels were brought to an end.

Revelation 16 Then I heard a loud voice from the temple say to the seven angels, "Go and pour out the seven bowls of God's anger on the earth." 2 So the first angel poured his bowl on the earth, and a nasty and terrible sore appeared on the people who had the beast's mark and worshipped its image. 3 The second angel poured his bowl into the sea, and the sea turned into blood, like the blood of a corpse, and every living thing in the sea died. 4 The third angel poured his bowl into the rivers and springs of water, and they turned into blood. 5 Then I heard the angel of the waters say,

"You are just, holy one, who is and was,
because you have given these judgments.
6 They poured out the blood of saints and prophets, and you have given them blood to drink. They deserve it!" 7 And I heard the altar say,
"Yes, Lord God Almighty, your judgments are true and just."

8 The fourth angel poured his bowl on the sun, and it was allowed to burn people with fire. 9 The people were burned by intense heat, and they cursed the name of the God who had power over these plagues. But they didn't change their hearts and lives and give him glory. 10 The fifth angel poured his bowl over the beast's throne, and darkness covered its kingdom. People bit their tongues because of their pain, 11 and they cursed the God of heaven because of their pains and sores; but they didn't turn away from what they had done.

12 Then the sixth angel poured his bowl on the great river Euphrates. Its water was dried up so that the way was ready for the kings from the east. 13 Then I saw three unclean spirits, like frogs, come from the dragon's mouth, the beast's mouth, and the mouth of the false prophet. [14]These are demonic spirits that do signs. They go out to the kings of the whole world, to gather them for battle on the great day of God the Almighty. ([15]Look! I'm coming like a thief! Favored are those who stay awake and clothed so that they don't go around naked and exposed to shame.) [16]The spirits gathered them at the place that is called in Hebrew, Harmagedon.[i]

[17]Then the seventh angel poured his bowl into the air, and a loud voice came out from the temple, from the throne, saying, "It is done!"[18]There were lightning strikes, voices, and thunder, and a great earthquake occurred. The earthquake was greater than any that have occurred since there have been people on earth. [19]The great city split into three parts, and the cities of the nations fell. God remembered Babylon the great so that he gave her the wine cup of his furious anger. [20]Every island fled, and the mountains disappeared. [21]Huge hailstones weighing about one hundred pounds came down from heaven on the people. They cursed God for the plague of hail, because the plague was so terrible.

Babylon and the beast

Revelation 17 Then one of the seven angels who had the seven bowls spoke with me. "Come," he said, "I will show you the judgment upon the great prostitute, who is seated on deep waters. [2]The kings of the earth have committed sexual immorality with her, and those who live on earth have become drunk with the wine of her whoring."

[3]Then he brought me in a Spirit-inspired trance to a desert. There I saw a woman seated on a scarlet beast that was covered with blasphemous names. It had seven heads and ten horns. [4]The woman wore purple and scarlet clothing, and she glittered with gold and jewels and pearls. In her hand she held a gold cup full of the vile and impure things that came from her activity as a prostitute. [5]A name--a mystery--was written on her forehead: "Babylon the great, the mother of prostitutes and the vile things of the earth."[6]I saw that the woman was drunk on the blood of the saints and the blood of Jesus' witnesses. I was completely stunned when I saw her.

that you saw was and is not, and is about to come up out of the abyss and go to destruction. Those who live on earth, whose names haven't been written in the scroll of life from the time the earth was made, will be amazed when they see the beast, because it was and is not and will again be present. [9]This calls for an understanding mind. The seven heads are seven mountains on which the woman is seated. They are also seven kings. [10]Five kings have fallen, the one is, and the other hasn't yet come. When that king comes, he must remain for only a short time. [11]As for the beast that was and is not, it is itself an eighth king that belongs to the seven, and it is going to destruction. [12]The ten horns that you saw are ten kings, who haven't yet received royal power. But they will receive royal authority for an hour, along with the beast. [13]These kings will be of one mind, and they will give their power and authority to the beast. [14]They will make war on the Lamb, but the Lamb will emerge victorious, for he is Lord of lords and King of kings. Those with him are called, chosen, and faithful."

[15]Then he said to me, "The waters that you saw, where the prostitute is seated, are peoples, crowds, nations, and languages. [16]As for the ten horns that you saw, they and the beast will hate the prostitute. They will destroy her and strip her bare. They will devour her flesh and burn her with fire[17]because God moved them to carry out his purposes. That is why they will be of one mind and give their royal power to the beast, until God's words have been accomplished. [18]The woman whom you saw is the great city that rules over the kings of the earth."

Babylon's fall

Revelation 18 After this I saw another angel coming down from heaven. He had great authority, and the earth was filled with light because of his glory. [2]He called out with a loud voice, saying, "Fallen, fallen is Babylon the great! She has become a home for demons and a lair for every unclean spirit. She is a lair for every unclean bird, and a lair for every unclean and disgusting beast[3]because all the nations have fallen[j] due to the wine of her lustful passion. The kings of the earth committed sexual immorality with her, and the merchants of the earth became rich from the power of her loose and extravagant ways."

[4]Then I heard another voice from heaven say, "Come out of her, my people, so that you don't take part in her sins and don't receive any of her plagues. [5]Her sins have piled up as high as heaven, and God remembered her unjust acts. [6]Give her what she has given to others. Give her back twice as much for what she has done. In the cup that she has poured, pour her twice as much. [7]To the extent that she glorified herself and indulged her loose and extravagant ways, give her pain and grief. In her heart she says, 'I sit like a queen! I'm not a widow. I'll never see grief.' [8]This is why her plagues will come in a single day--deadly disease, grief, and hunger. She will be consumed by fire because the Lord God who judges her is powerful.

[11]"'The merchants of the earth will weep and mourn over her, for no one buys their cargoes anymore--[12]cargoes of gold, silver, jewels, and pearls; fine linen, purple, silk, and scarlet; all those things made of scented wood, ivory, fine wood, bronze, iron, and marble; [13]cinnamon, incense, fragrant ointment, and frankincense; wine, oil, fine flour, and wheat; cattle, sheep, horses, and carriages; and slaves, even human lives. [14]"'The fruit your whole being craved has gone from you. All your glitter and glamour are lost to you, never ever to be found again.'

[15]"'The merchants who sold these things, and got so rich by her, will stand a long way off because they fear the pain she suffers. They will weep and mourn, and say, [16]'Oh, the horror! The great city that wore fine linen, purple, and scarlet, who glittered with gold, jewels, and pearls--[17]in just one hour such great wealth was destroyed.'

"Every sea captain, every seafarer, sailors, and all who make their living on the sea stood a long way off. [18]They cried out as they saw the smoke from her burning and said, 'What city was ever like the great city?'[19]They threw dust on their heads, and they cried out, weeping and mourning. They said, 'Oh, the horror! The great city, where all who have ships at sea became so rich by her prosperity--in just one hour she was destroyed. [20]Rejoice over her, heaven--you saints, apostles, and prophets--because God has condemned her as she condemned you.'"

21 Then a powerful angel picked up a stone that was like a huge millstone and threw it into the sea, saying, "With such violent force the great city of Babylon will be thrown down, and it won't be found anymore. 22 The sound of harpists and musicians, of pipers and trumpeters, will never be heard among you again.
No craftsman of any kind will ever be found among you again. The sound of the hand mill will never be heard among you again. 23 The light of a lamp will never shine among you again. The sound of a bridegroom and bride will never be heard among you again because your merchants ran the world, because all the nations were deceived by the spell you cast, and because 24 the blood of prophets, of saints, and of all who have been slaughtered on the earth was found among you."[k]

Celebration in heaven

Revelation 19 After this I heard what sounded like a huge crowd in heaven. They said,

"Hallelujah! The salvation and glory and power of our God!
2 His judgments are true and just,
because he judged the great prostitute,
who ruined the earth by her whoring, and he exacted the penalty for the blood of his servants from her hand."

3 Then they said a second time,

"Hallelujah! Smoke goes up from her forever and always."

4 The twenty-four elders and the four living creatures fell down and worshipped God, who is seated on the throne, and they said, "Amen.
Hallelujah!"

5 Then a voice went out from the throne and said,

"Praise our God, all you his servants, and you who fear him, both small and great."

6 And I heard something that sounded like a huge crowd, like rushing water and powerful thunder. They said,

"Hallelujah! The Lord our God, the Almighty, exercised his royal power!
7Let us rejoice and celebrate, and give him the glory,
for the wedding day of the Lamb has come,
and his bride has made herself ready.
8She was given fine, pure white linen to wear,
for the fine linen is the saints' acts of justice."

9Then the angel said to me, "Write this: Favored are those who have been invited to the wedding banquet of the Lamb." He said to me, "These are the true words of God."10Then I fell at his feet to worship him. But he said, "Don't do that! I'm a servant just like you and your brothers and sisters who hold firmly to the witness of Jesus. Worship God! The witness of Jesus is the spirit of prophecy!"

Christ defeats the beast

11Then I saw heaven opened, and there was a white horse. Its rider was called Faithful and True, and he judges and makes war justly. 12His eyes were like a fiery flame, and on his head were many royal crowns. He has a name written on him that no one knows but he himself. 13He wore a robe dyed[l] with blood, and his name was called the Word of God. 14Heaven's armies, wearing fine linen that was white and pure, were following him on white horses. 15From his mouth comes a sharp sword that he will use to strike down the nations. He is the one who will rule them with an iron rod. And he is the one who will trample the winepress of the Almighty God's passionate anger. 16He has a name written on his robe and on his thigh: King of kings and Lord of lords.

17Then I saw an angel standing in the sun, and he called out with a loud voice and said to all the birds flying high overhead, "Come and gather for God's great supper. 18Come and eat the flesh of kings, the flesh of generals, the flesh of the powerful, and the flesh of horses and their riders. Come and eat the flesh of all, both free and slave, both small and great."19Then I saw that the beast and the kings of the earth and their armies had gathered to make war against the rider on the horse and his army. 20But the beast was seized, along with the false prophet who had done signs in the beast's presence. (He had used the signs to deceive people into receiving the beast's mark and into worshipping the beast's image.) The two of them were thrown alive into the fiery lake that burns with sulfur.

21The rest were killed by the sword that comes from the mouth of the rider on the horse, and all the birds ate their fill of their flesh.

Satan confined

Revelation 20 Then I saw an angel coming down from heaven, holding in his hand the key to the abyss and a huge chain. 2He seized the dragon, the old snake, who is the devil and Satan, and bound him for a thousand years. 3He threw him into the abyss, then locked and sealed it over him. This was to keep him from continuing to deceive the nations until the thousand years were over. After this he must be released for a little while.

The saints rule with Christ

4Then I saw thrones, and people took their seats on them, and judgment was given in their favor.[m] They were the ones who had been beheaded for their witness to Jesus and God's word, and those who hadn't worshipped the beast or its image, who hadn't received the mark on their forehead or hand. They came to life and ruled with Christ for one thousand years. 5The rest of the dead didn't come to life until the thousand years were over. This is the first resurrection.
6Favored and holy are those who have a share in the first resurrection. The second death has no power over them, but they will be priests of God and of Christ, and will rule with him for one thousand years.

Satan's defeat

7When the thousand years are over, Satan will be released from his prison.
8He will go out to deceive the nations that are at the four corners of the earth--Gog and Magog. He will gather them for battle. Their number is like the sand of the sea. 9They came up across the whole earth and surrounded the saints' camp, the city that God loves. But fire came down from heaven and consumed them.
10Then the devil, who had deceived them, was thrown into the lake of fire and sulfur, where the beast and the false prophet also were. There painful suffering will be inflicted upon them day and night, forever and always.

Final judgment

[11]Then I saw a great white throne and the one who is seated on it. Before his face both earth and heaven fled away, and no place was found for them. [12]I saw the dead, the great and the small, standing before the throne, and scrolls were opened. Another scroll was opened too; this is the scroll of life. And the dead were judged on the basis of what was written in the scrolls about what they had done. [13]The sea gave up the dead that were in it, and Death and the Grave gave up the dead that were in them, and people were judged by what they had done. [14]Then Death and the Grave were thrown into the fiery lake. This, the fiery lake, is the second death. [15]Then anyone whose name wasn't found written in the scroll of life was thrown into the fiery lake.

New heaven and new earth

Revelation 21 Then I saw a new heaven and a new earth, for the former heaven and the former earth had passed away, and the sea was no more. [2]I saw the holy city, New Jerusalem, coming down out of heaven from God, made ready as a bride beautifully dressed for her husband. [3]I heard a loud voice from the throne say, "Look! God's dwelling is here with humankind. He will dwell with them, and they will be his peoples. God himself will be with them as their God. [4]He will wipe away every tear from their eyes. Death will be no more. There will be no mourning, crying, or pain anymore, for the former things have passed away."[5]Then the one seated on the throne said, "Look! I'm making all things new." He also said, "Write this down, for these words are trustworthy and true."[6]Then he said to me, "All is done. I am the Alpha and the Omega, the beginning and the end. To the thirsty I will freely give water from the life-giving spring. [7]Those who emerge victorious will inherit these things. I will be their God, and they will be my sons and daughters. [8]But for the cowardly, the faithless, the vile, the murderers, those who commit sexual immorality, those who use drugs and cast spells, the idolaters and all liars--their share will be in the lake that burns with fire and sulfur. This is the second death."

New Jerusalem

[9]Then one of the seven angels who had the seven bowls full of the seven last plagues spoke with me. "Come," he said, "I will show you the bride, the Lamb's wife."[10]He took me in a Spirit-inspired trance to a great, high mountain, and he showed me the holy city, Jerusalem, coming down out of heaven from God. [11]The city had God's glory. Its brilliance was like a priceless jewel, like jasper that was as clear as crystal. [12]It had a great high wall with twelve gates. By the gates were twelve angels, and on the gates were written the names of the twelve tribes of Israel's sons. [13]There were three gates on the east, three gates on the north, three gates on the south, and three gates on the west. [14]The city wall had twelve foundations, and on them were the twelve names of the Lamb's twelve apostles.

[15]The angel who spoke to me had a gold measuring rod with which to measure the city, its gates, and its wall. [16]Now the city was laid out as a square. Its length was the same as its width. He measured the city with the rod, and it was fifteen hundred miles.[n] Its length and width and height were equal. [17]He also measured the thickness of its wall. It was two hundred sixteen feet[o] thick, as a person--or rather, an angel--measures things. [18]The wall was built of jasper, and the city was pure gold, like pure glass. [19]The city wall's foundations were decorated with every kind of jewel. The first foundation was jasper, the second was sapphire, the third was chalcedony, and the fourth was emerald. [20]The fifth was sardonyx, the sixth was carnelian, the seventh was chrysolite, and the eighth was beryl. The ninth was topaz, the tenth was chrysoprase, the eleventh was jacinth, and the twelfth was amethyst. [21]The twelve gates were twelve pearls; each one of the gates was made from a single pearl. And the city's main street was pure gold, as transparent as glass.

[22]I didn't see a temple in the city, because its temple is the Lord God Almighty and the Lamb. [23]The city doesn't need the sun or the moon to shine on it, because God's glory is its light, and its lamp is the Lamb. [24]The nations will walk by its light, and the kings of the earth will bring their glory into it. [25]Its gates will never be shut by day, and there will be no night there. [26]They will bring the glory and honor of the nations into it. [27]Nothing unclean will ever enter it, nor anyone who does what is vile and deceitful, but only those who are registered in the Lamb's scroll of life.

Revelation 22 Then the angel showed me the river of life-giving water,[p] shining like crystal, flowing from the throne of God and the Lamb [2]through the middle of the city's main street. On each side of the river is the tree of life, which produces twelve crops of fruit, bearing its fruit each month. The tree's leaves are for the healing of the nations. [3]There will no longer be any curse. The throne of God and the Lamb will be in it, and his servants will worship him. [4]They will see his face, and his name will be on their foreheads. [5]Night will be no more. They won't need the light of a lamp or the light of the sun, for the Lord God will shine on them, and they will rule forever and always.

Jesus is coming soon

[6]Then he said to me, "These words are trustworthy and true. The Lord, the God of the spirits of the prophets, sent his angel to show his servants what must soon take place.

[8]I, John, am the one who heard and saw these things. When I heard and saw them, I fell down to worship at the feet of the angel who had shown them to me. [9]But he said to me, "Don't do that! I'm a servant just like you and your brothers and sisters, the prophets, and those who keep the words of this scroll. Worship God!"[10]Then he said to me, "Don't seal up the words of the prophecy contained in this scroll, because the time is near. [11]Let those who do wrong keep doing what is wrong. Let the filthy still be filthy. Let those who are righteous keep doing what is right. Let those who are holy still be holy.

[12]"Look! I'm coming soon. My reward is with me, to repay all people as their actions deserve. [13]I am the alpha and the omega, the first and the last, the beginning and the end. [14]Favored are those who wash their robes so that they may have the right of access to the tree of life and may enter the city by the gates. [15]Outside are the dogs, the drug users and spell-casters, those who commit sexual immorality, the murderers, the idolaters, and all who love and practice deception.

[16]"I, Jesus, have sent my angel to bear witness to all of you about these things for the churches. I'm the root and descendant of David, the bright morning star. [17]The Spirit and the bride say, 'Come!' Let the one who hears say, 'Come!' And let the one who is thirsty come! Let the one who wishes receive life-giving water[q] as a gift."

18 Now I bear witness to everyone who hears the words of the prophecy contained in this scroll: If anyone adds to them, God will add to that person the plagues that are written in this scroll. 19 If anyone takes away from the words of this scroll of prophecy, God will take away that person's share in the tree of life and the holy city, which are described in this scroll.

20 The one who bears witness to these things says, "Yes, I'm coming soon."
Amen. Come, Lord Jesus!

21 The grace of the Lord Jesus be with all.

Tobit

1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14

Tobit and his background

Tobit 1 This scroll is a story told by Tobit. He was the son of Tobiel son of Hananiel son of Aduel son of Gabael son of Raphael son of Raguel, whose family came from Asiel, of the Naphtali tribe. 2 In the days of Shalmaneser king of the Assyrians, he was captured in Thisbe, south of Kedesh-naphtali in the upper hills of Galilee, northwest of Hazor and north of Peor.

Tobit's piety

3 I, Tobit, was trustworthy and behaved righteously during my entire life. I would help support my relatives and others of my country who were captured and taken with me to Nineveh in the country of the Assyrians.

4 While I was young and in my own country of Israel, the tribe of my ancestor Naphtali deserted the descendants of my ancestor David and stayed away from Jerusalem, the city chosen from among all the tribes of Israel for offering sacrifices on behalf of all the tribes of Israel. There God's own dwelling place, the temple, was built and dedicated for use by all future generations. 5 Instead, all my relatives and the whole tribe of my ancestor Naphtali would offer sacrifices on all the hills of Galilee to the image of a calf that Israel's King Jeroboam had set up in Dan.

6 I would often go by myself to Jerusalem on religious holidays, as the Law commanded for every Israelite for all time. I would hurry off to Jerusalem and take with me the early produce of my crops, a tenth of my flocks, and the first portion of the wool cut from my sheep. 7 I would present these things at the altar to the priests, the descendants of Aaron. I would give the first tenth of my grain, wine, olive oil, pomegranates, figs, and other fruit to the Levites who served in Jerusalem. For six out of seven years,[a] I also brought the cash equivalent of the second tenth of these crops to Jerusalem where I would spend it every year. 8 I gave this to orphans and widows, and to Gentiles who had joined Israel. In the third year, when I brought and gave it to them, we would eat together according to the instruction recorded in Moses' Law, as Deborah my grandmother[b] had taught me (for my father had died and left me an orphan).

9When I became an adult, I married a woman from our clan.[c] Together we had a son, whom I named Tobias.

Tobit rewarded for his piety

10After I was taken captive to Assyria and came to Nineveh,[d] all my relatives and fellow Jews there were eating Gentile food. 11I, however, avoided eating the Gentiles' food. 12Because I kept God in view with all my heart, 13the Most High gave me favor and good standing before Shalmaneser, and I would buy for him everything he needed. 14I used to go to Media on business for him until he died. While in the land of Media, I entrusted 570 pounds of silver to Gabael brother of Gabri.

15When Shalmaneser died, Sennacherib his son ruled in his place. The roads to Media became dangerous,[e] and I couldn't travel there any longer.

Tobit is harassed for his pious acts

16During the time of Shalmaneser, I gave away a lot of money to my relatives, my fellow Jews. 17I gave a portion of my food to the hungry and clothes to the naked. Whenever I saw that the corpse of anyone from my nation had been flung outside the wall of Nineveh, I buried it.

18I also buried anyone whom Sennacherib murdered after fleeing home from Judea, at the time when the king of heaven had punished him for all his insulting actions. In his rage Sennacherib killed many Israelites. However, I would take their bodies and bury them secretly. Sennacherib looked for them, but he didn't find them. 19A native Ninevite went to the king and told him that I was the one burying the bodies. So I went into hiding. When I found out[f] that I was being hunted down to be put to death, I fled from the city in fear. 20All my possessions were seized, and everything of mine became royal property except for my wife Anna and my son Tobias.

21Within forty days Sennacherib was killed by two of his sons, who escaped to the mountains of Ararat. His son Esarhaddon became king in his place. He hired Ahikar, my brother Hanael's son, to be in charge of all the financial accounts of his kingdom and all the king's treasury records.

22Ahikar petitioned the king on my behalf, and I returned to Nineveh. Ahikar had been the chief officer,[g] the keeper of the ring with the royal seal, the auditor of accounts, and the keeper of financial records under Assyria's King Sennacherib. And Esarhaddon promoted him to be second in charge after himself. Ahikar was my nephew and one of my family.

Tobit 2 When I returned to my house in the time of King Esarhaddon, my wife Anna and my son Tobias were restored to me.

Tobit is blinded

During our Festival of Pentecost, which is the holy Festival of Weeks, a splendid meal was cooked for me, and I lay down to eat. 2The table was set before me, and many fine foods were brought to me. Then I said to my son Tobias, "Go, my son, and find one of our poorer relatives captive here in Nineveh, someone who pays attention to God with all his heart. Bring him here to eat with me. I will wait here, son, until you return."

3Tobias left to find some poor person among our relatives. When he returned, he said, "Father?"

I answered, "I'm here, my son."

He exclaimed, "Father, one of our people has been murdered and tossed into the marketplace; his strangled body is just lying there."

4I got up and left the meal before tasting it. I removed the body from the street and placed it in one of the smaller houses until sunset when I would bury it. 5Then, when I returned, I washed myself and ate my food in sadness. 6I remembered the word that Amos the prophet pronounced against Bethel: Your festivals will be transformed into sadness and all your songs[h] into sorrowful wailing.[i] And I wept.

7After sunset I went out, dug a hole, and buried him. 8My neighbors made fun of me, saying, "Is he no longer afraid that he will be killed for doing this kind of thing? He ran away, but now look: he is burying the dead again!"

9That night I washed myself and went into my courtyard and fell asleep alongside the courtyard wall, with my face uncovered because of the heat. 10I didn't know that there were sparrows in the wall above me, and their warm droppings fell into my eyes, forming white spots. I went to doctors to be healed, but the more they applied their medicines on me, the worse the white spots became until I was completely blinded. I couldn't see with my eyes for four years. All my relatives felt sorry for me, and Ahikar took care of me for two years until he went to Elymais.

Tobit's plight worsens

11At that time my wife Anna made a living by weaving cloth out of wool.[j] 12She would send the cloth to the wool suppliers,[k] and they would pay her for it.
On the seventh day of Dystrus,[l] she finished a piece on the loom for her employers. They gave her the full wages, along with a young goat from their herd for her home. 13When it approached me, the kid began to bleat. So I called to Anna and said, "Where does this goat come from? It isn't stolen, is it? Return it to its owners, for we have no right to eat anything that is stolen!"

14But she said to me, "It was given to me as a bonus in addition to my pay." I didn't believe her and demanded that she return it to the owners. I grew red with anger at her. But she replied and said to me, "And what's become of your charitable donations? What's become of your righteous deeds? You have a reputation for that sort of thing, don't you?!"[m]

Tobit's prayer to die

Tobit 3 Deeply upset in my heart, I sighed and wept and began to pray with sighs:

2"You are just, Lord, and all your deeds are just; mercy and truth mark all your ways. You judge the world.

3"Now, Lord, remember me and look upon me. Don't punish me for my sins and the mistakes I made in ignorance, nor for those of my ancestors.
They sinned against you, 4and I disregarded your commandments. So you have handed us over to plunder, captivity, and death. We have become a parable and the object of chatter and scorn among all the nations to which you have scattered us. 5You are right in your many judgments, holding me responsible for my sins; for we didn't observe your commandments, and we haven't behaved faithfully toward you.

6"And now, deal with me as you wish. Command that my spirit be taken from me so that I might be set free from the earth[n] and become dust. It is better for me to die than to live, for I have heard false insults, and I'm full of grief. Lord, command that I might be set free from this distress. Set me free to go to the eternal place. Don't turn your face from me, Lord, for it is better for me to die than to experience this distress in my life and to endure insults."

Sarah's plight and her prayer to die

7On the same day in Ecbatana of Media, Sarah, Raguel's daughter, also heard insults from one of her father's female servants.

8Sarah had been given in marriage to seven husbands; and Asmodeus, an evil demon, killed them before they could lie with her as newlyweds do.[o] And so the female servant said to her, "You are the one who keeps killing your husbands! See, you have already been given to seven husbands, and you haven't carried the name of any of them. 9Are you beating us because they have all died? Go with them, and may we never see a son or daughter of yours!"

10On that day Sarah was deeply upset in her heart and wept. She went upstairs to a room in her father's house, and planned to hang herself. But she had second thoughts and said, "They will never insult my father by saying to him, 'You had but one dearly loved daughter, and she hanged herself because of her troubles.' If I did this, I would bring my old father down to the grave in sorrow. It is better for me not to hang myself, but to beg of the Lord to let me die so that I no longer hear insults during my lifetime."

11At that moment, she stretched her hands out toward the window and prayed:

"You are blessed, merciful God, and your name is blessed forever! May all your works forever praise you!12And now, Lord, I lift my face and my eyes toward you. [13]Speak the word, and set me free from the earth so that I don't have to hear insults anymore. [14]You know, Master, that I'm pure from any uncleanness from relations with a man. [15]You know that I haven't tarnished my name or my father's name in this country where we are captives. I'm my father's only child. He has no other child to be his heir, nor does he have a brother or near relative for whom I can keep myself as a wife. Seven have died on me already, so why should I go on living? And if you don't like the idea of killing me, take notice, at least, of how they insult me."

[16]At that very moment, the prayers of both Sarah and Tobit were heard in God's glorious presence. [17]Raphael was sent to heal the two of them: Tobit, by removing the white spots from his eyes to see God's light with his eyes again, and Sarah, Raguel's daughter, by giving her as a wife to Tobias, Tobit's son, and by ridding her of the evil demon. It was Tobias' right to inherit her before all the others who wished to take her. At that very moment Tobit returned from the courtyard back into his house, and Sarah, Raguel's daughter, also came down from the upstairs room.

Tobit tells Tobias about the money

Tobit 4 That day Tobit remembered the silver he had entrusted to Gabael in Rages of Media. [2]He said to himself, I have asked for death; I should call my son Tobias and tell him about the money before I die.

[3]So he called for his son Tobias, and Tobias came to him. Tobit said to him: "Give me a proper burial. Honor your mother and take care of her[p] as long as she lives. Do what pleases her and don't grieve her spirit in any matter. [4]Remember her, my son, because she went through many dangers while pregnant with you. And when she dies, bury her next to me in the same grave.

[5]"My child, pay attention to the Lord as long as you live, and don't make it your desire to sin or to disobey his commandments. Do what is just as long as you live, and don't follow the paths that lead to wickedness. [6]Those who live in line with the truth will prosper in everything they do.

you have, and don't let your eye begrudge what you've given. Don't turn your face away from any poor person, and God's face will never turn away from you. [8]Give aid, my child, according to what you have. If you have a lot, make a donation out of your riches. If you have only a little, don't be afraid to make a donation in proportion. [9]In this way, you will store up a valuable treasure for a time of need. [10]Giving assistance to the poor rescues a person from death and keeps a person from going down into darkness. [11]For everyone who does it, donating money to the needy is a good gift in the sight of the Most High.

[12]"Child, keep yourself away from all inappropriate sex. First, take a wife from the descendants of your ancestors, and don't take a foreign woman who isn't from your ancestral tribe, for we are children of the prophets. Noah was first a prophet, and then Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, our ancestors from earlier times. Remember, my child, that they all took wives from their relatives.[q] They were blessed through their children, and their descendants will inherit the land.

[13]"And now, my child, love your relatives and don't be too proud in your heart to take a daughter from the descendants of your people as your wife. In pride there is much ruin and instability, and laziness results in loss and great poverty, for laziness is the mother of hunger.

[14]"Pay the wages of any person who works with you that same day. Don't delay to pay a person's wages, and your own wages will certainly not be withheld if you truly serve God. Keep yourself under control, my child, in everything you do and be disciplined in every aspect of your behavior.

[16]"Give some of your food to the one who is hungry and some of your clothing to those who are naked. Give away all your surplus to the poor, and don't let your eye be resentful when you give your things away.

[17]"Place your bread and wine on the tombs of the righteous, but don't give anything to sinners.

[18]"Get advice from everyone who is wise, and don't despise what they say, since all advice is useful.

19"At every opportunity praise God and ask him to make all your ways straight and all your activities prosper. No nation has good counsel, but the Lord himself gives good counsel. The Lord will bring down whomever he wishes, even as far as hell below. For this reason, my son, remember these instructions, and don't let them be erased from your heart.

20"And now, my child, I want you to know that I have placed 570 pounds of silver in trust with Gabael the son of Gabrias in Rages of Media. 21So don't worry, my child, about the fact that we have been poor. You have many good things if you fear God, flee from every kind of sin, and do what the Lord your God thinks is right."

Azariah (Raphael) travels with Tobias to Media

Tobit 5 Then Tobias said to his father Tobit, "I will do everything you have commanded me, Father. 2But how am I going to get it from Gabael, since he doesn't know me and I don't know him? What proof can I give him so that he will recognize and trust me and give me the money? Moreover, I don't know the roads to take to get to Media."

3Then Tobit said to his son Tobias, "He gave me a signed receipt, and I gave him a handwritten document as well. I divided them in two, and we each took one part, and I deposited one with the money. And now it is twenty years since I deposited this money. So then go find a reliable man who will go with you, and we will pay him for his time until you return. Then you can retrieve this money from Gabael."

4Then Tobias went out to look for a man who knew the way to Media and would go with him. He went out and found the angel Raphael standing near him, but he didn't know that he was an angel from God. 5Tobias said to him, "Where are you from, young man?"

He said to Tobias, "I am one of the Israelites, your relatives. I have come here to find work."

Tobias said to him, "Do you know the way to Media?"

6He replied, "Yes, I have been there many times; I'm familiar with all the roads and know them well. Often I have gone to Media and have spent the night with Gabael, our relative, who lives in Ecbatana[s] of Media. It is a good two days' journey from Ecbatana to Rages,[t] because it is located in a mountainous area while Ecbatana lies in the midst of a plain."

7Tobias said to him, "Wait here for me, young man, until I go and report this to my father, because I need you to go with me, and I'll pay your wages."

8Raphael replied, "All right, I'll wait. But don't delay!"

9So Tobias went in and reported to his father Tobit, saying, "Wow, I've found a man from among our relatives the Israelites."

Tobit said to Tobias, "Call the man in to me, my son,[u] so that I learn who his family is, from which tribe he is, and whether he can be trusted to go with you."

10So Tobias went out, called Raphael, and said to him, "Young man, my father is calling for you." Raphael went in, and Tobit was the first to greet him.

Raphael[v] said, "May joy be yours!"

Tobit responded, "What joy can there still be for me? My eyes are useless, and I can't see the light of heaven. Instead, I lie in darkness just like the dead who no longer see the light. I live among the dead, hearing the sound of human beings without seeing them."

Raphael said to him, "Take heart! The time is near when God will heal you. Take heart!"

Then Tobit said to him, "My son Tobias wants to go to Media. Brother, can you accompany and guide him? I will pay your wages."

Raphael said to him, "I'm able to go with him, for I know all the roads and have often traveled to Media and have passed through all its plains. So I'm familiar with its mountains and all its roads."

11Tobit said to him, "Brother, which family and which tribe do you come from? Tell me, brother!"

12 The young man answered, "Why do you need to know about my tribe?"

Tobit replied, "I would like to know in all honesty, brother, who your father is and what your name is."

13 Then he answered, "I'm Azariah, the great Hananiah's son, one of your relatives."

14 Tobit said to him, "May you come in health and safety, brother! Don't be offended, brother, that I wanted to know the truth about your family. But you happen to be a relative, and you are from a good and honorable heritage. I knew Hananiah and Nathan, the two sons of the great Shemeliah. They used to go with me to Jerusalem. They used to worship with me there and weren't led astray. Your relatives are good men; you are of good stock, and may you feel welcome for coming here!"

15 Then he added,[w] "I will pay you a drachme a day as well as provide for your expenses just as for those of my son, 16 and I'll give you additional pay."

The young man replied, "I'll go with him. Don't be afraid; we'll depart safely and we'll return safely to you, because the road is secure."

17 Tobit answered, "Bless you, brother!"

Then Tobit called his son and said to him, "My child, prepare provisions for the trip and head off with your brother. May God who is in heaven protect you on your way and restore you safely to me. May his angel travel with you and protect you, my child."

He went to begin his journey, and he kissed his father and mother. Tobit said to him, "Travel safely!"

18 His mother began to weep and said to Tobit, "Why have you sent my child away? Isn't he the staff on which we lean[x] as he comes and goes in our presence? 19 Don't make money more important than it is;[y] instead, let it be ransom for our child's sake. 20 It's enough for us to live as the Lord has provided."

21 Tobit said to her, "Don't make such an issue of it! Our child will go safely and will come safely back to us. Your eyes will see him on the day he returns to you safe and sound. Don't overreact, and don't be afraid for them, my sister![22]A good angel will go with him, his journey will prosper, and he will return safely."

Tobit 6 Then she calmed down and stopped crying.

Tobias and Raphael at the Tigris River

[2]So their son departed, with the angel alongside him. Tobias' dog also went with him and accompanied them on the journey. They both journeyed until the first night fell upon them, and they set up camp along the Tigris River.

[3]Now the lad went down to the Tigris River to wash his feet. Suddenly,[z] a massive fish leaped up out of the water and tried to swallow the lad's foot, and he cried out. [4]The angel said to him, "Grab the fish and hang on to it." So Tobias hung on to the fish and brought it up onto the dry ground. [5]The angel said to him, "Cut open the fish and remove its gallbladder, heart, and liver and keep them with you, and throw away the guts. Its gallbladder, heart, and liver are useful medicines."

[6]So Tobias cut open the fish and gathered up the gallbladder, heart, and liver. He cooked the fish and ate it; and the remaining part of it, which he salted, he put aside. Then they both journeyed together until they approached Media. [7]Tobias asked the angel, "Brother Azariah, what medicine is there in the fish's heart, liver, and gallbladder?"

[8]Raphael replied, "If you burn the fish's heart and liver in the presence of a man or woman under attack by a demon or evil spirit, the spirit will flee and never bother that person again. [9]As for the gallbladder, if you smear the gall on a person's eyes in which white spots have appeared, and then blow on the white spots, the eyes will heal."

Raphael instructs Tobias

[10]When he arrived in Media and was already coming within reach of Ecbatana, [11]Raphael said to the lad, "Tobias my brother!"

He replied, "I'm here!"

Raphael said, "Tonight we must lodge with Raguel your relative. He has a daughter named Sarah. 12Except for her, he has no other son or daughter. Of all men you are her closest relative. The right to inherit her and her father's estate is yours. The girl is sensible, courageous, and very beautiful; moreover, her father loves her and[a] is a good man."

13He continued, "It's right for you to marry her. So listen to me, brother: I'll speak to her father about the girl tonight so that we can take her as a bride for you. And when we return from Rages,[b] we will celebrate her wedding. I know that Raguel can't keep her from you, nor can he promise her to someone else without incurring the death penalty according to the ruling of the scroll from Moses. He knows that the regulation for inheritance makes it fitting that you, rather than any other man, should marry his daughter. So now listen to me, brother: We will speak about the girl tonight and arrange for her engagement to you. When we return from Rages, we will take her and bring her back with us to your home."

14Tobias said to Raphael, "Brother Azariah, I've heard that she has already been given to seven men and that they died in the bridal chamber. They dropped dead the very night they tried to have sex with her. I've heard people saying that a demon kills them. 15Now I'm also afraid, because the demon loves her and[c] doesn't harm her but kills anyone who desires to approach her. I'm my father's only child, and I'm afraid[d] that I will die and bring my father and mother down to their graves with grief over me. Moreover, they don't have another son to bury them."

16Raphael said to him, "Don't you remember your father's instructions, that you should take a wife from among your father's relatives? Now listen to me, my brother: Don't worry about this demon. Take her, for I know that tonight she will be given to you as your wife. 17When you enter into the bridal chamber, take some of the fish's liver and heart and lay them over the warm incense coals. This will let off an odor,18and the demon will smell it, flee, and never stalk her[e] again. And before you have sex with her, the two of you must rise and pray and plead with the Lord of heaven for mercy and deliverance. So don't be afraid; she has been assigned to you before the world came into being. You will save her, and she will go with you. I'm convinced that you will also have children by her, and they will be like brothers and sisters to you. So stop worrying."

When Tobias heard Raphael's words, and learned that she was his relative and descendant from his father's house, he fell deeply in love with her and his heart was united with her.

Tobias and Raphael arrive at Raguel's house

Tobit 7 When they[f] entered Ecbatana, Tobias said to him, "Brother Azariah, bring me at once to Raguel our relative." So Azariah took him to Raguel's house. They found him sitting at the gate of the courtyard and greeted him first.

Raguel said to them, "Many greetings, brothers. You have come generously and in health!" Raguel brought them into his house [2] and said to his wife Edna, "This young man looks so much like my relative Tobit!"

[3] Then Edna asked them, "Where are you from, brothers?"

They answered her, "We are from the Naphtalites, who are captives in Nineveh."

[4] She asked them, "Do you know our relative Tobit?"

They replied, "We do indeed know him."

Then she asked them, "Is he well?"

[5] They answered, "He is alive and well." Tobias said, "He is my father."

[6] Raguel jumped up and kissed him. He began to cry [7] and say, "Bless you, young man, son of a good and generous father! What a terrible tragedy that such a righteous and charitable man has been made blind!" He embraced his relative Tobias and wept.

[8] Raguel's wife Edna also wept for Tobit, as did Sarah their daughter.

Tobias marries Sarah

[9] Raguel slaughtered a ram from his flock and eagerly entertained his guests. When they had bathed and washed, they reclined to eat dinner. Tobias said to

Raphael, "Brother Azariah, tell Raguel that he should give me my relative Sarah as a wife."

10 Raguel overheard Tobias' comment and said to the young man, "Eat, drink, and be happy tonight! There is no other man except you, my brother, for whom it is proper to marry my daughter Sarah. What's more, I have no right to give her to any man except for you since you are my nearest relative.

"But, my lad, I must tell you the truth. 11 I have given her to seven men among our relatives, and they all died the night they tried to have sex with her. Now, however, eat and drink, my son, and may the Lord act on behalf of you both."

Tobias replied, "I won't eat or drink here until you resolve the matters that have to do with me."

Raguel said to him, "I will do it. She is given to you according to the ruling of the scroll from Moses, and it has been decided in heaven that she be given to you. Receive your sister! From now on you are her brother and she is your sister. She is given to you from today until eternity. And tonight may the Lord of heaven grant success to both of you, my son, and may he shower you both with mercy and peace."

12 Raguel sent for his daughter Sarah, and she came to him. He took hold of her hand, delivered her to Tobias, and said, "Take her to be your wife according to the Law and according to the ruling written in the scroll from Moses. Take her and lead her to your father safely. And may the God of heaven grant both of you success with peace."

13 Then Raguel called for her mother and told her to bring a scroll. He wrote a marriage contract, stating how he was giving her to him as a wife according to the ruling of the scroll from Moses. Then he sealed it.[g] 14 From that point on, they began to eat and drink.

15 Raguel called his wife Edna and said to her, "My sister, prepare the other bedroom and take Sarah there."

16 She went and got things ready in the bedroom, just as Raguel had told her. She brought Sarah there and cried for her. Then Edna dried her tears and said to her, "Take courage, my daughter! May the Lord of heaven give you joy in place of your pain. Take courage, my daughter!" Then she left.

Deliverance from the demon

Tobit 8 When they had all finished eating and drinking, they wanted to go to bed. So the bride's parents led the young man away and brought him into the bride's bedroom. 2 Tobias remembered Raphael's words. He took the fish's liver and heart out of his bag and laid them upon the warm incense coals. 3 The odor from the fish drove off the demon, and he sped off to the region of Egypt.
Raphael went after the demon, bound him there hand and foot, and immediately put him in chains.

4 Then the parents left and shut the door of the bedroom. Tobias got up from the bed and said to Sarah, "Get up, my sister! Let's pray and beg our Lord to show us mercy and give us deliverance."

5 She got up, and they began to pray and to ask that they might be delivered.
Tobias then began to speak:

> "Blessed are you, God of our ancestors, and blessed is your name for all > generations. May the heavens and all your creation bless you forever! 6 You > created Adam and you created Eve his wife to help and support him, and > from the two of them has come the human race. You said, 'It isn't good for > the man to be alone; let's make for him a helper like himself.' 7 I'm not > taking this sister of mine now out of lust but with honest integrity.[h] Grant > that she and I will be shown mercy and grow old together."

8 Together they said, "Amen, amen." 9 Then they fell asleep for the night.

Upon getting up during the night,[i] Raguel summoned his servants, and they went with him and dug a grave. 10 He said, "Tobias might die as well, and people will laugh and jeer at us."

11 When they had finished digging the grave, Raguel returned to his house, called his wife, 12 and said, "Send one of the female servants in to see if he's alive. If he's dead, let's bury him so that no one knows what has happened."

13 So they sent for the female servant, lit a lamp, and opened the door. The

[15]They praised the God of heaven, saying, "Blessed are you, God, with every pure blessing; may people bless you forever![16]Blessed are you, because you have brought me joy. It didn't happen as I had expected. Instead, you have dealt with us according to your great mercy. [17]Blessed are you, because you have shown mercy to our only two children. Master, provide them with mercy and well-being,[j] and bring both their lives to fulfillment with joy and mercy."

[20]Raguel then called Tobias and said, "You will certainly not leave here for the next fourteen days. Instead, you will remain here to eat and drink with me, and you will bring joy to my daughter's troubled soul. [21]Take now half of whatever I own and go in health to your father. When my wife and I die, the other half will be yours. Take courage, my son! I'm your father and Edna is your mother. From now on and forever we will stand beside both you and your sister. Take courage, my son!"

Tobias sends Raphael to collect Tobit's money

Tobit 9 Then Tobias called Raphael and said to him, [2]"Brother Azariah, take along four servants and two camels. Travel to Rages and go to Gabael's place. Give him the signed contract, get the money, and bring it with you back to the wedding feast. [3]You know that my father will be counting the days, and if I delay just one day, I will cause him a lot of grief. [4]You see what Raguel swore, and that I'm not in a position to go against his solemn pledge."

[5]So Raphael went with four servants and two camels to Rages of Media, and they spent the night at Gabael's place. Raphael gave him the receipt and told him that Tobias, Tobit's son, had taken a wife and was inviting Gabael to the wedding feast. Gabael got up and checked the sacks, which were still sealed, and they packed them up.

[6]They got up early in the morning together and went to the wedding feast. They came to Raguel's place and found Tobias reclining at a table. Tobias jumped up and greeted him, and Gabael wept and blessed him, saying, "Good and generous man, son of a good and generous man who is just and charitable! May the Lord grant a heavenly blessing to you and your wife, and to your wife's father and mother. May God be praised, for I have now seen in Tobias the image of Tobit my cousin!"

Tobias and Sarah leave Media for Nineveh

Tobit 10 Meanwhile, each and every day Tobit would keep count of how many days Tobias would need in order to travel and return. And when that number of days was past and his son hadn't arrived, [2]he said, "Perhaps he was kept there, or perhaps Gabael died, and no one gave him the money."[3]So he began to worry.

[4]Moreover, his wife Anna was saying, "My child has perished and no longer remains among the living." She began to cry and mourn for her son, saying, [5]"What misery is mine, my child, light of my eyes, because I let you go away!"

[6]Tobit would reply, "Be quiet! Don't get so upset, my sister! He's fine! Surely something has distracted them there. Moreover, the man traveling with him is trustworthy and one of our relatives. Don't grieve about him, my sister. He'll get here soon."

[7]"You be quiet!" she would say. "Don't lie to me! My son has perished."

Daily she hurried out to scan the road on which her son had gone and she wouldn't be persuaded by anyone. When the sun set, she would come inside, mourning and weeping the whole night without sleeping.

When the fourteen days of the wedding feast were finished, which Raguel had sworn to celebrate for his daughter, Tobias came to him and said, "Send me off, for I know that my father and my mother don't believe they will ever see me again. So now, father, I ask you to send me off to go to my father. I have already let you know how I left him."

[8]Raguel said to Tobias, "Stay, my child. Stay with me. I'll send messengers to Tobit your father, and they will report to him about you."

9Tobias replied, "Absolutely not! I ask that you allow me to return to my father."

10So Raguel arose and gave to Tobias his wife Sarah and half of all his possessions, including servants and female servants, oxen and sheep, donkeys and camels, clothes, money, and furnishings. 11He sent them away safely and said farewell to Tobias. "Good-bye, my son. Have a safe trip! May the Lord of heaven cause you and your wife Sarah to prosper! May I see your children before I die!"

12Raguel said to his daughter Sarah, "Go to your father-in-law, since from now on they are your parents, just as if they had conceived you. Go in peace, my daughter! May I hear a good report about you as long as I'm alive!" Having said good-bye, he allowed them to go.

Then Edna said to Tobias, "My child and dearly loved brother, may the Lord bring you back, and may I see your children while I'm still alive and those of my daughter before I die! In the Lord's presence I entrust my daughter into your care. Don't ever be a cause of grief to her, not as long as you live. Go in peace, my child! From now on I'm your mother, and Sarah is your sister. May all our ways prosper together all the days of our lives!" Then she kissed them both and sent them safely[k] on their way.

13So Tobias parted from Raguel in good health, rejoicing and praising the Lord of heaven and earth, the king of all, for making his journey so successful. Raphael said to Tobias, "You enjoyed this success that you might honor them all the days of their lives."[l]

Tobias returns to Nineveh

Tobit 11 When they approached Kaserin, which is across from Nineveh, 2Raphael said, "You know how we left your father. 3Let's run ahead of your wife and get the house ready while the rest are coming."

4So they both went on together, and Raphael said, "Get the gallbladder ready." The dog came with them, still following behind.

5 Now Anna was sitting down and watching the road that her son had taken.
6 When she saw him coming, she said to her husband,[m] "Look! Your son is coming, along with the man who went with him!"

7 Before Tobias reached his father, Raphael said to him, "I know that his eyes will be opened. 8 Smear the fish's gall on his eyes. The medicine will make the white spots shrink and peel away from his eyes. Then your father will regain his sight and see the light."

9 Anna jumped up and embraced her son, saying, "I see you, my child! Now I'm ready to die." She began to cry.

Tobit's blindness is healed

10 Then Tobit rose and stumbled through the courtyard door. Tobias went to him 11 with the fish's gallbladder in his hand. Tobias sprinkled[n] some of the gall into his father's eyes, saying, "Don't be afraid, Father!"[o] He poured out the medicine on him and applied it. 12- 13 Then with both his hands, he peeled off the white spots from the corners of Tobit's eyes.

Tobit embraced him and began to cry, saying, "I see you, my child and light of my eyes! 14 May God be praised, and may his great name be praised, and may all his holy angels be praised forever! May his great name be upon us, and may all the angels be praised for all eternity! 15 Though he has disciplined me, look now! I see my son Tobias!"

Then Tobit came in rejoicing and praising God at the top of his lungs.[p] Tobias told his father that his trip had been successful: that he had brought the money; that he had taken Sarah, Raguel's daughter, as his wife; and that, indeed, she was arriving and was near the gate of Nineveh.

16 Then Tobit went out to meet Tobias' bride at the gate of Nineveh, rejoicing and praising God. The people of Nineveh were amazed when they saw him walking and moving along with all his strength without anyone leading him by the hand. 17 Tobit declared to them that God had shown mercy on him and opened his eyes. Then Tobit approached Sarah, his son Tobias' wife, and he blessed her, saying, "May you come in good health, my daughter; may your God who has brought you to us be praised. May your father be blessed, may my son Tobias be blessed, and may you be blessed, my daughter. Come into your house in good health, in blessing and joy. Come in, my daughter!"

On this day joy came to all the Jews who were in Nineveh. 18Ahikar and Nadab, Tobit's nephews, were also there, rejoicing with Tobit. And Tobias' wedding feast was celebrated joyfully for seven days.[q]

The angel reveals his identity

Tobit 12 When the wedding feast was over, Tobit called his son Tobias to him and said, "My child, make sure to give the man who went with you his wages, and give him a bonus as well."

2Tobias asked him, "Father, how much in wages should I give him? I wouldn't lose anything if I give him half my possessions, which he brought back with me. 3After all, he has guided me safely, healed my wife, brought the money with me, and healed you. How much of a bonus should I give him?"

4Tobit answered, "It is right, my son, for him to receive half of everything that he had when he came back."

5So Tobit called Raphael in and said, "Take as your wages half of everything you had when you came, and go in good health."

6Then Raphael spoke to them privately, saying, "Praise God and tell all living beings about the good things he has done for you, praising and singing to his name. Make God's words known in an honorable way to everyone, and don't fail to acknowledge him. 7It's good to hide a king's secret from view, and good to reveal God's works and bear witness to them with due respect.

"Do what's good, and evil won't overtake you. 8Prayer with fasting[r] is good, and so is giving to the poor with righteousness. The possession of a little with righteousness is better than much with injustice.[s] Giving to the poor is better than storing up gold. 9Giving to the poor saves from death, and it washes away every sin. Those who give to the poor will feel satisfied with life, 10but those who commit sin and injustice are their own worst enemies.

11"I will tell you the whole truth, and I will keep nothing secret from you. I have already said to you, 'It's good to hide a king's secret from view, and good to reveal God's works in an honorable way.'[12]So when you and Sarah prayed, it was I who brought the record of your prayer into God's glorious presence, and likewise when you used to bury the dead,[13]and when you didn't hesitate to get up and leave your dinner to go and bury the corpse. [14]I was sent to test you then, and at the same time God sent me to heal you and Sarah, your son's bride.[t] [15]I am Raphael, one of the seven angels who stand ready and who enter the Lord's glorious presence."

[16]The two were shocked. They fell on their faces in fear. [17]But Raphael said to them, "Don't be afraid; be at peace! Praise God for all time![18]While I was with you, it wasn't because I was showing you any favor but because of God's will. Praise him all your days and sing to him![19]You were observing me, but[u] I wasn't eating or drinking[v] anything. Instead, you were seeing a vision. [20]Now praise the Lord here on earth and acknowledge God. Notice that I'm ascending to the one who sent me. So record everything that has happened to you." Then Raphael ascended.

[21]Tobit and Tobias got up and were no longer able to see him. [22]They continued to praise and sing to God, and acknowledged him for these great works of his. They marveled at[w] how one of God's angels had appeared to them.

Tobit's thanksgiving song

Tobit 13 Then Tobit spoke and wrote down a psalm in praise, saying,[x]

Bless the God who lives forever, and bless his kingdom,
[2]because he punishes and shows mercy.
He brings people[y] down to the underworld below the earth, and he himself raises people up from great destruction.
What is there that escapes from his hand?[z]
[3]Bear witness to him, Israelites, in the presence of the nations, because he has scattered you among them, 4and he has shown you

his greatness there.
Bring him honor in the presence of everything that lives, because he is our Lord:
he himself is our God;
he himself is our father,
and he is God forever and always.
5He will punish you for your unjust acts, but he will also show all of you mercy and gather you together[a] out of all the nations among which you have been scattered.
6When you turn to him with all your heart and your all being to act sincerely before him, then he will turn to you and never hide his face from you again.
And now, look at what he has done for you,
and acknowledge him
in everything you say.[b] Praise the Lord of righteousness, and exalt the king of the ages!
I will acknowledge him in the land where I am a captive and make known his power and greatness to a sinful nation.[c] So turn around, you sinners, and act justly before him.
Who knows?
Perhaps he will want you back and show you mercy.
7My soul exalts my God,
the king of heaven,
and my soul will rejoice
all the days of my life.
8Praise the Lord, all you chosen ones, and let everyone
praise his greatness.

Let them speak through psalms,[d] use your days for rejoicing,
and acknowledge him.
9He has punished you, Jerusalem, holy city, because of the deeds of your hands.[e] 10Acknowledge the Lord in goodness, and praise the Lord of ages!
Then[f] your dwelling will be rebuilt for you with joy.
He will bring joy to all the captives among you,
and he will love for all eternity
all those who have been subjugated.
11A bright light will shine forth into the farthest corners of the earth.
Many nations will come to you from afar,
and inhabitants from all the ends of the earth will come to your holy name.
They will bear gifts in their hands
for the king of heaven.
Generation after generation will give joyful worship to you and honor your name forever and always.
12May all who have despised you and slandered you be cursed!
Cursed are all who hate you and all who speak a harsh word against you.[g]
But all who revere you will be blessed for eternity.
13Rejoice then and be glad[h]
for the children of the righteous, for all will be gathered together and praise the eternal Lord.
14Favored by God are those who love you, favored are those who rejoice
when you are at peace,

and favored are all the people who grieve when you are afflicted, for they will rejoice over you and will see all your joy forever.
15 I praise the Lord, the great king!
16 Jerusalem will be built as a city,
God's house for all ages to come.
I will be greatly favored when the few remaining from my offspring see your glory and acknowledge the king of heaven!
The gates of Jerusalem will be built with sapphire and emerald, and all your walls
will be made of precious stone.
The towers of Jerusalem will be built with gold,
and their fortifications will be made of pure gold.
17 The streets of Jerusalem will be paved with garnet and stone from Ophir.
18 And the gates of Jerusalem will burst into song with joyful hymns, and all her houses will shout out,
"Hallelujah!
May the God of Israel be praised, and may those who bless the holy name be blessed forever and always!"

Tobit's final instructions and death

Tobit 14 Thus the words of Tobit's thanks came to an end. He died in peace at the age of 112 and was given an honorable burial in Nineveh. 2 He was 62 years old when he went blind, and after regaining his sight, he lived in wealth and gave to the poor. He continued to praise God and tell about God's greatness.

3 Now when Tobit was dying, he summoned Tobias his son and seven grandsons[i] and gave him instructions, saying, "My child, take your children 4 and hurry away to Media. I trust God's word that Nahum[j] spoke about Nineveh; everything will come true and happen to Assyria and Nineveh. Indeed, everything that the prophets of Israel sent by God have said will actually occur. None of their words will fail, and everything will happen in its own time. Thus it will be safer in Media than in Assyria and Babylon. I know then and believe that everything that God has said will be accomplished and come true. Not a single detail of what they have spoken will fail to happen. All our relatives who dwell in the land of Israel will be scattered, and they will be taken away from that good land into captivity. The entire land of Israel will be deserted. Samaria and Jerusalem will be deserted, and after a while even God's house, still in mourning, will be destroyed by fire.

5"But God will have mercy on them again. God will bring them back to the land of Israel, and they will rebuild the house, though not like the first one, until the appointed time has been fulfilled.

Afterward, they will all return from the places where they are captives and build Jerusalem in grandeur. God's house will be built in it, just as Israel's prophets have predicted about it. 6Then all the nations of the whole earth will turn and genuinely revere God. They will all leave behind their idols that have deceived them and led them into error. 7They will praise the eternal God in righteousness. All the Israelites who are delivered in those days, who are genuinely mindful of God, will be gathered together. They will come to Jerusalem and will live forever in the land of Abraham in security, and it will be given to them. Those who genuinely love God will rejoice, while those who commit sin and injustice will be wiped out entirely from the land.

8- 9"So now, my children, I'm giving you this instruction: Serve God with sincerity, and do what pleases him. Teach your children to do what is just and to give to the poor so that they will keep God ever in mind and praise his name at all times in sincerity and with all their strength.

Now, my child, get out of Nineveh and don't stay here. 10On the very day when you bury your mother beside me, don't stay within its borders another night. I see that a lot of iniquity and deception are practiced here, and its people have no sense of shame. My child, take note of what Nadab did to Ahikar, who brought him up. Was he not, even while alive, brought down into the earth? God paid back the dishonorable thing that he did in his presence: Ahikar came back into the light, while Nadab entered into eternal darkness, because he sought to kill Ahikar. By giving to the poor, he escaped the death trap that Nadab laid down for him. Nadab fell into that death trap instead, and it destroyed him.

11"Now then, my children, see what giving to the poor does and what injustice does. It kills! Now--my life is departing." And they laid him down on the bed. He died and was buried honorably.

Anna's and Tobias' deaths

12When his mother died, Tobias buried her next to his father. Then he and his wife headed off to Media and lived in Ecbatana with Raguel his father-in-law. 13Tobias took care of them honorably and buried them in Ecbatana of Media. He inherited Raguel's house as well as his father Tobit's house. 14Tobias died honorably at the age of 117 years. 15Before his death, he saw and heard about the destruction of Nineveh. He saw the Ninevite captives, who had been taken prisoner by King Cyaxares of Media being led away to Media. So he praised God for everything that God had done to the Ninevites and Assyrians. Before dying, he rejoiced over Nineveh and praised the Lord God forever and always.

Judith

1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16

Nebuchadnezzar goes to war against Arphaxad

Judith 1 It was the twelfth year of the rule of Nebuchadnezzar, who ruled the Assyrians in the great city of Nineveh. In those days, Arphaxad ruled the Medes in Ecbatana. 2 Arphaxad built walls around Ecbatana from cut stones that measured four and a half feet wide and nine feet long. The walls he built were one hundred five feet high and seventy-five feet wide. 3 He built towers at the gates one hundred fifty feet high, with foundations that were ninety feet wide.
4 He made its gates one hundred five feet high and sixty feet wide so that his mighty armies could march out in formation. 5 In those days King Nebuchadnezzar fought against King Arphaxad in the great plain that is on the border with Ragau. 6 And many people joined him--everyone who lived in the highlands, everyone who lived along the Euphrates, the Tigris, the Hydaspes, and on the plain of Arioch, king of the Elymeans. Many nations joined forces with the Assyrians.[a]

Nebuchadnezzar's ultimatum

7 King Nebuchadnezzar of the Assyrians sent a message to everyone who lived in Persia, to everyone who lived in the west--those who lived in Cilicia, Damascus, Lebanon, and Anti-Lebanon, and everyone who lived along the seashore, 8 and those among the nations of Carmel and Gilead, and upper Galilee and the great plain of Esdraelon, 9 and everyone in Samaria and its cities, and beyond the Jordan as far as Jerusalem and Bethany and Chelous and Kadesh, and the river of Egypt, and Tahpanhes and Raamses, and all the land of Goshen, 10 even beyond Tanis and Memphis, and everyone who lived in Egypt as far away as the border of Ethiopia. 11 But the people who lived in all those lands ignored the orders of King Nebuchadnezzar of the Assyrians. They didn't join him in the war because they weren't afraid of him and considered him to be nothing more than one man. So they sent away his messengers empty-handed and in disgrace.

Arphaxad defeated

12 Nebuchadnezzar was very angry with the whole region. He swore by his throne and his kingdom that he would get revenge upon the entire region of Cilicia, Damascus, and Syria. He would kill them with his sword, as well as everyone living in Moab, including the children of Ammon, all of Judea, and everyone in Egypt, as far as the shores of the two seas. 13 In the seventeenth year of his rule he marched his armies against King Arphaxad and defeated him in battle. He overpowered all of Arphaxad's armies, all of his cavalry, and all of his chariots. 14 He gained control of Arphaxad's cities, marched as far as Ecbatana, captured its towers, looted the marketplace, and turned its glory into disgrace.
15 He captured Arphaxad in the mountains of Ragau and stabbed him with spears, putting an end to him forever. 16 Then he returned to Nineveh with all of his combined forces, a very large group of fighting men, where he and his army rested and feasted for one hundred twenty days.

Nebuchadnezzar plans his revenge

Judith 2 In the eighteenth year of his rule, on the twenty-second day of the first month, a discussion took place in the palace of King Nebuchadnezzar of the Assyrians, about how to take revenge upon the whole region as he had promised.
2 After calling together all his attendants and all his officials, he laid out before them his secret plan and established, with his own mouth, all the wickedness of the region. 3 They determined to destroy everyone who hadn't obeyed his command.[b]

4 When he finished laying out his plan, King Nebuchadnezzar of the Assyrians called for Holofernes, the general of his army and next in charge after the king himself. The king said to him, 5 "The great king, the master of all the earth, says that you will leave my presence and take with you men who are sure of their own strength, one hundred twenty thousand infantry and twelve thousand cavalry. 6 You will lead them out against all the lands in the west because they disobeyed my command.

7 "You will tell the people to prepare earth and water, for I'm coming out against them in my rage, and I will cover the entire earth with the feet of my army. I will hand them over as spoil. 8 Their wounded will fill up their valleys and every brook and river will be filled, overflowing with their dead. 9 Then I will lead them as prisoners to the ends of the earth. 10 You will go ahead of me to seize all of their territory. If they surrender to you, keep them for me until the day of their punishment. [11]But show no mercy to any who continue to resist. Hand them over to be killed and plundered. Do this wherever you go. [12]As I live, and by the power of my kingdom, I have spoken, and I will do this with my own hand. [13]Now don't neglect even one of your master's commands, but carry them out exactly as I have ordered you and without delay."

[14]Holofernes left the presence of his master and called together all the leaders, captains, and commanders of the Assyrian army. [15]He assembled the chosen men in divisions as his master commanded him, one hundred twenty thousand infantry and twelve thousand cavalry armed with bows. [16]He arranged them as a great army prepared for war. [17]He also took a great many camels, donkeys, and mules to carry their baggage, and countless sheep, oxen, and goats as provisions. [18]He took enough food for everyone, as well as a large quantity of gold and silver from the king's palace.

[19]Then he and his whole army set out ahead of King Nebuchadnezzar to cover the whole face of the earth to the west with their chariots, cavalry, and chosen infantry. [20]Joining them was an assorted group of people, so many that they couldn't be numbered. They were like swarms of locusts, like the dust of the earth.

[21]After marching for three days from Nineveh to the plain of Bectileth, they camped across from Bectileth near the mountain to the north of Upper Cilicia. [22]From there Holofernes took his whole army--the infantry, the cavalry, and his chariots--and he went up into the highlands. [23]He cut through Put and Lud, and looted all the people of Rassis and the Ishmaelites along the edge of the desert to the south of the Chelleans. [24]He traveled along the Euphrates, passing through Mesopotamia, and destroyed every strategic city along the brook of Abron until he reached the sea. [25]He seized the territory of Cilicia, killing everyone who resisted him. Then he went to the region of Japheth, to the south along the edge of Arabia. [26]He surrounded all of the Midianites, burned their tents, and plundered their sheep pens. [27]Then he went down onto the plain of Damascus during the wheat harvest and burned all their fields, destroyed their flocks and herds, and sacked their cities. He emptied their fields and killed all their young men with the sword.

People on the seacoast surrender

28 Fear and dread of Holofernes fell upon the people living along the seacoast, in Sidon and Tyre, those living in Sur and Ocina, and those living in Jamnia. The people who lived in Azotus and Ascalon were especially afraid of him.

Judith 3 So they sent messengers to Holofernes, requesting peace: 2 "Look, we are the servants of the Great King Nebuchadnezzar, and we present ourselves to you. Do with us whatever you think is best. 3 Look, here are our homes and all of our property, all the wheat fields and flocks and herds. All of our tents[c] lie before you. Do with them as you think is best. 4 Our cities and the people who live there are your slaves. Come down and deal with them as you see fit."

5 The men brought this message to Holofernes. 6 Then he and his army went down to the seacoast and placed guards in strategic cities and chose men from among them to form a reserve army. 7 Everyone in the surrounding countryside welcomed him with wreaths, dancing, and drums. 8 Yet he still demolished all their shrines[d] and cut down their sacred groves. He had been commanded to destroy all the gods of the land so that all the nations would worship only Nebuchadnezzar, and so that those of every language and tribe would call upon him as their god.

9 Then Holofernes approached Esdraelon near Dothan, which is opposite the great ridge of Judea, 10 and set up camp between Geba and Scythopolis. He stayed there one whole month, waiting for all of his army's baggage to arrive.

The Israelites prepare for war

Judith 4 The Israelites living in Judea heard about everything that Holofernes the general of King Nebuchadnezzar, of the Assyrians, had done to all the other nations and how he had looted and destroyed all of their temples.
2 They were especially terrified of his coming and were anxious about the safety of Jerusalem and the temple of the Lord their God. 3 They had just recently returned from captivity in exile. All the people of Judea had only just gathered together again, and the temple together with its altar and equipment had been newly dedicated to God after being polluted. [4]They sent word, therefore, to all the regions of Samaria and to Kona, Beth-horon, Belmain, Jericho, and to Choba, Aesora, and the Salem Valley. [5]Preparing for war, they occupied all the high hilltops, reinforced the villages on them, and stockpiled the food recently harvested from their fields.

[6]Then Joakim, the high priest in Jerusalem at that time, wrote to the residents of Bethulia and Betomasthaim, which is opposite Esdraelon, facing the plain near Dothan, [7]telling them to guard the mountain passes because they were the entrance to Judea. It would be easy to stop anyone trying to enter through them, because the passages were narrow and allowed for only two men at the most to pass through. [8]So the Israelites did everything that they were told to do by Joakim the high priest and the council of the Israelites that was meeting in Jerusalem.

[9]Every man in Israel humbled himself and cried out earnestly to God. [10]They, along with their wives, their children, and their cattle, and every immigrant, hired worker, and slave put funeral clothing around their waists. [11]And all the Israelite men, women, and children living in Jerusalem fell on their faces before the temple, putting ashes on their heads and stretching out their funeral clothing before the Lord. [12]They even laid funeral clothing around the altar. They earnestly cried out in unison to the God of Israel not to let their children and women be carried off like stolen goods, nor the cities they inherited to be destroyed and the sanctuary polluted and defiled--giving the nations something to gloat over.

[13]The Lord heard their cries and looked kindly on their troubles, for the people fasted many days throughout all Judea and in Jerusalem in front of the sanctuary of the Lord Almighty. [14]The high priest Joakim and all of the priests who stood before the Lord ministering to the Lord, wearing funeral clothing around their waists, offered the daily entirely burned offerings along with the prayers and spontaneous gifts of the people. [15]With ashes on their turbans, they continued to cry out to the Lord with all their strength to look with favor upon the whole house of Israel.

Israel's resistance reported

Judith 5 Holofernes the general of the Assyrian army was told that the Israelites, in preparation for war, had closed off the mountain passes, fortified all the high hilltops, and set up roadblocks in the plains. 2 Filled with anger, he called together all the rulers of Moab, the commanders of Ammon, and all the governors of the coastlands. 3 He said to them, "Tell me, you Canaanites: Who are these people living in the highlands? In what cities do they dwell? How big is their army? Where does their strength and power lie? Who is set up as their king, leading their army? 4 And why--unlike all those living in the west--have they refused to come and meet me?"

Achior relates the history of Israel

5 Then Achior the leader of all the Ammonites said to Holofernes, "Please listen to the word of your servant, my master, and I will tell you the truth about this people who live in the highlands near you. I'm your servant and won't lie to you. 6 These people are descended from the Chaldeans. 7 In the past they lived as strangers in Mesopotamia because they weren't willing to follow the gods of their ancestors in the land of Chaldea. 8 They broke with the customs of their parents and worshipped the God of heaven, the God whom they knew. So their ancestors sent them away from the presence of their gods, and they fled to Mesopotamia, where they lived as strangers for a long time. 9 Then their God commanded them to leave there and go to the land of Canaan. They settled there and became very rich in gold, silver, and cattle. 10 But when a famine spread through the land of Canaan, they went down to live as strangers in Egypt, where there was food. While they were there, their numbers increased so that they couldn't be counted. 11 Then the king of Egypt turned against them and took advantage of them, enslaving them and forcing them to make bricks. 12 They cried out to their God, and he sent incurable plagues upon the entire land of Egypt, so that the Egyptians drove them out of their sight. 13 God dried up the Red Sea[e] before the Israelites, 14 and led them by way of Sinai and Kadesh-barnea. They drove out all of the inhabitants of the desert. 15 They lived in the land of the Amorites and destroyed all the Heshbonites with their strength. Once they had crossed the Jordan, they took possession of all the highlands. 16 They drove out the Canaanites, the Perizzites, the Jebusites, the Shechemites, and all the Gergesites, and they lived there for a long time.

17 "As long as they didn't sin against their God, they prospered, because the God who hates wrongdoing was with them. [18]But when they neglected the way God had laid out for them, they were greatly defeated in many battles and taken as prisoners to a foreign land. The temple of their God was burned to the ground, and their enemies took possession of their cities. [19]But now they have turned back to their God, having returned from the place where they were scattered.

They have occupied Jerusalem, where their sanctuary is, and settled in the highlands, because it was desolate. [20]Now, my lord and master, if this people should slip up and sin against their God, and if we find out about their offense, then we can go up and defeat them. [21]But if they as a nation aren't guilty, it is better that my master just pass them by, for their Lord and God will protect them, and we will become a joke throughout all the land."

[22]As Achior finished relating these things, all the people standing around in the tent began to grumble. Holofernes' officers and everyone from the seacoast and Moab said that Achior should be executed. [23]They said, "We aren't afraid of the Israelites. Indeed, these people don't have the power or strength for making war. [24]Therefore, Lord Holofernes, let's go up and devour them with your entire army."

Achior is handed over to the Israelites

Judith 6 When the commotion of the men who surrounded the council quieted down, Holofernes the general of the Assyrian army said to Achior and all the Moabites in the presence of all the assembled foreigners: [2]"Who are you, Achior, and you soldiers-for-hire from Ephraim, that you prophesy to us as you have today and say that we shouldn't attack the Israelites because their God will protect them? Who is god except Nebuchadnezzar? He will send his power and destroy them from the earth, and their God won't rescue them. [3]We, on the other hand, are Nebuchadnezzar's servants and will destroy them as if they were only a single man. They won't be able to resist the power of our cavalry, [4]which will wipe them out. Their hills will be drunk with their blood, and their fields will be filled with their dead. Not even their footprints will survive! They will be completely destroyed. So says King Nebuchadnezzar, master of all the earth, for he has spoken and none of his words will fail.

[5]"But as for you, Achior, you Ammonite mercenary, what you've said today comes from your own wickedness. You won't see me again from now until the day I take revenge on this race that came out of Egypt. [6]And when I return, the sword of my army and the spear[f] of my servants will pierce through your ribs, and you will fall among their wounded. [7]Now my servants will deliver you to the highlands and leave you in one of the cities near the mountain passes. [8]You won't die until you are destroyed along with them. [9]If in your heart you really do hope that they won't be conquered, cheer up! But I promise you, nothing I have spoken will fail to happen."

[10]Then Holofernes ordered the slaves who were waiting on him in the tent to seize Achior, deliver him to Bethulia, and hand him over to the Israelites. [11]So the slaves seized him and led him out of the camp to the plain and from the plain to the highlands, and they arrived at the springs below Bethulia. [12]When the men of the city[g] saw them, they grabbed their weapons and ran out of the city to the hilltop. They kept them off the mountain pass by throwing stones at them with their slings. [13]By finding shelter below the hill, the Assyrians tied up Achior and left him at the bottom of the hill, and then returned to their master.

[14]When the Israelites came down from their city, they found Achior. They untied him and led him into Bethulia, and presented him to the rulers of their city. [15]In those days the rulers were Uzziah, Micah's son, from the tribe of Simeon, and Chabris, Gothoniel's son, and Charmis, Melchiel's son. [16]They called together all the elders of the city, and all their young men and women ran to the assembly. They set Achior in the middle of all their people, and Uzziah questioned him about what had happened. [17]He answered and told them what was said in Holofernes' council--both what he had said among the Assyrian commanders and what Holofernes had boasted he would do to the house of Israel.

[18]Then the people fell down and worshipped God. They cried out: [19]"Lord God of heaven, look at their arrogance and have mercy on our nation in its humble state. Look favorably this day upon those who have been dedicated to you."[20]They comforted Achior and praised him greatly. [21]Uzziah took him from the assembly to his own house and made a feast for the elders, and all through the night they called on Israel's God for help.

Holofernes lays siege to Bethulia

Judith 7 The next day Holofernes ordered his entire army and all his allies to break camp and move out against Bethulia, occupy the mountain passes, and engage the Israelites in battle. 2 So the entire force broke camp that day. The strength of their forces was one hundred seventy thousand infantry and twelve thousand cavalry, not including the baggage and the men handling it--a very great multitude. 3 They positioned themselves in the valley near Bethulia, beside the spring, and they spilled over Dothan as far as Balbaim, extending from Bethulia as far as Cyamon, which is opposite Esdraelon.

4 When the Israelites saw the great multitude, they were extremely frightened and said to each other: "These people will now devour the whole countryside!
Neither the highlands nor the valleys nor the foothills will be able to support their weight!" 5 Nevertheless, they each grabbed their weapons and, after lighting fires on their towers, remained on guard all that night.

6 On the second day, Holofernes led out his entire cavalry in full view of the Israelites who were in Bethulia. 7 He examined the approaches to their city, inspected the springs of water, seized them, and placed guards around them.
Then he returned to the camp.

8 Then all the rulers of the Edomites, all the leaders of the Moabites, and the commanders of the coastland came to him and said: 9 "May our master listen to our advice, and your army won't suffer any losses. 10 These people, the Israelites, don't rely on their spears but on the height of the hills where they live, because it isn't easy to climb up to their hilltops. 11 Therefore, Master, don't fight them in the usual way, and not one of your men will fall. 12 Instead, wait in your camp, keeping all the men of your army there, and let your servants seize the spring of water that flows out from the base of the hill, 13 because this is the water source for all those who live in Bethulia. Thirst will be their undoing, and it will force them to surrender their city. In the meantime, we and our people will go up to occupy the tops of the nearby hills and set up guard, to make sure that no man leaves the city. 14 Then they, their wives, and their children will wither with hunger in the streets where they live before a sword even comes near them.
15 Thus you will repay them with evil because they rebelled and didn't welcome you peacefully."

16 Their plan pleased Holofernes and his advisors, and he directed them to do as they had said. [17]So the Ammonites together with five thousand Assyrians moved their camp to the valley and seized the Israelite water supply and springs. [18]Meanwhile, the Edomites and the Ammonites went up and camped in the highlands opposite Dothan and sent some of their men to the south and the east to Egrebeh, which is near Chusi, beside the Mochmur ravine. The rest of the Assyrian army camped on the plain and covered the whole countryside, and their tents and baggage stretched out over a vast encampment. They were indeed a very great multitude.

The Israelites begin to weaken

[19]The Israelites cried out to the Lord their God, for their spirits were low, because their enemies had completely surrounded them, and no escape was in sight.

[20]The whole Assyrian army remained around them, the infantry and chariots and cavalry, for thirty-four days until the water supplies of everyone who lived in Bethulia ran dry. [21]Their reservoirs were nearly empty, and because drinking water was being rationed, on no day did anyone have enough to drink. [22]Their children were discouraged, and the women and young men fainted from thirst in the city streets, collapsing at the entrance to the gates. They had no strength left.

[23]Then all the people--the young men, the women, and the children--gathered around Uzziah and the rulers of the city. They cried out before all the elders with a loud voice, saying: [24]"Let God judge between you and us! You have done us great wrong by not making peace with the Assyrians. [25]Now there's no one to help us. Instead, God has handed us over to them to be scattered before them in thirst and great destruction. [26]Call them, therefore, and surrender the whole city as plunder to the people of Holofernes and his army. [27]It would be better for us to be captured by them.[h] Even though we would become slaves, we would save our lives and not have to see with our own eyes the deaths of our little ones, nor watch our wives and children losing their lives. [28]"We testify against you by heaven and earth and our God, the Lord of our ancestors, who punishes us for our sins and the sins of our ancestors, if you don't do everything we have spoken today."

Lord with a loud voice. [30]Uzziah said to them, "Be brave, brothers and sisters. Let's wait five more days for the Lord our God to come to our aid. Surely he won't abandon us in the end. [31]But if the days pass by and help hasn't arrived, I'll do as you have said."[32]Then he dismissed the people. They went back to their various posts on the walls and towers of the city, and Uzziah sent the women and children home. They were in great misery throughout the city.

Judith is introduced

Judith 8 Now in those days Judith heard about these things. She was the daughter of Merari son of Ox son of Joseph son of Oziel son of Elkiah son of Ananias son of Gideon son of Raphain son of Ahitub son of Elijah son of Hilkiah son of Eliab son of Nathanael son of Salamiel son of Sarasadai son of Israel. [2]Her husband Manasseh, who was from her tribe and her family, had died during the barley harvest. [3]He suffered heat stroke while he was overseeing the workers in the fields, and died in his bed in Bethulia, his hometown. They buried him with his ancestors in the field between Dothan and Balamon. [4]Judith had lived as a widow in her house for three years and four months. [5]She pitched a tent for herself on the roof of her house, put funeral clothing around her waist, and wore widow's clothing. [6]She fasted all the days of her widowhood except for the day before the Sabbath and the Sabbath itself, the day before the new moon, the day of the new moon, and the feasts and celebration days of the house of Israel. [7]She was very beautiful and lovely to stare at. Her husband Manasseh left her gold and silver, male and female slaves, cattle, and fields, which she continued to oversee. [8]And no one had a bad word to say about her, for she revered God greatly.

Judith speaks to the elders

[9]Judith heard the people's harsh words against the ruler, for they were growing weak from the lack of water. Judith also heard everything that Uzziah told them, how he promised to surrender the city to the Assyrians in five days. [10]So she sent her most trusted servant, the one who managed her property, to call for Uzziah, Chabris, and Charmis, the elders of her city. [11]When they came to her, she said to them:

"Listen to me, rulers of the inhabitants of Bethulia. What you have said to the people today isn't right. What is this promise you have made? How can you bargain with God by saying that you'll surrender the city to our enemies if the Lord doesn't send help within a certain time? [12]So who are you to test God today and set yourselves up in the place of God in the midst of the people? [13]You can question the Lord Almighty, but you won't ever learn anything. [14]You can't sound the depths of a person's heart or comprehend the thoughts of that person's mind. How then will you search out God, who made all these things? How will you understand God's mind and comprehend God's thoughts?

"No, brothers, don't provoke the Lord our God, [15]even if he chooses not to help us in the next five days. God has the power to visit us in however many days he wishes or to destroy us in front of our enemies. [16]Don't attempt to block the plans of the Lord our God. God isn't like a human being who can be argued with, a person who can be threatened. [17]Therefore, while we're waiting for his rescue, we should call upon him for help, and he will hear our voice if it pleases him. [18]There hasn't been in our generation, nor is there today, a tribe, a family, a people, or a city among us who worships gods made with human hands as happened in times past. [19]This is the reason why our ancestors were handed over to the sword and to plunder, and they suffered greatly in the presence of our enemies. [20]But we have known no other gods except him.

"Therefore, we hope that he won't forget about us and our generation. [21]If we are captured, so also will the rest of Judea be captured. Then our sanctuary will be plundered, and God will hold us responsible for its ruin with our own blood. [22]He will bring the murder of our families, the captivity of the land, and the destruction of our inheritance down upon our heads, wherever we may be enslaved among the nations. Those who purchase us as slaves will consider us offensive and disgraceful. [23]Our slavery won't bring us favor. Rather, the Lord our God will turn it into a disgrace.

[24]"Now, brothers, let us be an example to those whose lives depend on us. The sanctuary, the temple, and the altar depend on us as well. [25]In the midst of all this, let us give thanks to the Lord our God, who is testing us just as he did our ancestors. [26]Remember what he did with Abraham, how he tested Isaac, and what happened to Jacob while he was in Mesopotamia of Syria, tending his uncle Laban's sheep?[27]He hasn't yet tested us with fire, as he did them to examine their hearts, nor has he taken vengeance upon us. Rather, the Lord afflicts those close to him in order to warn them."

28 Uzziah said to her: "You have spoken all this from a genuine heart, and no one disagrees with your words. 29 Today isn't the first time you have demonstrated your wisdom. Since your earliest days, all the people have observed your insight and the goodness of your heart. 30 But the people are very thirsty, and they strongly urged us to do what we promised them, and to make a solemn promise that we can't break. 31 You are a godly woman. So pray for us, and the Lord will send rain to fill our reservoirs, and we won't die."

32 Judith said to them: "Listen to me. I'm going to do something that will be remembered for generations to come. 33 Stand at the gate tonight, and I, along with my most trusted servant, will go out. By the deadline you set for surrendering the city to our enemies, the Lord will deliver Israel by my hand.
34 Don't ask what I will do. I won't tell you until I'm finished."

35 Then Uzziah and the rulers said to her: "Go in peace, and may the Lord God go before you to take vengeance on our enemies."36 So they left the tent[i] and returned to their posts.

Judith prays to God

Judith 9 Judith fell on her face, put ashes on her head, and uncovered the funeral clothing she was wearing. Then, at the time when the evening incense was being offered in God's house in Jerusalem, Judith cried out to the Lord with a loud voice and said:

> 2 "Lord, God of my ancestor Simeon, you put a sword into his hand to > take revenge on the strangers who opened up a virgin's womb to pollute > her, who exposed her thighs to shame her, and who violated her womb to > disgrace her. You said that such a thing shouldn't happen, and yet they did > it anyway. 3 So you handed over their rulers to be murdered. You stained > with blood the beds that were ashamed of their owners' deceit. You struck > down slaves along with princes, even princes upon their thrones. 4 You > handed over their women as booty and their daughters as prisoners. You > gave all of their property to be divided up among your dearly loved > children, who burned with holy zeal for you and hated the pollution of their blood, and called on you for help. God, my God, also hear me--a widow. [5]You did those things in the past, and other things before these, and other things that have happened since. You intended the current situation and the things yet to come. What you planned has occurred. [6]The things you considered stood ready and said, 'Here we are!' Indeed, all your ways are prepared in advance, and your judgment is known ahead of time.

[7]"Look, the Assyrians have increased their army--priding themselves on their cavalry and horses, boasting in the weapons of their infantry, hoping in their shields, spears, bows, and slings. They don't know that you are the Lord who crushes wars. [8]The Lord is your name. Destroy their strength with your might, and break their power in your anger. For they plan to defile your sanctuary, to pollute the dwelling where your glorious name resides, and to break off the horns of your altar with a sword. [9]Look at their arrogance, and send your wrath upon their heads. Give my hand, the hand of a widow, the strength to do what I have planned. [10]By using my lying lips, strike down the slave along with the ruler, the ruler along with his servant. Break their pride by the hand of a woman. [11]Your might isn't in numbers, and your power isn't in the strength of a human being. But you are the God of the humble. You are a helper of the underdog, defender of the weak, protector of those who despair, savior of those without hope. [12]I beg you, God of my ancestor, God of Israel's inheritance, ruler of heaven and earth, creator of the waters, king of all your creation, hear my prayer![13]Make my lying words a wound and a bruise to those who have planned cruel things against your covenant, your sacred temple, Mount Zion, and the house your children possess. [14]Make your whole nation and every tribe understand and know that you are God, the God of all power and might, and that there is no one else who protects the people of Israel except you."

Judith enters the Assyrian camp

Judith 10 When she had finished crying out to Israel's God and had finished saying all these things, [2]she stood up from where she was lying, called her closest servant, and went down into her house where she would spend her sabbaths and feast days. [3]She took off the funeral clothing she had been wearing and removed her widow's garments. Then she washed her body with water, put on some expensive perfume, combed her hair, tied a headband around her head, and put on one of the festive dresses she used to wear when her husband Manasseh was still alive. [4]She slipped sandals on her feet, and adorned herself with bracelets on her ankles and wrists, rings, earrings, and all her jewelry. She made herself very beautiful in order to attract the eyes of any man who might see her. [5]She gave her servant a container of wine and a flask of olive oil. She filled a bag with grain, a fig cake, and fine bread.[j] She wrapped this up along with her tableware and gave it to her servant to carry.

[6]Then they left the city of Bethulia through the gate and found Uzziah standing there with Chabris and Charmis the city elders. [7]They saw that she had transformed her appearance and changed her clothing, and they were astonished by her beauty. They said to her: [8]"May the God of our ancestors grant you favor and accomplish your plans for the glory of the Israelites and the exaltation of Jerusalem." And she worshipped God.

[9]Then she said to them: "Order the city gate to be opened for me, and I will go out to accomplish what you have spoken to me." Then they ordered the young men to open the gate for her just as she had said. [10]When they did so, Judith went out, along with her servant. The men of the city watched her until she went down the hill and passed through the valley, until they could no longer see her.

[11]Judith and her female servant continued to go straight through the valley until an Assyrian patrol met them. [12]They arrested her and asked, "Who are your people? Where did you come from? And where are you going?"

She replied, "I'm a daughter of the Hebrews, and I'm escaping from them because they are about to be handed over to you to be consumed. [13]I'm going to see Holofernes the general of your army, to bring to him a true report of the situation. Furthermore, I will show him a road he can use to control all of the highlands without losing the life of even one of his men."

[14]When the men heard her words and saw her face (for they found her very beautiful), they said to her, [15]"You have saved your own life by hurrying down here to see our master. Now go to his tent, and some of us will escort you to deliver you to him personally. [16]When you stand before him, don't let your heart be afraid. Tell him everything you just told us, and he'll treat you well."

Judith meets Holofernes

17 The patrol chose one hundred of their men to accompany Judith and her servant, and they led them to Holofernes' tent. 18 The soldiers in the camp turned out in droves, for word of her arrival had spread from tent to tent. So they came and stood around her as she waited outside Holofernes' tent while the patrol told him about her. 19 They were amazed by her beauty and admired the Israelites because of her. They said to each other, "Who will underestimate these people when they have such women? It wouldn't be good to leave even one of their men alive, for they could beguile the whole world."

20 Then Holofernes' bodyguards and his attendants went out and brought her into the tent. 21 Holofernes was relaxing on his bed under a canopy made from purple and gold cloth woven with emeralds and precious stones. 22 When they told him about her, he went out to the front of the tent with silver lamps being carried before him. 23 As Judith came before him and his servants, they were all amazed by the beauty of her face. She fell to the ground before him and paid him respect, but his slaves raised her up.

Judith 11 Holofernes said to her, "Take courage, woman, and don't let your heart be afraid. I've never harmed anyone who chose to serve Nebuchadnezzar king of all the earth. 2 Even now, if your people who live in the highlands hadn't insulted me, I wouldn't have raised my spear against them. But they have brought this on themselves. 3 Now tell me why you escaped from them and came to us. You're safe now, so take courage. You will live tonight and from now on. 4 No one will harm you. They will treat you well, just like all the slaves of my master King Nebuchadnezzar."

Judith's speech

5 Judith answered him, "Listen to the words of your slave and let your servant woman speak in your presence. I won't lie to you this night, my master. 6 If you follow the instructions of your female servant, God will accomplish something great through you, and my master's plans won't fail. 7 As Nebuchadnezzar king of the whole earth lives, and as his power that sent you to direct every living being endures--not only do humans serve him because of you, but even the animals of the field, the cattle, and the birds in the sky live under Nebuchadnezzar and all his house because of your power. [8]We've heard about your wisdom and your cunning spirit, and it was reported throughout all the land that, out of the entire kingdom, you alone are dignified, capable in intellect, and wonderful in military campaigns. [9]We heard what Achior told your council and his advice. The men of Bethulia spared him, and he told us everything he said to you. [10]Now, my master and lord, don't ignore what he told you, but keep it in mind because it's all true. Our nation can't be punished, and the sword won't succeed against the Israelites, unless they have sinned against their God. [11]But now, death will soon fall upon them, so that my master won't end up frustrated and defeated. A sin has overtaken them, and they will anger their God when they do what is wrong. [12]Their food supply is almost used up, and water is scarce. So they have determined to kill their cattle and to consume everything that God, by his laws, has commanded them not to eat. [13]They have decided to eat the early produce from the grain and one-tenth of the wine and olive oil that were set apart and reserved for the priests who serve in Jerusalem in the presence of our God--things it isn't lawful for the people even to touch with their hands. [14]Since even the people who live in Jerusalem have been doing the same thing, they sent messengers there to bring back permission from the council. [15]Whenever they receive this communication and act on it, that very same day they will be handed over to you for destruction.

[16]"Therefore, when I your slave woman learned of all this, I escaped from them. God sent me to accomplish things with you that will amaze the whole world, wherever people hear about these things. [17]Your slave woman is pious, and I serve the God of heaven, day and night. So I will stay with you, my master, and each night your slave woman will go out to the valley and pray to God. He will tell me when the people have committed their sins. [18]I'll come and report to you, and you'll go out with your whole army, and none of them will be able to resist you. [19]Then I will lead you through Judea to Jerusalem, and I will set your throne in her midst. You will drive them out like sheep without a shepherd, and not even a dog will growl at you. This was predicted to me and announced to me, and I was sent to tell you."

[20]Everything she said pleased Holofernes and all his attendants. They wondered at her wisdom and said to her, [21]"There isn't another woman anywhere in the whole world as lovely in appearance or as wise in speech."

22 Holofernes said to her, "God did well by sending you ahead of the people to strengthen our hands and to bring destruction on those who despise my master.
23 You are beautiful in appearance and impressive in speech. If you do as you have said, your God will be my God. You will live in the house of King Nebuchadnezzar, and your name will be known throughout the entire world."

Judith 12 Then he commanded them to bring her in to where his table was set, and he ordered them to place before her some of his own food and wine to drink.

2 But Judith said, "I won't eat this, or it will be an offense. I'll have enough to eat from what I brought with me."

3 Holofernes said to her, "But if your supply runs out, where can we get similar food for you, since there is no one else here from your nation?"

4 Judith said to him, "As surely as you live, my master, your slave woman won't use up what she brought, before the Lord accomplishes by my hand what he has determined."

5 Then Holofernes' attendants led her into the tent, and she slept there until the middle of the night. She got up when it was the first watch of the morning 6 and sent word to Holofernes, saying, "Please, my master, issue an order permitting your servant to go out and pray." 7 So Holofernes ordered his bodyguards not to stop her. She remained in the camp for three days. Each night she went out to the Bethulia Valley and bathed in the spring of water near the camp. 8 When she came up from the water, she would pray to the Lord God of Israel to direct her way so as to uplift the children of her[k] people. 9 Then she returned purified to the tent and remained there until evening time, when her food was brought to her.

Holofernes throws a banquet

10 On the fourth day Holofernes hosted a party for his closest attendants and didn't send an invitation to anyone besides them. 11 He said to Bagoas the eunuch, who looked after his property, "Go and persuade the Hebrew woman who is in your care to come join us and eat and drink with us. 12 It would be a shame for us to let such a woman go without having sex with her. If we don't reel her in, she'll laugh at us."

13So Bagoas left Holofernes and went to her and said, "Don't let this pretty female servant delay in coming to my master, to be honored in his presence, to enjoy drinking wine with us, and to become today like one of the Assyrian women who are present in Nebuchadnezzar's house."

14Then Judith said to him, "Who am I to argue with my master? Whatever pleases him I will do quickly, and it will be my joy until the day I die."15She arose and dressed in all of her woman's adornments. Her servant went out with the sheepskins that Bagoas had given to her for daily use while reclining and eating, and spread these out on the floor in front of Holofernes.

16When Judith entered the tent and lay down, Holofernes' heart was struck by her, he was shaken to the core, and he was very eager to have sex with her. He had been looking for an opportunity to seduce her since the day when he first saw her. 17So Holofernes said to her, "Please, join us for a drink and enjoy yourself with us."

18Judith said, "I will certainly drink, my master, because today is the best day of my life since the day I was born."19Then she ate and drank before him the food prepared by her servant. 20Holofernes was very pleased with her, and he drank a large amount of wine, more than he had ever drunk in any single day since the day he was born.

Judith kills Holofernes

Judith 13 When evening came, his slaves left quickly, and Bagoas closed up the tent from the outside and shut out those who had been waiting on his master. They all went to bed, for they were exhausted because the party had lasted a long time. 2Judith was left alone in the tent with Holofernes sprawled out on his bed, dead drunk.

3Now Judith told her servant to stand outside of the bedroom and to watch for her to come out just as she had done on other days. She said that she would be going out to pray, and she told Bagoas the same thing. 4So everyone went out, and there was no one left with them in the bedroom, either small or great. Then Judith stood next to his bed and said in her heart, Lord, God of all power, look at this hour upon the work of my hands for the glory of Jerusalem. [5]Now is the time to help your inheritance and to accomplish my plans to destroy the enemies who have risen up against us.

[6]Then she went to the bedpost near Holofernes' head and took down his sword. [7]When she came closer to the bed, she grabbed the hair on his head and said, "Give me strength today, Lord God of Israel."[8]She struck him in the neck twice with all her might and cut off his head. [9]Then she rolled his body off the bed and pulled down the canopy from the rods. After a little while she went out and handed Holofernes' head to her servant, [10]who placed it in her food bag.

Judith and her servant escape to Bethulia

The two of them went out to pray, as was their habit. They walked through the camp, circled around the valley, went up the hill to Bethulia, and arrived at the city gates. [11]From a distance Judith called out to the guards at the gate, "Open, open the gate! God, our God, is with us and is still demonstrating strength in Israel and power against our enemies! He has done so even today!"

[12]When the people in her city heard her voice, they hurried down to the city gate and called together the elders of the city. [13]They all ran together, from the youngest to the oldest, because it seemed impossible that she had returned safely. They opened the gate and welcomed them. After lighting a fire to give some light, they stood around them. [14]Then Judith said to them in a loud voice, "Praise God! Praise, praise God, who hasn't taken his mercy away from the house of Israel! Rather, he has destroyed our enemies by my hand this very night!"

[15]And with that she pulled the head out of the bag. Showing it to them, she said, "Look! Here's the head of Holofernes, the general of the Assyrian army, and here too is the canopy under which he was lying in a drunken stupor. The Lord struck him down by the hand of a woman![16]As the Lord lives, who protected me on my mission, I deceived him with my appearance in order to kill him. But he committed no sin with me, to pollute or shame me."

[17]Everyone was completely amazed and bowed down, worshipping God. They said with one voice, "Blessed are you, our God, who has disgraced the enemies of your people this day."

18 Then Uzziah said to her, "Daughter, you are blessed by the Most High God above all other women on the earth. And blessed is the Lord God, who made the heavens and the earth, who guided you to cut off the head of our enemy's leader.
19 Your hope[l] will never fade away from the hearts of the people who remember God's strength. 20 May God make these things a continual source of honor for you and give you good things. You risked your own life for our nation when it was being oppressed, and you prevented our destruction by walking a straight line before our God."

And all the people said, "Amen, amen."

Judith's instructions for victory

Judith 14 Judith said to them, "Listen well, my people! Take this head and hang it from the highest spot on your city walls. 2 At daybreak, when the sun rises upon the earth, take up your weapons, each one of you, and let every capable man go outside of the city. Place a captain over them as if you are preparing to go down to the plain against the Assyrian guard. Only don't go down. 3 Then they will take up their armor and rush to their camp to wake up the Assyrian army officers. They will run together to Holofernes' tent, but they won't find him. Then fear will fall on them, and they'll run from the sight of you. 4 You and all those who live within the borders of Israel will take chase and lay them low on their way. 5 But before this, call Achior the Ammonite to me so that he can see and recognize the man who insulted the house of Israel and sent him to us as if to his death."

Achior converts

6 They brought Achior from Uzziah's house. When he came and saw Holofernes' head in the hand of one of the men at the assembly of the people, he fainted and fell on his face. 7 After they raised him up, he threw himself at Judith's feet, bowed before her, and said, "Blessed are you in every dwelling of Judah! In every nation, whoever hears your name will be terrified. 8 Now tell me what you've been doing during these last few days." So Judith told him in the presence of the people everything she had done since the day she left, up to the time she began talking to them.

9 When she finished speaking, the people gave a great shout and made a joyful noise in their city. [10]When Achior saw all that the God of Israel had done, he believed in God wholeheartedly. So he was circumcised and joined the house of Israel, remaining until this day.

The Assyrians discover Holofernes' body

[11]At dawn they hung Holofernes' head on the wall, and all the men took up their weapons and went out in groups to the mountain passes. [12]When the Assyrians saw them, they sent word to their leaders, who went to the captains, the commanders, and all the other officers. [13]They came to Holofernes' tent and said to the one who looked after his property, "Wake up our master, for the slaves have become so bold as to come down to make war with us--only to be completely destroyed."

[14]Then Bagoas went in and knocked at the entrance to the tent, for he assumed that Holofernes was sleeping with Judith. [15]But when there was no answer, he entered the bedroom and found him sprawled on the floor, dead, with his head missing. [16]He cried out with a loud voice, weeping, groaning, and shouting, and he tore his clothes. [17]Next he went into the tent where Judith had been staying. Not finding her, he ran out to the people and shouted, [18]"The slaves have made fools of us! One Hebrew woman has brought shame upon the house of King Nebuchadnezzar. Look, Holofernes is lying on the ground and his head is gone!"[19]When the leaders of the Assyrian army heard this news, they tore their clothes. They were greatly disturbed, and their shouts and cries rang throughout the camp.

Judith 15 When those who were still in their tents heard all this, they were shocked at what had happened. [2]They were overcome with fear and trembling. Without waiting for anyone else, each and every person rushed out and fled in every direction across the plain and into the highlands. [3]Even those who were camped in the hills around Bethulia turned and fled. Then every Israelite man capable of fighting rushed out upon them. [4]Uzziah sent messengers to Betomasthaim, Choba, Kola, and all the regions of Israel, announcing what had happened and saying that everyone should rush out upon their enemies to destroy them. [5]When the Israelites heard about it, they joined together, fell upon their enemies, and cut them down as far as Choba. Similarly, those from Jerusalem and everyone in the highlands also came, for they had been told what happened in the enemy camp. The Gileadites and the Galileans outflanked the Assyrians, inflicting heavy losses as far as Damascus and its territories.

6Meanwhile, the rest of the people living in Bethulia entered the Assyrian camp and plundered it, and they became extremely rich. 7When the Israelites returned from the slaughter, they took what was left behind. Even the villages and farms in the highlands and the plain received large portions of the spoils, because there was plenty to go around.

8At that time Joakim the high priest and the council of the Israelites who lived in Jerusalem came to witness the good things that the Lord had done for Israel, to see Judith, and to wish her well. 9When they came to her, they joined together in blessing her and said, "You are the glory of Jerusalem; you are the great pride of Israel; you are the high honor of our nation. 10You've done all these things with your own hand. You've done well for Israel, and God is pleased with these things. May you be forever blessed by the Lord Almighty!"

And all the people said, "Amen!"

11The people plundered the camp for thirty days, and they gave Holofernes' tent to Judith, including the silver plates, the beds, the bowls, and all of his furniture. She took it all, loaded up her mule, then hitched up her carts and filled them up as well.

12All the women of Israel gathered together to see her. They blessed her, and some performed a dance for her. Then Judith took wands wrapped with ivy in her hands and gave them to the women who were with her. 13They all crowned themselves with wreaths woven from olive branches. Then she went before all the people in a dance, leading all the women. All the men of Israel followed, carrying their weapons, wearing wreaths of victory, and singing hymns. 14Judith began this thanksgiving song in front of all Israel, and all the people enthusiastically sang this hymn.

Song of Judith

Judith 16 Judith said:

Begin to praise my God with drums;
sing to the Lord with cymbals.
Adapt a psalm for him;
lift up your praise,
and call upon his name.
2 The Lord is a God who crushes wars.
He rescued me
from the hand of my oppressors, and brought me into his camp
in the midst of his people.
3 The Assyrian came from the mountains in the north;
he came with tens of thousands of his warriors;
their crowd of people
blocked the ravines,
and their cavalry covered the hills.
4 He bragged that he would burn my territory,
kill my young men with the sword, throw my infants to the ground,
take my children as slaves,
and rape my virgins.
5 But the Lord Almighty overthrew them by the hand of a woman.[m] 6 Their leader didn't fall to his knees because of young men, nor did the sons of the Titans strike him down,
nor did the tall giants assault him.
But Judith, Merari's daughter, paralyzed him with her beauty.
7 She took off her widow's clothing to lift up the oppressed in Israel.
She put perfume on her face, 8 tied a headband around her hair, and put on a linen gown to trick him.
9 Her sandal captured his eyes;
her beauty captured his heart,
and the sword sliced through his neck.

10 The Persians trembled at her daring, and the Medes were troubled by her boldness.
11 Then my humbled ones shouted loudly;
my weak ones cried out,[n]
they lifted up their voices, and the enemies were overthrown.
12 Sons of mere girls stabbed them and wounded them
like the children of deserters.
They perished before
my Lord's army.
13 I will sing to my God a new song.
Lord, you are great and glorious, marvelous in strength never to be outdone.
14 May all of your creation serve you;
you spoke,
and they came into being.
You sent forth your spirit and it shaped them;
there is no one
who can resist your voice.
15 The mountains will be shaken from their foundations with the waters; rocks will melt like wax before you.
Yet you will show mercy
to those who fear you.
16 The pleasant fragrance of all offerings is a small thing to you, and the fat of all entirely burned offerings means even less to you.
But those who fear the Lord are great forever.
17 How terrible it will be for those nations who rise up against my people.
The Lord Almighty will take vengeance upon them on the Judgment Day.
He will send fire and worms
into their flesh,
and they will weep forever with the pain.

End of Judith's life

[18]When they arrived in Jerusalem, they worshipped God. Once the people were purified, they offered their entirely burned offerings and spontaneous gifts. [19]Judith dedicated all of Holofernes' belongings that the people had given her. The canopy that she herself had taken from his bedroom, she dedicated as an offering to God. [20]The people continued to celebrate in Jerusalem for three months in front of the sanctuary. And Judith remained with them.

[21]At the end of these days, everyone returned to their homes. Judith went back to Bethulia and lived on her estate. She was honored for the rest of her life all throughout the land. [22]There were many men who desired her, but no man had relations with her all the rest of her life after her husband Manasseh died and was buried with his people. [23]She became increasingly famous and grew old in her husband's house, reaching the advanced age of 105. She set her trusted servant free and died in Bethulia. They buried her in her husband Manasseh's cave, [24]and the house of Israel mourned her for seven days. Before she died, she divided her property among all the relatives of Manasseh her husband, and among her own relatives. [25]No one terrified the Israelites again during Judith's lifetime or for a long time after her death.

Mordecai's dream

Esther A In the second year of the rule of Artaxerxes the Great, on the first day of Nisan,[a] Mordecai had a dream. He was Jair's son, Shimei's grandson, and Kish's great-grandson, from the tribe of Benjamin. [2]He was a Jew living in the city of Susa, an important man serving in the royal court. [3]He was one of the prisoners of war whom King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon had brought from Jerusalem along with Judea's King Jeconiah.

[4]This was his dream:

Look! Noise and confusion, thunder and earthquake, and chaos on the earth.

[5]Look! Two mighty dragons came forward, both ready to fight, and they roared loudly. [6]At their roar every nation got ready for battle, to make war on the righteous nation.

[7]Look! A day of darkness and gloom, misery and suffering, distress and chaos on the earth. [8]The entire righteous nation was thrown into a state of panic, dreading the evil that was coming against them.[b] They expected to die. [9]So they cried out to God. Their cry was small at first, like a little spring, but soon it became loud as a mighty river, an abundance of water. [10]Then the sun with its light shone, the lowly were raised up high, and it devoured those who were held in honor. [11]Then Mordecai, who had this dream and saw what God had planned to do, woke up and kept it secret. He wished to examine it in every detail before nightfall.

[12]Mordecai was relaxing in the courtyard with Gabatha and Tharra, two castrated men,[c] attendants of King Artaxerxes who were guarding the courtyard. [13]He overheard their plans and investigated their intentions. He learned that they were preparing to attack King Artaxerxes, so he informed the king about them. [14]The king questioned the two eunuchs. Once they had confessed, they were taken away[d] to be executed. [15]The king wrote these matters down so they would be remembered, and Mordecai also wrote about them. [16]The king appointed Mordecai to serve in the court and gave him gifts for his service. [17]But Haman, Hammedatha's son, a Bougaean who was greatly respected by the king, sought to injure Mordecai and his people for the sake of the king's two eunuchs.

Queen Vashti

Esther 1 [1]After these events, this is what happened back during the rule of Artaxerxes, the very one who ruled as far as India, one hundred twenty-seven provinces in all. [2]At that time, Artaxerxes ruled the kingdom from his royal throne in the city of Susa. [3]In the third year of his rule he hosted a feast for all his officials and those from other nations. The leaders of Persia and Media attended, along with his provincial dignitaries and officials. [4]He showed off the awesome riches and beautiful treasures of his kingdom as a reflection of how great he was. The event lasted a long time--six whole months, to be exact! [5]When the days of the wedding feast were over, the king held a six-day wine festival for everyone who remained in the city. They all met in the walled garden of the royal palace. [6]White linen and cotton curtains hung from shining white and red-purple ropes tied to gold and silver rings and marble posts. Gold and silver couches sat on a mosaic floor made of emerald, marble, and mother-of-pearl. [7]The cups were made of gold and silver. There was a miniature cup made of ruby, worth 1,710,000 pounds of silver.[e] The king made sure there was plenty of the best wine, which he himself also drank. [8]The wine festival had no established rules, so the king ordered everyone serving wine in the palace to offer as much as each guest wanted. [9]At the same time, Queen Vashti also held a wine festival of her own for women in King Artaxerxes' palace.

[10]On the seventh day, when wine had put the king in high spirits, the king gave an order to Mehuman, Biztha, Harbonah, Bigtha, Abagtha, Zethar, and Carkass,[f] the seven eunuchs who served King Artaxerxes personally. [11]They were to bring Queen Vashti before him so that he could introduce her as queen and place the royal crown upon her head. She was gorgeous, and he wanted to show off her beauty to his important guests and to the general public. [12]But Queen Vashti refused to come with the eunuchs. The king was furious, boiling with anger. 13So he said to his political advisors, "This is what Vashti has said, so give your ruling and make a decision on this situation."14So Arkesaeus, Sarsathaeus, and Malesear, the rulers of the Persians and Medes who were closest to the king and his chief advisors, came to him. 15They told him what was appropriate, according to the law, since the queen had disobeyed the king's order.

16Then Memucan[g] spoke up in front of the king and the officials. "Queen Vashti," he said, "has done something wrong not merely to the king himself. She has also done wrong to all the officials and the governors of the king."17(The king had reported to them the queen's words and how she defied the king.) "Just as she defied King Artaxerxes,18after today the important women of Persia and Media who hear about the queen's actions will dare to dishonor their own husbands. 19Now, if the king likes this suggestion, he might send out a royal order and have it written into the laws of Persia and Media. It shouldn't be applied differently for anyone. It should say that the queen should never again be allowed to come before the king. It should also say that King Artaxerxes will give Vashti's royal place to someone better than she. 20When the king's order becomes public through the whole empire, however he decides to put it, all women will treat their husbands properly, whether from an important family or not."

21The king liked the plan, as did the governors, and he did just what Memucan[h] said. 22He sent written orders throughout the kingdom. Each country received the orders written in its own language. Fear and respect were established in every home.

Finding a new queen

Esther 2 Sometime later when King Artaxerxes was less angry, he no longer remembered Vashti, what she had done, or what he had decided about her.
2His servants said, "Perhaps the king could have a search made for beautiful young women who haven't yet had sex with a man. 3Perhaps the king could choose certain people in all the royal provinces to lead the search. They could bring all the beautiful young women together to the city of Susa, to the women's house, under the care of the king's eunuch in charge of the women, and supply them with bath oils and anything else they might need. 4Perhaps the young woman who pleases you the most could take Vashti's place as queen." The king liked the plan and put it in place.

5Now there was a Jew in Susa whose name was Mordecai, Jair's son. He came from the family line of Shimei and Kish; he was a Benjaminite. 6He had been taken into exile away from Jerusalem by King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon. 7Mordecai had a foster child named Esther, a daughter of his uncle Aminadab. When her parents died, Mordecai had taken her and raised her to become his wife. The girl was lovely to look at. 8When the king's order and his new law became public, many young women were gathered into the city of Susa under the care of Hegai.[i] Esther was also taken to Hegai, the one in charge of the women. 9The young woman pleased him and won his kindness. He eagerly began her beauty treatments and gave her carefully chosen foods. He also gave her seven female servants selected from among the palace servants and provided well for her and her female servants in the women's house. 10Esther hadn't told anyone her race or family background because Mordecai had ordered her not to. 11Each day Mordecai walked back and forth along the wall in front of the women's house to learn how Esther was doing.

12According to the rules for women, there were twelve months of preparation before the time arrived for each young woman to see the king. She had six months of rubbing treatment with oil from myrrh and six months with fragrant oils and cosmetics. 13So this is how the young woman would go to the king: They gave her anything that she asked to take with her from the women's house to the palace. 14In the evening she would go in, and the next morning she would return to the second women's house under the care of Shaashgaz.[j] He was the king's eunuch in charge of the secondary wives. She would never go to the king again unless she was called by name. 15The time came for Esther daughter of Aminadab, Mordecai's uncle, to go to the king. She didn't refuse anything that Hegai, the king's eunuch in charge of the women, told her to take along. Esther kept winning the favor of everyone who saw her.

16Esther went in to see King Artaxerxes in the twelfth month, the month of Adar,[k] in the seventh year of his rule. 17The king fell in love with Esther, and she gained more favor than all the other young women. He placed the royal crown on her head. 18The king sponsored a wine festival for all his political advisors and important officials for seven days. He celebrated Esther's wedding ceremony and canceled debts for many under his rule.

Mordecai saves the king

19 Meanwhile, Mordecai was working for the king in the court. 20 Esther still wasn't telling anyone her family background and race. As Mordecai had ordered her, she continued to worship God and obey God's commands just as when she was in his care. Esther didn't change the way she lived. 21 But two eunuchs, the king's two main bodyguards, became very upset because Mordecai was promoted. They secretly planned to kill King Artaxerxes. 22 When Mordecai got wind of it, he reported it to Esther, who spoke to the king about the plan. 23 The king questioned the two men and hanged them. Then the king ordered a record of the event to be placed in the royal archive to remember Mordecai's loyalty.

Haman plans to destroy Mordecai

Esther 3 Sometime later, King Artaxerxes honored Haman, Hammedatha's son, a Bougaean, by promoting him above all other political advisors. 2 Everyone at the court would kneel and bow down to Haman because the king had so ordered. But Mordecai didn't kneel or bow down. 3 So the people at the king's court said to him, "Mordecai, why don't you obey the king's command?" 4 Day after day they tried to speak to him, but he didn't listen to them. So they let Haman know that Mordecai was disregarding the king's order. Earlier Mordecai had explained to them that he was a Jew. 5 When Haman himself became aware that Mordecai didn't kneel or bow down to him, he became very angry. 6 So he planned to wipe out all the Jews throughout the whole kingdom of Artaxerxes.
7 He made a decision in the twelfth year of Artaxerxes' rule, and he threw lots to determine the day and month on which Mordecai's people would be destroyed in a single day. The lot fell on the fourteenth[l] day of the twelfth month, that is, the month of Adar.[m]

8 Then Haman said to King Artaxerxes, "A certain group of people exist in pockets among the other peoples throughout your kingdom. Their laws are different from those of everyone else, and they refuse to obey the king's laws. It is against the king's interests to put up with them any longer. 9 If the king wishes, perhaps a written order could be sent out that they should be destroyed, and I will contribute ten thousand big sacks[n] of silver to the king's treasury."

[10]The king removed his royal ring from his finger and handed it to Haman to put a seal on the orders he would write against the Jews. [11]The king said to Haman, "Keep the silver. Do as you wish to the people."

[12]So in the first month, on the thirteenth day, royal scribes were summoned to write down everything that Haman ordered in the name of King Artaxerxes. The orders were sent out to the governors and rulers in charge of each province, from India to Ethiopia, to one hundred twenty-seven regions in their own language. [13]Fast runners carried the order throughout Artaxerxes' kingdom. The order commanded people to wipe out all the Jews on a single day of the twelfth month, the month called Adar, and to seize their property.

Addition B

Artaxerxes' decree

Esther B The following is a copy of the letter:

The Great King Artaxerxes writes as follows to the governors of the one hundred twenty-seven provinces from India to Ethiopia, and to the district governors subject to them:

[2]I rule over many nations and have conquered the whole world. Nevertheless, I am not carelessly driven by power; rather, I have always conducted my affairs with moderation and gentleness. I am committed to providing a calm and stable environment for my subjects, and to restore the peace that all people desire. In this way, the kingdom will be at peace and safe for travel throughout its borders.

[3]I have, therefore, asked my advisors how this might be accomplished. Haman stands out among us for his moderation. He has demonstrated goodwill and firm loyalty in equal measure, and has attained the second-highest honor in the kingdom. [4]He pointed out to us that there is a certain hostile group scattered among all the peoples of the world. These people are at odds with every nation because of their peculiar laws. They constantly ignore the king's decrees, so that the government, although well managed by us, is never secure. [5]We see that this nation stands alone in its constant hostility toward everyone. They follow a strange manner of life because of their law code, and they don't think well of our actions. They carry out the worst evils so that the kingdom is not at peace.

6We have therefore commanded that this people--pointed out to you in the letters written by Haman, who has been appointed over the government and is like a second father to us--should be destroyed one and all by the swords of their enemies, without pity or restraint. Their wives and children should also be destroyed, all on the fourteenth day of the twelfth month, Adar,[o] in the current year. 7In this way, these people who have always been hostile to us, and remain so, will all go straight to the grave in a single day. Then our affairs will be stable and peaceful.

14Copies of the order were posted in each region, and the people were to be ready for this day. 15The matter proceeded quickly and became public in the city of Susa almost immediately. While the king and Haman got drunk together, the city of Susa was full of unrest.

A crisis for the Jews

Esther 4 When Mordecai learned what was going on, he tore his clothes, dressed in mourning clothes, and put ashes on his head. Then he went out into the heart of the city and cried out loudly, "An innocent nation is being destroyed."2He went only as far as the king's gate and stood there because it was against the law for anyone to pass through it wearing mourning clothes and ashes. 3In every region wherever the orders were posted, the Jews gave themselves over to crying and wailing out loud. They clothed themselves in mourning clothes and ashes. 4When Esther's female servants and eunuchs came and told her, the queen was noticeably shaken after hearing the news. She sent someone to clothe Mordecai in regular clothes instead of mourning clothes, but he couldn't be persuaded.

5Esther then sent for Hathach[p] the royal eunuch who served her. She sent him to discover from Mordecai what was going on.[q] 7Mordecai told him everything that had happened, how Haman had promised to contribute ten thousand sacks[r] of silver to the royal treasury in exchange for the destruction of the Jews. 8He also gave Hathach a copy of the king's order made public in Susa concerning the Jews' destruction so that Hathach could show it to Esther. Through him, Mordecai ordered her to go to the king to beg his help for her people:

"Remember your more humble days when I raised you. Haman, a leader second to the king, has spoken against us to put us to death. Call on the Lord now and speak to the king about us. Deliver us from death!"

9Hathach came back and told Esther what Mordecai had said. 10In reply Esther ordered Hathach to tell Mordecai: 11"All the nations of the empire know that there is no deliverance for the man or woman who approaches the king in the inner court without an invitation. Only the person to whom the king holds out the gold scepter will be safe. In my case, I haven't been called to come to the king for the past thirty days."

12When Hathach told Esther's words to Mordecai, 13he responded, "Go and tell Esther, 'Don't think for one minute that, unlike all the other Jews, you alone will be safe. 14If you don't speak up at this very important time, relief and protection will appear for the Jews from another place, but you and your family will die. Who knows? Maybe it was for a moment like this that you were made queen.'"

15Esther sent back word to Mordecai: 16"Go, gather all the Jews who are in Susa and tell them to fast from eating for my sake. They aren't to eat or drink anything for three whole days, and I myself will do the same, along with my female servants. Then, even though it's against the law, I will go to the king, even if it means my death."17So Mordecai left and did exactly what Esther had ordered him.

Mordecai and Esther pray for deliverance

Esther C Then, calling to mind all the works of the Lord, Mordecai pleaded with the Lord, 2saying, "Lord, Lord, you are the king who rules over all things. The universe is in your power, and there is no one to stop you when you have resolved to save Israel. 3You made the heavens and the earth, and everything that is wonderful under heaven. 4You are Lord of all, and there is no one who will oppose you, Lord.

5"You know all things. You know, Lord, that it wasn't out of disrespect, pride, or self-importance that I didn't bow down before proud Haman. 6To save

Israel, I would have been glad to kiss the soles of his feet. [7]Rather, I did this to avoid setting the honor of any human being above God's honor. I won't bow down before anyone except you, my Lord. Nor will I do these things out of pride.

[8]"Now, Lord God, King, God of Abraham, spare your people, because the enemy seeks our ruin. They desire to destroy what has been your possession from the beginning. [9]Don't neglect your people, whom you delivered out of Egypt. [10]Listen to my appeal, and have mercy on the people who are your lot. Turn our mourning into feasting, that we might live and sing praises to your name, Lord. Don't silence the voice of those who praise you."

[12]Queen Esther, overcome by this contest with death, turned to the Lord for protection. [13]She took off her royal garments and put on mourning clothes. Instead of the finest spices, she smeared her head and body with ashes and dung, and humbled herself. Each place she had once joyfully beautified, she now covered with her tangled hair.

[14]Then she begged the Lord God of Israel: "My Lord, you alone are our king. Help me! I have no one to help me but you, [15]and I am in great danger now. [16]From my birth, Lord, I have heard how you chose Israel from among the rest of the nations, and our fathers from their ancestors, to be an everlasting inheritance. I have heard how you did for them all that you had promised. [17]But now we have sinned before you, and you have delivered us into the power of our enemies [18]because we worshipped their gods. You are just, Lord. [19]Yet the enemies weren't satisfied with our bitter slavery, so they shook hands with their idols in partnership. [20]They plan to set aside the promises you made, to rob you of your inheritance, to silence those who praise you, and to stamp out the honor of your temple and your altar. [21]They want to open the mouths of the nations to praise the wonderful deeds of useless idols[s] so that a human king might be honored forever.

example of the one who started this against us. [23]Remember us, Lord, and reveal yourself in the time of our distress. Give me courage, king of the gods and ruler of every authority. [24]When I speak, let my words be persuasive before the lion, and turn the king's heart to hatred toward the one who is fighting against us, to bring his life to an end along with those who agree with him. [25]Deliver us by your actions, and help me, I who am alone and have no one except you, Lord.

"You know all things. [26]You know that I hate the honor of those who don't follow your Law. I detest sharing the bed of this uncircumcised king or indeed of any foreigner. [27]You know my trouble: I hate the crown[t] that is on my head when I appear in public. I despise it as I would a menstrual rag, and I don't wear it when I am in private. [28]I, your servant, didn't dine at Haman's table. Nor did I honor the king's banquet or drink wine that had been offered to the gods. [29]From the day of my crowning until now, your servant hasn't had any joy except in you, Lord, God of Abraham. [30]All-powerful God, listen to the voice of those who despair, and deliver us from the hands of those who do wrong, and deliver me from my fear!"

Addition D

Esther appears before the king

Esther D On the third day, when she had finished praying, she removed her mourning clothes and put on her royal robes. [2]Calling on the all-seeing God and savior, she appeared in full view of the court. She took along with her two female servants, [3]delicately leaning on the one, [4]while the other followed behind, carrying her train.

[6]When she had passed through all the doors, she stood in the presence of the king. He was seated on his royal throne, clothed in all his majesty--all in gold and precious stones--and was terrifying. [7]He lifted his face, which blazed gloriously, about to explode in anger, and looked at her. The queen collapsed. Her color turned pale, and she fell face forward onto the female servant who was walking ahead of her.

[8]Then God changed the king's spirit to tenderness. He leaped anxiously from his throne, and took her up in his arms until she was calm. He tried to comfort her with reassuring words, [9]saying to her: "What is it, Esther? I'm your brother.[u] Take heart![10]You won't die, for the order only holds for ordinary people. [11]Come with me!"[12]He then lifted his gold scepter and placed it on her neck. He embraced her and said: "Speak to me."

[13]She said to him, "I saw you, Master, as if you were one of God's angels, and my heart was struck with terror at the sight of your glory. [14]You inspire awe, Master, and your face is full of divine grace."[v] [15]But while she was speaking, she collapsed again. The king was distressed, and all his servants tried to comfort her.

Esther acts

[3][w] Then the king said to her, "What is it, Queen Esther? What do you want? I'll give you anything--even half the kingdom."

[4]Esther answered, "Today is a special day for me. If the king wishes, please come today with Haman for a special dinner that I will prepare."

[5]"Hurry, get Haman," the king ordered, "so we can do what Esther says." So the king and Haman came to the dinner that Esther spoke about. [6]As they sipped wine, the king asked, "Now, what is it you wish, Queen Esther? I'll give it to you, if you just ask."

[7]Esther answered, "This is my wish and this is what I want:[8]If I have pleased the king, I'd like the king and Haman to come tomorrow to another special dinner that I will prepare for them. Tomorrow I will prepare the same things."

Haman boasts, complains, and acts

[9]That day Haman left the king's court happy and in high spirits. But when he saw Mordecai in the king's gate, Haman became very angry. [10]Haman went on home and called for his friends and his wife Zeresh. [11]Haman told them about his wealth and the great honor the king had given him by promoting him to the highest office in the kingdom. [12]Haman said, "Queen Esther has invited no one else but me to join the king for dinner, and I'm supposed to go tomorrow![13]But none of this gives me any pleasure as long as I see Mordecai the Jew sitting at the king's gate."

[14]So his wife Zeresh and all his friends told him, "Order preparation of a pole that is seventy-five feet high. In the morning, speak with the king about having Mordecai impaled on it. Then you can go with the king to the feast in a happy mood." Haman liked the idea and had the pole prepared.

Honor for Mordecai

Esther 6 That same night, the king simply couldn't sleep. He told his secretary to bring the official records and to read them to him. [2]He came across the report about Mordecai, how he had informed the king about the two royal eunuchs who were planning to assault the king while on guard duty. [3]"What did we do to honor or show favor to Mordecai for this?" the king asked.

His servants replied, "You have done nothing for him."

[4]While the king was asking about the goodwill that Mordecai had displayed, Haman showed up in the courtyard. The king asked, "Who is that out in the courtyard?" Haman had come to speak with the king about impaling Mordecai on the pole that he had set up for him.

[5]The king's servants answered, "That's Haman standing out in the courtyard."

So the king said, "Call him in."

[6]The king asked Haman, "What should I do for a person whom I really want to honor?"

Haman thought to himself, Whom would the king really want to honor, except me? [7]So Haman said to the king, "Regarding the person whom the king really wants to honor,[8]have your servants bring out a fine linen robe that the king himself has worn and a horse on which the king himself has ridden. [9]Have one of your most honored officials place the robe upon the person whom the king so loves, and let him help that person mount the horse. Have him shout through the city streets, 'This is what the king does for the person the king honors!'"

10 Then the king said to Haman, "Do all that you said for Mordecai the Jew who serves at the king's gate. Don't leave out a single thing that you've said!"

11 So Haman took the robe and the horse and put the robe on Mordecai. He led him on horseback through the city square, shouting, "This is what the king does for the person the king really wants to honor!" 12 Then Mordecai returned to the king's gate, while Haman hurried home, feeling great shame, his head covered.
13 Haman told his wife Zeresh and his friends about everything that had happened to him.

Both his friends[x] and his wife said to him, "You've begun to lose face to Mordecai. If Mordecai belongs to the Judean people, and you've been humiliated before him, you will indeed fall. You will never be able to hold your own against him, because the living God is with him."

Haman's demise

14 They were still discussing this with him when several royal eunuchs arrived. They quickly hurried Haman off to the feast that Esther had prepared.

Esther 7 The king and Haman came in for the banquet with the queen.
2 On the second day of the party the king said to Esther, "What's the reason for all this? What's your purpose and your request? What do you want? I'll do it for you, even to the point of giving you half the kingdom."

3 Esther answered, "If I please the king, grant my request that my life be spared--and my petition that the lives of my people be spared as well. That's my desire, 4 because my people and I have been sold out to be killed, plundered, and enslaved--we and our children, to become slaves and female servants. The man who accuses us is not worthy to be in the king's court!"

5 The king said, "Who is this person who dares to do such a thing?"

6 Esther replied, "The enemy is this wicked Haman!"

Haman was overcome with terror in the presence of the king and the queen.
7 The king got up and left the banquet for the palace garden, and Haman began to plead with Queen Esther, because he found himself in dire straits.

[8]When the king returned from the palace garden, Haman had thrown himself upon the couch, pleading with the queen. The king said, "Will you even molest the queen in my own house?" Upon hearing this, Haman turned his face away in shame.

[9]Bugathan, one of the eunuchs, said to the king, "Look, sir! Haman even prepared a pole for Mordecai, the man who gave information about the king. It's standing at Haman's house--seventy-five feet high."

"Crucify Haman on it!" the king ordered. [10]So they hanged Haman on the pole that he had set up for Mordecai, and the king's anger went away.

Esther acts again

Esther 8 That same day King Artaxerxes gave Queen Esther everything that had belonged to Haman the accuser. Mordecai was summoned before the king because Esther told the king that he was family to her. [2]The king took the royal ring that he had removed from Haman and gave it to Mordecai. Esther put Mordecai in charge of what Haman had owned.

[3]Esther spoke further to the king. She bowed at his feet and asked him to overturn the evil plot of Haman and whatever evils he planned to do to the Jews. [4]The king held out the gold scepter to Esther, and she got up and stood before him. [5]Esther said, "If the idea seems right to the king, and if I still please him, revoke the written decrees sent out by Haman, ordering the destruction of the Jews living within your kingdom. [6]How can I bear to watch the terrible evil about to sweep over my people? And how can I be delivered from the destruction of my people?"

Mordecai writes a new law

[7]The king said to Esther, "I've given you everything Haman owned: I've favored you and impaled him on a pole because he planned to attack the Jews. [8]Write to the Jews in the king's name whatever seems best to you and seal the letters with my royal ring. Anything written in the name of the king and sealed with the king's royal ring can't be revoked."

[9]So the royal scribes were summoned on the twenty-third day of the first month (that is, the month of Nisan[y]). They wrote out Mordecai's orders regarding the Jews for the officials and governors of the provinces from India to Cush, one hundred twenty-seven in all. They wrote in the alphabet of each province and in the language of each people. [10]They wrote in the name of the king and sealed the order with the king's royal ring. They sent the letters out by messengers on horseback. [11]Mordecai ordered the Jews to live according to their own laws and to defend themselves. He allowed them to do as they wished to their attackers and opponents [12]throughout Artaxerxes' entire kingdom, on the thirteenth day of the twelfth month (that is, the month of Adar[z]).

Addition E

Artaxerxes' second decree

Esther E Written below is a copy of the letter:

The Great King Artaxerxes writes to the governors in the one hundred twenty-seven provinces from India to Ethiopia, and to those who are loyal to us. Greetings!

[2]Many people who are greatly honored, owing to the immense generosity of their benefactors, become overly ambitious. [3]Not only do they seek to harm our subjects, but they even attempt to scheme against their own benefactors since they are unable to manage their pride. [4]Not only do they fail to exhibit gratitude among people, but encouraged by the boasts of people who know nothing of goodness, they even suppose they will escape the judgment of the God who sees all. [5]Often, many people in positions of authority become accessories to the shedding of innocent blood because of the influence of friends they trusted to manage their affairs. They suffer terrible misfortunes [6]as a result of the cruel lies of those who take advantage of the innocent goodwill of rulers.

[7]Now this can be seen, not so much from older accounts that we have inherited but from what is right before your eyes.[a] Consider the ungodly things that have been done as a result of the corruption of those not worthy to hold power. [8]But looking to the future, we will make the kingdom peaceful and secure for all people, [9]adopting changes and settling those matters that come to our attention with a fair reply.

10 As for Haman, Hammedatha's son, a Macedonian, he was not Persian, and was far removed from us in kindness. Yet we warmly welcomed him. 11 He gained the goodwill that we have for every nation to such an extent that he was publicly proclaimed our father. All worshipped him as the person second only to the royal throne. 12 But when he could no longer hold his pride in check, he made it his business to rob us of our leadership and our life. 13 With lies and tricks he called for the destruction of Mordecai, our savior and constant benefactor, and Esther, our innocent partner in the kingdom, together with their whole nation. 14 He thought that, by these methods, he could render us helpless and turn the Persian Empire over to the Macedonians.

15 But we find that the Jews, whom this accursed man wanted to destroy, are not criminals but are governed by just laws. 16 They are children of the most high, most great, living God, who has guided the kingdom on the best course for us and for our ancestors.

17 You would do well, therefore, not to act on the letters sent by Haman, Hammedatha's son. 18 Haman, who devised these things, has been impaled at the gates of Susa together with his entire household. The God who holds power over all things swiftly passed this fair judgment on him. 19 And you should publish a copy of this letter in every place for all to see, to allow the Jews to live by their own customs, 20 and to assist them so that they can defend themselves against their attackers in the time of distress, on the thirteenth day of the twelfth month, Adar.[b] 21 God, who rules over all things, has made this a joyous day for his chosen line rather than one of destruction. 22 As for you, celebrate it with feasting 23 as a special holiday among your festivals so that it will be for us, and for all Persians of goodwill, a memorial of deliverance, both now and in the future. But for those who plot against us, it will be a memorial of destruction. 24 Any city or region, without exception, that does not act accordingly will be completely destroyed by fire and spear. This city will be made uninhabitable not only to humans but also to wild animals and birds for all time.

13 Let copies of this decree be displayed publicly throughout the kingdom so that all the Jews may be ready on this day to do battle with their enemies.
14 Messengers on horses sped off to do as the king said, and the law was made public in the city of Susa.

15 Mordecai went out dressed in a royal robe, wearing a gold crown and a turban made of purple linen. The people of Susa rejoiced to see him, 16 and light and gladness came to the Jews. 17 In every city and region--wherever the king's order was posted and the decree proclaimed--the Jews had happiness and joy, feasts and a holiday. Many of the Gentiles had themselves circumcised and became Jews themselves, out of fear of the Jews.

The fateful day

Esther 9 On the thirteenth day of the twelfth month (that is, the month of Adar[c]), the letters written by the king were to be enforced. 2 On that day, the Jews' enemies perished. Out of fear for the Jews, no one stood in their way. 3 All the leaders of the provinces, the governors, and those in charge of the king's business respected the Jews. They were afraid of Mordecai, 4 because the king decreed that Mordecai's name was to be honored throughout the kingdom.[d] 6 In the city of Susa, the Jews killed five hundred people. 7 They also killed Parshandatha, Dalphon, Aspatha, 8 Poratha, Adalia, Aridatha, 9 Parmashta, Arisai, Aridai, and Vaizatha, 10 and they plundered their houses. These were the ten sons of Haman the enemy of the Jews, the son of Hammedatha, a Bougaean.

11 That same day, a report concerning the number killed in Susa reached the king that it was five hundred people. 12 So the king said to Esther in the city of Susa, "The Jews have killed five hundred people in Susa as well as the ten sons of Haman. What have they done in the rest of the royal provinces? What more do you wish now? I'll give it to you."

13 Esther said to the king, "Give the Jews leave to do likewise tomorrow so that they may hang Haman's ten sons." 14 The king ordered that this be done, and he allowed the Jews in the city to hang the bodies of Haman's ten sons.

15 The Jews in Susa joined together again on the fourteenth day of Adar.[e] They killed three hundred people, but they didn't take anything the people owned.
16 The rest of the Jews throughout the kingdom also came together and helped each other. They found rest from their enemies, for they had destroyed fifteen thousand of them on the thirteenth of Adar, and they didn't take anything their enemies owned. 17 They rested on the fourteenth day of the same month. They spent it as a day of rest, with joy and celebration. 18 The Jews in Susa joined together for self-defense on the fourteenth day and did not rest. But they rested on the fifteenth day with joy and celebration. [19]This is why Jews out in the country celebrate the fourteenth of Adar as a holiday, sending gifts of food to their neighbors, but those who live in the big cities celebrate the fifteenth of Adar as a holiday, sending gifts of food to their neighbors.

[20]Mordecai wrote these things down in a scroll and sent copies to the Jews throughout Artaxerxes' kingdom, both near and far away. [21]He made it a rule that Jews keep the fourteenth and fifteenth days of Adar[f] as special days each and every year. [22]They are the days on which the Jews found rest from their enemies. The whole of Adar, the month in which sadness was turned into joy and mournful weeping into a holiday, was to be celebrated as a special time for weddings, for parties, and for sending gifts of food to friends and to the poor.

[23]The Jews accepted what Mordecai had written to them--[24]how Haman, Hammedatha's son, the Macedonian, declared war on the Jews, how he made an edict and cast lots to destroy them, [25]and how he went to the king to have Mordecai impaled. But whatever evils Haman tried to bring upon the Jews turned back on him instead, and he and his sons ended up impaled. [26]This is why people call these days Purim--on account of the lots, which are called purim in the Hebrew language. Mordecai established the festival on the basis of the contents of this letter, on the basis of what the Jews suffered because of all these events, and on the basis of how it all turned out for them. [27]The Jews took it upon themselves, their children, grandchildren, and great-grandchildren, as well as all non-Jews who become Jews, to celebrate these two days[g] and never do otherwise. These days are a commemoration to be observed generation after generation in every city, land, and region. [28]These days of Purim will be observed for all time, and the events they commemorate will never be forgotten.

[29]Queen Esther, Aminadab's daughter, along with Mordecai the Jew, wrote about all they had done and confirmed the letter about Purim.[h] [31]Mordecai and Queen Esther established this ruling by their own authority, at the same time that they secured their own well-being and plan.[i] [32]Esther's order made this decree binding for all time, and it was written down for posterity.

The fame of Artaxerxes and Mordecai

Esther 10 The king instituted a toll on all the land and sea routes of his kingdom.[j] 2 His strength and courage, wealth and fame, are all recorded for posterity in the official records of the Persian and Median kings.

3 Mordecai was second only to King Artaxerxes, and he was a great man in the kingdom. He was held in honor by all the Jews and loved by his whole nation for his conduct.

Mordecai interprets his dream

Esther F Mordecai said, "These things came from God. 2 I remember the dream that I had about these things. Not one aspect of it failed to come true.
3 There was the little spring that became a great river, and there were light and the sun and an abundance of water. The river is Esther, whom the king married and made queen. 4 The two dragons are Haman and myself. 5 The nations are those who gathered to wipe out the very name of the Jews.

6 "As for my nation Israel, it cried out to God and was saved. The Lord saved his people, and the Lord delivered us from all these evils. God has done signs and great wonders that have not happened among the nations. 7 For this reason God made two lots, one to represent God's people and one to represent the nations. 8 These two lots came before God for the hour and season and day of decision in the presence of all the nations. 9 God remembered his people and affirmed the just cause of his inheritance.

10 "The fourteenth and fifteenth days of the month of Adar[k] will be observed among God's people Israel with a gathering, with joy and feasting in the presence of God, from generation to generation forever."

11 In the fourth year of the rule of Ptolemy and Cleopatra, Dositheus, who affirmed that he was a priest and Levite, and his son Ptolemy brought the preceding letter concerning Purim. They verified its genuineness. Lysimachus, Ptolemy's son, a resident of Jerusalem, translated the letter.

Seek wisdom and justice

Wisdom of Solomon 1

You who judge the earth, love what is right.
Set your mind on the Lord in goodness. Seek him with a sincere heart.

2 Those who don't put the Lord to the test will find him. He makes himself known to those who trust him. 3 Perverse reasoning separates people from God.
His power exposes the foolish people who test him.

4 Wisdom will avoid a deceptive soul that plans evil. Wisdom won't make her home in a body that is devoted to sin. 5 A holy, instructive spirit will flee deceit and leave when ignorant people start to plot. It is ashamed to be found in the presence of wrongdoing. 6 Wisdom is a spirit that wants only what is best for humans.

Wisdom won't declare blasphemers to be innocent because their own words convict them. God is witness to their thoughts. Truth examines the heart and hears what is said. 7 The Lord's Spirit fills the whole world. It holds everything together and knows what everyone says. 8 Therefore, those who utter unjust words don't escape notice. Justice will expose them and not pass them by. 9 A proper inquiry will be made into the plots of ungodly people. News of their words will reach the Lord and make their lawless deeds known. 10 God's ear listens intently to everything anyone says. Murmurings can't be kept secret for long. 11 So guard against useless murmuring. Keep your tongue from speaking ill.
Everything you say has some consequence, even if you think that you are speaking in private. A lying mouth destroys the soul.

12 Don't seek death through the error of your ways. Don't invite destruction on yourself by what you do. 13 God didn't make death. God takes no delight in the ruin of anything that lives. 14 God created everything so that it might exist. The creative forces at work in the cosmos are life-giving. There is no destructive poison in them. The underworld[a] doesn't rule on earth. 15 Doing what is right means living forever.

The deluded reasoning of unrighteous people

16 In spite of this, the ungodly called out to death by what they did and said.
Thinking that death was their friend, they lost their resolve and made a treaty with death. Let them have each other: death and the ungodly belong together!

Wisdom of Solomon 2 By reasoning in their twisted way, the ungodly said: Our lives are short and painful. There is no antidote for death; no one has come back from the grave. 2 All of us came into being by chance. When our lives are over, it will be just as if we had never been. The breath in our nostrils is mere smoke. Reason is just a spark in the beating of our hearts. 3 When that spark is extinguished, the body will be turned into ashes. The spirit will evaporate into thin air. 4 Over time, our names will be forgotten. No one will remember our deeds. Our lives will pass away like the last wisps of a cloud. Our lives will be dispersed like a morning mist chased away by the sun and weighed down by the day's heat. 5 Our time here is like a shadow passing by. There's no turning back from death. It has been sealed, and no one will alter it.

6 Come then! Let's enjoy all the good things of life now. Let's enjoy creation to the fullest as we did in our youth. 7 Let's drink our fill of expensive wines and enjoy fine perfumes. Let's pluck every fresh blossom of spring as we pass by.
8 Let's crown ourselves with rosebuds before they wither. 9 Let's make sure that no meadow is left untouched by our high-spirited fun. Let's leave evidence everywhere that we made the most of this life, because this life is all we have.

10 Let's take advantage of the day laborer who does what's right. Let's not be afraid to abuse the widow. Let's show that we couldn't care less for the gray hair of our elders. 11 May strength be our only law and determine what's right, for it's clear to us that what is weak is worthless.

12 Let's lie in ambush for the one who does what is right. He's a nuisance to us.
He always opposes our actions. He blames us because we have failed to keep the Law. He condemns us for turning our backs on our upbringing. 13 He boasts of his knowledge of God. He even calls himself the Lord's servant.[b] 14 He exposes our secret plans. Just to look at him makes us sick. 15 His life isn't like the lives of others. His ways are completely different. [16]He thinks we're frauds. He avoids us and our actions as though we're unclean. Instead, he blesses the final days of those who do what's right. He even boasts that God is his Father.

[17]Let's see if his words are true. Let's put him to the extreme test and see what happens. [18]If this man who does the right thing is indeed God's son, then God will assist him. God will rescue him from the hand of those who oppress him. [19]Let's test him by assaulting and torturing him. Then we will know just how good he really is. Let's test his ability to endure pain. [20]Let's condemn him to a disgraceful death: according to him, God should show up to protect him.

[21]This was how the ungodly reasoned, but they were mistaken. Their malice completely blinded them. [22]They didn't know of God's secret plan. They didn't hope for the reward that holiness brings. They didn't consider the prize they would win if they kept their whole beings free from stain. [23]God created humans to live forever. He made them as a perfect representation of his own unique identity. [24]Death entered the universe only through the devil's envy. Those who belong to the devil's party experience death.[c]

Reward and punishment after death

Wisdom of Solomon 3 The souls of those who do what is right are in God's hand. They won't feel the pain of torment. [2]To those who don't know any better, it seems as if they have died. Their departure from this life was considered their misfortune. [3]Their leaving us seemed to be their destruction, but in reality they are at peace. [4]It may look to others as if they have been punished, but they have the hope of living forever. [5]They were disciplined a little, but they will be rewarded with abundant good things, because God tested them and found that they deserve to be with him. [6]He tested them like gold in the furnace; he accepted them like an entirely burned offering. [7]Then, when the time comes for judgment, the godly will burst forth and run about like fiery sparks among dry straw. [8]The godly will judge nations and hold power over peoples, even as the Lord will rule over them forever. [9]Those who trust in the Lord will know the truth. Those who are faithful will always be with him in love. Favor and mercy belong to the holy ones. God watches over God's chosen ones.

[10]The ungodly will get what their evil thinking deserves. They had no regard for the one who did what was right, and instead, they rose up against the Lord.
[11]Those who have contempt for wisdom and instruction will be miserable.
People like this have no hope. Their work won't amount to anything. Their actions will be worthless. [12]They will marry foolish people. Their children will be wicked. Their whole family line will be cursed.

[13]What a contrast to the barren woman who has kept herself pure, who hasn't had sex with another in sin. She will be blessed. When God inspects entire lives, she will bear fruit. [14]Even the eunuch who doesn't break the Law with his hands and doesn't think evil thoughts against the Lord will receive a precious gift for his fidelity and a special place in the Lord's temple. [15]Everyone will praise the fruit of good work. Good sense is a root that never withers.

[16]The children of adulterers, however, will come to nothing. The seed of people who have sex with others in violation of the Law will dry up. [17]Even if they live to old age, their lives won't amount to anything. In their old age they will have no honor. [18]If they die young, they will have no hope or comfort on Judgment Day. [19]The family line of those who don't do what is right will come to a bad end.

Wisdom of Solomon 4

It's better to be virtuous but childless. Virtue is what will be remembered, and this means immortality. Virtue is recognized by both God and humans. [2]When humans find virtue in their midst, they imitate it.
When virtue is gone, they long for its return. In every age, virtue wins the contest in which the prizes are unstained. It wears the victory crown, riding in triumph in the victory parade.

[3]Even though the ungodly have many children, none of them will amount to anything. Those bastard saplings will never put their roots down deep or be firmly established. [4]They may shoot up for a time like trees with lots of new branches, but the wind will shake them with ease, and the wind's force will uproot the whole tree. [5]Even before the twigs have had a chance to bud, they will be broken off. Their fruit will be useless. It will never ripen and be fit to eat. It'll be good for absolutely nothing. [6]Children born of sex outside the bounds of the Law will be called as witnesses against their parents' illicit sex when the time for judgment comes.

[7]In contrast, those who have done what is right will be at rest, even if they die an early death. [8]Those who are old aren't honorable simply because time has passed. Old age isn't measured by counting up a person's years. [9]Wisdom and a spotless life are the marks of honorable maturity. [10]There was a man who pleased God, was loved by God, and was taken away from living in the midst of sinners. [11]He was snatched away so that evil didn't pervert his understanding and so that deception didn't corrupt his soul. [12]Envying what is worthless blinds people to what is good, and the whirlwind of desire undermines an innocent mind.

[13]Those who do what's right are quickly perfected and live a long life in a short span of time. [14]They are whisked away from the wickedness that surrounds them because their whole beings are pleasing to the Lord. People around them see this, but they don't understand. It doesn't sink in [15]that favor and mercy rest upon God's chosen ones, and that God watches over his holy ones.

[16]So the dead who did what's right will condemn the ungodly who are still alive, and someone who dies young will condemn the old person who has lived many years but hasn't done what is right. [17]People will see the death of the wise, but they won't understand the Lord's purposes for them, nor to what end the Lord kept them safe. [18]Instead, they will laugh at what they see. In the end, however, the Lord will have the last laugh on them. [19]Then they will be no better than mutilated corpses, a scandal to the rest of the dead forever. The Lord will crush them and leave them lying there speechless. He will shake them from their very foundations. They will waste away in agony. Their memory will be wiped out. [20]They will cower when their sins are counted up. Their lawless deeds will witness against them and convict them.

Wisdom of Solomon 5 Then the one who did do what was right will stand up with full confidence in the very midst of those who caused his suffering and made light of his distress. [2]They will tremble with great fear when they see him. They will be amazed that he was delivered so unexpectedly. [3]They will sing a different tune as they gasp and say to themselves: [4]He's the one we mocked?! He's the one we insulted? What idiots we were! We thought his life was madness and his death a disgrace. [5]How is it that he's now counted among God's children? How is it that he's now considered one of the saints?

[6]Clearly we were the ones who missed the way to truth. The light that would have shown us the right thing to do hasn't shone for us. That sun didn't rise upon us. [7]We got entangled in lawlessness and destruction. We wandered through desolate wildernesses. We didn't know the Lord's way.

[8]What good did our pride do us? What good were our wealth and pretension? [9]These things have all passed away like a shadow. They're gone like old news. [10]They're gone like a ship passing through a storm-tossed sea: once it has passed, it leaves no trace of its passing; its keel leaves no lasting mark on the waves. [11]That's all disappeared in the way a bird flies through the air and leaves no hint of its path: it beats its wings against the thin air, dives with a rush, uses its wings to circle round--yet afterward there's no sign in the air that the bird was ever there. [12]It's all vanished like an arrow that's shot at its target: the air opens up as the arrow flies through it but immediately closes up behind the arrow, and no one can detect any trace of the arrow's path.

[13]That's us! We came into being, and almost immediately afterward, we died. We leave behind no evidence of virtue. We squandered what we had in bad living.

[14]The ungodly person's hope disappears like dust in the wind, like frost that is stripped away and scattered by a mighty wind, like smoke that rises and is immediately dispersed by the wind, like the memory of a stranger who spends the day and then is gone.

The cosmos itself will join with him to defeat those who have wandered from reason. [21]Shafts of lightning will strike with precision. They will leap from the clouds as if shot from a well-bent bow, and they will hit their target every time. [22]Showers of hail will rain down upon them as if shot from a catapult that never stops firing. The sea's waters will rage against them, and rivers will rise up and wash over them in a fury. [23]A powerful wind will blow against them and like a whirlwind, it will scatter them. Lawlessness will turn the whole earth into a desert. Evildoing will pull down the thrones of the powerful.

Rulers should seek wisdom and righteousness

Wisdom of Solomon 6 So then listen, you rulers, and understand. Learn, you who judge the far reaches of the earth. [2]Pay attention, you who have power over multitudes, you who take pride in having power over throngs of nations.

[3]The Lord gave you authority to rule. The Most High gave you your power. He will watch carefully what you do and examine everything that you are planning. [4]You are merely stewards of his kingdom. If you don't judge rightly, if you don't keep the Law, or if you don't act according to God's plan, [5]then he'll fall upon you very suddenly and very terribly. Judgment falls hard on those in high places. [6]Those who aren't important may be pardoned out of compassion, but the powerful will be powerfully examined. [7]The ruler of all won't back down from anyone. He won't show any special consideration to someone whom others consider great. The ruler of all made both the small and the great, and he regards them all in the same way. [8]But a stern judgment will fall upon the ruthless.

[9]Yes, I'm speaking to you who rule with unbridled might so that you may learn wisdom and avoid going astray. [10]Those who have treasured holy things in a holy way will themselves be made holy. Those who have been instructed in holy things will be able to offer a defense for what they have done. [11]So desire my words with all your heart. Commit yourself to them, and you will be educated.

[12]Wisdom is bright and unfading. She readily appears to those who love her. She's found by those who keep seeking after her. [13]She makes herself known even in advance to those who desire her with all their hearts. [14]Someone who awakens before dawn to look for her will find her already sitting at the door.

15Taking wisdom to heart is the way to bring your thinking to maturity. The one who can't sleep at night because he's consumed with thinking about her will soon be free from worry.

16She herself goes about looking for those who are worthy of her. She graciously makes herself known to them as they travel. She comes to them in each of the ideas that they think. 17The real beginning of wisdom is to desire instruction with all your heart. 18Love for instruction expresses itself in careful reflection. If you love Wisdom, you will keep her laws. If you are attentive to her laws, you can be assured that you will live forever. 19If you live forever, you will be near to God. 20If you desire wisdom with all your heart, you will know what good leadership is. 21So if you, who take charge over peoples, want to keep enjoying the thrones and symbols of power that you presently possess, honor wisdom so that you may rule forever.

22I'll tell you what Wisdom is and how she came into being. I won't hide these secret matters from you. I'll show you her very origins. I'll lay all that I know of her in the open. I won't skip past the truth. 23I won't be selfish or allow jealousy to make me keep this to myself, for jealousy has nothing to do with wisdom.
24The more wise people there are in the world, the more likely it is that the world will be saved. A sensible ruler gives stability to his people. 25So it will do you good to be instructed by my words.

The ruler's need for wisdom

Wisdom of Solomon 7I'm just a human like everyone else. I'm a descendant of the first person who was created out of earth. My flesh was molded into shape during the time that I was in my mother's womb. 2Over the course of ten months, I took shape from her blood, built up out of a man's seed and a night of pleasure. 3When I was born, I gulped in the same air as everyone else. I dropped out onto the same earth that all people share. I let out my first cry that was just like the sound anyone else makes. 4I was nurtured by snug clothes and good care. 5No king has ever begun life any differently. 6There's only one way into life for everyone, and only one way out as well.

7Because of this, I prayed, and the ability to reason wisely was given to me. I called out, and Wisdom's spirit came to me. [8]I chose wisdom above all the symbols of royalty and over any throne. In comparison to her, I counted riches as nothing. [9]She was more precious to me than even a priceless jewel, since all the gold in the world would be nothing more than a little sand before her. All the silver would be just like clay in her presence. [10]I loved her more than health or beauty. I chose her above sunlight itself, for her brightness never sets.

[11]Yet then I found that every other good thing also came with her, for in her hands were countless riches. [12]I rejoiced in all this because Wisdom brings them all in tow. I didn't know that she had given birth to them. [13]I learned in innocence, and I don't begrudge sharing it with you. I won't conceal her riches. [14]She's a never-ending treasure for humans. Those who possess her are ready to be God's friends, commended for the gifts that come from instruction.

[15]I pray that God will allow me to speak knowledgeably and to ponder well what God has taught me. God himself is the guide even of Wisdom, and God keeps those who already possess wisdom on the right course. [16]We're in God's hands, as are our words, all our reasoning, and all our practical knowledge. [17]He's given me accurate knowledge of all that is--of how the world is made and holds together, and of the forces at work in the world's essential elements. [18]He's given me knowledge of the beginning, end, and middle of time; of the alternation of the solstices and the changes of seasons; [19]of the cycle of the year and the positions of the stars; [20]of the nature of animals, the temperaments of beasts, the extraordinary powers of spirits, the thoughts of humans, the different types of plants, and the healing powers of roots. [21]I now know everything, visible and hidden, [22]for Wisdom, the designer of everything that is, has taught me.

Her spirit is insightful, holy, unique, diverse, refined, kinetic, pure, spotless, transparent, harmless, delighting in what is good, sharp, [23]unstoppable, overflowing with kindness, delighting in humans, steadfast, secure, not anxious, all-powerful, and all-seeing. Her spirit can be found in every spirit that is perceptive, pure, and refined. [24]Wisdom is more mobile than anything that moves. She pervades and embraces everything because she is so pure. [25]Wisdom is the warm breath of God's power. She pours forth from the all-powerful one's pure glory. Therefore, nothing impure can enter her. [26]She's the brightness that shines forth from eternal light. She's a mirror that flawlessly reflects God's activity. She's the perfect image of God's goodness. [27]She can do anything, since she's one and undivided. She never changes, and yet she makes everything new. Generation after generation, she enters souls and shapes them into God's friends and prophets. [28]God doesn't love anything as much as people who make their home with Wisdom. [29]She's more splendid than the sun and more wonderful than the arrangement of the stars. She's even brighter than sunlight, [30]for night follows day, but evil can never overcome Wisdom.

Wisdom of Solomon 8

She stands strong from one end of the world to the other. She is a marvelous governor over everything in between.

Solomon's love for wisdom

[2]From my youth, I loved her and sought her out. I sought to make her my bride. I burned within for her beauty. [3]She honors her dignified birth by sharing her life with God. The master of all loves her. [4]She knows God's secret ways and is a partner in God's works. [5]If wealth is a possession to be desired with all one's heart, what could be wealthier than Wisdom, who has given form to everything? [6]If thoughtful planning accomplishes things, who could possibly be wiser than she who designed everything that is? [7]If anyone loves to do what is right, laboring with Wisdom will produce every virtue. She trains persons to learn moderation and practical wisdom. She teaches them what is right and how to exercise courage. Nothing is more advantageous than these when it comes to human existence. [8]If someone wants to gain experience, she's the one to teach it: She knows what has been from the beginning and sees what is yet to come. She can figure out puzzles of language and resolve riddles. She knows beforehand what signs and wonders point to. She knows what will happen in time and during the seasons of the year.

[9]For these reasons, I decided to bring her to live with me. I knew that she would be a good counselor. I knew that she would be able to offer me advice when there were concerns or suffering. [10]I knew that crowds would honor me because of her and that my elders would esteem me, even though I was just a young man. [11]I knew that people would say that I had good judgment because of her. I knew that other leaders would admire me. [12]I knew that they would wait for me to speak if I had not yet spoken, and that they would praise what I had said after I had spoken. I also knew that, if I did have more to say, they would put their hands over their mouths until I had finished speaking. [13]I knew that because of her, I would gain everlasting life and that I would leave behind an everlasting memorial for those who would come after me. [14]I knew that because of her, I would be able to govern nations and that the peoples of the world would obey me. [15]I knew that even terrible tyrants would fear me once they had heard me. I knew that the common people would see that I was a good king and a courageous warrior. [16]I knew that when I entered my house, she would be there, and I would be able to rest easy, for life with her is sweet. I knew that sharing my life with her would mean that I would live a pain-free life, one full of celebration and joy.

[17]I thought all these things to myself. I reflected on them in my heart. I thought: If immortality is to be found by becoming part of Wisdom's family, [18]if dignified delight is to be found in being Wisdom's friend, if unending wealth comes through the works of her hands, if practical intelligence comes through being well acquainted with her, if fame comes through conversing with her, then I will definitely make her mine. [19]I was a clever child and had been born with a dignified attitude--[20]or, better said, because my soul was already dignified, it entered a spotless body.

[21]But I knew that there was no way I could possess Wisdom unless God gave her to me (and to know this was also a mark of intelligence!). So I came before the Lord and pleaded with him. I said with all my heart:

Wisdom of Solomon 9 God of our ancestors and Lord of mercy, you made everything by your word. [2]You gave shape to humanity through your wisdom so that humans might rule the creatures that you made, [3]so that they might govern the world by holiness and by doing what was right, and so that they might be honest in passing judgment. [4]Give me Wisdom, who sits enthroned beside you. Don't reject me, out of all your servants. [5]I'm your servant and the son of one of your servants. I'm just a weak human who will live a short life as other humans do. And I'm the least of all humans when it comes to understanding judgment and laws properly. [6]Indeed, even if somebody might be thought of as perfect, this person is nothing without your wisdom. [7]But you chose me to be king over your people and to be a judge of your sons and daughters. [8]You told me to construct a temple on your holy mountain and an altar in the city in which you had taken up residence. It was to be a copy of the holy tent that you had prepared from the beginning.

[9]You have Wisdom with you. She knows all your works. She was present with you when you were making the world. She knows what pleases you. She knows what someone needs to do to follow your commandments. [10]Send her out to me from your holy heavens. Send her from your glorious throne so that she may labor with me here and that I may learn what is pleasing to you. [11]She knows and understands everything. She'll guide me wisely in all that I do. Her great honor will guard me. [12]Then my works will be acceptable. Then I'll be able to judge your people rightly. Then I'll be worthy of my father's great throne.

[13]What human will ever know God's counsel? Who can understand what God wishes? [14]Mortals have only a weak capacity for reasoning, and our intentions are uncertain. [15]The body that is headed for destruction weighs down the soul. Our earthly container burdens our minds with cares and concerns. [16]At best, we can barely draw correct inferences concerning things we find on earth. Only after much thought and work do we come to understand what is right in front of us. Who among us then is able to examine heavenly things? [17]Who's ever known your counsel, unless you gave them wisdom and sent down your Holy Spirit from on high? [18]Only then did your ways become clear to us on earth. Only then were humans able to learn what pleases you, and were thus rescued by wisdom.

Wisdom's purpose in history

Wisdom of Solomon 10 Wisdom kept watch over the world's first-formed parent, when he alone had been created. She delivered him from his grave misstep. [2]Wisdom gave him the strength to have dominion over everything.

[3]When a wicked man disregarded Wisdom in his anger, he perished along with his desire to murder his brother. [4]Because of him, the earth was flooded.

Wisdom again came to the rescue. She took a man who did what was right and steered him straight on a vessel made of cheap wood.

5When the peoples of the world were thrown into confusion by the combined force of their wickedness, Wisdom found one who did what was right and kept him pure before God. She even kept him strong when he would have been swayed by compassion for his child.

6When the ungodly were about to be wiped out, Wisdom saved a man who did what was right. He was able to flee from the fire that descended on the five cities. 7A smoking wasteland is all that remains, witnessing to their wickedness. Plants there never produce fully formed fruit. A pillar of salt still stands there as a reminder of a faithless being. 8By trying to get along without Wisdom, they didn't recognize what was good. In doing so, they left a lasting memorial of their foolishness for everyone to see. They were unable to hide the things that led to their downfall.

13When a man who did what was right was sold into slavery, she didn't abandon him. She rescued him from sin. 14She even went down into the pit with him. She didn't forsake him when he was in chains. In the end, she obtained for him the symbol of kingly rule and authority over those who would have ruled over him. She showed that those who had accused him were liars. She gave him eternal glory.

15Wisdom rescued a holy people and a pure generation from the grip of people who were crushing them. 16She entered the soul of a man who served the Lord. She enabled him to oppose terrifying kings by means of signs and wonders. 17She rewarded the holy ones for their labors and led them along a wonderful route. She became a shelter for them by day and a flaming shower of stars by night. 18She carried them across the Red Sea[d] and led them through deep waters. 19She drowned their enemies and caused the depths to boil up over them. 20The people who did what was right then stripped the ungodly of their weapons. All together they sang hymns to your holy name, Lord. They praised your hand, which had defended and fought for them. 21Wisdom opens the mouths of those who can't speak and puts clear words on the tongues of infants.

The Nile and water from the rock

Wisdom of Solomon 11 She caused their works to prosper by the hand of the holy prophet. 2They wandered through a desert in which no one lived. They set up their tents in the midst of desolate surroundings. 3They opposed those who fought against them and defended themselves from their enemies. 4They thirsted and cried out to you. You gave them water from a sharp rock, and their thirst was quenched by liquid from that hard stone. 5When your people were in need, they were blessed with the very things that you used to punish their enemies. 6So instead of a source of fresh water, your enemies found their own flowing river to be polluted with blood and gore. It was a judgment on those who killed their own children. 7But you gave your people water in greater abundance than they could possibly imagine. 8You showed your people through their own experience of thirst how you punished their opponents.

9When your people were put to the test, you disciplined them, but you also showed mercy. But they learned from this how harshly the ungodly were tormented when you judged them. 10You disciplined your people in the same way that parents warn their children, but you examined and passed sentence on the ungodly like a strict ruler. 11Whether they were distant or close by, you still afflicted them. 12They groaned on account of their punishment and on account of the memory of the things that they had done. 13When they heard that the Hebrews were benefiting from their punishment, they perceived that it was the Lord's doing. 14They thirsted, but their thirst was so different from the thirst of those who do what is right! In the end, they stood in awe of the man they had mockingly rejected long ago because he had been set adrift and exposed.

[15]Because their foolish and wicked thoughts had led them astray to worship unthinking reptiles and worthless animals, you sent hordes of mindless creatures upon them as a punishment. [16]In this way they learned that people are punished by the very same things by which they sin. [17]Your all-powerful hand, which had brought the world into being out of formless matter, would have been more than able to send a host of bears and fierce lions against them. [18]Or they could have been met by newly created beasts that no one had ever seen before, full of rage, breathing fire, belching smoke, and shooting deadly sparks from their eyes. [19]The damage that these beasts would have been able to do would have been more than enough to wipe out your enemies. Just the sight of them would have been enough to make them die from fear! [20]Or without any of these, your enemies could have been cut down by a single breath--pursued by your justice and crushed by a powerful breath.

Digressions on divine justice

But you have set all things in right order by proportion: by measure, by number, and by weight. [21]You are indeed able at any time to carry out mighty deeds. Who could possibly withstand the strength of your arm? [22]Before you, the whole world is nothing but dust on the scale or but a drop of dew that falls to earth in the night. [23]Yet precisely because you can do all things, you show mercy to everyone. You overlook their sins, giving them a chance to change their hearts and minds. [24]You love everything that exists. You despise nothing that you have made. If you hated it, you wouldn't have created it. [25]Nothing could survive unless you had willed it. Nothing could remain unless you continued to call it into being. [26]You spare all things because all things are yours, ruler and lover of life.

Your imperishable spirit is present in all things. [2]Therefore, Lord, little by little you correct those who have gone astray. You warn them by reminding them of how they have sinned, so that they can be set free from their wickedness and believe in you. [3]You hated the people who once lived in your holy land because of the evil deeds they were doing. [4]They were casting spells and using drugs, and performed unholy rites. [5]They murdered their own children without pity! Those who were initiated into their secret rituals feasted on human flesh and blood. [6]You were determined to use our ancestors to destroy parents who kill helpless beings. [7]You did this so that the land you honored above all others might be settled in a way that God's children deserved.

[8]But you spared even these men and women when you sent wasps at the head of your army to destroy your enemies little by little. [9]It's not that you weren't able to hand the ungodly over to the righteous or because you weren't able to wipe out the ungodly from the face of the earth all at once by fierce beasts or with a powerful word. [10]You were judging them little by little to give them an opportunity to change their hearts and minds. You did so even though you knew full well that they were wicked from their birth, that their natural inclination was to evil, and that they would never change their minds. [11]Their genetic character[e] was cursed from the start. You didn't grant them immunity for their sins out of concern for anyone's opinion.

[12]After all, who will question what you have done? Who will oppose your decision? Who will accuse you of destroying peoples that you yourself created? Who will come and stand before you as the champion of those who have done wrong? [13]There's no god, other than you, caring for everyone. There's no one to whom you must prove that your judgments are right. [14]There's no king or ruler who's able to challenge you concerning those whom you punished. [15]You always do what's right. You've always governed all things correctly. You'd consider it a crime against yourself to destroy someone who didn't deserve to be cut down. [16]Your strength is the very origin of doing the right thing. Because you rule over all, you spare all. [17]You show your strength to those who doubt how powerful you really are. You condemn the pride of those who should know better than to doubt you.

[18]Still, though you rule absolutely, you exercise careful judgment. You govern us with amazing restraint. If you wanted to, you could do anything you wished. [19]By your actions, you taught your people that those who do what is right must always want what is best for others. Your sons and daughters saw that you give to those who have sinned a chance to change their hearts and minds. In this way you encouraged them. [20]They knew if you gave their enemies the opportunity to free themselves from evil, punishing them with such care, and even letting them go free when they clearly deserved death, [21]how much more care would you exercise in judging your children, to whose fathers you had given such rich promises by means of solemn pledges and covenants? [22]While you are disciplining us, you scourge our enemies ten thousand times as much, in order that we may keep your goodness in mind when we ourselves are passing judgment. And you teach us that when we ourselves are judged, we should expect your mercy.

[23]It was for this reason that you tortured those who lived foolish and unjust lives through their own disgusting offenses. [24]They wandered far even from the normal ways in which people err! They took horrible things to be gods, the worst forms of animal life. They were deceived like foolish children. [25]So you sent your judgment upon them to mock them, treating them as if they were in fact mindless children. [26]The ones who weren't brought back to their senses by this mocking judgment would experience the just judgment of God. [27]They were plagued by the very things they once took to be gods, and came to hate them.

In the end, they recognized that you, whom they had so long denied to be God, were in fact God. It was then that the full weight of judgment fell upon them.

[1]All humans who don't know God are empty-headed by nature. In spite of the good things that can be seen, they were somehow unable to know the one who truly is. Though they were fascinated by what he had made, they were unable to recognize the maker of everything. [2]Instead, they thought that all these things--fire or wind or quickly moving air or a constellation of stars or rippling water or the sky's bright lights that govern the world--were all gods.

[3]They should have known that all these things--which they took to be gods and delighted in--were much less beautiful than the one who rules them all. The creator of beauty itself created them. [4]Those who fear the power and might of created things should know how much more powerful than these things is the one who fashioned them. [5]These people could have perceived something of the one who created all things as they thought about the power and beauty of the things that were created. [6]It is for this reason that they're not without guilt.

Yet perhaps we shouldn't blame them too much. They may have gone astray while they were looking for God, wanting to find him. [7]They spend a lot of time exploring his works. Something about their appearance leads them to wonder, for the things that they see are indeed wonderful. [8]Even so, these persons aren't excused. [9]After all, if they were indeed able to know so much that they could speculate about space and time, how is it that they weren't able to discover the ruler of space and time more quickly?

[11]Imagine this. A woodcutter with some skill cuts down a pliable shrub. He carefully strips the outside covering of the plant and then, because he has some skill, shapes it into a tool for daily use. [12]Afterward he picks up the leftover bark that he had stripped away and uses it to cook a meal for himself. He eats his fill and [13]then picks up one of the leftover pieces of wood, one that wasn't good for anything, a crooked hard piece with broken ends where the branches had been. Having nothing else to do, he takes this piece of wood and starts carving. By a process of trial and error, he's finally able to give it a human shape, [14]or he fashions it into something that vaguely resembles some miserable creature. He covers it with red paint, giving it a rosy hue where the creature's flesh is supposed to be. He covers over every flaw in the wood. [15]Finally, he makes a perfect little shrine for it and fastens the shrine securely to the wall with a nail [16]so that it doesn't fall down. He knows full well that it can't do anything for itself. After all, it's only an image, and it requires help.

[17]In time he begins to pray to it: for his possessions, for his marriage, for his children. He's not ashamed to talk to this lifeless object. In fact, he begins to ask this fragile little creation to provide him with good health. [18]He begins to pray for his life to this lifeless object. He cries out for help to this thing that has no experience at all. He prays about a journey to a thing that can't even take a single step. [19]He asks it for wealth, for profit in his work, and for success in all he sets his hands to do--all this from something whose hands are powerless to do anything.

Wisdom of Solomon 14 Or imagine this: A man is preparing for a trip. He's about to board a ship that must sail through rough waves. So the man cries out for protection to a little piece of wood that is even more flimsy than the boat that will carry him. [2]Desire for profit led to the ship's planning, and wisdom was the artisan who built it, [3]but your watchful guidance, Father, pilots the ship. You made a way in the sea, a sure path through strong waves. [4]You have shown us that you can rescue us from anything, so that even those who have no skill can put out to sea. [5]Your will is that the works of your wisdom be fruitful. This is the only reason in the end why humans can entrust their lives to cheap pieces of wood and can reach land safely by riding the breaking surf on a ship that is no more than a raft. [6]Near the beginning, at a time when proud giants were being destroyed, the hope of the world escaped on just such a raft. This was how the genetic character[f] of a new generation survived for the world to come. They were steered the whole way by your hand. [7]Praised be the wood by means of which it has now become possible for us to do what is right!

[8]But idols made by human hands are cursed, as are those who make them. Those who make them are cursed because they make them. The idols are cursed because, though made of corruptible material, people call them gods. [9]Both are equally hateful to God: the godless craftsmen and the products of their godlessness. [10]The thing that has been produced will be punished along with the one who produced it. [11]Therefore, God will come in judgment on the nation's idols, for they have turned a part of God's creation into something that God hates. They have produced stumbling blocks for the well-being of humans, a trap set to spring when the feet of the foolish step on it. [12]The very notion of idols was the beginning of immoral sexual activity. The invention of idols ruined human life. [13]In the beginning, idols didn't exist, and they won't last forever. [14]They came into the world through the empty-headed imaginings of humans. Therefore, they'll come to a quick end.

[17]These rulers, moreover, lived far away from most of their subjects. So because the people couldn't pay their respects in person, they imagined what the ruler looked like and made an image of their honored leader. By their diligent efforts, they were thus still able to shower the king with their flattery. [18]But the artist's desire to be recognized for his work also incited the fools to an ever greater intensity of worship. [19]Perhaps out of a desire to please the person in power, the artist makes the most of his artistic skill to fashion an even more beautiful and perfect image. [20]The masses, charmed by the object's workmanship, now begin to consider the object worthy of their worship, where not long before they had only honored the person as a human being.

[21]In this way idolatry becomes a trap for one's life. Whether it is because of a father's misfortune or because people are ordered to do so, stones and plants begin to be called by the name that was never supposed to be shared with anything or anyone else.

[22]Then, as if it weren't enough that they should err concerning the knowledge of God, other things follow. When living ignorantly in the midst of great war, people call such evil things peace. [23]Then, in the celebration of secret religious ceremonies involving the ritual murder of children or in hidden mysteries or in the mad orgies of strange worship practices, [24]people stop keeping their lives and their marriages pure. Instead, one person plots to kill another by lying in ambush. Another person causes grief by becoming sexually involved with another person's spouse. [25]Everything becomes a confused mix of blood, murder, theft, and deception. Corruption, breaking one's word, upheaval, false pledges--all these things abound. [26]What is good is shouted down. Favors are forgotten. Entire beings are stained with guilt. Legitimate genealogy is lost. Marriage is thrown into confusion. Adultery and promiscuity abound.

[27]The worship of nameless idols is the origin of all evil--its cause as well as its result. [28]People begin to party so wildly that they all go mad. They prophesy lies. They live in such a way that everything they do is wrong. They bear false witness, [29]but because they have entrusted themselves into the hands of lifeless idols, they don't expect any harm to come from swearing false pledges. [30]A double judgment will hunt them down--first, because they acted wickedly toward God when they gave their attention to idols; and second, because they made solemn pledges falsely out of contempt for what was holy. [31]It isn't the power of the things by which they made these solemn pledges but justice that will pursue them until it punishes them for doing wrong.

Wisdom of Solomon 15

But you, our God, are good and true. You are very patient. You govern everything in your mercy. [2]Even if we sin, we will still belong to you because we know your power. But we won't sin, since you consider us as your own. [3]Perfection of life is to know you. To recognize your power is the root from which everlasting life grows. [4]The misguided art of humans didn't deceive us, nor did the fruitless labor of clever painters even when they created an image that was dazzling in its combination of colors.

[5]The sight of idols, however, creates desire in fools. They begin to long for a dead statue's lifeless image. [6]Those who make them, those who want them, and those who worship them are all lovers of wicked things. They all deserve to have their hopes misdirected in this way.

[7]The potters take great pains to mold the clay. They make each piece for our use. They make some containers to be used for holy purposes. Others will be used for ordinary purposes. Both pieces are made from the same clay, and both are made in the same way. But the use to which each is put is left up to the judgment of the potter. [8]The potters takes great care--but it is an evil care!--to design a useless god from the very same clay that only a moment before had come from the same earth from which the potters themselves also had been taken. It is the same earth to which the potters will one day return when their entire being's debt has to be paid back. [9]Yet the potters don't worry that they are going to come down with some terrible disease or even that they will have only a short life. Rather, they spend all their time competing with the goldsmiths and the silversmiths, imitating the bronzeworkers, and thinking it's the greatest honor imaginable that they spend their lives making counterfeit gods.

[10]Their hearts are nothing but rust. Their hopes are more useless than dirt.
Their lives are worth less than the clay they mold. [11]Why? Because the potters don't know who made them. They don't know who breathed life into them and made them move, who put a spirit in them to become a living being. [12]They think that life is just a game. They think that our day-to-day existence is just a profit-seeking carnival. As they say: "You must earn a living however you can, even if it means doing the wrong thing."[13]These people know better than anyone else that they are sinning when they give shape to equipment and images that are easily broken, because they are both fashioned from the same earthy material.

[14]But the people who are most foolish of all, and even more to be pitied than the soul of a little child, are the enemies who oppressed your people. [15]These enemies considered the nation's idols to be gods, even though these idols have no eyes for seeing, no nostrils for breathing air, no ears for hearing, no fingers for touching, and no feet for walking. [16]A mere human made them. A person who has been given his spirit on loan crafted them. But no human is ever able to fashion a god who is anything like God. [17]Being a human, a person can construct only a dead thing with lawless hands. These people are better than the things that they worship, for they have life and the things that they worship do not.

[18]On top of it all, the enemies of your people worship the most hateful animals, things that are less intelligent than any other creatures. [19]Even as animals, there's nothing appealing or beautiful about them. They have neither the praise nor the blessing of God.

Small animals and quail resumed

Wisdom of Solomon 16 Therefore, the enemies of your people deserved to be punished and tormented by swarms of the very same monsters. [2]In contrast to their punishment, you blessed your people when they were famished. You prepared for them a tasty delicacy--a feast of quail! [3]You did so in order that the enemies of your people, who were also hungry, wouldn't be able to stomach food because of the ugliness of those creatures that you had sent against them. You also did so in order that your people, who were in need only for a little while, might share in a novel meal. [4]The enemies of your people, who oppressed them like tyrants, were fated to experience a famine that never seemed to end. But all that was necessary for your people was to show them how their enemies were to be tortured.

Insects and the bronze serpent

[5]Even when the terrible fury of beasts overwhelmed your people and they were perishing from the stings of coiled serpents, your anger didn't last long. [6]They were terrified only for a little while as a warning, since they had the sign of their salvation as a reminder of the command of your Law. [7]Those who turned to that sign were saved not by what they saw but by you, the savior of all. [8]In this way, you persuaded our enemies that you are the only one who rescues people from every evil. [9]Our enemies died when they were bitten by locusts and flies. There was no healing that was able to keep them alive. They deserved to be punished by those insects. [10]Yet not even the fangs of poisonous snakes were able to overcome your children, because your mercy traveled along with them and healed them. [11]You did sting them in order to remind them of the things that you had told them. But you came to their rescue quickly so that they might not fall into a deep forgetfulness of your goodwill toward them. [12]It wasn't any herb or ointment that healed them but your word alone, Lord, which heals everything. [13]You have power over life and death. You lead people down to the gates of hell, and you bring them back up again. [14]Humans can indeed kill by their evil, but they can't bring back the life that has expired or restore the spirit that has been taken away.

[15]It is impossible to escape from your hand. [16]Even though the ungodly denied any knowledge of you, it was your strong arm that afflicted them. They were pursued by strange rainfalls that never stopped, and by hailstorms and downpours. They were pursued by a fire that consumed everything. [17]The most unusual thing about this fire was that it showed that it was stronger than water, which normally quenches any fire. Yet the universe itself comes to the defense of those who do what is right. [18]At one point the flame did die down, so that it might not destroy the creatures that had been sent but only punish them. The ungodly noticed and realized it was God's judgment that was hunting them down. [19]Then suddenly the fire flared up again, right in the midst of water, with an even greater intensity than normal fire. It destroyed the crops in a land dominated by wrongdoing.

[20]In contrast, you fed your people with the food from angels. Again and again, you provided your people with a bread that had been prepared in heaven. It was a bread that was able to satisfy anyone's longing and please anyone's taste. [21]You even showed your children your sweet side: when they ate, the bread was changed into whatever they wanted it to become! [22]And though it was like snow and snowflakes, it endured the fire, which didn't melt it. In this way, they knew that their enemies' crops had been destroyed by an unusual fire, one that blazed even in the midst of the hail and let off sparks even in the midst of the rain. [23]But in order that those who do the right thing might be fed, fire itself forgot how powerful it was. [24]Creation, which serves you, the one who made it, tenses itself in preparation for the judgment of those who have done wrong and then relaxes itself again in order to benefit those who have put their trust in you.

[25]And so it was that what was created was changed. It became a minister of your gift, completely nourishing and fulfilling the desire of those in need. [26]In this way your children, whom you love, Lord, would learn that it isn't the various kinds of crops that sustain humans, but it is your word that preserves those who trust in you. [27]As proof, what wasn't destroyed by the fire simply melted away when it was warmed by a gentle sunbeam. [28]In this way we learn that we too must arise before the sun to thank you and pray to you with the dawn of light. [29]The hope of those who don't thank God, however, will melt away like winter frost and drain away like wastewater.

Darkness and fire

Wisdom of Solomon 17 Your judgments are great and difficult to explain. This is why those who haven't been well-taught go astray. [2]When lawless people tried to oppress your holy nation, in actual fact they were the prisoners who were being held in a dark place, bound in chains through a long night. They were confined to their own homes as they vainly tried to flee from a plan that had been prepared for all eternity. [3]They thought that they could hide their sins by pulling a blanket of forgetfulness over themselves. But instead they were scattered in every direction, terrified by fear, and spooked by nightmarish visions.

[4]They hid themselves in the deepest corners of their houses, but couldn't escape from their fears. Even there they heard all around them sounds that terrified them. Mournful ghosts with gloomy faces appeared to them. [5]No fire gave them any light, nor did the stars' light shine brightly enough to illumine that horrible night. [6]Only once did anything shine through: it was a frightening fire that seemed to have a life of its own. But then, when they lost sight of that light, they were even more afraid than they had been before they had seen it! They began to realize that what they had seen was even worse than what they had thought. [7]They realized that their mocking attempts at magic were too weak and that they had no real power. It became clear to them that they had given themselves far too much credit for understanding what was happening. [8]Those who had thought they could dispel fears and free sick beings from terror became sick themselves with a laughable case of nerves. [9]Even when there was nothing around to frighten them, they were scared by the simple sounds of animals' movements and hissing serpents. [10]Trembling, they were dying with fright, shutting their eyes even against the empty air, as if they could thus avoid what was scaring them. [11]Wickedness is cowardly, condemned by its own witness. Distressed by conscience, the wicked person thinks everything is worse than it is. [12]Fear betrays our ability to help ourselves by thinking clearly. [13]Expecting the worst, people prefer to remain ignorant of the cause of their torment.

[14]The night itself was powerless, rising up from the darkest corners of a hell that didn't really exist. As they slept the same sleep, [15]monsters from their own imaginations rose up and hunted them down. They were paralyzed with fear as their spirits failed them. A sudden and unexpected fear drenched their whole being. [16]All who fell into that kind of place became like prisoners, locked up in cells without metal bars. [17]Whether they were farmers or shepherds or laborers toiling alone in the desert, the same fate overtook them all, and they were all bound in the darkness as by a single chain.

[18]Whether it was the whispering of the wind, or the sound of birds singing in the thick branches of trees, or the rhythm of rushing water, [19]or the crashing down of rocks from a high cliff, or the unseen scurrying of little animals, or the howling of the most frightening of beasts, or an echo from the valleys between the hills; whatever it was, it frightened them so much that they were completely paralyzed. [20]So while bright sunlight lit up the rest of the world, and people and things went about their ordered, active lives, [21]an oppressive night lay all around them, and around them alone. It was a sign of the darkness that was going to receive them, but they were a heavier burden to themselves than even the darkness itself.

[1]In contrast, an incredible light shone all around your holy ones. Their enemies heard their voices, but couldn't see their physical forms. They considered your holy ones fortunate, since they weren't suffering as their enemies were. [2]They were grateful that your holy ones didn't take advantage of them, even when they could have and even after they had been treated so badly. They asked forgiveness of your people for having been at odds.

[3]You provided your people with a fiery pillar to lead them on their way on the unknown journey. That pillar was like a sun, and yet that sun didn't hurt them during their long journey to a foreign land. [4]The others deserved to be robbed of light and to be locked up in darkness. After all, they had kept your children locked up, even though it was through them that the never-ending light of the Law was to be given to the world.

[5]So you swept away in judgment a huge number of the children of those who had sought to kill off your holy ones' children (though one child, who was exposed to die, was saved!). You destroyed the rest by overwhelming them with water.

[6]You had already alerted our fathers to that night well in advance. You did so in order that our fathers might rejoice and put their whole trust in the promises they had been given. [7]Your people fully expected that those who always do what is right would be delivered, while their enemies would be destroyed. [8]In the same way that you punished those who opposed your people, in just this way you called your people out of that land and gave them great honor. [9]Your holy children offered secret sacrifice of the very best that they had. They were all of one mind as they carried out the Law, which had come from God, that the holy people were to share good things as well as experience dangers together, while already singing the praises of their ancestors.

[10]In contrast, the loud moaning of their enemies was a jarring and miserable sound. It rose up and could be heard everywhere as they mourned their dead children. [11]The same judgment fell on both slave and ruler. Both were punished together. The lowest person and the king suffered the same thing. [12]Countless bodies lay around, united together by a common name: death. There weren't even enough of the living left to bury the dead! In one fleeting moment, their most valued children were destroyed. [13]Because of their misguided casting of spells and drug use, they didn't believe until it was too late.

As a result, all their oldest males were destroyed. It was only then that they acknowledged your people to be your children. [14]It was then, while everything was wrapped in a gentle silence, and half a night had already passed, [15]that your all-powerful word had leaped down from heaven, the royal throne. Like a fierce warrior, he had entered the land that was marked for destruction. [16]He carried with him your unchanging declaration like a sharp sword. He stood up and filled everything with death; he reached the sky while still standing on the ground. [17]Immediately the visions of their nightmares shook them. Unexpected fears assaulted them. [18]One here, then another there, fell to the ground half-dead. They shouted out to tell those around them why they were dying. [19]The dreams that had so bothered them had foretold that this was to happen. And so they perished knowing full well why they were suffering.

[20]Those who did what is right were also touched by a test of death when many fell in the desert. But that wrath didn't last long, [21]because a man in whom no blame could be found was already running to join the fight. He took up prayer and the reconciling incense as his weapons. He stood strong against the fury. In doing so, he limited the damage that was done. He showed that he was your servant. [22]He overcame divine anger not by bodily strength or by the power of weapons. He subdued the punisher by the word. He reminded him of the solemn pledges that had been made to our ancestors and of the covenants that had been given to them. [23]The dead already lay fallen one upon another in heaps when he stood between the punisher and the people and stopped the assault. He cut off the punisher's access to the living. [24]On his long robe could be seen the whole of the universe. On the four rows of carved stones were the glories of the patriarchs. On the royal crown upon his head was your majesty. [25]The destroyer yielded to all these, because he feared them.

Death and salvation at the Reed Sea

This one experience of wrath was sufficient for them, Wisdom of Solomon 19but anger without mercy assaulted the ungodly right up to the very end. God knew before they did what was yet to come: how, [2]after agreeing to send your people away, and in fact sending them away in haste, their enemies would change their minds and pursue them. [3]And so, even as they still held in their arms those whom they mourned and even as they still raised up their laments at the graves of their dead, another thoughtless plan occurred to them. They decided to pursue those who had fled even after they had agreed to their request to send them away. [4]A fate they fully deserved drew them to this inevitable decision and made them forget about all the things that had so recently happened to them. All this took place so that they might complete the one punishment lacking in their sufferings.

5So at the same time as your people began an incredible journey, their enemies found a strange death. 6The whole creation began to take on a new shape in its very nature. It once again submitted to your commands so that your children might be kept unharmed. 7A cloud appeared, casting its shadow over their camp. Dry land appeared where before there had been only water. It presented them an open path through the Red Sea,[g] a grassy plain where before there had been only violent surf. 8Those who were protected by your hand passed through as a single nation, seeing amazing wonders. 9They were like horses ranging about and like lambs skipping along. They praised you, Lord, for you were rescuing them. 10They remembered all that had happened in the foreign land in which they had lived so long. They remembered how the ground had brought forth insects instead of livestock. They remembered how the river had vomited up frogs instead of its normal wildlife. 11Later, driven by hunger, they requested meat and found a new breed of bird. 12Quail arose from the sea to nourish them.

18If we are careful to observe events, we can see just how the elements of the universe are transformed. It's the same transformation that happens when someone changes the sounds that a harp makes by changing the key while continuing to play the same melody. 19In this way, land animals were changed into underwater creatures, while animals that swam in the waters now moved onto the land. [20]Fire was able to burn on the open water, while water forgot that it was supposed to put fire out. [21]Flames no longer burned the exposed flesh of living beings, who were able to walk through the flames. Flames didn't even melt the frostlike crystals that were a kind of food of everlasting life.

God is faithful

[22]In every way, Lord, you have made your people great and given them great honor. You never neglected them, but you stood by them in every time and place.

Sirach

Prologue

Sirach 0 Numerous and wonderful things have been given to us through the Law, the Prophets, [2]and the other writings that followed them. [3]For this reason, it is necessary to praise Israel for education and wisdom. [4]It is also necessary not only for those who read them to gain understanding [5]but also for those who love learning to be of service to strangers [6]when they speak and write.
[7]Because of this, my grandfather, Jesus, who had devoted himself more and more [8]to the reading of the Law, [9]the Prophets, [10]and the other ancestral scrolls, [11]and had gained enough experience with them, [12]was himself led to compose a work dealing with education and wisdom. [13]His goal was that lovers of learning who were committed to education and wisdom[a] [14]should gain much more by living according to the Law.

[15]You are invited, therefore, [17]to read [16]with goodwill and attention [18]and to be forgiving [19]in cases where we seem [20]less than perfect in translating some expressions, despite working hard on the translation.

[21-22]What was originally expressed in Hebrew does not have the same power when translated into another language. [23]Not only in this case [24]but even in the case of the Law, the Prophets, [25]and the rest of the scrolls, [26]there's no small difference between the translation and their expression in their own language.

[27]In the thirty-eighth year of the rule of King Euergetes, [28]after I had arrived in Egypt and stayed awhile, [29]having found a copy of this scroll to contain no small amount of practical advice, [30]I personally made it a high priority to apply speed and hard work to translating this very scroll. [31-32]I worked skillfully and stayed up many nights [33]to bring the scroll to completion in order to publish it [34]for those living abroad, who want to become well educated, [35]preparing their character to live by the Law.

Wisdom's origins

Sirach 1 All wisdom comes from the Lord.

It lives with him forever.
2 Who can count the grains of sand in the seas,
the drops of rain,
or the days of eternity?
3 Who can discover heaven's height,
the earth's breadth,
the abyss,[b] or wisdom?
4 Wisdom was created before everything else.
Right understanding is as old as eternity.[c] 6 To whom was Wisdom's root revealed?
Who knew her wonderful feats?[d] 8 There is one who is wise, greatly feared, seated upon his throne.
9 The Lord himself created her;
he saw her; he measured her.
The Lord poured her out over everything he made,
to be with each person
to the extent that God grants, and he supplied her abundantly to those who love him.[e]

Fear of the Lord is Wisdom

11 Fear of the Lord is a person's glory, boasting, gladness, and crown of rejoicing.
12 Fear of the Lord will cheer the heart, and it will give gladness, joy,
and a long life.[f] 13 Things will go well at the end for those who fear the Lord.
They will be blessed
at the time of death.

14 Wisdom starts with fearing the Lord, and she is joined to the faithful even within the womb.
15 Wisdom built her nest among human beings as an eternal foundation, and they will entrust
their offspring to her.
16 Wisdom is fully satisfied with fearing the Lord,
and she will make people drunk
with her fruits.
17 She will fill all their houses with desirable things and fill their storehouses from her produce.
18 Fearing the Lord
is Wisdom's crowning garland, sprouting forth peace
and restorative health.[g] 19 She rained down skill and insightful knowledge, and she raised up the reputation of those who held on to her.
20 Fearing the Lord is Wisdom's root, and her branches yield a long life.[h] 22 Unjust anger won't be justified, for the tipping point of one's anger is one's downfall.
23 Patient people will hold themselves back
until the right moment,
and afterward they will be paid back with joy.
24 They will hide their words
until the right moment,
and many will talk about their good judgment.
25 There are intelligent proverbs
in Wisdom's treasuries,

but sinners avoid godliness like the plague.
[26]If you want to find Wisdom, then keep the commandments, and the Lord will supply her to you in vast quantities.
[27]Fearing the Lord brings wisdom and education.
He is pleased with faithfulness
and gentleness.
[28]Don't disobey the fear of the Lord, and don't approach him[i]
with a divided heart.
[29]Don't give people reason to call you a hypocrite, and pay attention to what you say.
[30]Don't exalt yourself, or else you might fall
and bring dishonor to yourself.
The Lord will reveal your secrets, and he will overthrow you in the middle of the congregation, because you didn't come with proper regard for the Lord and your heart was full of insincerity.

Trusting in God

Sirach 2 My child, if you come to serve the Lord, prepare yourself for testing.

[2]Set your heart straight, be steadfast, and don't act hastily in a time of distress.
[3]Hold fast to God
and don't keep your distance from him, so that you may find strength at your end.
[4]Accept whatever happens to you, and be patient

when you suffer humiliation, 5because gold is tested with fire, and acceptable people are tested in the furnace of humiliation.[j] 6Trust him, and he will help you;
make your ways straight,
and hope in him.
7You who fear the Lord, wait for his mercy, and don't turn aside
or else you might fall.
8You who fear the Lord, trust him,
and you won't lose your reward.
9You who fear the Lord,
hope for good things,
for unending joy and mercy.[k] 10Look at the people from long ago and see:
Who trusted in the Lord
and was put to shame?
Or who remained firm in godly fear and was left behind?
Or who called upon the Lord, and the Lord overlooked him?
11After all, the Lord is compassionate and merciful;
he forgives sins and rescues people in a time of hardship.
12How terrible it will be for cowardly hearts and idle hands and for a sinner who sets foot upon two paths.
13How terrible it will be for the timid heart.
Because it doesn't trust,
therefore it won't be protected.
14How terrible it will be for you who have lost your stamina.

What will you do when the Lord comes for his inspection?
15Those who fear the Lord
won't disobey his words, and those who love him
will keep his ways.
16Those who fear the Lord
will try to please him, and those who love him will be fully occupied with observing the Law.
17Those who fear the Lord
will prepare their hearts, and they will humble themselves before him.
18May we fall into the hands of the Lord and not into the hands of human beings, because his mercy
is equal to his greatness.

Duties to parents

Sirach 3 Listen to a father's warning, children, and act accordingly

so that you may be safe.
2The Lord gives pride of place to a father above his children and establishes a mother's judgment above that of her offspring.
3Those who honor their fathers
will make up for their own sins, 4and those who praise their mother are like people storing up treasure.
5Those who honor their fathers will be made happy
by their own children,
and they will be heard when they pray.
6Those who praise their fathers will live a long life,
and those who listen to the Lord will give rest to their mothers,[l]

[7]and they will serve their parents as their masters.
[8]Honor your father in action and word so that a blessing will come from him to you,
[9]since a father's blessing supports his children's families, but a mother's curse
undermines their foundations.
[10]Don't glorify yourself in your father's disgrace, because your father's disgrace brings you no credit.
[11]A father's honor is the starting point for his children's reputation, and a mother in disrepute is a disgrace to her children.
[12]My child, help your father in his old age, and don't give him grief during his life.
[13]And if his understanding fails, be tolerant,
and don't shame him,
because you have all your faculties.
[14]Taking care of one's father won't be forgotten.
It will be credited to you against your sins.
[15]When you are in trouble,
this will be recalled about you;
like frost warmed by sunshine,
so your sins will melt away.
[16]Those who abandon their fathers are like blasphemers,
and those who anger their mothers have been cursed by the Lord.

Humility and charity

[17]My child, conduct your affairs

with gentleness,
and you will be loved
more than a person of good repute.[m] 18 However great you become,
humble yourself more,
and you will find favor before the Lord,[n] 20 because the Lord's power is great, and he is glorified by the humble.
21 Don't seek out things that are too difficult for you, and don't investigate matters too perplexing for you.
22 Think about what you have been commanded,
because you have no need for matters that are hidden.
23 Don't meddle in things beyond your own affairs
since you have already been shown things beyond human understanding.
24 Speculation has led many people astray, and false conjectures have weakened their thoughts.[o] 26 A stubborn heart will come to misery, and whoever loves danger
will be destroyed by it.
27 A stubborn heart will be weighed down by suffering,
and the sinner will keep on sinning.
28 There's no healing for the distress of arrogant people, because an evil plant
has taken root in them.
29 The hearts of intelligent people will think about a proverb, and the wise desire people who are ready to listen.
30 Water will put out a blazing fire,

and giving to those in need will make up for sins.
31 Those who repay favors
consider the future,
and at the moment when they fall,
they will find support.

Sirach 4

Don't deprive a poor person's life,

and don't avoid looking
the needy in the eyes.
2 Don't grieve a hungry person, and don't make a person
in dire straits angry.
3 Don't trouble an angry person,
and don't put off giving to the needy.
4 Don't keep rejecting the plea of someone in distress, and don't turn your face
away from the poor.
5 Don't turn your eyes away from someone begging, and don't give anyone an opportunity to curse you.
6 If some curse you
in their bitter circumstances, the one who made them
will hear their prayer.
7 Behave yourself pleasantly in the assembly, and bow your head
to an influential person.
8 Listen to the poor,
and reply with peaceful and gentle speech.
9 Set the wronged free
from the hand of the wrongdoer, and don't be timid

when you give judgment.
10 Be like a parent to orphans, and take care of their mothers
as you would your own wife or husband.
Do this, and you will be like a child of the Most High,
and God will love you
more than your own mother does.

Submission to Wisdom

11 Wisdom will exalt[p] her children
and take hold of those who seek her.
12 Whoever loves her loves life.
Those who wake early for her will be filled with gladness.
13 Those who possess her will inherit glory.
The Lord blesses the place where they enter.[q] 14 Those who serve her will serve the holy one;
the Lord loves those who love her.
15 Whoever obeys her will judge nations.
Whoever is devoted to her will live with confidence.
16 If they persevere in faith,
they will inherit her,
and their descendants will possess her.
17 At first she will walk in twists and turns with them.
She will bring fear and dread upon them,
and she will torture them with her discipline
until she trusts them completely.
She will test them
with her commandments, 18 and again she will come straight back to them, make them glad,
and reveal to them her secrets.

19 If they go astray,
she will leave them behind and hand them over to their downfall.

Shame and speech

20 Watch closely for the right opportunity, be on guard against evil,
and don't be ashamed of yourself.
21 There's a kind of shame that brings about sin,
and there's a kind of shame
that brings good reputation and favor.
22 Don't show partiality to your own hurt, and don't show respect to your own downfall.
23 Don't keep from speaking in a time of need,[r] 24 for wisdom will show itself in one's speech,
and education through one's words.
25 Don't contradict the truth, but don't be ashamed
when you don't know the answer.
26 Don't be ashamed to confess your sins,
and don't force the flow of a river.
27 Don't lower yourself before a fool, and don't show partiality toward the powerful.
28 Fight to the death on behalf of truth, and the Lord God will fight for you.
29 Don't be bold to speak, but sluggish and slack
when it comes to action.
30 Don't be like a lion in your house, putting on airs
among your household slaves.
31 Don't stretch your hand out to receive and withdraw it when it is time to pay back.

Practical precepts

Sirach 5 Don't be preoccupied with your money, and don't say, "I'm self-sufficient." 2 Don't follow your inclination or your strength,
in order to walk in the desires of your heart.
3 And don't say,
"Who'll have power over me?"
When the Lord punishes, he will punish.
4 Don't say, "Sure, I sinned, but what happened to me?"
The Lord is patient indeed.
5 Don't be too confident of being forgiven,
adding sin upon sin.
6 Don't say, "His compassion is great;
he will forgive the whole heap of my sins."
Mercy and wrath are with him, and his anger will rest on sinners.
7 Don't wait to turn back to the Lord.
Don't put it off day after day, because the Lord's wrath will come forth suddenly;
when the time for punishment comes, you will be destroyed.
8 Don't be preoccupied with ill-gotten gains;
it will be of no benefit
when you are in trouble.
9 Don't be blown about by every wind, and don't take every shortcut.

This is how the devious[s] sinner acts.
10 Be firmly grounded
in your understanding,
and let your speech be consistent.
11 Listen carefully,
and utter a patient reply.
12 If you have understanding, answer your neighbor,
but if you don't,
clap your hand over your mouth.
13 Speaking brings glory or dishonor.
Indeed, the tongue
can be a person's downfall.
14 Don't get a reputation for being a slanderer,
and don't set traps for people
with your speech,
because shame comes to the thief,
and terrible blame
comes upon the deceitful.[t] 15 Don't be ignorant in matters large or small.

Sirach 6 Don't become an enemy

instead of a friend.
If you get a bad name, you will also inherit shame and reproach, as is the case with the deceitful[u] sinner.
2 Don't be enamored
of your own intelligence lest your strength be taken captive like a bull.
3 You will devour your leaves, destroy your fruit,
and leave yourself like a withered tree.
4 If you have a bad soul, it will destroy you;

it will make you a joke to your enemies.

Friendship

[5]Pleasant speech gains more friends for itself, and a sweet-speaking tongue will multiply pleasant exchanges.
Let those who are at peace with you be many,
but let only one in a thousand be your advisor.
[7]If you make friends, test them thoroughly and don't trust them quickly.
[8]Some are friends when it is convenient, but they won't stay around during hard times.
[9]There are friends who turn into enemies, and they will reveal
your disgraceful arguments.
[10]There are friends who are companions at your table,
but they won't stay during hard times.
[11]They will act as if your belongings are theirs,
and they will be bold
toward your household slaves.
[12]If you are brought low,
they will be against you,
and they will abandon you.
[13]Stay away from your enemies, and be careful with your friends.
[14]Trustworthy friends are a strong shelter; whoever finds one
has found a treasure.
[15]Trustworthy friends have no price,
and no one can estimate their worth.
[16]Trustworthy friends are life's medicine,
and those who fear the Lord
will find them.

17 Those who fear the Lord will direct their friendships well, because they will associate with people of like mind.[v]

Submission to Wisdom

18 My child, from your youth welcome education, and you will continue to discover Wisdom until you are gray-haired.
19 Approach her like one who plows and one who sows,
and wait for her good fruits.
When cultivating her,
you will labor a little,
but you will eat her produce soon.
20 Wisdom is rugged terrain to the uneducated,
and the fainthearted
won't persevere with her.
21 She will be like a heavy stone that tests them,
and they won't hesitate
to throw her aside.
22 Wisdom is like her name, and she won't be visible to many.
23 Listen, my child,
and welcome my opinion.
Don't reject my advice.
24 Put your feet into her shackles and your neck into her collar.
25 Bend your shoulder down and carry her,
and don't chafe at her bonds.
26 Come to her with your whole being,
and keep to her ways
with all your strength.
27 Track her down and seek her,
and she will become known to you.

When you get possession of her,
don't let her go.
28In the end, you will find rest in her,
and she will turn to you and make you happy.
29Her shackles will be a strong shelter for you,
and her collar will be a glorious robe.
30She bears[w]
a gold ornament,
and her bonds
will be like blue embroidery.[x] 31You will wear her like a glorious robe, and you will put her on like a crown of joy.
32If you want, my child,
you will be instructed,
and if you devote your whole being,
you will be intelligent.
33If you love to listen, you will receive,
and if you pay attention,
you will be wise.
34Keep company with the elders, and stick closely to their wisdom.
35Desire to listen
to every godly conversation,
and don't let intelligent proverbs escape you.
36If you find individuals who are intelligent,
get up before dawn to see those people, and let your foot
wear out their doorsteps.
37Think about the Lord's decrees, and meditate constantly on his commandments.
He will make your heart steadfast,
and will grant your desire for wisdom.

Practical advice

Sirach 7

Don't do evil things,

and evil will never catch up with you.
2 Keep your distance from anything unjust, and it will turn away from you.
3 Don't sow in furrows of injustice, and you won't reap
evil things sevenfold.
4 Don't seek political power from the Lord or a seat of honor from the king.
5 Don't justify yourself
in the Lord's presence, and don't make a show of your wisdom with a king.
6 Don't aspire to become a judge;
you might not be strong enough to get rid of injustice.
Perhaps you will be too cautious in the presence of a powerful person and bring a scandal on your good name.
7 Don't sin against a city's inhabitants, and don't bring yourself down in their estimation.[y] 8 Don't repeat a sin,
for you won't be innocent
even of committing it the first time.
9 Don't say,
"He will look at the heap of my gifts,
and when I make an offering to the Most High, he will accept it." 10 Don't be timid in your prayer, and don't neglect caring for those in need.
11 Don't mock a person who is bitter in spirit;
for there's one who humbles and who exalts.
12 Don't cultivate a lie against your relative or do the same thing to a friend.

13 Don't desire to tell a lie;
continuing in a lie results in no good.
14 Don't babble when the elders are assembled,
and don't repeat yourself when praying.
15 Don't hate hard work and farming, which were created by the Most High.
16 Don't count yourself
among a group of sinners;
remember that God's anger won't delay.
17 Humble your whole being as much as possible,
because fire and worms
are the punishment of the ungodly.

Household, priests, and the poor

18 Don't trade a friend for cash or a genuine friend for the gold of Ophir.
19 Don't neglect[z] a wise and good wife,
for her grace is worth more than gold.
20 Don't abuse household slaves who work hard or laborers who devote themselves to their work.
21 Cherish household servants who are intelligent;
don't deprive them of freedom.
22 Do you have cattle? Look after them.
If they are useful to you, keep them.
23 Do you have children? Instruct them.
Train them to be obedient[a] from their youth.
24 Do you have daughters?
Be attentive to their chastity,[b] and don't be too cheerful with them.[c] 25 Give a daughter in marriage, and you will have completed a great deed,

but present her
to an understanding husband.
[26]Do you have a wife who is a soul mate?[d] Don't divorce her,
and don't trust yourself to a woman whom you hate.
[27]Honor your father with all your heart, and don't forget
your mother's labor pains.
[28]Remember that you were born because of your parents.
How will you pay them back for what they have done for you?
[29]Revere the Lord with your whole being,
and honor his priests.
[30]With all your might love the one who made you,
and don't neglect his ministers.
[31]Fear the Lord and honor the priest.
Give the priest his portion,
just as you were commanded:
early produce, a sin offering,
the gift of the shoulders,
the dedicatory offering,
and the early produce
from the holy things.
[32]Extend your hand to the poor
so that your blessing may be complete.
[33]The kindness of a gift stands before all who are alive;
moreover, don't withhold kindness from the dead.
[34]Walk beside those who weep,
and mourn with those who mourn.
[35]Don't hesitate to visit the sick, because you will be loved on account of these acts.

36 In all of your words,[e] remember your end,
and you will never sin.

Circumstances to avoid

Sirach 8 Don't fight with powerful people, or you might fall into their hands.

2 Don't argue with rich people, since they might outmatch
your resources;
for gold has destroyed many,
and it has turned aside
the hearts of kings.
3 Don't fight with talkative people, adding fuel to their fire.
4 Don't make fun of the uneducated, or your ancestors might be insulted.
5 Don't reproach someone turning away from sin;
remember that we are all worthy of punishment.
6 Don't dishonor people in their old age;
some of us are growing old as well.
7 Don't celebrate
because someone has died;
remember that we all will pass away.
8 Don't neglect the conversation of the wise,
but keep returning to their proverbs, because you will learn instruction
from them,
how to minister to dignitaries.
9 Don't reject the words of the aged, because they also learned from their elders,
and you will learn understanding

from them
and how to give an answer
when it is necessary.
10 Don't stoke up the coals of a sinner,
and don't let his fire set you ablaze.
11 Don't rise out of your seat in the presence of insolent persons, because they might set a trap for what you say.
12 Don't lend to people who are more powerful than you,
but if you do lend,
treat it as though it were lost.
13 Don't guarantee a loan beyond your ability,
and if you do guarantee one,
consider that you will need to pay.
14 Don't go to court with a judge;
people will judge him
according to his prestige.
15 Don't walk on the road with reckless people, or you will bear
the weight of your mistakes.
They will walk wherever they want,
and you will be destroyed because of their foolishness.
16 Don't get in a fight with hot-tempered people, and don't travel through the desert
with them,
because spilling blood is nothing to them,
and where there's no one to help,
they will strike you down.
17 Don't consult with fools, because they can't keep a secret.
18 Don't do anything in front of strangers that should be kept hidden,

for you don't know what they will reveal.
19 Don't open your heart to just anyone, and don't accept a favor from just anyone.[f]

Women and friends

Sirach 9 Don't be jealous of your dearly loved wife or teach her a bad lesson that hurts you too.

2 Don't give yourself to a woman
so that she crushes your strength.
3 Don't meet up with a female escort, since you might fall into her traps.
4 Don't hang around
with a female musician, since you might get caught in her advances.
5 Don't stare at a young woman, since you might incur punishment for her.
6 Don't give yourself to prostitutes, since you might lose your inheritance.
7 Don't look around in the city streets, and don't wander in its deserted areas.
8 Turn your eye away from a shapely woman, and don't stare at beauty belonging to someone else.
Many have gone astray
because of a woman's beauty, and out of it affection flames up like a fire.
9 Don't ever sit[g] with a married woman, and don't share meals
or indulge in wine with her, since your soul might be attracted to her and you might slip into destruction because of your passion.[h] 10 Don't abandon old friends, because newer ones are not their equals.

New friends are like new wine;
when wine ages,
you will drink it with good cheer.
11 Don't envy the good reputation of sinners,
since you don't know
how sudden their end will be.
12 Don't delight in the success of the ungodly.
Remember that they won't be considered righteous, even in the grave.[i] 13 Keep far away from people who have the authority to kill,
and you won't be worried
by the fear of death.
If you do approach them,
don't make a mistake,
or they might take away your life.
Be aware that you are stepping among traps
and that you are walking on the parapet of the city's walls.
14 As much as you can,
investigate your neighbor
and consult with wise people.
15 Converse with intelligent people, and talk constantly about the Law
of the Most High.
16 Let righteous people be your dinner companions, and let your pride
be in the fear of the Lord.

On rulers

17 A handicraft is praised because of the craftsperson's skill, and the one who leads a people is wise in speech.
18 Talkative people are feared in their city, and people who are reckless in speech will be hated.

Sirach 10 Wise judges will instruct their people, and an intelligent person's rule will be orderly.

2 As the people's judges are,
so will their officials be,
and as the ruler of a city is,
so also are all of its inhabitants.
3 An uneducated king will ruin his people, and a city is founded on the intelligence of its rulers.
4 Authority over the earth belongs to the Lord,
and he will identify the person who is right for the time.
5 A people's success belongs to the Lord, and he will give glory
to the legal expert.[j]

On pride

6 Don't become angry with your neighbor over every wrong, and don't do anything that offers a flagrant insult.
7 Arrogance is hateful to God and people, and injustice is wrong to both.
8 Sovereignty passes from nation to nation
because of injustice, pride, and money.[k]

9 How can dust and ashes be arrogant?
Even when they are alive,
human bodies are decaying.[l] 10 A long illness mocks a doctor; today's king will die tomorrow.
11 When people are dead, they inherit maggots, vermin,[m]
and worms.
12 Human arrogance begins when people rebel against the Lord, and their hearts rebel against the one who made them.
13 The beginning of arrogance is sin, and those who cling to it will pour out blasphemy.
For this reason
the Lord brings calamities upon them, and he ruins them completely.
14 The Lord destroyed the thrones of rulers, and he raised up the gentle
in their place.
15 The Lord plucked up the roots of nations, and he planted the humble
in their place.
16 The Lord ruined the lands of the nations, and he leveled them
to their very foundations.
17 He removed some people and destroyed them,
and he erased their memory
from the earth.
18 Humans were not created to be arrogant, nor were those born of women made to indulge in anger.

Honor and humility

19 What offspring are honorable?
Human offspring.

What offspring are honorable?
Those who fear the Lord.
What offspring are dishonorable?
Human offspring.
What offspring are dishonorable?
Those who violate
the commandments.
[20]Among brothers and sisters, their leader is honored,
and those who fear the Lord
are honored in his sight.[n] [22]The rich, the heroes, and the poor-- their pride is the fear of the Lord.
[23]It's not right to dishonor someone who is intelligent but poor, and it's not proper to give glory to a sinful person.
[24]The official, the judge, and the ruler will be glorified,
but none of them are greater than the one who fears the Lord.
[25]Free people will serve the wise person who has been enslaved,
and a knowledgeable person won't complain.
[26]Don't show off your wisdom when you do your work,
and don't magnify yourself
when you have difficulties.
[27]Those who work and have what they need in abundance are better than those who walk around glorifying themselves but lack bread.
[28]My child, hold yourself in honor
with gentleness,
and give yourself honor as you deserve it.
[29]Who will justify those who sin against themselves?

And who will honor those who bring dishonor to their own lives?
30 Poor people will be honored because of their knowledge, and rich people will be honored because of their wealth.
31 Whoever is honored in poverty, how much more will he or she
be honored in wealth?
And whoever is disreputable in wealth,
how much more will he or she
be disreputable in poverty?

Sirach 11 The wisdom of humble people raises up their heads,

and it will seat them among officials.
2 Don't praise people
for their beautiful looks,
and don't despise people
for their appearance.
3 The bee is small among flying creatures, but its produce is the origin of everything sweet.
4 Don't take pride in the way you dress, and don't promote yourself when you are being honored,[o] because the Lord's works are wonderful,
and his works are hidden from humans.
5 Many tyrants have sat on the ground, and one who was never expected to rule has worn a crown.
6 Many rulers have been completely dishonored,

and those once held in honor
have been handed over to others.

On deliberation

7 Don't find fault before you investigate; consider first, and then reprimand.
8 Don't answer before you listen, and don't interrupt someone who is speaking.
9 Don't argue about something that doesn't matter to you, and don't deliberate in a court case between sinners.
10 My child, don't be busy with many things;
if you multiply pursuits,
you won't be held guiltless.
If you pursue them,
you won't overtake them,
and when you flee, you won't escape.
11 Some people work hard, struggle, and hurry--
and end up even more deeply in need.
12 Others are sluggish and need support, lacking strength
and immersed in poverty.
The Lord has looked upon them with kindness,
and has restored them
from their low position.
13 He has raised up their heads, and many have been amazed at them.
14 Good things and bad, life and death, poverty and wealth come from the Lord.[p] 17 The Lord's gift remains with the godly, and his favor will always bring success.
18 Some become rich from diligence and greed,[q]

and this is part of their reward: 19When they say, "I've found rest, and now I'll eat of my good things," they don't know when the time will come when they will leave these things to others and die.
20Stand by your agreement, devote attention to accomplishing it,
and grow old in your work.
21Don't be amazed at the works of sinners, but trust in the Lord
and continue your work, because it is easy in God's sight to make the poor person quickly and suddenly rich.
22The Lord's blessing is part of the godly person's wages, and God's good pleasure causes a person to flourish very quickly.
23Don't say, "What do I need?
What good things will be mine
from now on?"
24Don't say, "I have enough.
What harm can come upon me
from now on?"
25At a time of prosperity, adversity is forgotten,
and at a time of adversity,
prosperity is not remembered.
26It is easy for the Lord to pay back people according to their ways
in the hour of death.
27An hour of misery
makes one forget luxury;
the end of a person's life reveals his or her deeds.

28 Don't call anyone happy
before their death;
people are known
through their children.[r]

Friends and associates

29 Don't bring just anyone into your house, because deceitful people set many ambushes.
30 The hearts of arrogant people are like decoy birds in a cage;
and like spies
they will observe your downfall.[s] 31 They set up ambushes and turn good into bad;
they place blame
on praiseworthy actions.
32 From a fire's spark come many coals, and sinful people plot and connive to shed blood.
33 Beware of evildoers, for they plan evil things, and they might bring lasting disgrace upon you.
34 If you allow strangers to live with you, they will twist you around in confusion and make you a stranger to your own family.

Sirach 12

12 If you do good,
know for whom you do it,
and there'll be gratitude for your good deeds.
2 Do good to the godly,
and you will find a reward,
and if not from them,
then from the Most High.

[3]There is nothing good for those who continue to do evil or for those who don't freely offer charity.
[4]Give to the pious, but don't assist sinners.
[5]Do good to the humble, but don't give to the ungodly.
Hold back your bread,
and don't give it to them, since by it they might gain power over you.
You will encounter twice as much evil for all the good things that you have done for them.
[6]The Most High also hated sinners, and he will repay the ungodly with punishment.[t] [7]Give to good people, and don't assist sinners.
[8]A friend is not avenged[u]
in prosperity,
and an enemy is not hidden in adversity.
[9]When people are prosperous, their enemies are in pain,
and when they meet with adversity,
even friends will keep away.
[10]Don't ever trust your enemies;
for just as copper corrodes,
so their wickedness does as well.
[11]If they are humbled and walk away stooped over,
look after yourself,
and keep up your guard against them.
You will be to them
as one who polishes a mirror,
and you will know that it won't be completely tarnished.

12 Don't put them next to you;
they might overthrow you
and take your place.
Don't sit them on your right side,
since they might seek your seat.
In the end you will understand my words,
and you will be pierced by what I've said.
13 Who pities a snake charmer who gets bitten?
Or anyone who goes near wild beasts?
14 So it is with anyone who goes near sinful people and becomes involved in their sins.
15 They will remain with you for a time, but if you waver, they won't be loyal.
16 Enemies speak sweetly with their lips,
but in their hearts,
they plan to throw you into a ditch.
Enemies cry tears with their eyes, but if they find an opportunity, they won't be able to get enough blood.
17 If you meet up with trouble,
you will find them there ahead of you;
and appearing to help,
they will trip you.
18 They will shake their heads and clap their hands,
and they will whisper many things and change their faces.

Sirach 13

13 Whoever touches tar will get dirty, and those who associate with the arrogant will become like them.

2 Don't lift something
that's too heavy for you, and don't associate with people who are more powerful and rich than you are.

What does a clay pot have in common with a metal cauldron?
The one will knock against the other and be shattered.
3Rich people inflict injury, but then act as if they're the ones who have been wronged;
the poor suffer injury,
but they're the ones
who must apologize.
4If you are useful to the rich,
they will work with you,
but if you are in need,
they will abandon you.
5If you own anything,
they will live with you;
they will exhaust what you have,
and they won't suffer.
6If they need you, they will deceive you and smile at you and give you hope; they will speak nicely to you and say,
"What do you need?"
7They will embarrass you
with their fine foods,
until they have cleaned you out
two or three times over.
In the end they will mock you,
and after these things, they will see you and abandon you and shake their heads at you.
8Take care that you don't go astray, and don't be humiliated
by your own foolishness.
9When powerful people invite you, show yourself reluctant,
and they will invite you all the more.

10 Don't be forward,
or you might be rejected;
and don't stand far off,
or you might be forgotten.
11 Don't think that you can speak with them as an equal,
and don't trust in their lengthy conversations, because they will test you
with a lot of talking;
and when they are smiling, they are really examining you.
12 Those who won't guard your secrets are cruel,
and they won't spare you from mistreatment
and imprisonment.
13 Be on guard and pay attention, because you are tiptoeing around your own downfall.[v] 15 All living creatures love what is like them, and all people their neighbors.
16 All beings gather together with their own kind,
and people cling to those who are like them.
17 What does a wolf have in common with a lamb?
So sinners have nothing in common with the godly.
18 What peace is there between a hyena and a dog?
And what peace is there between the rich and the poor?
19 Wild asses in the desert are prey for lions;
so the poor are feeding grounds for the rich.
20 The arrogant detest humility;

so the rich detest the poor.
21When rich people stumble, they are supported by friends.
But when the humble fall,
their own friends push them away.
22When the rich slip,
their helpers are many;
they speak things that shouldn't be spoken, and people justify them.
The humble slip,
and people criticize them as well;
they utter something sensible,
and no one pays attention.
23The rich speak, and everyone is silent, and what they say is praised to the heavens.
The poor speak, and they say,
"Who is this?"
And if the poor stumble,
others push them down all the more.
24Wealth is good as long as it's free of sin;
the ungodly speak of poverty as an evil in and of itself.

On happiness

25A person's heart changes the disposition, whether for good or for ill.
26A cheerful face indicates a heart full of good;
coming up with proverbs requires conversation along with hard work.

Sirach 14

Happy are those who haven't slipped in their speech and who haven't been stabbed with pain for their sins.

2Happy are those whose spirit hasn't condemned them,
and who haven't given up their hope.

On wealth

3 Wealth isn't good for a mean person.
What use is money
to a begrudging person?
4 Those who deny themselves collect for others,
and others will live luxuriously
with their goods.
5 Those who are evil to themselves,
to whom will they be good?
They will never enjoy their money.
6 There are none worse than those who begrudge themselves, and this is the payback
for their wickedness:
7 If they do good,
they do it without being aware,
and in the end they reveal their wickedness.
8 The miserly are evil;
they turn their face away
and disregard people.
9 Those who have greedy eyes are never satisfied with their share, and evil injustice withers their soul.
10 Envious people are even begrudging when it comes to bread, and it's lacking on their table.
11 My child, treat yourself well according to what you have,
and bring offerings to the Lord that are worthy.
12 Remember that death won't delay, and the decree of the grave[w] hasn't been shown to you.
13 Before you die, treat your friends well.
According to your ability, reach out, and give to them.

14 Enjoy[x] a good day, and don't let your share of a good desire pass you by.
15 Won't you end up leaving behind to another what you have worked so hard for?
Won't the things you have toiled for end up being divided by lot?
16 Give, take, and distract yourself,[y] because you can't search for luxury in the grave.[z]
17 All flesh grows old like a garment;
the ancient decree is,
"You will certainly die!"
18 Like a budding leaf on a leafy tree, it sheds some and it puts forth others;
so is a generation of flesh and blood;
one dies, and another is born.
19 All deeds decay and cease, and those who do them
will pass away with them.

Seeking Wisdom brings happiness

20 Happy are those who meditate on Wisdom
and who reason intelligently.
21 Those who consider her ways in their hearts
will also reflect on her secrets.
22 Pursue her like a hunter, and lie in wait by her paths.
23 Those who peer into her windows will also listen at her doorways.
24 Those who lodge near her house will also fasten a tent peg in her walls.
25 They will pitch their tent close at hand and will find accommodation

in a lodging place full of good things.
[26]They will put their children under her shelter,
and will encamp under her branches.
[27]She will shelter them from the heat, and they will dwell in her glory.

Sirach 15 Whoever fears the Lord will do these things, and whoever has a firm hold on the Law will possess Wisdom.

[2]She will come to meet them like a mother, and she will await them
like a young bride.
[3]She will feed them bread
of understanding,
and will give them water of wisdom
to drink.
[4]They will be supported by her
and not be undermined;
they will be intent upon her
and will never be put to shame.
[5]She will raise them above their neighbors, and allow them to speak in the midst of the assembly.
[6]They will inherit gladness, a crown of rejoicing,
and an eternal name.
[7]People who lack sense will never receive her,
and sinners will never see her.
[8]She keeps far away from the arrogant, and liars will never remember her.
[9]Praise isn't proper in the mouth of sinners because it hasn't been assigned by the Lord.

10 Praise must be spoken in wisdom, and the Lord will cause it to prosper.

Free will and God's justice

11 Don't say, "I fell away because of the Lord."
What the Lord hates, he won't do.
12 Don't say, "The Lord made me go astray."
He has no use for sinful people.
13 The Lord has hated every foul thing, and those who fear him
have no love for such things.
14 He created humanity at the beginning, and he left them to the power of their choices.
15 If you choose to,
you will keep the commandments,
and keep faith out of goodwill.[a] 16 He has put fire and water before you;
you can stretch out your hand
for whichever you choose.
17 Life and death are in front
of human beings;
and they will be granted
whichever they please, 18 because the wisdom of the Lord is great;
he's mighty in authority,
he sees everything, 19 his eyes are upon those who fear him,
and he knows every human action.
20 He doesn't command anyone to be ungodly,
and he doesn't give anyone
a license to sin.

Sirach 16 Don't wish for a multitude of worthless children, and don't be glad about sons and daughters if they are ungodly.

2If they have children, don't rejoice over them
unless they respect the Lord.
3Don't be confident that they will live, and don't rely on their great number.[b]
One is better than a thousand, and it's better to die childless than to have ungodly children.
4A city will be populated through one intelligent person, but a tribe of lawless people can transform it into a desert.
5My eye has seen many such things, and my ear has heard more extraordinary matters than these.
6A fire will be kindled in an assembly of sinners, and wrath will flash forth
in a disobedient nation.
7The Lord didn't seek reconciliation with the ancient giants[c] who rebelled in their might.
8He didn't spare Lot's neighbors, whom he detested
because of their arrogance.
9He showed no mercy on a nation doomed to destruction,
on people who were driven off because of their sins.[d] 10So also he showed no mercy to the six hundred thousand foot soldiers who gathered together
in their stubbornness.[e] 11Even if there was one stiff-necked person,

it would be amazing
if that one would go unpunished, because mercy and wrath are with him,
the Lord who reconciles and who pours out wrath.
12 His scrutiny is as severe as his mercy is abundant;
he will judge people
according to their deeds.
13 A sinner won't escape with plunder, and the endurance of the godly will never fail.
14 He will make allowance
for every act of charity;
everyone will receive their just reward.[f] 17 Don't say, "I'll be hidden from the Lord," and "Who from on high will call me to mind?
Among a great many people,
I'll never be recognized;
for what am I in such a vast creation?
18 Look at the heavens, indeed the highest heavens;
the abyss and the earth will tremble at the Lord's visitation.[g] 19 All at once the mountains and the foundations of the earth will shake together, quaking, when he looks upon them.
20 The mind cannot even think about these things.
Who can ponder his ways?
21 Most of his deeds are hidden like a hurricane that no one can see.[h] 22 Who will announce just actions?
Or who will endure,
since God's covenant is far off?"[i]

23 Those who lack sense think this way; a foolish and misguided person thinks foolish things.

Wisdom and the creation of humans

24 Listen to me, my child: gain knowledge and apply your mind to my words.
25 I will disclose instruction accurately,[j]
and with precision
I will declare knowledge.
26 The Lord's works in creation existed from the beginning, and he defined their exact stations
when he made them.
27 He set their works in order forever, and arranged their spheres of authority for as long as they last.
They have never gotten hungry or grown weary,
and they have never abandoned their tasks.
28 None of them crowd out their neighbor,
and none will ever disobey his word.
29 Afterward, the Lord looked at the earth and filled it with his good things.
30 He covered its surface with every living being,
and they return into it.

Sirach 17

17 The Lord created a human being out of earth,

and he returned that human being into it again.
2 God gave human beings a set number of days and a fixed time, and he gave them authority over the things that are upon the earth.

3 God endowed them with strength like his, and he made them according to his image.
4 God made all living beings afraid of them, so that they might exercise dominion over the animals and birds.[k] 6 God gave them the capacity to plan, a tongue and eyes,
ears and a mind[l] for thinking.
7 God filled them with common sense, and he showed them
good things and bad.
8 God put awe for him in their hearts, in order to show them the greatness of his works.[m]
9 So that they might tell of the magnificence of his works, 10 they will praise his holy name.
11 God placed knowledge before them, and he gave them a code for living.[n] 12 God established an eternal covenant
with them,
and he showed them his decrees.
13 They saw the majesty of his glory with their own eyes,
and they heard his glorious voice
with their own ears.
14 God said to them,
"Beware of every injustice," and he gave each of them commandments concerning their neighbor.
15 Their ways are always before him;
they won't be hidden from his sight.[o] 17 God appointed a leader for each nation, and Israel is
the Lord's responsibility.[p] 19 All of their deeds are before him as plain as the sun,
and his eyes are always on their ways.

20 Their wrongs are not hidden from him, and all their sins are exposed in the Lord's presence.[q] 22 A person's acts of charity are like a seal with him, and he will treasure a person's generosity like the apple of his eye.[r] 23 Afterward God will rise up and repay them;
he will deliver their repayment
upon their heads.
24 However, for those who changed their hearts and minds, God granted a way back, and he encouraged those who were abandoning hope.
25 Turn back to the Lord and leave sin behind;
offer prayers in his presence,
and reduce your offense.
26 Return to the Most High, and turn from injustice,[s]
and hate what he detests.
27 Who will praise the Most High in the grave[t]
instead of the living
and those who give thanks?
28 From the dead thanksgiving has perished, since they are no longer alive;
those who are alive and healthy will praise the Lord.
29 How great is the Lord's mercy!
How quickly is he reconciled with those who turn back to him!
30 Human beings can't do all things, because no person is immortal.
31 What shines brighter than the sun?
Even that fails.
Flesh and blood will hanker after evil.
32 The Lord examines the might of heaven's height,

and all human beings are dust and ashes.

Sirach 18 The one who lives forever created everything

in a common fashion.
2 Only the Lord will be declared just.[u]
4 He has given no one the power to proclaim his works.
Who can search out his majestic deeds?
5 Who will measure
the power of his greatness?
Who will continue to recount his mercy?
6 It's impossible to diminish or to increase these things, and it's impossible
to search out the wonders of the Lord.
7 When people finish,
then they are just beginning,
and when they pause,
then they are puzzled.
8 What are human beings, and what use are they?
What's good about them,
and what's evil about them?
9 The length of a person's life is as much as one hundred years.[v] 10 Like a drop of water from the sea or a grain of sand,
so are a few years in the span of eternity.
11 Therefore, the Lord was patient
with them,
and he poured out his mercy upon them.
12 He saw and knew that their end was terrible;
therefore, his willingness to be reconciled increased.
13 Neighbors display mercy toward each other,

but the mercy of the Lord is for all beings:
he corrects, instructs, teaches,
and turns them back,
as a shepherd does his flock.
14 He shows mercy to those who accept discipline
and to those who passionately pursue his judgments.

Speech and self-control

15 My child, let the good you do be without blemish,
and don't give harsh words
along with your gifts.
16 Doesn't dew put an end to scorching heat?
So a word is better than a gift.
17 Look! Doesn't a word exceed a good gift?
And both come from a person who is gracious.
18 A fool reproaches ungraciously, and a gift from a begrudging giver becomes an eyesore.[w] 19 Learn before you speak, and attend to yourself
before you get sick.
20 Examine yourself before judgment, and you will be reconciled
when you are examined.
21 Humble yourself before you get sick, and when you commit sins show a changed heart and mind.
22 Don't be prevented from repaying a solemn promise in a timely way, and don't wait until death
to be vindicated.
23 Prepare yourself before making a solemn promise,

and don't be like someone who tests the Lord.
[24]Be mindful of his wrath in times of death and in times of vengeance when he turns his face away.
[25]Remember a time of hunger in a time of plenty,
a time of poverty and want in times of wealth.
[26]From morning until evening opportune times change, and all things are fleeting
in the Lord's presence.
[27]Wise people exercise caution in everything,
and in times of sin
they will take heed against error.
[28]All intelligent people have recognized Wisdom, and they will acknowledge[x]
anyone who finds her.
[29]Those who are intelligent with words have become wise themselves, and they have poured forth fitting proverbs.[y]

Self-control[z]

[30]Don't go after your desires, and restrain yourself
from your appetites.
[31]If you cater to your desires, you will become a laughingstock to your enemies.
[32]Don't be glad for great luxury, and don't be made needy
by an encounter with it.

[33]Don't become poor
by feasting with borrowed money, when you have nothing in your pocket.[a]

Sirach 19 A drunken worker[b]

won't become rich,
and whoever neglects the little things will fail little by little.
[2]Wine and women will mislead an intelligent person, and the one who has sex with prostitutes will become more reckless.
[3]Decay and worms will possess him, and his reckless soul will be carried away.
[4]Those who trust others too quickly have empty heads,
and those who sin injure themselves.
[5]Those who rejoice in wickedness will be condemned.[c] [6]And those who are reticent to speak diminish wickedness.
[7]Never repeat something that you've heard,
and you will not lose anything.
[8]Don't report it to a friend or an enemy, and, as long as it wouldn't be a sin for you, don't reveal it.
[9]People might hear you or observe you,
and in time they will hate you.
[10]Have you heard some word?
Let it perish along with you.
Have courage!
It won't make you burst.
[11]Because of something spoken, a fool will suffer labor pains like those caused by a baby about to be delivered.
[12]Like an arrow stuck in a thigh,
so is a word in the belly of a fool.

13 Question a friend;
perhaps he didn't do it.
And if he did, question him
so he doesn't do it again.
14 Question a neighbor;
perhaps she didn't say it.
And if she did say it,
question her so that she doesn't repeat it.
15 Question a friend, because it often turns out to be a false accusation.
Don't trust everything that is said.
16 There are those who slip,
and it wasn't intentional.
Who hasn't sinned with the tongue?
17 Question your neighbor before issuing a threat, and give the Law of the Most High its place.[d]

Wisdom and cleverness

20 Fearing the Lord is the whole of wisdom, and all wisdom involves doing the Law.[e] 22 The knowledge of wickedness isn't wisdom,
and there is no prudence
in the advice that sinners give.
23 There is a kind of cleverness that is detestable,
and there is a senseless person who lacks wisdom.
24 Someone who fears God but who has inferior intelligence is better than someone who abounds in intelligence
but who violates the Law.
25 There is cleverness that is precise but unjust,

and there are people who abuse favors in order to get a favorable decision.[f] 26And there are people who act wickedly, bowed down gloomily, and their insides are full of treachery.
27They hide their faces, and they pretend they can't hear;
when you aren't paying attention,
they will outrun you.
28If they are prevented from sinning, it's because they lack the strength.
If they find an occasion,
they will do evil.
29People are known by their appearance, and sensible people are recognized in a face-to-face meeting.
30A person's clothing,
their vigorous laughter,
and the way they walk
will proclaim things about them.

On speech

Sirach 20

There is a bad time

to rebuke someone.
Those who keep silent
are the prudent ones.
2How much better to investigate than to be angry!
3And those who confess openly will be kept from loss.
4Like eunuchs desiring to violate a girl, so are those who make decisions
by force.
5There are people who are silent and are found to be wise, and there are those who are hated

because they talk a lot.
6There are those who keep silent because they have nothing to say in response,
and there are those who keep silent because they know the right time.
7Wise people keep silent
until the proper moment, but those who swagger and are senseless will miss the right moment.
8Those who talk excessively will be loathed, and those who pretend to have authority will be hated.[g] 9Some people have success in bad circumstances, and there's a windfall that results
in loss.
10There's a gift that won't profit you,
and there's a gift that will bring twice the return.
11There are losses suffered for the sake of one's reputation, and there are people who have raised their heads from humiliation.
12There are those who buy a lot for a little,
and they pay for it seven times over.
13Wise people make themselves dearly loved by means of words,[h] but fools pour out gifts.
14Gifts from senseless people won't profit you,[i]
because they look for a lot rather than a little in return.[j] 15They will give a little and reproach a lot, and they will open their mouths
like a town crier.
Today they will lend
and tomorrow ask for it back;

such people are hateful.
16 Fools say, "I don't have a friend, and there's no gratitude for my good deeds."
Those who eat the bread of such people have mean tongues.
17 How many will ridicule them,
and how often?[k]
18 A slip on the pavement is preferable to a slip of the tongue;
so the downfall of evil people will come quickly.
19 A disagreeable person, an untimely story-- it will always be in the mouth of the uneducated.
20 Proverbs told by fools will be rejected, because they'll never tell them
at their proper time.
21 Some are prevented from sinning because of poverty,
and their conscience won't be pained
when they rest.
22 Some destroy their life through shame, and they destroy it
because of foolish appearances.
23 Some promise a favor to a friend out of shame,
and they create an enemy for no reason.
24 A lie is a bad blemish on a person; ignorant people tell them incessantly.
25 A thief is preferable to someone who continuously lies,
but both will inherit destruction.
26 The character of liars is dishonorable; their shame is continuously
with them.

Proverbial sayings[l]

27 Wise people distinguish themselves by their words,
and prudent people will please
the powerful.
28 Those who work the soil will pile up their harvest, and those who please the powerful will secure reconciliation for injuries.
29 Friendly relationships and gifts will blind the eyes of the wise;
like a muzzle on a mouth,
they turn away reproof.
30 Hidden wisdom and unseen treasure-- of what benefit is either?
31 Better are those who hide their foolishness
than those who hide their wisdom.[m]

On sin

Sirach 21 My child, if you have sinned,

don't do it any longer,
and pray concerning your previous sins.
2 Run away from sin
like you would from a snake:
If you go near it, it will bite you.
Its teeth are lion's teeth, destroying a person's life.
3 All lawlessness is a two-edged sword, and there's no healing for its wound.
4 Alarm and insolence will strip away wealth; thus will an arrogant person's house be uprooted.
5 The petition of the poor goes from their mouth to God's ears, and his judgment comes quickly.
6 Anyone who hates reproof walks in the footsteps of a sinner,

and those who fear the Lord
will turn back to him from the heart.
7Those who are powerful in speech are widely known,
but those who are thoughtful know when they slip.
8Those who build their houses with another person's money are like those who gather stones for their own burial mound.
9A gathering of lawless people is the same as bundled flax;
their end is a flaming fire.
10The path of sinners
is made level with stones, but its end is the pit of hell.[n]

Wisdom and folly

11Those who keep the Law become masters of their thoughts;
fearing the Lord
leads ultimately to wisdom.
12Those who aren't clever won't receive instruction, but there is a kind of cleverness that makes troubles multiply.
13The knowledge of the wise will increase like a flood, and their counsel is like a stream of life.
14The mind[o] of a fool is like a broken jar:
it can't hold knowledge.
15If those who understand hear a wise word;
they will praise it and add to it.
Those who like to indulge themselves hear it and are displeased,

and they turn their back on it.
16 A fool's endless talk is a burden while on a journey, but grace will be found on the lips of the intelligent.
17 The speech of the prudent will be sought out in an assembly, and its members will take their words to heart.
18 Like a house in disrepair, so is wisdom to the foolish, and the knowledge of ignorant people will not stand up to examination.
19 Education is shackles on the feet of the ignorant, like manacles on their hand.
20 Fools raise their voice in laughter, but clever people will smile subtly in silence.
21 To the prudent,
education is like a gold ornament,
like a bracelet on the arm.
22 The foolish enter quickly into a house, but experienced people will be ashamed to do so.[p] 23 The senseless peer into a house through the door,
but the educated will stand outside.
24 Ignorance causes people to listen through a door,
but the prudent will be distressed at the dishonor of doing so.
25 The lips of strangers will report these things, but the words of the prudent will be placed on a balance.
26 Fools say whatever is on their minds,

but the wise remain mindful of what they say.
27When the ungodly
curse their enemies,[q]
they curse themselves.
28Those who whisper stain themselves, and they will be hated
by their neighbors.

Sirach 22

People who are afraid to act

are like filthy stones;
everyone will hiss at their dishonor.
2People who are afraid to act
are like clumps of cow manure;
those who pick it up
will shake off their hand.
3An uneducated son is a disgrace to a father,
and a daughter's birth is a liability.
4A prudent daughter
will get a husband of her own,
and a daughter in disgrace
is a grief to her parents.
5A disrespectful daughter shames her father and her husband, and both will despise her.
6Ill-timed talk is like party music during mourning,
but a whipping and discipline are wisdom at any time.[r] 9Whoever teaches a fool is gluing together a broken pot or waking up someone out of a deep sleep.
10Whoever talks with a fool converses with someone who is drowsy;

when the conversation is over, the fool will say, "What is it?
[11]Weep for the dead,
for they have left the light behind;
and weep for fools,
for they have left understanding behind.
Weep sweetly over the dead,
because they are at rest,
but the life of a fool is worse than death.
[12]Mourn for the dead for seven days, but mourn for the foolish and the ungodly all the days of their lives.
[13]Don't talk a lot with fools, and don't go to the unintelligent.[§]
Be on guard against them so that you don't have trouble and don't get dirty
when they shake themselves off.
Stay away from them
and you will find rest,
and their senselessness won't make you weary.
[14]What's heavier than lead?
And what name does it have but "Fool"?
[15]Sand, salt, and a lump of iron are easier to bear
than an unintelligent person.
[16]A wooden beam fastened into a building won't be loosened by an earthquake.
So a heart firmly set on thoughtful counsel
won't be afraid at any time.
[17]A heart fixed on thoughtful understanding is like an engraved ornament on a smooth wall.
[18]A protective barrier set on a high place will never endure against the wind.

So a timid heart backed up by a fool's plan
will never endure against any fear.

Preserving friendship

19 Whoever pricks an eye will make tears flow,
and whoever pricks a heart reveals its feelings.
20 Whoever throws a stone at birds scares them off,
and whoever insults a friend breaks up a friendship.
21 If you draw a sword on a friend,
don't despair,
because there can be a way back.
22 If you speak harshly to a friend,
don't be concerned,
because there can be reconciliation.
But in the case of reproach, arrogance,
the revealing of a secret,
or a treacherous blow,
any friend will flee.
23 Gain your neighbors' trust
while they are poor,
so that when they are prosperous,
you will be filled along with them.
In a time of distress remain with them so that when they inherit, you will be a joint heir.[t] 24 Before there's a fire,
a furnace has vapor and smoke;
so before bloodshed there are insults.
25 I won't be ashamed to shelter friends, and I won't hide from them.
26 And if something bad happens to me because of them,

everyone who hears of it will be on guard against them.

Prayer for protection from sinning

27 Who will put a guard on my mouth and an effective seal upon my lips so that I don't fall because of my speech
and so that my tongue
doesn't destroy me?

Sirach 23 Lord, Father, and master of my life, don't abandon me to their will,

and don't let me fall because of them.
2 Who will station whips to keep my thoughts in line and set the discipline of wisdom
over my heart,
so that I might not be spared my faults due to ignorance
and my sins not go unnoticed?
3 Otherwise, my acts of ignorance might multiply,
and my sins might increase,
and I'll fall before my adversaries, and my enemy will rejoice over me.[u] 4 Lord, Father, God of my life, don't let me have prideful eyes;
5 turn desire away from me.
6 Don't allow gluttony or sexual desire to overtake me,
and don't hand me over
to a shameless spirit.[v]

Instruction about the mouth[w]

7 Listen, my children, to instruction about your mouth;

whoever follows my instruction
will never succumb to it.
[8]The lips of sinners will seize them and make abusers
and the arrogant stumble.
[9]Don't let your mouth get used to making solemn pledges, and don't get accustomed to saying the name of the holy one.
[10]Just as a household slave who is constantly examined won't be lacking bruises, so also the person who always swears and speaks the Lord's name will never be cleansed from sin.
[11]People who make many solemn pledges will be full of lawlessness, and a scourge won't depart
from their house.
If they break their solemn pledges,
their sin is on them,
and if they disregard it, they sin doubly,
and if they swear falsely,
they won't be justified,
but their houses will be full of misery.
[12]There is a way of speaking that's comparable to death;
don't let it be found among Jacob's descendants.
All these things will stay far away from the godly,
and they will not wallow in their sins.
[13]Don't grow accustomed to saying coarse things, because to do so is to engage in sinful speech.
[14]Remember your father and mother, because you sit in the council

among officials.
This way, you won't forget yourself in front of them
and act foolishly out of habit-- then you'd wish
that you hadn't been born,
and you'd curse the day of your birth.
15People who are accustomed to reproachful words will never learn anything their whole life.

On sex

16Two types of people multiply sins, and a third will bring wrath.
A hot temperament that burns like fire will never be quenched until it is spent.
People who are promiscuous with their kin
will never stop until the fire burns out.
17To promiscuous people all bread is sweet;
they don't become weary until they die.
18There are people who violate their marriage bed, saying to themselves, Who will see me?
Darkness envelops me;
the walls hide me;
no one will see me.
Why do I have a care?
The Most High
will never recall my sins.
19They fear human eyes, but they are unaware that the eyes of the Lord are ten thousand times brighter than the sun;
they observe all the ways
of human beings

and look into hidden places.
20 Before all things were created, God knew them;
so as well after they were finished.
21 These people will be punished in the streets of the city, and when they least expect it,
they will be seized.
22 So it is with a woman when she is unfaithful to her husband and she presents him with an heir
by another man.
23 First, she's disobeyed
the Law of the Most High;
second, she's wronged her husband;
third, she's committed adultery by her illicit sexual behavior and produced children
by another man.
24 She will be led into the assembly, and her punishment
will be upon her children.
25 Her children won't take root, and her branches won't bear fruit.
26 She will leave behind a cursed memory, and her reproach won't be wiped clean.
27 And those who remain will know that nothing is better than fearing the Lord,
and nothing is sweeter than keeping the Lord's commandments.[x]

Praise of Wisdom[y]

Sirach 24 Wisdom will praise herself, and she will boast in the midst of her people.

2 In the assembly of the Most High,
she will open her mouth,

and in the presence of his heavenly forces, she will boast: 3"I came forth from the mouth
of the Most High,
and I covered the earth like a mist.
4I lived in the heights,
and my throne was in a pillar of cloud.
5I alone encircled the vault of heaven and walked in the depths of abysses.
6In the waves of the sea and in every land,
and among every people and nation,
I led the way.
7I sought a resting place among all of these.
In whose allotted territory should I make my home?
8"Then the creator of all things gave me a command;
the one who created me pitched my tent
and said, 'Make your dwelling in Jacob, and let Israel receive your inheritance.' 9Before the ages, from the beginning,
he created me,
and till eternity I will never fail.
10I ministered before him in the holy tent, and so I was established in Zion.
11In the same way, he made the dearly loved city my resting place and established my authority in Jerusalem.
12I took root in a glorified people;
among the people the Lord chose for his inheritance.
13'I rose high like a cedar in Lebanon, like a cypress on Mount Hermon.
14I rose high like a palm in En-geddi, and like rosebushes in Jericho,

like a fair olive tree in a field.
I rose high like a plane tree.
15Like cinnamon and camel's thorn used for spices,
I gave off a fine aroma.
Like choice myrrh,
I spread forth my fragrance,
like galbanum, onycha, and stacte, and like the smell of frankincense in the tent.
16Like a terebinth oak
I spread out my branches, and my branches were glorious and graceful.
17Gracious favor was the leaf that I put forth like a vine, and honor and wealth
were the fruit that my blossoms bore.[z] 19"Come to me, you who desire me, and take your fill of my produce.
20Calling me to mind is sweeter than honey,
and possessing me
is better than a dripping honeycomb.
21Those who eat of me will hunger for more,
and those who drink of me
will thirst for more.
22Whoever obeys me won't be ashamed, and those who work with me won't sin."

Wisdom and the Law

23All these things are in the covenant scroll of the Most High God, the Law that Moses commanded us, the inheritance of the congregations of Jacob.[a] 25God supplies Wisdom comparable to the fullness of the Pishon River, even like the Tigris River in the springtime.

[26]God provides understanding as deep as the Euphrates, or like the Jordan at the time of the harvest.
[27]God pours forth understanding like light, as does the Gihon Spring
at the time of the grape harvest.
[28]The first human didn't know Wisdom completely, and so the last won't probe her fully.
[29]Her thoughts are more plentiful than the sea;
her counsel is deeper than the great abyss.[b] [30]Like a canal from a river, like an irrigation channel,
I went out into a garden.
[31]I said, "I'll water my garden, and I'll drench my flower bed.
And look! The canal turned into a river for me, and my river turned into a sea.
[32]I'll continue to make instruction shine forth like the dawn, and I'll make things clear to those who are far off.
[33]I'll continue to pour out teaching like prophecy,
and I'll leave it behind
for future generations.
[34]See, I've not labored for myself alone, but for all those who seek her."

Things to be praised

Sirach 25My whole being takes pleasure

in three things,
and these are beautiful to the Lord
and to human beings:
harmony among brothers and sisters,
friendship among neighbors, and a wife and husband
who adapt to each other.
2My whole being despises
three types of persons, and I am angered by the way they live:
an arrogant poor person,
a rich liar,
an old adulterer who never learns.
3If you have gathered nothing in your youth,
how then will you find anything
in your old age?
4How beautiful is sound judgment in gray-haired women
and finding good advice in elderly men!
5How beautiful is wisdom in the aged and thought and counsel in those who are respectable!
6Experience is the crown of the aged and respecting the Lord is their claim to fame.
7In my heart, I would consider nine conditions to be happy, and I'll name a tenth with my tongue-- people who are made glad
by their children,
and who live to see the downfall of their enemies.
8Happy are those who live with sensible wives,[c]

who don't slip with their tongue, and who haven't been a servant to one inferior to themselves.
9Happy is the one who has gained good sense and who is passing this along to listening ears.
10How great is one who finds Wisdom, but no one does better
than the one who fears the Lord.
11Fear of the Lord surpasses everything;
those who possess it are incomparable.[d]

Evil and good women

13Any wound, but not a wound to the heart;
and any wickedness,
but not a woman's wickedness!
14Any attack,
but not an attack by those who hate;
and any vengeance,
but not the vengeance of enemies.
15No poison is worse than a snake's poison,[e] and no anger is worse than an enemy's anger.
16I would rather live with a lion or a serpent than live with a wicked woman.
17A woman's wickedness
changes her appearance, and it darkens her face like that of a bear.
18Her husband sits down among his neighbors
and unintentionally groans bitterly.
19Any evil is small
when compared to a woman's evil;
may she experience a sinner's fate.
20A talkative wife for a quiet husband is like a sand dune
beneath the feet of an elderly person.

21 Don't fall for a woman's beauty, and don't long for a woman.
22 There will be anger, shamelessness,
and utter disgrace
when a wife provides for her husband.
23 A wicked wife causes a humiliated heart,
a gloomy face,
and a wounded heart.
Drooping hands and weakened knees come from a woman who doesn't make her husband happy.
24 Sin began with a woman, and because of her all of us die.
25 Don't allow an outlet for water, and don't give a wicked wife freedom to speak.
26 If she doesn't do as you say, divorce her.[f]

Sirach 26 The husband of a good wife is favored,

and the length of his life will be doubled.
2 A courageous wife
will make her husband happy,
and he will complete his years in peace.
3 A good wife is a great blessing.
The one who fears the Lord will receive her as part of his God-given portion.
4 Whether in poverty or in wealth,
his heart is happy;
at every moment he has a cheerful face.
5 My heart was cautious about three things, and I was fearful
in the face of a fourth-- slander in a city,
the gathering of a mob,
and a false accusation--

all of these are more miserable
than death.
6 Women who are rivals
bring heartache and grief, and a tongue-lashing shares it with everyone.
7 A wicked wife is like a chafing ox yoke;
the one who holds her
is like one who grasps a scorpion.
8 A drunken wife is the same as rage;
she won't hide her disgraceful conduct.
9 A wife's promiscuity is seen in the arrogance of her eyes, and her eyelids make it known.
10 Keep a strict watch
over a disobedient daughter, or else, if she finds you off guard,
she will take advantage of it.
11 Beware of her shameless eye, and don't be surprised
if she wrongs you.
12 Just as thirsty travelers will open their mouths
and drink from water that is near,
she will sit in front of every peg, and she will open her quiver to an arrow.
13 A wife's charm will delight her husband, and her skill will put fat on his bones.
14 A silent wife is a gift from the Lord, and nothing can be traded
for her self-discipline.
15 A modest wife adds charm upon charm, and there is no balance that can weigh the full value of her self-control.
16 As the sun rising in the Lord's high heavens,

so is the beauty of a good wife
in her well-ordered home.
17 As a lamp shines on the holy lampstand, so also is a beautiful face along with steady maturity.
18 Like gold pillars upon a silver base, so also are shapely legs
on steadfast feet.
19 [g] My child, keep the vitality of your prime of life safe and sound, and don't give your strength over to strangers.
20 After you have chosen a fertile plot out of every field,
sow your own seed,
being confident of your excellent descent.
21 Thus your offspring who surround you and who have confidence in their excellent descent, will become great.
22 A hired woman will be considered the same as spit, but a married woman will be considered a tower of death to those who associate too closely with her.
23 An ungodly woman will be bestowed on a lawless man as his portion, but a godly woman is granted to the man who fears the Lord.
24 A shameless woman will always be in disgrace,
but a dignified daughter will show modesty even with her husband.
25 An unruly wife will be thought of
as a dog,
but the wife who feels shame
will fear the Lord.
26 A wife who honors her own husband will appear wise to everyone, but the wife who dishonors her husband with arrogance will be known to all as ungodly.

The husband of a good wife is happy,
for the number of his years will double.
27A loudmouthed and talkative wife is like a battle trumpet sounding an attack.
The spirit of the man who lives under such conditions lives perpetually in the chaos of the battlefield.

On integrity

28My heart has been saddened by two things,
and I was made angry because of a third:
a warrior who is needy
and impoverished, intelligent people who are treated with contempt,
and people who are turned from righteousness to sin-- the Lord will prepare them for the sword.
29A merchant will scarcely be kept from wrongdoing,
and a retailer won't be innocent of sin.

Sirach 27 Many have sinned because of money, and whoever seeks to get more will turn a blind eye.

2A stake is driven
between cracks in stones, and sin will be wedged between selling and buying.
3If people don't remain mindful of the respect due the Lord,

their houses will be quickly overthrown.
4When a sieve is shaken, rubbish remains behind;
so in the process of reasoning,
a person's flaws appear.
5A kiln tests a potter's jars, and decision making tests a person.
6A tree's fruit reveals how well it has been cultivated.
In the same way, reasoning makes plain a person's thoughts.
7Don't praise people
until after they present an argument, for this is how people are tested.
8If you pursue what's just,
you will possess it
and wear it like a glorious robe.
9Birds will nest with their own kind, and truth comes back
to those who practice it.
10A lion lies in wait for prey just as sin lies in wait for those who practice injustice.
11The godly always speak wisdom, but the fool changes like the moon.
12Limit the time you spend with unintelligent people, but linger with the thoughtful.
13The conversation of fools is offensive, as is their laughter
over sinful pleasures.
14Their speech, full of profanity, makes a person's hair stand on end,
and their conflicts make people stop up their ears.
15The conflict of the arrogant ends in bloodshed,

and their abuse is miserable to hear.

Relations with associates

16 Those who reveal secrets have destroyed trust,
and they will never find a friend
for themselves.
17 Show affection to friends and be loyal to them,
but if you reveal their secrets,
don't follow after them.
18 Just as people destroy an enemy,[h] so you have destroyed your friendship with your neighbors.
19 And as you set a bird free from your hand, so too you have let your neighbors go,
and you won't catch them.
20 Don't pursue them, because they have withdrawn far away from you,
and they have escaped
like a gazelle from a trap.
21 In the same way that it's possible to bandage a wound,
there's also reconciliation for insult,
but the one who has let a friend's secrets slip out has no hope.
22 Those who wink their eye plan evil, and whoever recognizes them will keep their distance.
23 To your face their speech will be sweet, and they will express amazement
at your words.
But later they will distort what they said,
and they will use your own words against you.
24 I've hated many things,
but nothing compares with them.
Even the Lord will hate them.

25 Those who throw stones up high throw them on their own heads, and a deceitful blow
will open up wounds.
26 Whoever digs a hole will fall into it, and whoever sets a trap
will get caught in it.
27 Evil will roll back upon those who practice evil,
and they will never know where it came from.
28 Mocking and blaming belong to the arrogant,
and vengeance, like a lion,
will lie in wait for them.
29 Those who rejoice when godly people fall will get caught in a trap, and pain will consume them
before their death.
30 Wrath and anger--
these also are detestable, and they will possess the sinful person.

Sirach 28 Those who are vengeful will suffer the Lord's vengeance, because the Lord keeps strict count of their sins.

2 Forgive your neighbor a wrong,
and then, when you pray,
your sins will be forgiven.
3 Can people hold on to their anger against others, and then look for healing from the Lord?
4 Can they refuse to have mercy on people like themselves, and then pray about their own sins?
5 If they, who are just flesh, hold on to anger,
who will secure pardon
for their own sins?
6 Be mindful of the end that awaits you,
and put an end to enmity;
be mindful of decay and death,
and be faithful to the commandments.
7 Be mindful of the commandments, and don't be irate at your neighbor;
be mindful of the covenant of the Most High, and overlook a mistake.
8 Keep away from conflict, and you will reduce your sins;
for hot-tempered people spark conflict.
9 Sinful people will stir up trouble for friends, and they spread slander
among people who are at peace.
10 A fire burns in proportion to its fuel, and conflict increases

the longer it continues.
The more powerful individuals are,
the stronger their anger will be;
and the wealthier they are,
the more their wrath will increase.
11 A hasty quarrel sparks a fire, and hasty conflict sheds blood.
12 If you blow on a spark, it will flame up, and if you spit on it, it will go out;
nonetheless, both come out of your mouth.
13 A curse on slanderers and the deceitful,[i] because they have destroyed many who are at peace.
14 Slander[j] has shaken up many people, scattered them from nation to nation,
demolished mighty cities,
and overthrown the houses of dignitaries.
15 Slander[k] has driven out courageous women,
and it has deprived them
of the rewards of their work.
16 Those who pay attention to slander will never find rest,
nor will they live in peace.
17 The blow of a whip leaves a welt, but the blow of the tongue will break bones.
18 Many have fallen by the edge of the sword,
but many more have fallen because of the tongue.
19 Happy is the person who is protected from the tongue, who hasn't endured its anger,

who hasn't pulled its yoke or been bound by its shackles.
20 Its yoke is made of iron, and its shackles are made of bronze.
21 The death it inflicts is a wicked death,
and the grave[l] is preferable to it.
22 It will never conquer the godly,
and they won't be burned by its flame.
23 Those who abandon the Lord will fall to it;
it will burn within them,
and it will never go out.
It will be sent against them like a lion,
and like a leopard it will mangle them.
24a Watch out! Fence in your property with thorns, 25b and make a door
and a bolt for your mouth.
24b Lock up your silver and gold; 25a make a balance and a weight for your words.[m] 26 Pay attention, and don't slip by your tongue;
don't fall in front of those who are just waiting to attack you.

Lending and borrowing

Sirach 29 Those who show compassion

will lend to a neighbor, and those who lend a helping hand
keep the commandments.
2 Lend to neighbors in their time of need,
and pay your neighbor back again on time.
3 Keep your word,

and be trustworthy in your dealings, and you will find what you need every time.
4Many think of a loan as a windfall, and they have caused trouble for those who have helped them.
5Until they receive the loan, they will kiss the hands of those who can help,
and they will speak with deference about their neighbor's money, but when it's time for repayment,
they will put it off,
offer weak excuses,
and say it is a bad time.
6If they can repay, their creditors will barely recover half the amount, and the creditors will consider that much a windfall;
but if they can't pay,
they have defrauded their creditors
of their money,
and they have made enemies
out of them needlessly.
They will repay their creditors
with curses and insults, and they will repay them with dishonor rather than glory.
7Many have refused to make a loan, not because they were vicious but because they were cautious about being needlessly cheated.
8Even so, be patient with those in humble circumstances, and don't make them wait for assistance.
9Help the needy for the commandment's sake,
and in proportion to their need

don't turn them away empty-handed.
10 Part with silver for a relative's or friend's sake,
and don't let it corrode under a stone and be destroyed.
11 Invest your treasure according to the commandments
of the Most High,
and it will profit you more than gold.
12 Store up acts of charity in your treasuries, and it will deliver you
from every distress.
13 More than a sturdy shield and more than a hefty spear, it will fight for you against an enemy.
14 Good people will guarantee a loan for neighbors,
and those who have lost any sense of shame will abandon them.
15 Don't forget the kindness of those who have guaranteed a loan, since they gave their life
on your behalf.
16 Sinners will ruin
their guarantor's property, 17 and ungrateful persons intentionally abandon their rescuers.
18 Guaranteeing a loan has ruined many prosperous people and tossed them about
like a wave on the sea.
It has led to the exile of the powerful,
and they have wandered
among foreign nations.
19 Sinners will fall into guaranteeing loans,
and when they chase profits,
they will fall into lawsuits.

20 Help your neighbor as much as you can,
but keep yourself from ruin.

Home and children

21 Life's foundations are water, bread, clothing,
and a house for ensuring privacy.
22 Better is the life of the poor under a shelter of rafters than magnificent food
in foreign countries.
23 Be content with a little or a lot,
and you will never be put down
for being a sojourner.
24 Going from house to house is a miserable life,
and wherever you are an immigrant,
don't open your mouth.
25 You will entertain and provide drink without thanks,
and you will hear bitter words
such as these:
26 "Come here, foreigner, prepare a table;
and if there's something in your hand, feed it to me.
27 Go away, foreigner,
I have a reputable guest;
my brother has come to visit,
and I need the house."
28 These are difficult things for a person of intelligence:
criticism for being an immigrant and rebuke from a moneylender.

Concerning children[n]

Sirach 30 The person who loves his sons will discipline them often so that he may be glad about how they turn out.

2 Whoever instructs his sons will benefit from them, and he will boast about them
among his acquaintances.
3 The person who teaches his sons will make his enemy jealous, but among his friends
he will rejoice over them.
4 When their father passes away,
it is as if he hadn't died, because he left behind sons who are like him.
5 When he was alive,
he saw them and was glad,
and at his end, he wasn't grieved.
6 He was survived by those who would avenge him against his enemies
and who would repay kindness to his friends.
7 A parent who spoils children now will end up tending to their wounds, and will experience heartache at every outcry.
8 A horse that is unbroken turns out stubborn,
and a child, when given free rein, turns out reckless.
9 Indulge children,
and they will terrorize you;
play with them,
and they will grieve you.
10 Don't laugh together with them, so that you don't suffer together and in the end

grind your teeth in regret.
11 Don't give them free rein in their youth.[o] 12 Bruise their sides
while they are still young, or else they will become stubborn and disobey you.
13 Educate your children, and work on them, so that you don't end up offended by their shameful behavior.

Food and health

14 It is better to be poor, but healthy and strong,
than a rich person
whose body is afflicted.
15 Being healthy and fit is better than any gold, and a strong spirit
is better than untold riches.
16 No wealth is better than a healthy body,
and no gladness is better than happiness in one's heart.
17 Death is better than a bitter life, and eternal rest is better than chronic illness.

Concerning foods.[p]

18 Good things that are poured out on a closed mouth are the same as food offerings placed on a grave.
19 Of what use is an offering of fruit
to an idol?
It can't eat or smell.
The person whom the Lord punishes is like this,
20 looking with the eyes and groaning like a eunuch who embraces a young woman and groans.[q] 21 Don't let grief take you over,

and don't distress yourself on purpose.
22 A joyful heart means life for a human being,
and a person's rejoicing
provides long life.
23 Distract yourself, cheer yourself up, and keep grief far away from you because grief has destroyed many,
and there's no benefit in it.
24 Jealousy and anger
shorten a person's life,
and anxiety brings old age before its time.
25 Those who are cheerful and contented at meals
will attend well to their food.[r]

On wealth

Sirach 31 Sleeplessness over wealth makes the body waste away, and anxiety about wealth keeps sleep away.

2 Worrying will keep you awake, and serious illness
will chase sleep away.
3 Rich people have worked to accumulate money,
and when they rest,
they fill themselves with their luxuries.
4 Poor people have worked to eke out a living,
and when they rest,
they become needy again.
5 Whoever loves gold won't be declared just,

and whoever pursues profits
will be led astray by them.
6 Many have been ruined because of gold, and their destruction has met them head-on.[s] 7 It's a stumbling block for those who are possessed by it, and it will take
every senseless person captive.
8 Happy are the rich
who are without blame
and who don't follow after gold.
9 Who are they,
so that we might praise them?
They have done wonders
among the people.
10 Who has been tested by wealth[t]
and been found perfect?
For them it will be a reason to boast.
Who had the power to sin and didn't,
and could do evil but didn't?
11 The possessions of such people will be secure,
and the congregation will tell
of their acts of charity.

Behavior at meals

12 Have you been seated at a magnificent table?
Don't be greedy as you sit there,
and don't say,
"Look how much food there is!"
13 Remember, a greedy eye is a bad thing.
What has been created more greedy than the eye?
For this reason, every face sheds tears.
14 Don't reach out your hand for whatever you see,
and don't crowd your dinner companion by reaching into the same bowl.

15 Put yourself in your companion's place,
and be considerate in everything.
16 Eat what's put in front of you like a normal human being,[u]
and don't chew rudely,
or you will be hated.
17 Be the first to stop,
to show your good breeding,
and don't be gluttonous;
otherwise, you will offend.
18 If you have been seated with a lot of people,
don't help yourself before they do.
19 A little food is more than enough for well-educated people!
They won't gasp for breath
when they lie down to sleep.
20 Healthy sleep depends on not stuffing yourself.
Such people arise early and feel good.[v]
The gluttons suffer the pains of insomnia, nausea, and colic.
21 If you've overstuffed yourself, get up, vomit far away,
and you will feel better.
22 Listen to me, my child,
and don't show me contempt,
and in the end you will understand what I'm saying;
be careful[w] in everything you do,
and you will never fall sick.
23 People will bless those who are generous with bread;
they give reliable testimony to the excellence of such people.
24 The city will murmur about those who are stingy with bread, giving accurate witness to the wickedness of such people.

25Don't demonstrate your bravado in wine drinking,
because wine has destroyed many.
26A furnace tests the hardening of steel when it's dipped,[x]
so wine tests the heart
when the arrogant quarrel.
27If taken in moderation,
wine makes people's lives better.
What's life to those who don't have wine?
It was created from the beginning to bring merriment.
28The right amount of wine consumed at the right time makes for a joyful heart and a light spirit.
29Too much wine drunk
in the midst of strife and conflict makes for a bitter spirit.
30Getting drunk causes fools to lose their temper and do themselves harm, reducing their strength,
and adding injuries as well.
31Don't correct your neighbors at a wine banquet,
and don't show them contempt
when they are partying;
don't say any reproachful word
to them,
and don't trouble them
with any demands.

Sirach 32

If they have appointed you

as the banquet leader,

don't think too much of yourself;
behave toward them
as if you were one of them.
Take care of their needs and then sit down.
2When you have done
everything necessary, recline,
so that you can have fun with them,
and because of your excellent behavior
you will receive a wreath.
3Speak, you who are older,
for it's your privilege.
But know what you're talking about,
and don't interrupt the music.
4Where there's a performance, don't talk too much,
and don't be clever at the wrong time.
5A musical performance at a wine party is like a ruby seal on a gold ornament.
6Melodic music accompanying sweet wine is like an emerald seal
in a setting of gold.
7Speak, you who are young,
if it's necessary,
but only twice,
and only if you are asked.
8Sum up what you have to say;
much can be said in few words.
Be like one who knows
but who can keep silent.
9When you are among the more influential, don't presume authority;
and where elders are present,
don't talk idly about many things.
10Lightning comes before thunder, and good favor walks
in front of a modest person.
11Rise up to leave in time, and don't be the last person out;

go back to your own home,
and don't miss your work
the next day.
12Enjoy yourself there,
and do what you please,
but don't sin with arrogant words.
13More than this,
bless the one who made you and who lets you drink freely from his good bounty.

On divine providence

14Whoever fears the Lord will accept instruction;
those who rise early
will find approval.
15Whoever seeks the Law
will be filled with it, but the hypocrite will stumble over it.
16Those who fear the Lord
will discover his decree, and they will kindle righteous deeds like a lamp.
17Sinful people turn away from correction;
they will look for a judgment that suits them.
18A well-advised person won't overlook an intelligent thought;
the stranger and the arrogant won't cower out of fear.
19Do nothing without deliberation, and when you have acted,
don't feel regret.
20Don't walk on a hazardous path, and don't stumble on stony ground.[y] 21Don't trust an unexplored road,

22and be on guard concerning your children.[z] 23Trust yourself[a] in every action, because this also means keeping the commandments.
24Whoever has faith in the Law pays attention to the commandments; whoever trusts the Lord won't suffer loss.

Sirach 33

Those who fear the Lord

won't encounter evil,
but when they are tested
they will be delivered again and again.
2Wise people won't hate the Law, but those who are hypocrites about it are like a boat in a storm.
3Sensible people will trust the Lord's word;[b] for them, the Law is as trustworthy as divine oracles.
4Prepare your speech,
and then you will be heard;
draw upon your training,
and give an answer.
5The emotions of the foolish are like a wagon wheel, and their arguments are like a turning axle.
6A friend who mocks is like a stallion that whinnies underneath anyone who rides him.
7Why is one day more significant than another,
when all the daylight in a year
is from the sun?
8The Lord, in his knowledge, classified them,

and he distinguished between different seasons and festivals.
9He lifted out some days
and made them holy,
and some he made regular days.
10All people come from the ground, and Adam[c] was created out of earth.
11In the fullness of his knowledge the Lord made distinctions between them,
and he made their ways different.
12Some of them he blessed and lifted up, and some he made holy
and brought them near to himself;
some of them he cursed, brought low,
and expelled them from their place.
13Like clay in the potter's hand, shaped according to the potter's pleasure,
so are human beings
in the hand of the one
who made them,
whom he repays according to his judgment.
14Good is the opposite of evil,
and life is the opposite of death;
so the sinner is the opposite of the godly.
15Observe, then,
all the works of the Most High,
two by two, one opposite the other.
16I was the last to keep vigil, as one who gathered the leftovers after the grape pickers.
17By the blessing of the Lord,
I was first on the scene,

and like the grape pickers,
I filled up a wine vat.
18 Understand that I haven't labored for myself alone,
but for all those who are seeking instruction.

On independence

19 Listen to me, you who are great
among the people;
pay attention,
you leaders in the congregation.
20 Don't give son or wife, sibling or friend, authority over you in your lifetime, and don't give your property
to someone else,
since you might change your mind
and ask for it back.
21 While you still live
and have breath in you,
don't exchange places with anyone else.
22 It's better for your children to make requests of you than that you should look to them for generosity.
23 Excel in everything you do;
don't bring a stain on your reputation.
24 On the last day of your life,
at the moment of death,
distribute your inheritance.

On slaves

25 Fodder, a rod, and burdens for donkeys;
bread, discipline,
and work for household slaves.
26 Set them to work with discipline,
and you will have leisure;
let their hands be idle,
and they will seek freedom.

27 A yoke and a strap will bend a neck, and there are racks and tortures
for a wicked household slave.
28 Put them to work so that they aren't idle, 29 because idleness teaches many evils.
30 Set them to work, as is proper for them,
and if they don't obey,
make their shackles heavy.
Don't overburden a person
made of flesh,
and don't do anything
without exercising good judgment.
31 If you have household slaves,
treat them like yourself,
because you purchased them with blood.
If you have household slaves,
treat them like siblings, because you will need them
as you go through life.
32 If you mistreat them,
and they leave and run away, 33 on which road will you search for them?

On dreams

Sirach 34 Senseless people have empty and false hopes,

and dreams excite fools.
2 Those who pay attention to dreams are just like people who grasp at a shadow or pursue the wind.
3 What one sees in a dream is a reflection, a face looking at its own likeness.
4 What will be made clean from something unclean?
And what will be true
of something false?

5 Divinations, omens,
and dreams are empty.
The mind has fantasies,
just like a woman in labor does.
6 Unless the Most High sends a dream by means of a visitation, don't pay any attention to it.
7 Dreams have misled many,
and those who have placed hope in them have fallen.
8 The Law will be fulfilled without lies; wisdom in a faithful person's mouth is fulfillment.

Experience and fear of the Lord

9 People who have traveled know a lot, and those who are experienced will speak sense.
10 People with no experience know little,
11 but those who have traveled have become more clever.
12 I have seen a lot in my wandering, and I understand more than I can tell.
13 I've often been in danger,
close to death,
and I was saved
because of these experiences.
14 The spirit of those who fear the Lord will live,
15 because their hope is in the one who saves them.
16 Those who fear the Lord
won't be timid about anything;
they will never turn coward,
because the Lord is their hope.
17 The souls of those who fear the Lord are favored.
18 To whom do they look?

And who is their support?
19The Lord's eyes
are upon those who love him.
The Lord is a powerful shield,
a strong support,
a shelter from the heat,
a shade from the midday sun,
a guard against stumbling,
and a help against falling; 20one who lifts up the spirit,
one who gives light to the eyes,
and one who gives healing for life and blessing.

On sacrifice and worship

21When someone sacrifices something unjustly gotten,
the offering is flawed;
22the gifts of those who don't follow
the Law are not acceptable.
23The Most High is not pleased with the offerings of the ungodly, nor will he forgive sins
for a multitude of sacrifices.
24Someone who brings a sacrifice that comes from the property of the needy is like someone who slaughters a son in the presence of his father.
25The needy person's bread means life for that poor person;
whoever withholds it is a murderer.
26Whoever takes away a neighbor's living commits murder, 27and whoever deprives a worker of wages sheds blood.
28One person builds,
and another tears down;
what have they gained
other than hard work?
29One person prays,

and another person curses;
to whose voice will the master listen?
30When people bathe after touching a corpse and touch it again, what have they gained by washing?
31So when people fast because of their sins, and then go and do the same things again,
who will listen to their prayer,
and what did they gain
by humbling themselves?

Sirach 35 Whoever keeps the Law gives many offerings; 2whoever obeys the commandments makes a sacrifice of well-being.

3Whoever repays a kindness offers the finest flour, 4and whoever does an act of charity makes a sacrifice of praise.
5Staying away from wickedness pleases the Lord,
and keeping away from injustice means reconciliation.
6Don't come into the Lord's presence empty-handed,
7since fulfilling the commandments means making offerings.
8The righteous person's offering enriches the altar,
and its pleasing odor comes before the Most High.
9A righteous person's offering is acceptable,
and its memory will last forever.
10Honor the Lord generously,

and don't skimp
on the early produce you present.[d] 11 Every time you give, have a cheerful face, and dedicate your tithe gladly.
12 Give to the Most High as he has given,
and give with generosity from what you have,
13 because the Lord is the one who repays, and he will repay you seven times over.
14 Don't offer a bribe, because the Lord won't accept it.
15 Don't present an unrighteous sacrifice, because the Lord is a judge,
and he shows no partiality.
16 God will not be partial to the poor, but he will listen to the complaint of those who are wronged.
17 God will never ignore an orphan's plea, nor that of a widow
when she pours out a complaint.
18 Don't a widow's tears fall down on her cheek, 19 and isn't her plea against the one who caused her tears?
20 Those who serve with goodwill will be accepted,
and their prayer will reach to the clouds.
21 The prayer of the humble passes through the clouds,
and it will never stop
until it draws near to God.[e]
It will never withdraw until the Most High takes notice, 22 gives justice for the righteous, and executes judgment.
Indeed, the Lord will never delay, nor will he be patient with them until he crushes the power[f]

of the unmerciful, 23until he exacts vengeance
on the nations,
until he removes the multitude of abusive people
and shatters the authority of the unrighteous, 24until he repays individuals
according to their deeds
and the works of human beings according to their thoughts, 25until he decides the case of his people and makes them glad by his mercy.
26His mercy is timely in a period of distress,
like rain clouds in a dry season.

Prayer for Israel's deliverance

Sirach 36 Have mercy on us, Lord God of all;

2and teach all nations to stand in awe of you.
3Raise up your hand
against foreign nations,
and let them see your power.
4Just as they saw your holiness made visible in our midst, so let us see your power
made visible in their midst.
5Let them know you,
just as we also have known, Lord,
that there's no God except you.
6Renew the signs,
and work different wonders;
7make your strong hand and arm glorious.
8Arouse your anger;

pour out your wrath;
[9]remove the adversary;
destroy the enemy.
[10]Act quickly,
remember what you have sworn,
and let people tell of your mighty acts.
[11]Let those who survive be consumed in a fiery wrath, and may those who harm your people come to destruction.
[12]Crush the heads of hostile rulers, who say, "We're all that matters." [13]Gather all the tribes of Jacob,[g] [16]and give them their inheritance, as you did at the beginning.
[17]Have mercy, Lord, on the people who have been called by your name;
on Israel, whom you made like an oldest child.
[18]Take pity on the city where your sanctuary is;
on Jerusalem,
the place where you live.[h] [19]Fill Zion with the celebration of your mighty deeds,[i]
and fill your temple with your glory.
[20]Bear witness to those whom you created at the beginning, and fulfill the prophecies that were given in your name.
[21]Give a reward to those who wait for you,
and let your prophets
be found trustworthy.
[22]Hear, Lord, the prayer of your household slaves according to your goodwill toward your people,

and all those who live upon the earth will know that you are the Lord, the God of the ages.

Wives, friends, and counselors

23 The stomach will accept any food, but one kind of food
is better than another.
24 As the palate tastes different types of game,
so an intelligent mind tests[j] false words.
25 A perverse heart will cause grief, but an experienced person will know how to give payback.
26 A woman will accept any male as a husband,[k]
but some daughters are preferable to other ones.
27 A woman's beauty brightens a man's face, and she surpasses a man's every desire.
28 If her speech is characterized by mercy and gentleness,
her husband is unlike anyone else.
29 Whoever acquires a wife takes his first step toward success.[l]
She will be a fit helper for him and a pillar of rest.[m] 30 Where no fence exists, the property is carried off,
and where there's no wife,
a man sighs as he wanders about.[n] 31 Who will trust a well-equipped robber who travels from city to city?
Likewise, who will trust a man who does not have a nest

and who lodges wherever night falls?

Sirach 37

Every friend will say,
"I too have been a friend," but there's a friend who is one in name only.
2 Doesn't the pain bring a person
close to death
when a companion and friend turns into an enemy?
3 Evil inclination,
how did you get involved
in covering the land with deceit?
4 Some companions take delight in a friend's happiness, but they turn against them
in a time of distress.
5 Some companions work alongside a friend for their stomach's sake, but in the heat of battle,
they will shield themselves.[o] 6 Don't forget friends in your heart, and don't neglect them
when it comes to your money.[p] 7 Every counselor spews out advice, but some give advice
for their own benefit.
8 Guard yourself against counselors, and know beforehand
where their interest lies,
since they too,
will give advice for their own benefit and might cast the lot against you.
9 They might say to you, "Your way is good,"
but they will stand aside to see what will happen to you.

10 Don't consult with people who view you with suspicion; hide your plans from those who are jealous of you.
11 Don't consult with a woman about her rival,
or with the cowardly about war;
or with a merchant about business,
or with a buyer about a sale;
or with a slanderer about gratitude,
or with the unmerciful about kindness;
or with the idle about anything involving work,
or with an annual laborer about finishing a job;
or with a lazy household slave about a large task.
Don't look to these persons
for any advice.
12 Consult[q] instead with a godly person whom you know
keeps the commandments, who thinks the same way you do
and will empathize with you if you fail.
13 Listen carefully to what your own heart tells you, since nothing is more faithful to you than it.
14 At times a person's intuition keeps them informed better than seven sentries sitting high up on a lookout.
15 But above everything else, pray to the Most High,
so that he may make your path straight in truth.

Speech and moderation

16 Speech is the beginning of every deed, and planning comes before every action.
17 The key to change is the heart; 18 it poses four possibilities:
good and evil, life and death,
and their continual master is the tongue.
19 Some people instruct many,
but they are useless to themselves.
20 Some skilled speakers are hated;
they will be deprived of any luxuries.
21 The Lord hasn't granted them any refinement,
because they are deprived of any wisdom.
22 Some people are wise to their own benefit,
and the fruits of their understanding
are evident to all.
23 The wise will instruct their own people,
and the fruits of their understanding
are trustworthy.
24 Wise people will be highly praised,
and everyone who sees them will consider them to be favored.
25 A person's life is a limited time, but Israel's days cannot be numbered.
26 Those who are wise among their people will inherit honor,
and their names will live forever.
27 My child, test yourself during your life.
See what's bad for you,
and don't give in to it.
28 All things aren't beneficial to everybody, and all things aren't pleasing to every person.

29 Don't be greedy for every delicacy, and don't be unrestrained with food.
30 Eating a lot of food will make one sick, and gluttony will lead to nausea.
31 Many have died because of gluttony, but those who are on guard against it will prolong life.

On physicians

Sirach 38 Honor doctors for their services,[r]

since indeed the Lord created them.
2 Healing comes from the Most High,
and the king will reward them.
3 The skill of doctors will make them eminent,
and they will be admired
in the presence of the great.
4 The Lord created medicines out of the earth,
and a sensible person
won't ignore them.
5 Wasn't water made sweet by means of wood
so that the Lord's[s] strength might be known?
6 And he endowed human beings with skill
so that he would be glorified through his marvelous deeds.
7 With those medicines,
the doctor cures and takes away pain.
8 Those who prepare ointments will make a compound out of them, and their[t] work will never be finished,
and well-being spreads
over the whole world from them.

9 My child, when you are sick, don't look around elsewhere,
but pray to the Lord,
and he will heal you.
10 Stay far from error,
direct your hands rightly,
and cleanse your heart from all sin.
11 Offer a sweet-smelling sacrifice and a memorial of fine flour, and pour an offering of oil, using what you can afford.[u] 12 And give doctors a place, because the Lord created them also,
and don't let them leave you,
because you indeed need them.
13 There's a time when success is in their hands as well.
14 They will also ask the Lord
so that he might grant them rest[v]
and healing in order to preserve life.
15 May those who sin against their creator fall into the hands of a doctor.

On mourning

16 My child, let your tears flow for the dead;
as one who is suffering terribly,
give voice to your sorrow.
Lay out their bodies in accordance with their wishes,
and don't neglect their burial.
17 Let your crying be bitter and express your sorrow fervently, and make your mourning
worthy of them.
Mourn for one day or two
so that there can be no criticism, and then be comforted from your grief.

18 Too much grief can lead to death, and grief in one's heart
will sap one's strength.
19 Grief also lingers in misery, and the life of the poor
is a curse upon the heart.
20 Don't give your heart over to grief;
stay away from it,
remembering your own end.
21 Don't forget that there's no coming back;
you won't do them any good,
and you will hurt yourself.
22 Remember their sentence, because it's yours also:
"Yesterday it was I, and today it's you!" 23 When the dead are at rest, put their memory to rest,
and be comforted for them when their spirit has left.

The scribe's superiority

24 The scribe's wisdom depends on the opportunity for leisure, and whoever lacks busyness will become wise.
25 How will people become wise when they take hold of a plow or pride themselves
in how well they handle an ox prod, when they drive cattle
and are absorbed with their work, and their conversation is about bulls?
26 Their hearts are given over to plowing furrows,
and they lose sleep
because they're concerned about supplying heifers with food.
27 So it is also with every craftsperson and master artisan

who carries over the day's work into the night,
who carves figures on seals and works diligently to make diverse ornamentations.
They will devote themselves
to producing a lifelike painting,
and they lose sleep
in order to finish their work.
[28]So it is with smiths who sit near an anvil and who closely examine works of iron.
The blast of the fire
will melt their flesh,
and they will struggle
with the heat of the furnace.
The sound of the hammer will strike their ears again and again, and their eyes are focused on the pattern of the object.
They will devote themselves
to finishing the work,
and they lose sleep
in order to complete its decoration.
[29]So it is with potters sitting at their work, turning the wheel at their feet.
They lie down always feeling anxiety about their work,
and every product of theirs is valued.
[30]They will mold the clay with their hands and work the wheel with their feet.
They will devote themselves
to finishing the glazing,
and they lose sleep
in order to clean the kiln.
[31]All of these have relied on their hands, and each one is skilled in their work.
[32]Without them a city can't be inhabited, and they neither go abroad to live as immigrants nor travel about.

However, they aren't sought out when the people hold a council, 33and they won't gain prominence in the assembly.
They won't sit in the judge's seat,
and they won't understand the disposition of a legal case.
They will never shed light on instruction and judgment, and their words
won't be memorialized in proverbs.[w] 34But they support the world from its foundations, and their prayer is concerned with their craft.
But those who devote themselves and think about the Law of the Most High are the exception.

Sirach 39

They will seek out the wisdom

of all the ancestors,
and they will be occupied with prophecies.
2They will preserve the stories of famous people,
and they will penetrate
the subtle turns of parables.
3They will seek out
the hidden meanings of proverbs, and will live with the puzzles of parables.
4They will serve among the great and appear before rulers.
They will travel in foreign lands, because they will test what's good and what's evil in people.

[5]They will commit themselves to rise early,
to seek the Lord who made them,
and to pray to the Most High.
They will open their mouth in prayer and ask forgiveness for their sins.
[6]If the great Lord is willing,
they will be filled
with a spirit of understanding;
they will pour forth words of wisdom,
and they will give thanks to the Lord in prayer.
[7]Their reasoning and knowledge will remain on course,
and they will ponder God's mysteries.
[8]They will bring to light the learning of their instruction, and they will make the laws of the Lord's covenant their boast.
[9]Many will praise their understanding, and it will never be forgotten.
The remembrance of them will never disappear,
and their name will live
for generations upon generations.
[10]The nations will speak of their wisdom,
and the congregation
will proclaim their praise.
[11]If they live a long time, they will leave behind a name greater than a thousand names, and if they find rest,
it will be enough for them.

Praise of the creator

[12]I'll speak of other things I've been thinking,
since I was filled like the full moon.
[13]Listen to me, faithful children, and blossom

like a rose growing near
a running stream.
14 Send forth a fragrant aroma like incense, and bloom with blossoms like a lily.
Raise your voice, give praise together,
and bless the Lord for all his works.
15 Tell of the greatness of his name, and give thanks when you praise him with songs on your lips and with harps.
And this is what you will say
when you give thanks:
16 All the works of the Lord are very good.
Every command of his
will be carried out in its proper time.
17 It's not for us to say,
"What's this?" or
"For what purpose is that?"
Everything will be examined at its proper time.
At his command water piled up in a heap,
and by his spoken word reservoirs of water stood erect.
18 His command accomplishes his good pleasure,
and no one can diminish
the deliverance he intends.
19 The works of all living beings are before him;
nothing can hide from his eyes.
20 He sees from one end of eternity to the other,
and nothing is too wondrous for him.
21 It's not for us to say,
"What's this?" or
"For what purpose is that?"
All things were created for their own purpose.

22 His blessing covers like a river and soaks the dry land like a flood.
23 Similarly, his anger will overtake the nations,
as he changed fresh waters into brine.
24 For the godly, his paths are straight,
but for the lawless,
there are obstacles.
25 From the beginning, good things have been made for good people, but bad things for sinners.[x] 26 Basic to all the necessities of human life are water, fire, iron, salt, fine flour, milk, honey,
wine,[y] oil, and clothing.
27 For the godly,
all these things are for good,
but for sinners, they will turn into evil.
28 There are winds that have been created for vengeance,
and they whip with strength
in their wrath.
At the moment of consummation,
they will pour out their strength, and they will calm the wrath of their maker.
29 Fire, hail, famine, and death-- all have been created for vengeance-- 30 the teeth of wild beasts, scorpions, vipers, and a sword punishing the ungodly
with destruction.
31 These things gladly do what he commands.
They will be ready for his service
on the earth,
and they won't violate his word when their time comes.

32Because of this,
I've been steadfast from the beginning:
I've thought things out
and left them in writing.
33All the works of the Lord are good,
and he will supply every need in its time.
34It's not for us to say,
"This is worse than that,"
since everything will prove its worth at the proper moment.
35And now, sing hymns
with all your heart and voice, and bless the Lord's name.

Life's joys and miseries

Sirach 40

Hard work was created

for every person,
and a heavy yoke lies upon human beings,
from the day when they leave their mother's womb
until the day when they return to the mother of all.
2Anxious expectation--the day of death-- fills their inner musings and plants fear in their hearts.[z] 3From the person who sits upon a glorious throne
down to the person brought low
in dust and ashes, 4from the person who wears purple and a crown
down to the person dressed in rough linen-- 5there exists anger, envy, confusion, unrest, fear of death, fury, and conflict.

Even when they rest in bed,
nighttime dreams disturb their mind.
6They get little or no rest;
they even toil in their dreams,
just as they do in the day,
being troubled by images in their mind,
as one who escapes from war.
7They wake up at the most desperate moment
and are astonished
that they were afraid for nothing.
8To all flesh, both human and animal,
but to sinners seven times more so, 9come death, blood, strife, sword, catastrophes, famine, ruin,
and disease.[a] 10All these things were created for the lawless,
and because of such people
the flood happened.
11Everything that's from earth;
returns to the earth;
everything that's from water returns to the sea.[b] 12All bribery and injustice will be wiped out,
but good faith will last forever.
13The money of the unjust will dry up like a river, and it will crash like loud thunder in a rainstorm.
14Generous people will rejoice,
but those who sin will ultimately fail.
15The offspring of the ungodly won't produce many branches, and they are polluted roots
on sheer rock.

16 A reed by any water or riverbank will be pulled up before any grass.
17 Kindness is like an orchard of blessings, and an act of charity will last forever.
18 Life will be sweet for the self-reliant and the hardworking,
but better than both
is the person who finds a treasure.
19 Children and building a city establish one's name,
but better than both
is a wife who is considered blameless.
20 Wine and music make the heart glad,
but better than both
is the love of wisdom.[c] 21 A flute and a harp make sweet melodies, but better than both is a pleasant voice.
22 The eye will desire grace and beauty,
but better than both
are the first shoots of a crop.
23 A friend and a companion encounter each other at an opportune moment,
but better than both
is a woman with her husband.
24 Relatives and help
in a time of distress are good,[d] but acts of charity
will rescue one better than both.
25 Gold and silver make one stand firm, but more highly esteemed than both is good advice.
26 Money and strength will lift up one's heart,
but fearing the Lord is better than both.
If you fear the Lord,
you'll lack nothing;
if you have it,

there's no reason to look for help.
27 Fear of the Lord
is like an orchard of blessing, and it covers a person
more fully than any glory.
28 My child, don't live the life of a beggar;
it's better to die than to beg.
29 When people look
to another person's table, their way of life
cannot be considered a life.
They pollute themselves
by eating someone else's food, but a person who is intelligent and educated will guard against that.
30 In the mouth of the shameless, begging is sweet,
but a fire will burn inside of them.

Sirach 41

How bitter, death,
is the thought of you
to those who are at peace
among their possessions, to those who aren't anxiously distracted, who prosper at everything and still have the strength to enjoy good food.
2 Your sentence looks good, death,
to a person who is needy
and lacks strength,
who is extremely old and anxious
about everything,
who is not compliant
and whose endurance has failed.
3 Don't fear death's judgment;
remember those who came before you and those who will come after you.
4 This is the Lord's judgment for all beings:

Why should you reject
the good pleasure of the Most High?
Whether ten or one hundred or one thousand years,
there's no arguing about life
in the grave.[e] 5The children of sinners are detestable, and they live together
in the neighborhoods of the ungodly.
6The inheritance of sinners' children will be destroyed,
and their offspring
will always live in disgrace.
7Children will blame an ungodly father, because they will be disgraced
because of him.
8How terrible it will be for you
who are ungodly,
who have abandoned the Law of the Most High![f] 9When you are born,
you are born to a curse,
and when you die,
you will leave a curse as your legacy.[g] 10Everything that's from the earth will go back to the earth;
so the ungodly come from a curse and go to destruction.
11Human beings show their grief
in their bodies,
but the no-good name of sinners will be erased.[h] 12Guard your reputation, for it will continue after you longer than one thousand great treasures of gold.
13A good life has a limited number of days,

but a good name will continue forever.

On shame

14Hold on to your education in peace, my children.
Hidden wisdom
and an invisible treasure-- of what use is either?
15People who hide their foolishness are better than people who hide their wisdom.
16Therefore, respect my judgment, because it isn't good to guard against every shame,
and not everyone, in good faith,
holds all the same things
in good repute.
17Be ashamed:
of sexual immorality
before your father and mother, of lying before a prince or leader, 18of error before a judge and an official, of lawlessness before the assembly and the people,
of injustice before a partner and friend, 19of theft in the neighborhood where you are staying.
Be ashamed:
before the Lord's truth and covenant,[i]
of leaning on your elbow at meals, of showing contempt
when receiving or giving, 20of silence when people greet you,
of looking at a female escort, 21of turning away a relative, of depriving someone of a share
or a gift,
of staring at another man's wife,

22 of fooling around with his female servant--
(and don't get near her bed), of reproachful words before friends (and don't criticize after you give),

Sirach 42 of repeating gossip;

and of revealing secrets-- then you will be truly modest and find favor with every human being.
Don't be ashamed of these things, and don't show favoritism
so that you sin.
2 Don't be ashamed:
of the Law of the Most High
or the covenant,
of a just verdict
in favor of an ungodly person, 3 of keeping a record of expenses with a partner or a traveling companion, of distributing an inheritance to others,
4 of accuracy with scales and weights, of acquiring a lot or a little,
5 of profit from business with merchants, of frequent discipline of children,
and of whipping wicked
household slaves until they bleed.
6 In the case of a wicked wife, using your seal on your documents and supplies[j] is an excellent idea, and lock up things
anywhere there are lots of hands.
7 Whatever you deposit, whether by number and weight,
and whatever you give or receive,
put everything in writing.
8 Don't be ashamed of discipline for the stupid and foolish and for the old codger

who is guilty of sexual immorality.
Then you will have been truly educated and approved by everyone alive.

On daughters

9 A daughter is a hidden source of sleeplessness for her father, and anxiety about her deprives him
of sleep:
in her youth, that she doesn't pass
her prime,
and when she's married,
that she not be hated;
10 while she's a virgin, that she not be seduced and become pregnant
while still living at home;
when she's married,
that she not go straying;
or having married,
that she not be infertile.
11 Keep a strict watch over an unruly daughter
so that she doesn't make you an object of ridicule to your enemies, a topic of talk in the city and the assembly of the people, and she shame you before the crowd.
12 Don't consider the beauty of any person,[k]
and don't spend time among women.
13 Moths come out of clothes, and a woman's wickedness comes from a woman.
14 A man's wickedness is better than a woman who does good and a disgraced woman who brings shame.

God's created order

15 Now I'll call to mind the works of the Lord,
and I'll tell about what I've seen.
The Lord's works came into being by his words.[l]
16 The shining sun looked down on everything,
and the Lord's work is radiant with his glory.
17 The Lord has not allowed his holy ones to describe all of his wonders, which the Lord Almighty established so that the universe would stand firm in his glory.
18 He has searched the abyss and the heart, and he took their great achievements into consideration, because the Most High
knew everything to be known.
He saw the sign of the age,[m] 19 explaining what has passed and what will be,
and revealing the clues to things that are hidden.
20 No thought escaped him,
and not a single word
was hidden from him.
21 He ordered the splendors of his wisdom.
He remains the same[n]
from the beginning of time
all the way to eternity.
Nothing can be added to him
nor be taken away,
and he needed no one to give him advice.

22How desirable are all of his works, and how brilliant they are to look upon.
23All these things live and remain forever in every circumstance, and everything obeys him.[o] 24All things exist in pairs, one opposite the other,
and he made nothing that was incomplete.
25Each thing strengthens the good parts of the other;
who can get enough of seeing God's glory?

Sirach 43 The pride of the heights is the clear heavenly vault, the appearance of the sky

in a vision of glory.
2The sun, when it appears, announces at its rising what an amazing thing it is,
a work of the Most High.
3At noon it dries up the land, and who can endure its burning heat?
4A person blows on a furnace, working in its burning heat, but the sun is three times hotter
when it burns up mountains.
When it breathes out fiery vapors,
and shines forth its rays, it blinds eyes.
5Great is the Lord who made it;
it speeds on its course by his command.
6The moon stands at its proper time,[p] a notification of times and an everlasting sign.
7The sign for a feast comes from the moon,

a luminous body that wanes
when it completes its course.
8The new moon shares the character of its name,[q]
increasing wonderfully as it changes, a signal on high for armies,[r] shining in the vault of the sky.
9The stars' glory is the sky's beauty, shining ornaments
in the heights of the Lord.
10They stand at the words of the holy one,
just as he orders,
and they will never grow tired
as they keep watch.
11Look at the rainbow,
exceedingly beautiful in its brightness,
and bless the one who made it.
12It encircled the sky with a glorious ring;
the Lord's hands stretched it out.
13He drives the snow forward by his command,
and he speeds the lightning bolts
of his judgment on their way.
14To this end, the storehouses are opened,
and clouds fly out like birds.
15In his might he subdues clouds, and stones are broken apart for hail.
17[a] The sound of his thunder scolds the earth,
16and mountains will be shaken
when he appears.
The south wind blows by his will,
17[s] as do storms from the north and whirlwinds.
He sprinkles the snow
like birds flying down,
and its descent is like locusts alighting.

18 The eye marvels at its beautiful whiteness, and the heart is amazed
at its showering down.
19 He pours frost, like salt, upon the earth, and when it freezes it has pointy thorns.
20 A cold north wind will blow, and ice will freeze on the water;
it will settle on every pool of water, and the water will put it on like armor.
21 He will consume mountains, burn up the wilderness,
and extinguish grass like a fire.
22 A mist hastens the healing of all things;
the dew that appears
will give relief from the heat.
23 By his calculations, he stilled the deep,
and he planted islands in it.
24 Those who sail the sea describe its danger,
and we are amazed at what we hear.
25 Incredible and amazing works are there,
all sorts of living things,
great sea monsters.
26 Because of him, each messenger succeeds, and all things hold together by his word.
27 We could say many things and never say enough.
The final word is: The Lord is "the All." 28 Where will we find the strength to glorify him?
For God is great beyond all his works.
29 The Lord is awesome and very great,
and his power is marvelous.
30 Glorify the Lord,
and exalt him as much as you can:
he surpasses even that.
Exalt him, increase your strength,

and don't grow tired:
you will never say enough.
31 Who has seen him and will describe him?
Whose praises of him
will match what he really is?
32 There are many hidden things greater than these,
for we have seen only a few of his works.
33 The Lord made everything, and he gave wisdom to the godly.

Hymn to the ancestors

Sirach 44 Now allow us to praise famous people and our ancestors, generation by generation.[t] 2 The Lord created[u] great glory, his majesty from eternity.

3 They ruled in their kingdoms, and made a name with their power, some giving counsel
by their intelligence;
some making pronouncements
in prophecies;
4 some leading the people
by their deliberations, and by their understanding of the people's learning, giving wise words in their instruction;
5 others devising musical melodies,
and composing poems;
6 rich people endowed with strength, living in peace in their dwellings-- 7 all of these were honored in their generation,
a source of pride in their time.

8 Some of them left behind a name so that their praises might be told.
9 For some there is no memory, and they perished as though they hadn't existed.
These have become as though they hadn't been born,
they and even their children after them.
10 But these were compassionate people whose righteous deeds haven't been forgotten.
11 This will persist with their children;
their descendants
will be a good legacy.[v] 12 Their descendants stand by the covenants,
and their children also, for their sake.
13 Their descendants will last forever, and their glory will never be erased.
14 Their bodies were buried in peace,
but their name lives for generations.
15 The people will tell of their wisdom,
and the congregation
will proclaim their praise.

Enoch

16 Enoch pleased the Lord and was transferred,[w] an example of a changed heart and mind for generations.

Noah

17 Noah was found perfect and righteous;
in a time of anger,
he was selected in exchange for the ungodly.[x]
Because of him,
a few survivors remained on the earth

when the flood happened.
18 Eternal covenants were made with him so that all living things would not be wiped out by a flood again.

Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob

19 Abraham was the great father of a multitude of nations, and there was no smudge on his glory.[y] 20 He kept the laws of the Most High,
and he entered into a covenant with him.
He established a covenant in his flesh,
and when he was tested,
he proved faithful.
21 Therefore, the Lord certified for Abraham with a solemn pledge that he would bless nations
through his descendants, that he would make him increase like the dust of the earth, exalt his descendants like the stars, and give them an inheritance from sea to sea
and from the river to the end of the earth.
22 He made the same commitment to Isaac because of Abraham his father.
He made a blessing for all humanity and a covenant
23 to rest on Jacob's head.
The Lord acknowledged him with his blessings;
he gave him an inheritance,
divided his shares,
and allotted them
among the twelve tribes.

Moses

The Lord brought forward out of Jacob[z]

a man of mercy,
who found favor with all living beings,

Sirach 45 dearly loved by God and human beings-- Moses, who is remembered with blessing.

2 The Lord made Moses' glory equal to that of the holy ones, and he made Moses great so that Moses' enemies would fear him.
3 By Moses' words,
he brought signs to a halt;[a]
the Lord glorified Moses in the presence of kings.
The Lord gave Moses commandments
for his people,
and he showed Moses his glory.
4 The Lord ordained Moses because of his faithfulness
and gentleness;
he chose him out of all human beings.
5 The Lord let Moses hear his voice;
he led him into the deep darkness,
and he gave Moses commandments face-to-face,
an instruction for life,
and knowledge to teach the covenant to Jacob and his laws to Israel.

Aaron

6 The Lord exalted Aaron,
a holy person like Moses,
his brother from the tribe of Levi.
7 The Lord established an eternal covenant with him and gave him the priesthood of the people.

He blessed Aaron with dignity, and wrapped him in a glorious cloak.
8The Lord clothed him with unrivaled praise,[b] and honored him
with objects of power-- leggings, a full-length robe, and the priestly vest.
9He encircled Aaron with pomegranates, with a great number of gold bells
all around,
in order to create a sound
when he stepped,
to make a sound that would be heard in the temple,
as a reminder for the children of the Lord's people.
10He clothed Aaron with the priestly vest, with gold, blue, and purple,
the work of an embroiderer, with the oracle of judgment for making the truth known; 11with braided scarlet,
the work of a craftsperson;
with the precious stones of an engraved seal
in a gold setting,
the work of a jeweler,
as a memorial in engraved writing according to the number of the tribes of Israel.
12He set a gold crown
upon his turban,
carved with a sacred seal,
an item worthy of praise,[c] a work of strength,
desirable objects to look at,

richly adorned.
13 Before Aaron, such beautiful things had not existed.
No stranger will ever wear them, but only his sons and his descendants
for all time.
14 His sacrifices will be entirely burned up twice daily, for all time.
15 Moses ordained Aaron and anointed him with holy oil;
it became an everlasting covenant for him
and for his descendants
for as long as heaven lasts, to minister to God,
to be a priest at the same time,
and to bless his people in his name.
16 Moses chose him
out of all who were alive to offer fruitful sacrifices to the Lord, incense and a pleasing aroma
as a remembrance,
to secure reconciliation for the people.
17 By his commandments, the Lord gave him authority over covenants for judgment, to teach Jacob the testimonies,
and to enlighten Israel with his Law.
18 Strangers conspired against Aaron, and they were jealous of him in the wilderness;
those who were with Dathan and Abiram
and the company of Korah assembled in anger and fury.
19 The Lord saw it and wasn't pleased, and they were destroyed
in his furious anger;

he performed wonders among them,
consuming them in a blazing fire.
[20]He added to Aaron's glory and gave him an inheritance;
he gave him as his share
the initial portion of the early produce;
he prepared in abundance bread from the early produce.
[21]They also will eat the sacrifices
of the Lord,
which he gave to him
and to his descendants.
[22]But he has no inheritance in the land of the people, and he has no portion among the people;
for the Lord is your portion and inheritance.

Phinehas

[23]Phinehas, Eleazar's son, comes third in glory,
since he was on fire
with the fear of the Lord, and since he stood firm
when the people turned away, in the goodness and readiness of his spirit;
thus he secured reconciliation for Israel.
[24]Therefore, a covenant of peace was established with Phinehas, that he should preside
over the holy places
and over his people,
so that he and his descendants might have the splendor of the priesthood forever.
[25]The Lord also made a covenant with David,

Jesse's son, from the tribe of Judah;
the king's inheritance
that passes from son to son only; Aaron's inheritance
is also for his descendants.
[26]May the Lord grant you peace in your heart,[d]
to judge his people justly, so that the good things they have might not vanish
and so that their glory might extend to generations to come.

Joshua and Caleb

Sirach 46 Joshua, Nun's son,

was powerful in battle,
and he was Moses' successor in prophecy.
As his name suggests,
he was mighty
to deliver the Lord's chosen ones, and to take revenge on enemies when they rose against them, so that he might give Israel an inheritance.
[2]How glorious he was when he raised his hands and when he extended his sword against cities!
[3]Who among those who came before stood as he did?
Indeed, he fought the Lord's wars.
[4]Wasn't the sun restrained by his hand, and one day lasted for two?
[5]He called upon the Most High,
the mighty one,

when his enemies pressed in on him
from every side,
and the great Lord responded to him with hailstones of mighty power.
6He rushed headlong against a nation
in battle,
and on a hill he destroyed those who opposed him,
so that the nations might know how well-equipped he was,
because his war was fought
in the Lord's presence.
Indeed, he was a follower of the mighty one.
7In the days of Moses
he performed acts of mercy,
he and Caleb, Jephunneh's son.
They opposed the congregation, restrained the people from sin,
and put an end
to their wicked grumbling.
8So out of six hundred thousand soldiers, the two were spared to lead the people into their inheritance, into a land full of milk and honey.
9The Lord gave Caleb strength, and it remained with him until he was old,
so that he went up to the highlands,
and his descendants had it as an inheritance.
10In this way, all the Israelites could see that it is a good thing to follow the Lord.

Judges

11May the memories of the judges bring blessings,
each with their own name,

whose hearts remained faithful and who didn't turn away from the Lord.
12 May their bones send forth new shoots of life from their burial places, and their names,
honored by all humanity,
continue in their descendants.[e]

Samuel

13 Samuel was dearly loved by his Lord.
As a prophet from the Lord,
he established a kingdom
and anointed rulers over his people.
14 He judged the congregation
by the Lord's law,
and the Lord watched over Jacob.
15 He proved to be a reliable prophet
because of his faithfulness,
and through his words
he became known as a trustworthy seer.
16 He called upon the Lord, the mighty one,
with an offering of a nursing lamb when his enemies pressed on him
from every side.
17 The Lord thundered from heaven, and he made his voice loudly heard.
18 He destroyed the leaders of the people of Tyre[f]
and all the rulers of the Philistines.
19 Before the time of his eternal sleep, Samuel testified
before the Lord and his anointed one,
"No property, not even a pair of sandals,
have I taken from anyone!
And not one person accused him.
20 Samuel prophesied
after he had fallen asleep,[g]
and he showed the king

what his end would be.
He made his voice heard from the ground in prophecy to wipe out the people's lawless behavior.

Nathan

Sirach 47 After him, Nathan rose up to prophesy at the time of David.

David

2 Just as the fat is separated from the offering of well-being, so David was set apart
from the Israelites.
3 He played with lions
as if they were young goats, and with bears
as if they were lambs from the flock.
4 Didn't he kill a giant in his youth and take away disgrace from the people, when he raised his hand with a stone shot from a sling and struck down
the arrogant Goliath?
5 David called upon the Lord Most High, and the Lord gave strength to his strong arm
to do away with a mighty warrior, to assert the power[h] of his people.
6 For this, they glorified him in throngs of thousands.
They praised him,
calling down the Lord's blessings, when they brought him
a glorious crown.
7 David destroyed his enemies
on every side,
and he despised the Philistines,

his adversaries;
he shattered their power,
which has never recovered.[i] 8In everything he did, he gave thanks to the holy one, the Most High,
with glorious words.
He sang hymns with all his heart,
and he loved his maker.
9He appointed singers with harps before the altar
to make sweet melody with their sounds.[j] 10He brought dignity to the festivals, and he adorned the whole cycle of sacred seasons,[k]
as they were praising God's holy name, and from early morning
the sanctuary resounded.
11The Lord took away David's sins, and he exalted his power[l] forever.
He established his kingdom by agreement;
and a glorious throne in Israel.

Solomon

12After David a well-instructed son arose, and because of David,
he enjoyed a large kingdom.[m] 13Solomon reigned at a time of peace.
God gave him tranquillity on every side, so that he might build a house for God's name
and prepare a sanctuary
that would last forever.
14How wise you were in your youth!
You were filled
like a river with understanding.
15Your spirit filled the earth, and you were full of puzzling proverbs.

16 Your name reached faraway islands, and you were dearly loved because of your peaceful rule.
17 Countries marveled at you on account of your songs, parables, proverbs, and teachings.
18 In the Lord God's name, who is called God over Israel,
you collected gold like tin,
and you amassed silver like lead.
19 You gave yourself to women,[n] and you were subdued
by your own body.
20 You brought disgrace on your honor,
and you polluted your offspring, so that you brought punishment upon your children
and caused pain
because of your foolishness.
21 Your empire became divided, and a rival kingdom sprang up out of Ephraim.
22 But the Lord will never abandon his mercy,
and none of his words will perish.
He will never wipe out
the descendants of his chosen one, and never take away the descendants of the one who loved him.
Therefore, he gave a remnant to Jacob and a root to David from his family.

Establishment of the northern kingdom

23 Solomon rested with his ancestors, and he left behind one of his offspring-- Rehoboam, a foolish man among the people,[o] one lacking understanding.
He caused the people to rebel because of his policy,
led by Jeroboam, Nebat's son,
who made Israel sin

and set Ephraim on its sinful path.
24 Their sins increased greatly until they were removed from their land.
25 They explored every kind of wickedness until vengeance overtook them.

Elijah

Sirach 48 Then Elijah the prophet

rose up like fire,
and his word burned like a torch.
2 He brought a famine upon them, and he reduced their number by his zeal.
3 By the Lord's word he shut up the sky, and in the same way
he brought down fire three times.
4 How glorious you were, Elijah, in your amazing deeds!
Who will boast like you can?
5 You raised a corpse from death, from the grave[p] by a word
of the Most High.
6 You brought kings down to destruction and dragged the famous from their beds.
7 You heard a rebuke at Sinai and decrees of punishment at Horeb.
8 You anointed kings to bring retribution and prophets to succeed you.
9 You were taken up in a whirlwind of fire and in a chariot of fiery horses.
10 It is recorded that you are ready for the designated times,
to calm anger before it turns to wrath,
to turn the heart of a father to his son,
and to restore the tribes of Jacob.

11 Happy are those who saw you and who have fallen asleep[q]
in your love,
for we will surely live as well.

Elisha

12 Elijah was covered by the whirlwind, and Elisha was filled with his spirit.[r]
In his time, he didn't tremble before any ruler,
and no one oppressed him.
13 Nothing was too great for him, and in death his body prophesied.[s] 14 During his life,
he performed wonders,
and in death his accomplishments were marvelous.
15 In spite of these things, the people didn't change
their hearts and lives, and they didn't turn from their sins until they were torn away from their land and scattered over the whole earth.
The people who remained were few in number,
but they had a ruler
from the house of David.
16 Some of them did what pleased God, but others sinned even more.

Hezekiah and Isaiah

17 Hezekiah strengthened the city's defenses,
and he provided a water supply.
He tunneled through rock
with iron tools,
and he constructed storage tanks
for water.

18 During his rule, Sennacherib moved on Jerusalem,[t] commissioned the field commander, and departed.
The field commander attacked Zion, and made great boasts
in his arrogance.
19 Then the people's hearts and hands were shaken,
and they were in agony
like a woman who is in labor.
20 They called upon the Lord who is merciful,
reaching out their hands to him.
The holy one at once heard them
from heaven,
and he rescued them through Isaiah.
21 The Lord struck down
the camp of the Assyrians, and his messenger destroyed them.
22 Hezekiah did what was pleasing to the Lord,
and he kept to the ways of David
his ancestor,
as Isaiah the prophet, who was great and whose visions were reliable, had commanded.
23 In Isaiah's time, the sun moved backward, and he extended the king's life.
24 By his great spirit,
he saw what was to come,
and he comforted those who mourned in Zion.
25 He revealed forever what would be and hidden things even before they happened.

Josiah

Sirach 49 The memory[u] of Josiah

is like a blend of incense, prepared with skill by a perfumer.
It will be sweet in the mouth, like honey, like music at a wine-drinking party.
2 He succeeded in turning around the people,
and he removed unlawful displays of idolatry.
3 He directed his heart toward the Lord;
at a time of lawlessness,
he made devotion to God stronger.

Destruction of Jerusalem

4 Except for David, Hezekiah, and Josiah, all of them struck a bad chord, because they abandoned
the Law of the Most High.
The kings of Judah came to an end.
5 They gave their power[v] to others and their glory to a foreign nation, 6 which set fire to Jerusalem, the chosen city, and its sanctuary and made its streets desolate, as Jeremiah said.
7 They mistreated him,
even though he had been set apart from the womb to be a prophet to uproot, ruin, destroy,
and likewise to build and plant.

Ezekiel

8 Ezekiel saw a vision of glory, when God showed him
the chariot of the winged creatures.
9 He remembered the enemies in the storm,
and favored those keeping

to a righteous path.[w] 10 May the bones of the twelve prophets sprout new life from their burial places,
because they comforted Jacob and rescued them
with hopeful confidence.

Zerubbabel, Joshua, and Nehemiah

11 How should we praise Zerubbabel?
He also was like a signet ring
on the right hand,
12 as was Joshua, Jozadak's son.
In their time, they built a house and raised a holy temple to the Lord, prepared for everlasting glory.
13 Nehemiah's memory is lasting;
he who raised our fallen walls,
set up gates and bars,
and rebuilt our buildings.

Miscellaneous ancestors

14 No one was created on the earth who was like Enoch,
for he was taken up from the earth.
15 Nor has any man been born like Joseph,
a leader of his brothers,
a support for the people.[x]
They took special care
even of his bones.
16 Shem and Seth were honored among human beings,[y]
and above every living thing in creation was Adam.

High Priest Simon

Sirach 50 Simon, Onias' son, was a great high priest.[z]

During his life, he repaired the house and, in his time,
strengthened the temple's defenses.
2He made the foundation for the courtyard wall, a high fortification for the temple enclosure.
3In his time, he dug out a storage basin
for water,
a reservoir with a circumference
like a lake's.
4He gave forethought to keeping his people from disaster, and he strengthened the city against sieges.
5How glorious he was as the people thronged around him when he came out from behind the curtain and left the temple![a] 6Like a morning star
in the midst of a cloud,
like the full moon at the time of a feast, 7like the sun shining
on the temple of the Most High, like a rainbow gleaming
in glorious clouds, 8like a rose blossom in springtime, like lilies by streams of water,
like a fresh shoot of the incense tree
in the summertime, 9like fire and incense
in an incense burner,
like an object of hammered gold adorned with all sorts of precious stones, 10like an olive tree sprouting fruit, and like a cypress towering to the clouds.

11When he put on his glorious robe and clothed himself
with perfect splendor,[b]
when he stepped up to the holy altar, he brought glory to the courts of the temple.
12When he received the portions of the sacrificial animals[c]
from the priests' hands, standing beside the altar's hearth, surrounded by a wreath of brothers, he was like a new cedar of Lebanon, and they surrounded him
like palm-tree trunks.
13All Aaron's sons were in their glory, and they held the Lord's offering in their hands
in front of the entire assembly of Israel.
14When he was finishing his service
at the altar,
after he had arranged an offering to the Most High, the almighty, 15he stretched out his hand for the cup used for drink offerings and he poured a libation of wine.[d] He poured it out at the base of the altar,
a pleasing aroma to the Most High,
the king of all.
16Then Aaron's sons cheered; they blew trumpets
made of hammered metal
and caused a great sound to be heard as a reminder before the Most High.
17Then all at once, all the people put their faces to the ground, bowing down to worship their Lord,

the almighty, God Most High.
18 The singers, accompanied by harps, sang praises with their voices;
they made a sweet melody
with a full-bodied sound.
19 The people of the Lord Most High offered prayers before the merciful one until the order of the Lord's service was completed,
and they finished their worship duties to him.
20 Then Simon came down and raised his hands
over the entire assembly of the Israelites
to give the Lord's blessing from his lips and to glorify his name.
21 And they bowed down to worship
a second time,
to receive the blessing
from the Most High.
22 Now bless the God of all who everywhere does great things, who raises us up from our birth and deals mercifully with us.
23 May he give us gladness in our hearts, and may there be peace in our time,
in Israel as in times past.
24 May he grant us his mercy, and may he rescue us in our lifetime.[e]

Epilogue

25 My spirit takes offense at two nations, and the third is not even a nation: 26 those who settled on Samaria's hills,[f]
the Philistines,
and the foolish people

who dwell in Shechem.
27Instruction in understanding and knowledge
were inscribed in this scroll by Jesus, Sirach's son and grandson of Eleazar the Jerusalemite.[g]
He poured forth wisdom from his heart.
28Favored are those who devote their time to these things;
when they take them to heart,
they will be wise.
29Indeed, if they do these things, they will be up to any task, because the fear of the Lord is their path.[h]

Prayer of Jesus, Sirach's son[i]

Sirach 51 I will give thanks to you,

Lord and King,
and I will praise you, God my savior.
I give thanks to your name, 2because you have been my protector and helper.
You have rescued my body
from destruction,
from the trap set
by a slanderous tongue,
from lips that fabricate lies.
In the presence of those who stood around me, 3you were my helper.
In line with your abundant mercy
and your great name,
you rescued me from grinding teeth prepared to devour me, from the power of those who wanted to take my life,
from the many troubles that I have had,

4from choking fire all around me, from the midst of a fire that I didn't start, 5from the depths of the belly of the grave,[j]
and from a polluted tongue and lying words, 6as well as the arrowlike tongue of the unrighteous.
My soul approached death,
and my life was on the edge of the grave[k] below.
7People surrounded me on every side, and no one helped;
I looked for assistance from human beings, and there was none.
8Then I remembered your mercy, Lord, and your charity[l] from long ago,
that you raise up those who wait for you and save them from the hands of the wicked.
9I sent up my prayer from the earth, and I begged to be rescued from death.
10I called out to the Lord, the father of my master:[m]
"Don't desert me in the time of my distress,
when I am helpless before the arrogant.
11I will praise your name continually, and I will sing thanksgiving hymns."
My prayer was heard, 12because you saved me from destruction and you rescued me from an evil time.
For this, I will give thanks, praise you, and bless the Lord's name.[n]

Search for Wisdom

13When I was still young,
before I had traveled,

I sought Wisdom openly in my prayer.
14 In front of the temple, I asked for her,
and I will search for her until I die.
15 From the first blossom to the ripening of the grape clusters, my heart delighted in her;
I walked in straight paths;
I chased her down from my youth.
16 I paid a little attention, and I received her and found much instruction for myself.
17 I made progress with her;
I will give glory to the one who gives me Wisdom.
18 I made up my mind
to put Wisdom into practice;
I sought the good,
and I will never be ashamed.
19 My whole being grappled with her, and I was brought to perfection in my performance of the Law.
I spread out my hands
toward heaven,
and I kept in mind[o]
my ignorance of her.
20 I directed my whole being toward her,
and in purity I found her.
I had a heart for her[p]
from the beginning.
For this reason
I will never be abandoned.
21 My guts were stirred to seek her;
for this reason I gained a desired possession.
22 The Lord gave me the power to speak well, as my reward, and I will praise him with it.
23 Draw near to me,

you who lack education,
and stay in my school.
24 Why are you still lacking in these things;
why do you[q] thirst for this?
25 I opened my mouth and said,
"Acquire[r] her for yourselves without money.
26 Place your neck under her yoke, and let your soul
receive instruction.
It is found close at hand." 27 See for yourselves that I have labored a little,
and I have found much rest for myself.
28 Invest in your education with a great amount of silver, and with it you will acquire much gold.[s] 29 May your whole being take delight in God's mercy,
and may you never be ashamed
when you praise him.
30 Accomplish your work in good time, and he will give you your reward
in his time.

Baruch

Writing from Babylon

Baruch 1 These are the words of the scroll that Baruch--son of Neriah son of Mahseiah son of Zedekiah son of Hasadiah son of Hilkiah--wrote in Babylon 2 in the fifth year on the seventh day of the month at the time when the Chaldeans took Jerusalem and burned it down.

3 Baruch read the words of this scroll aloud to Judah's King Jeconiah, Jehoiakim's son, and to all the people who came to hear the reading of the scroll, 4 and to the powerful ones, the rulers' sons, the elders, and all the people, from the least important to the greatest, and to all the ones who lived in Babylon by the Sud River. 5 They wept, fasted, and prayed before the Lord. 6 They collected silver from everyone able to give, and 7 they sent it to Jerusalem to the priest Jehoiakim, Hilkiah's son, Shallum's grandson, and to the other priests, and to all the people who were with Jehoiakim in Jerusalem. 8 During the same time, on the tenth day of Sivan,[a] Baruch took the equipment from the Lord's house that had been removed from the temple--the silver equipment that Judah's King Zedekiah, Josiah's son, had made--to return it to Judah. (9 This occurred after Babylon's King Nebuchadnezzar removed Jeconiah, the leading officials, the prisoners, the powerful ones, and the land's people from Jerusalem, and brought them[b] to Babylon.)

Response to Jerusalem

10 And the people in exile said:

We have sent you silver. Buy what is needed for entirely burned offerings and sin offerings. Buy incense and prepare grain as well, and offer them on the Lord our God's altar.

11 Pray for the lives of King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon and his son Belshazzar that their days on earth may be like the days of heaven. 12 The Lord will give us strength and clear vision. We'll live under the protection of King Nebuchadnezzar and his son Belshazzar, and we'll serve them many days and find favor with them.

13Pray for us to the Lord our God because we have sinned against the Lord our God. Even now, the Lord's wrath and anger haven't turned away from us.
14Read aloud this scroll that we sent to you to make it public in the Lord's house on every festival day and appointed time.

Sins of the community

15You will say:

Justice is on the side of the Lord God, but public shame is upon us today, upon everyone in Judah, upon those living in Jerusalem, 16and upon our rulers, leading officials, priests, prophets, and ancestors, 17upon all of us who have sinned against the Lord.

18We have disobeyed the Lord. We have not listened to the Lord God's voice so as to keep the commandments that he gave to us. 19From the day when the Lord brought our ancestors from the land of Egypt until today, we have been disobedient to the Lord our God and have acted carelessly by not listening to his voice. 20Therefore, to this day horrible things have come upon us, even the curse that the Lord ordered through Moses his servant in the day when he brought our ancestors out of Egypt to give us a prosperous land full of milk and honey. 21But we didn't listen to the Lord God's voice through the prophets whom he sent to us.
22All of us went off in the direction of our own evil hearts, serving other gods and doing horrible things in the presence of our Lord God.

Baruch 2 The Lord carried out the word that he spoke against us, against Israel's judges, rulers, leading officials, and every person of Israel and Judah.
2What God did in Jerusalem hadn't been done anywhere under heaven, just as was written in the Law from Moses. 3Some of us ate the flesh of our sons and daughters. 4God handed them over to be subjects of all the kingdoms around us-- objects of insult and outcasts wherever the Lord scattered them. 5They were brought down and not lifted up, because we sinned against the Lord our God by not listening to his voice. 6Justice is on the side of the Lord our God, but public shame is upon us and upon our ancestors to this very day. 7All these horrible things that the Lord had spoken came on us. [8]But we didn't plead with the Lord so as to turn each one of us from the designs of our wicked hearts. [9]Thus has the Lord kept watch over our wicked deeds and brought this upon us. The Lord is just in every action that he commanded us to do, [10]but we didn't listen to the Lord's voice to walk by the commandments that the Lord gave to us.

Prayer for deliverance

[11]Now Lord God of Israel, you brought your people from Egypt by a powerful hand, by signs and wonders, with great power and an extended arm, and you have made your name famous to this very day.

[12]Lord our God, we have sinned. We were ungodly. We have broken all of your commandments. [13]Turn your anger away from us, for only a few of us remain among the nations where you have scattered us. [14]Lord, listen to our prayer and our pleading. For your own sake, set us free and give us favor with those who have brought us into exile [15]so that all the earth might know that you are the Lord our God, since Israel and her children carry your name.

[16]Lord, look down on us from your holy house and think of us. Lord, bend your ear and listen. [17]Lord, open your eyes and look upon us. Surely the dead who are in the grave,[c] whose spirit has been taken from their bodies, won't acknowledge the Lord's glory and justice! [18]But Lord, the one who is grieved, who goes about weak and bent over, whose eyes are failing and whose spirit is hungering--that one will acknowledge your glory and righteousness.

[19]Lord our God, we are not basing our prayer for mercy on any righteous actions of our ancestors and rulers. [20]You've sent your anger and wrath on us just as you spoke through your servants the prophets. You said: [21]"The Lord says: 'Bend your shoulders and serve the king of Babylon, and then you'll reside in the land that I gave to your ancestors. [22]But if you don't listen to the Lord's voice and serve the king of Babylon,[23]I'll bring an end to the sound of joy and gladness and the celebration of marriage from the cities of Judah and around Jerusalem. The whole land will be a wasteland without life.'"

[24]But we didn't listen to your voice, to serve the king of Babylon, so you have carried out the words that you spoke through your servants the prophets. The bones of our rulers and ancestors were brought out of their tombs. [25]Look, their bones have been thrown out into the heat of the day and the frost of the night. They died by many horrors, from famine, sword, and exile. [26]Because of Israel's and Judah's evil, you have made the house that carries your name what it is today.

Hope for restoration

[27]Lord our God, you have acted toward us in line with your great kindness and your great compassion, [28]just as you spoke through your servant Moses on the day when you commanded him to write your Law in the presence of the Israelites.

You said:

[29]If you don't listen to my voice, this great buzzing crowd will certainly turn into a small one among the nations where I'll scatter them. [30]I knew that they wouldn't listen to me, because they are stubborn. But they will change their hearts while in the land of captivity. [31]They will know that I am the Lord their God, and I'll give them a heart and ears that listen. [32]They will praise me in the land of their captivity, and they will remember my name. [33]They will turn away from their stubborn side and their wicked actions, because they will remember what happened to their ancestors who sinned in the Lord's presence. [34]I'll bring them back to the land that I promised in a solemn pledge to their ancestors--to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob--and they will rule it. And I'll repopulate the land, and they will never decrease. [35]I'll make an eternal covenant with them that I will be their God and they will be my people. I'll never again remove my people Israel from the land that I have given them.

Baruch 3 Lord Almighty, God of Israel, a soul under great stress and a wearied spirit cry out to you. [2]Lord, listen and have mercy, because we've sinned in your presence, [3]because you are enthroned for all time, and we are perishing for all time. [4]Lord Almighty, God of Israel, listen now to the prayers of those who have died in Israel and the prayers of the children of those who kept sinning before you, who didn't listen to the Lord their God. Horrible things continue to trouble us. [5]Don't remember our ancestors' unjust actions, but remember your power and your reputation at this time, [6]because you, Lord, are our God, and we'll praise you. [7]You have planted respect for you in our hearts so that we'll call on your name. We'll praise you in this land far from home, for we have put away from our hearts all the injustice of our fathers who sinned before you. [8]Today we are far from home, where you have scattered us as an insult, a curse, and a penalty due to all the unjust actions of our ancestors, who deserted the Lord our God.

The glory of wisdom

[9]Hear, Israel, the commandments of life.
Listen carefully, and you'll come to know Wisdom.
[10]Why is it, Israel, that you are in the enemies' land, growing old in a foreign land, [11]polluted by the dead, and counted as people already in the grave?[d] [12]You have abandoned the fountain from which wisdom flows.
[13]If you had walked in the way of God,
you would be living in peace forever.
[14]Learn where there are wisdom, strength, and understanding so that you may know at the same time where there are longevity, life, understanding,[e] and peace.
[15]Who has found her place of residence,[f]
and who has entered her storehouses?
[16]Where are the leading officials of the nations
and the masters of the animals that are on the earth?
[17]Where are those who entrap
the birds in the sky, and those who store up silver and gold, in which humans have trusted?
There is no end to their attempts to acquire more.
[18]Where are those who anxiously schemed to acquire silver?
There is no trace of their actions.

19 They have all vanished and gone to the grave,[g]
and others have risen up in their place.
20 New generations have seen the light and lived on the earth, but they didn't know
the way of knowledge.
21 They didn't understand her paths or take hold of her.
Their children also went far off course.
22 She hadn't been heard of in Canaan or seen in Teman.
23 Hagar's children,
who seek earthly understanding,
the traders of Merran and Teman,
the storytellers and knowledge seekers, haven't learned the way of Wisdom,
nor have they remembered her paths.
24 Israel, how great is God's house and spacious is God's domain!
25 It is great and has no end;
it is high and immeasurable!
26 The giants were born there,
the famous ones
from the beginning of time,
who were very large
and experts in war.
27 God didn't select them or give them
the way of true knowledge.
28 So they perished
because they didn't have Wisdom;
they perished
through their carelessness.
29 Who went into heaven, took Wisdom, and brought her down from the clouds?
30 Who crossed over to the other side of the sea and found her,
and who will bring her back with choice gold?

31No one knows the road she takes or thinks much about the path she travels.
32But the one who knows all things knows her;
God found her by his understanding;
the one who made the earth
for time eternal,
and filled it with four-footed animals; 33the one who sends the light and it shines forth;
who called it
and it obeyed him with trembling.
34The stars shone at their appointed posts and were delighted.
God called them,
and the stars said, "Here we are."
They shone joyfully
for the one who made them.
35This is our God.
No other will be compared to him.
36God discovered every way of knowledge and gave her to his child[h] Jacob, to Israel, whom he loved.
37After this, she appeared on the earth and lived among humans.

Baruch 4

She is the scroll containing God's commandments, the Law that exists forever.
All who hold on to her will live,
but those who desert her will die.
2Jacob, turn and grab on to her.
Travel toward the rays
coming from her light.
3Don't give your honor to another or your advantages to a foreign nation.

4 Israel, we are blessed because we know what is pleasing to God.

Poem of encouragement

5 Be confident, my people,
you who are the legacy of Israel!
6 You weren't sold to the nations for complete destruction, but you were handed over to your opponents
because you made God angry.
7 You upset your creator when you sacrificed to demons and not to God.
8 You forgot the eternal God who raised you;
and you caused pain to Jerusalem,
who nurtured you.
9 Jerusalem saw the wrath of God that came on you and said:
Neighbors of Zion, listen!
God has brought me great grief.
10 I have watched my sons and daughters taken captive, the action of the eternal one.
11 I nursed them joyfully, but I sent them away
with tears and mourning.
12 Don't any of you rejoice over me, a widow deserted by many.
My children avoided God's Law, so I was stripped bare
because of their sins.
13 They didn't acknowledge God's requirements,
walk in the ways of God's commandments,
or follow the paths in which his righteousness trained them.

14Neighbors of Zion, come!
Remember the exile
my sons and daughters suffered, brought on them by the eternal one.
15God brought a nation
from far away against them,
a nation that is shameless and speaks a strange language, that showed no respect for the elderly or pity for the child.
16It[i] took away the widow's dearly loved sons
and deprived the lonely woman of her daughters.
17But how am I able to help you?
18The one who brought the horrible things on you will rescue you
from your enemies' grasp.
19Go, children, go,
for I have been left desolate.
20I've stripped off the robe of peace and put on the rough cloth of mourners.
I'll spend my days crying out to the eternal one.
21Children, be confident! Cry out to God!
God will rescue you from your enemies' authority and grip.
22I have placed hope in the eternal one for your salvation;
the holy one has sent me joy, because your eternal savior will soon have mercy on you.
23I sent you away
with mourning and wailing, but God will restore you to me with gladness and joy forever.
24Just as Zion's neighbors have now seen your exile, they'll also soon see God's deliverance of you;

it will come to you with all the glory and splendor of the eternal one.
25Children, bear up patiently under God's anger,
which has come on you.
Your enemy has hunted you down,
but you'll soon see their destruction.
Then you'll step on their throats.
26My delicate children have traveled rough roads.
They were taken as a flock snatched away by enemies.
27Children, be confident!
Cry out to God,
for the one who brought this on you will remember you.
28Just as you plotted
to stray away from God, return with ten times as much effort to seek him out.
29The one who brought these horrible things on you will bring you eternal joy along with your deliverance.

Comfort for Jerusalem

30Jerusalem, be confident!
The one who named you will comfort you.
31Misery will fall upon those who mistreated you
and celebrated your fall.
32Misery will fall upon the cities that enslaved your young.
Misery will fall upon the cities[j]
that received your children.
33Just as the enemy[k] celebrated your fall and rejoiced at your misfortune, she herself will feel the pain of being left desolate.

34I'll strip away the pride
she has in her great population, and turn her arrogance into grief.
35The eternal one will send fire on her for many days,
and demons will inhabit her for a long time.
36Jerusalem, look to the east and see the joy that is coming to you from God.
37The children you sent away are coming.
By the holy one's word,
they are coming from the east and the west,
rejoicing in God's glory.

Baruch 5

5Take off your mourning clothes and oppression, Jerusalem!
Dress yourself in the dignity of God's glory forever.
2Wrap the justice that comes from God around yourself like a robe.
Place the eternal one's glory
on your head like a crown.
3God will show your brilliance everywhere under heaven.
4God will give you this name
by which to be called forever:
The Peace That Comes from Justice,
The Honor That Comes from Reverence for God!
5Get up, Jerusalem!
Stand on the high place,
and look around to the east!
See your children gathered from the west to the east
by the holy one's word,

as they rejoice that God has remembered them.
6They went out from you on foot, driven along by their enemies,
but God will bring them back to you, carried aloft with glory
as on a royal throne.
7God has ordered every high mountain and the eternal hills to be brought down,
and the valleys to be filled in to level the ground
so that Israel may walk safely
in God's glory.
8The woods and every fragrant tree have shaded Israel
with God's command.
9God will lead Israel with gladness by the light that shines forth from his glory,
with the mercy and righteousness that come from him.

Letter of Jeremiah

Introduction

0This is a copy of the letter that Jeremiah sent to those who would be taken as prisoners to Babylon by the Babylonian king. Jeremiah wrote to give them the instructions that God imposed upon him.

God's exile of Israel into Babylon

Letter of Jeremiah 1 Nebuchadnezzar, Babylon's king, will bring you as prisoners to Babylon because of the sins that you committed in the presence of God. 2When you enter Babylon, you will be there a long time, as long as seven generations. Afterward, I will bring you out from there peacefully. 3In Babylon you will see gods of silver, gold, and wood paraded on the Babylonians' shoulders. These gods inspire awe among the people. 4Be careful that you don't become like the Gentiles,[a] letting fear of these gods grip you, 5especially when you see large crowds of people walking in front of and behind them, worshipping them. But say to yourself, Lord, we want to worship you. 6For God's[b] angel is with you, examining your souls.

Inability of the idols to do anything

7A carpenter smooths out the tongues of the idols. They are covered in gold and silver, but they are fake and unable to speak. 8The Gentiles take gold and place crowns on their gods' heads, like a young girl playing dress up. 9Sometimes the priests secretly take away the gold and silver from their gods to spend on themselves and give to prostitutes in the brothels. 10The Gentiles dress these gods of silver, gold, and wood with clothing just like people. But these idols can't be rescued from rust and rotting.[c] 11Even though the idols are dressed in rich purple clothing, the Gentiles have to wipe off the idols' faces because of the dust in the temple that thickly covers them. 12One idol has a royal staff, like a person who is a regional judge, but the idol can't destroy the person who offends it. 13Another one has a dagger or an ax in its right hand, but it can't defend itself from war or robbers. [14]Clearly they are no gods, so don't be afraid of them.

[15]Just as a person's utensil is useless after it's broken, so are the Gentiles' gods after they have been placed in their temples. [16]Their eyes are full of dust from the feet of visitors. [17]Even as the courtyards are locked up on every side when one is sentenced to death for doing wrong against a king, so the priests secure their temples with doors, bolts, and bars from robbers and thieves. [18]The priests light more lamps for the idols than for themselves, but their gods can't see them. [19]The idols are just like the beams that support a house, but people say that their hearts melt before them.[d] They don't notice when vermin from the earth have eaten them and their clothing. [20]Their faces have been darkened by the smoke that is in the temple. [21]Bats, swallows, birds, and cats land on their bodies and heads. [22]From this you will know that they aren't gods. So don't be afraid of them.

[23]As for the gold they wear beautifully, the idols won't shine unless someone else wipes away the rust. They didn't have any feeling when they were made. [24]They are purchased at great cost, but there is no breath in them. [25]Since they have no feet, others carry them on their shoulders, demonstrating their worthlessness to people. Their servants are ashamed, since the idols fall to the ground unless they steady them and hold them up. [26]If anyone stands an idol up, it can't move by itself. If one is tilted over, it can't straighten itself up. Yet gifts are placed in front of them--just as people place gifts in front of the dead!

Worthlessness of the idols

[27]Their priests misuse the sacrifices by selling them and using the money for themselves. Their wives also preserve some of the meat,[e] but they don't share it with the poor or disabled. Menstruating[f] women and others who have just given birth have handled their sacrifices. [28]Since you know from these things that they aren't gods, don't be afraid of them.

[29]Why call them gods? Because women place food before these gods of silver, gold, and wood? [30]Or because the priests sit in their temples with their garments torn, with their heads and beards shaved, and their heads uncovered? [31]They howl and shout in front of their gods as some do at a funeral feast for the dead. [32]Yet the priests take the gods' clothing to dress their wives and children.

[33]Whether one treats them badly or well, the gods aren't able to repay in kind. They aren't able to install or remove a ruler. [34]They can't give either wealth or money. If someone makes a solemn promise and doesn't keep it, they can't enforce it. [35]They can't save a person from death or rescue a weak person from a strong one. [36]They can't restore sight to the blind or rescue a person in an emergency. [37]They can't show mercy to a widow, nor can they do any good for an orphan. [38]These wooden things covered in gold and silver are like stones from a mountain. Their servants will be humiliated. [39]So why should anyone consider or call them gods?

[40]In addition, even the Chaldeans dishonor them. When they see a person who is unable to speak, they bring out Bel and expect Bel to make a sound as if he were able to understand. [41]Even after observing this, the Chaldeans themselves are unable to abandon the idols because they have no sense. [42]The women, with cords wrapped around them, sit along the streets and burn corn husks as incense. [43]When one of these women is dragged away by someone to have sex, she makes fun of the one nearest her by saying that the other woman wasn't as worthy as she, nor has the woman's cord been broken. [44]Everything that is done for the gods is phony. So why should anyone consider or call them gods?

[45]Carpenters and goldsmiths make them. They can be only what these designers want them to be. [46]Their creators won't live long themselves, so how can the things they have made be gods? [47]These designers leave behind something fake and disgraceful for those who come after them. [48]When war or disasters come, the priests consult with each other about where they may hide along with the idols. [49]So how can one not grasp that they aren't gods? They can't save themselves from war or other disasters. [50]After such events as this, the idols, made of wood and covered in gold and silver, will be recognized as fake. It will be clear to the nations and to the rulers that they aren't gods but human creations. There's nothing divine about them. [51]Who then doesn't realize that they aren't gods?

[52]They could never raise up a ruler over a country or provide rain for people. [53]They can't render a verdict in their own cases, nor can they save those falsely accused, because the idols are powerless. They are like crows between the sky and the earth. [54]When a fire breaks out in the home of their wooden gods covered in gold and silver, their priests will run and save themselves, but the gods will be destroyed like the supporting beams. [55]The idols can't stand up against kings or enemies in war. [56]So why should anyone consider or call them gods?

[57]The wooden gods covered in gold and silver can't be saved from thieves and robbers, who will take away the gold, silver, and clothing that the idols wear. They won't be able to protect themselves. [58]It's better to be a ruler who has courage or a household utensil that the owner can actually use than to be fake gods. The door of a house, which keeps safe the things that are in it, is better than fake gods. A wooden column in a palace is better than these fake gods.

The power of Israel's God

[59]The sun, moon, and stars are bright, and they willingly obey when given an order. [60]Also lightning is widely seen when it flashes and draws attention. The wind also blows in every land. [61]When God commands the clouds to move across the whole world, they carry out the order. When the fire is sent out from above to destroy mountains and forests, it accomplishes what it is ordered to do. [62]But the idols can't be compared with such forces of nature in appearance or ability. [63]There's no reason at all to believe in them or call them gods. They aren't able to judge anyone's case or do good for anyone. [64]Since you know they aren't gods, don't be afraid of them.

[65]They can't curse or bless rulers. [66]They can't show signs in the sky among the nations or shine like the sun or give light like the moon. [67]The animals are better off than the idols, for they are able to run for shelter and help themselves. [68]It is obvious to us that the idols aren't gods. So don't be afraid of them.

[69]As a scarecrow in a cucumber field offers no protection, so do[g] their wooden gods covered in gold and silver. [70]In the same way, their wooden gods covered in gold and silver could be compared to a briar patch where every bird perches or to a dead body thrown out into the darkness. [71]From the purple cloth--and the marble that decays and crumbles[h] on them--you will know they aren't gods. Later they themselves will be devoured, and it will be a disgrace in the land.

72So it is better to be a righteous person without any idols. That person will be far removed from disgrace.

Prayer of Azariah (and Hymn of theThree Young Men)

1

Azariah's prayer for reconciliation

Prayer of Azariah 1[a] Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego[b] walked around in the flames, singing hymns to God, blessing the Lord. [2]While standing and praying in the middle of the fire, Azariah spoke like this:

[3]Blessed are you,
Lord God of our ancestors.
You deserve to be praised
and honored forever!
[4]Everything you've done to us is fair.
All your actions are right,
your ways consistent;
all your decisions are sound.
[5]You judged us fairly in all the things you've done to us and to Jerusalem,
our ancestors' holy city.
You were honest and fair in doing all these things to us because of our sins.
[6]We sinned and broke the law
by turning from you;
we sinned in everything we did.
[7]We didn't obey your commands;
we didn't keep them or do as you ordered us, although the orders were
for our own good.
[8]All that you've brought upon us,
all that you've done to us,
has been fair.
[9]You handed us over to our enemies, immoral rebels who hate God's laws, and to an unjust king, the most evil one in the whole world.

10 Now there's nothing that we can say.
Shame and blame cover your servants and those who worship you.
11 For the sake of your own reputation, please don't hand us over permanently!
Don't set aside your covenant!
12 Don't turn your mercy away from us! Hold to it for the sake of Abraham, whom you loved,
and Isaac, your servant,
and Israel, your holy one.
13 You told them
you would give them descendants, as many as the stars of the sky and the grains of sand beside the sea.
14 Look, Lord, we have become smaller than any other nation.
We are disgraced now in front of everybody because of our sins.
15 In this time we have no ruler or prophet or leader, no entirely burned offering or sacrifice, no special gift or incense, no place to bring gifts to you and find mercy.
16 Accept us, please, with our crushed souls and humble spirits, as if we brought entirely burned offerings of rams and bulls, as if we brought tens of thousands of fat lambs.
17 May this be the kind of offering we make in your presence today, and may we follow you completely,[c] since no shame will come to those who come to terms with you.
18 Now we follow you with our hearts, honor you, and seek your presence.
19 Don't put us to shame!
Instead, deal with us in line with your kindness and great mercy.
20 As you have worked wonders before,
so rescue us now!
Build up your reputation, Lord!
21 Let all who mistreat your servants be humiliated.

Let them be put to shame
and lose all their authority;
may their strength be smashed.
22Let them know that you alone are the Lord God,
more honored
than anyone else in the world.

Heating the fire

23Now the king's aides, who had thrown them into the furnace, were constantly feeding the fire with petroleum, tar, kindling, and dry sticks. 24Flame shot out of the furnace to a height of more than seventy feet, 25spreading out and burning the Babylonians who stood near the furnace. 26But the Lord's angel came down among Azariah and his friends and waved the fiery flames out of the furnace. 27He made the middle of the furnace seem like a cool breeze was blowing through it. The fire didn't touch them at all; it didn't hurt or upset them.

Hymn of the three young men

28Then with one voice the three began singing hymns, praising and blessing God right there in the furnace. They said:

29Blessed are you,
Lord God of our ancestors.
You are worthy of praise and raised high above all others forever.
Blessed is your glorious and holy reputation,
worthy of praise and raised high above all others forever.
30Blessed are you in your glorious,
holy temple,
worthy of hymns and honored
above all others forever.
31Blessed are you,
sitting on the winged creatures,
looking down into the farthest depths,
worthy of praise and raised high above all others forever.

[32]Blessed are you on your royal throne, worthy of hymns and raised high
above all others forever.
[33]Blessed are you in the dome of the sky, worthy of hymns
and honored forever.
[34]All works of the Lord, bless the Lord,
sing hymns, and lift God high
above all others forever.
[35]Heavens, bless the Lord,
sing hymns, and lift God high
above all others forever.
[36]Angels serving the Lord, bless the Lord,
sing hymns, and lift God high
above all others forever.
[37]All you waters above the sky,
bless the Lord,
sing hymns, and lift God high
above all others forever.
[38]All you heavenly powers,[d] bless the Lord,
sing hymns, and lift God high
above all others forever.
[39]Sun and moon, bless the Lord,
sing hymns, and lift God high
above all others forever.
[40]Stars of the sky, bless the Lord,
sing hymns, and lift God high
above all others forever.
[41]Rainstorms and dew, bless the Lord,
sing hymns, and lift God high
above all others forever.
[42]All you winds, bless the Lord,
sing hymns, and lift God high
above all others forever.
[43]Fire and burning, bless the Lord,
sing hymns, and lift God high
above all others forever.

[44]Cold and heat, bless the Lord,
sing hymns, and lift God high
above all others forever.
[45]Dew drops and falling snow,
bless the Lord,
sing hymns, and lift God high
above all others forever.
[46]Nights and days, bless the Lord,
sing hymns, and lift God high
above all others forever.
[47]Light and darkness, bless the Lord,
sing hymns, and lift God high
above all others forever.
[48]Ice and winter, bless the Lord,
sing hymns, and lift God high
above all others forever.
[49]Frost and snow, bless the Lord,
sing hymns, and lift God high
above all others forever.
[50]Lightning and clouds, bless the Lord,
sing hymns, and lift God high
above all others forever.
[51]Let the earth bless the Lord.
Let it sing hymns and lift God high above all others forever.
[52]Mountains and hills, bless the Lord,
sing hymns, and lift God high
above all others forever.
[53]All you things that grow in the earth, bless the Lord,
sing hymns, and lift God high
above all others forever.
[54]Oceans and rivers, bless the Lord,
sing hymns, and lift God high
above all others forever.
[55]Running waters, bless the Lord,
sing hymns, and lift God high
above all others forever.
[56]Sea monsters and all you things that swarm in the water, bless the Lord,

sing hymns, and lift God high
above all others forever.
57 All birds of the sky, bless the Lord,
sing hymns, and lift God high
above all others forever.
58 Wild and tame animals, bless the Lord,
sing hymns, and lift God high
above all others forever.
59 You human beings, bless the Lord,
sing hymns, and lift God high
above all others forever.
60 Israel, bless the Lord,
sing hymns, and lift God high
above all others forever.
61 Priests, bless the Lord,
sing hymns, and lift God high
above all others forever.
62 You who serve the Lord, bless the Lord,
sing hymns, and lift God high
above all others forever.
63 Spirits and souls of good people,
bless the Lord,
sing hymns, and lift God high
above all others forever.
64 You people who are holy and have humble hearts, bless the Lord,
sing hymns, and lift God high
above all others forever.
65 Hananiah, Azariah, and Mishael,
bless the Lord,
sing hymns, and lift God high
above all others forever,
because he rescued us from the grave,[e]
and saved us from death.
God pulled us out of the middle of the scorching furnace, and pulled us out

of the middle of the fire.
66Tell people that the Lord is good, because his mercy lasts forever.
67All you who worship the Lord,
the God of gods, bless him, sing hymns, and tell people that God's mercy lasts forever!

Susanna[a]

1

Susanna 1 A man named Joakim once lived in Babylon. [2]His wife Susanna, Hilkiah's daughter, was very beautiful and honored the Lord. [3]Her parents were good people, and they taught their daughter according to the Law from Moses.

[4]Joakim was very rich, and he had a large private garden next to his home. The Jews came to him because he was the most honored among them. [5]Two elders among the people had been appointed as judges that year. It was about them that the Lord had spoken: "Lawless disorder[b] has come out of Babylon, from elders, from judges who were supposed to guide the people."[6]These men spent a lot of time at Joakim's house, and all the people with lawsuits came to them.

[7]When the people went away in the middle of the day, Susanna would walk around her husband's private garden. [8]Every day the two elders would see her coming in and walking around, and they desired her sexually. [9]They ceased thinking clearly, neither looking to heaven nor caring about justice. [10]Both of them thought about her and nothing else, but they didn't tell each other their craving, [11]because they were ashamed to admit how they desired her and wanted to be with her. [12]But they were on the lookout every day, eager to get a glimpse of her.

[13]One said to the other, "It's time for lunch. Let's go home." They split up and left, [14]but doubling back, they met again at the same place. They started asking each other for an explanation, and so each confessed his desire. Then they plotted together for a time when they would be able to find her alone.

[15]When they were watching closely for the right moment, Susanna came by, just as she had the day before and the day before that, alone with her two female servants. She wanted to bathe in the privacy of the garden, since it was hot. [16]No one was there except the two elders, who were hidden and spying on her. [17]She said to her female servants, "Please bring me some olive oil and lotion and lock the gates so I can bathe."[18]They did just what she said. They locked the gates to the garden and went through the side doors into the house to fetch the things she had wanted. They didn't see the elders, since they were hiding.

19When the female servants went out, the two elders stood up and ran at her.
20They said, "Look, the gates are locked, and nobody can see us. We desire you, so do what we want and have sex with us. 21If you don't, we'll swear that you were meeting with a young man, and that's why you sent your female servants away."

22Susanna groaned. "I'm trapped! If I do this, it's death; but if I don't, I still won't escape your plotting.[c] 23But I'd rather not do this and fall into your hands, than sin in the Lord's sight."24So Susanna screamed, and at the same time the two elders called out. 25One of them ran and opened the gates to the garden.

26When people in the house heard the shouting in the garden, they ran out through the side doors to see what had happened to Susanna. 27When the two elders had their say, the servants were very ashamed because nothing like this had ever been said about Susanna.

28The next day when the people came to her husband Joakim, the two elders came too, full of their immoral scheme to have Susanna killed. They said in front of the people, 29"Call Susanna, Hilkiah's daughter, who is married to Joakim." So they called her in. 30She came with her parents, her children, and all her relatives.

31Now Susanna was elegant, beautiful in appearance. 32The criminals ordered the veil that she was wearing to be removed so they could soak in her beauty.
33But her household and all who saw her were crying. 34Upon taking the stand in front of everybody, the elders laid their hands on Susanna's head to give testimony.[d] 35But she looked up to heaven while crying because she trusted the Lord.

36The elders said, "While we were walking around the large garden by ourselves, this woman came in with two female servants. She locked the gates of the garden and sent away the female servants. 37Then a young man, who had been hiding, came and lay with her. 38We were in a corner of the garden, and when we saw this lawless act, we went running to them. 39We saw them having sex, but we couldn't hold on to the man because he was stronger than we were. He opened the gates and ran away. [40]So we grabbed this woman and asked who the young man was,[41]but she wouldn't tell us. To this we swear."

The assembly believed them because they were the people's elders and judges. So they sentenced Susanna to death.

[42]Susanna screamed out: "Eternal God, you know what is hidden; you see everything before it happens. [43]You know they've lied in this court about me! Look, I'm going to die, although I didn't do any of the things these men accuse in their malice!"

[44]The Lord heard her cry. [45]As she was being led away to die, God stirred up the holy spirit of a young man named Daniel. [46]He shouted out loud, "I'm innocent of this woman's blood!"

[47]All the people turned to him and asked, "What are you saying?!"

[48]He stood among them and said, "Are you so stupid, Israelites, that you've sentenced an Israelite woman to death without cross-examining or finding the facts?[49]Go back to court: these men have given false testimony against her."

[50]Everyone rushed back. The other elders said to Daniel, "Sit here with us and advise us, since God has given you the status of an elder."

[51]Daniel told them, "Separate them from each other, and I'll cross-examine them."[52]When they had been separated from each other, he called in one of the judges and said to him, "The sins you did earlier are catching up to you now at the end of a long evil life. [53]You judged unfairly, sentencing the innocent to death, and letting the guilty go, even though the Lord says, 'You will not sentence innocent and good people to death.'[54]Now then, if you really saw this woman, tell me this. Under what tree did you see them having sex?" He said, "Under a clove tree."

[55]Daniel said, "Right! You lied! It's on your own head! Already God's angel has orders to cleave you down the middle!"

[56]Then setting that one aside, he ordered them to bring in the other judge. He said to him, "You're a Canaanite and not from Judah. Beauty seduced you, and sexual desire twisted your mind. [57]You treated women from Israel this way, and they had sex with you because they were afraid of you. But this woman from Judah wouldn't tolerate your lawless immorality. [58]So tell me now: Under what tree did you catch them having sex with each other?" He said, "Under a yew."[e]

[59]Daniel said to him, "Right! You lied too! It's on your own head. God's angel waits with his sword to hew you down the middle, to destroy both of you."

[60]Then the whole assembly started shouting out praises to the God who saves those who hope in him. [61]They rose up against the two elders, because Daniel had shown from their own words that they were false witnesses. They treated them in the same way that they had plotted to treat their neighbor. [62]By following the Law from Moses, they killed them. Innocent blood was saved that day. [63]Hilkiah and his wife gave thanks that their daughter Susanna had not been found guilty of a shameful crime. Her husband Joakim and all their relatives also gave thanks. [64]From that day Daniel was honored among the people.

Bel and the Snake[a]

1

Bel's Secret

Bel and the Snake

1 When King Astyages was buried with his ancestors, Cyrus the Persian took over his kingdom. 2 Daniel was a companion of the king, honored above all Cyrus' political advisors.[b] 3 Now the Babylonians had an idol named Bel. Each day they supplied it with twelve bushels of fine flour, forty sheep, and sixty gallons[c] 4 The king honored Bel and worshipped it daily, but Daniel worshipped his own God. So the king said to him, "Why don't you worship Bel?"

5 He said, "I don't honor idols made by humans, rather the living God who created heaven and earth and has authority over all living things."

6 The king said to him, "You believe Bel is a living god, don't you? Haven't you seen how much he eats and drinks every day?"

7 Daniel laughed and said, "Don't be taken in, Your Majesty! This is clay on the inside and brass on the outside. It hasn't eaten or drunk anything, ever!"

8 Furious, the king called for his priests. He said to them,"If you don't tell me who eats these provisions, you die! But if you can prove that Bel eats them, Daniel will die for insulting Bel."

9 Daniel said to the king,"That's fair enough."

Now Bel had seventy priests plus their wives and children. 10 The king went with Daniel to Bel's temple. 11 Bel's priests said, "We're going outside now. Your Majesty, you set out the food and mix the wine. Lock the door and seal it with your own seal. Early tomorrow, if you don't find that Bel has eaten everything, you can kill us. Otherwise, kill Daniel for lying about us!" (12 The priests weren't worried because they had made a hidden entrance under the table, which they regularly used to enter to eat everything.)

[13]When the priests went out, the king set out Bel's food. [14]But Daniel ordered his servants to bring ashes and sprinkle the whole temple, with only the king watching. Then everyone went out, locked the door, sealed it with the king's seal, and left.

[15]The priests came that night, as usual, with their wives and children, and ate and drank everything. [16]The king and Daniel got up very early the next morning. [17]The king said,"Are the seals unbroken, Daniel?"

He answered,"Unbroken, Your Majesty."

[18]As soon as the doors were opened, the king looked at the table and yelled,"You are great, Bel! There's nothing fake about you!"

[19]But Daniel laughed and held the king back from going in. He said,"Look at the floor. Whose tracks are these?"

[20]The king said,"I see the footprints of men, women, and children!"[21]Then the king became angry. He arrested the priests, their wives, and children. They showed him the hidden doors through which they regularly entered to eat what was on the table. [22]The king killed them and handed Bel over to Daniel, who tore it and its temple down.

A living god?

[23]Now there was a big snake that the Babylonians worshipped. [24]The king said to Daniel,"You can't say that this one isn't a living god. So worship it!"

[25]Daniel said,"I will keep worshipping the Lord my God, because he is a living God. But, Your Majesty, just give me permission, and I'll kill the snake without using a sword or stick!"

[26]The king said,"I give you permission."

[27]Then Daniel took tar and cooking grease and hair. He boiled them down, made patties, and put them into the snake's mouth. The snake swallowed them and burst open. Daniel said,"Look at what you have been worshipping!"

Daniel in the lions' pit

28When the Babylonians heard what happened, they were very angry. They came together as a mob and started toward the king, saying,"The king has become a Jew! He's torn down Bel, killed the snake, and murdered the priests!"29When they reached the king, they said,"Hand Daniel over to us! If you don't, we'll kill you and your family!"

30The king saw that he was in a bind and was forced to hand Daniel over to them. 31They threw Daniel into a pit of lions. He was there six days. 32There were seven lions in the pit. Usually they were fed two bodies and two sheep daily, but now they were fed nothing so that they would devour Daniel.

33At the same time, the prophet Habakkuk was in Judah. He had boiled a stew, put some bread in a bowl, and was carrying it to the people harvesting the field. 34But the Lord's angel said to Habakkuk,"Take this lunch to Babylon, to Daniel in the lions' pit."

35Habakkuk said,"Lord, I've never seen Babylon, and I'm not familiar with that pit."36So the Lord's angel lifted Habakkuk by his hair and brought him in a rush of wind[d] to Babylon, right above the pit. 37Habakkuk yelled,"Daniel!
Daniel! Take the lunch that God has sent to you!"

38Daniel said,"God, you remembered me! You don't abandon the people who love you."39Daniel got up and ate, while God's angel took Habakkuk instantly back to his own place.

40On the seventh day the king came to the pit to grieve for Daniel. He looked in, and there was Daniel, sitting there! 41Then the king shouted out loud, "You are great, Lord, Daniel's God! There's no other but you!"42He pulled Daniel out.
But he threw the ones who had planned Daniel's destruction into the pit, and they were eaten instantly, right in front of him.

Alexander the Great

1Maccabees 1 Alexander was Philip's son, a Macedonian, one of the western peoples known as the Kittim. After Alexander became king of Greece, he defeated King Darius, who ruled the Persians and the Medes. By doing so, Alexander greatly enlarged his realm. 2 He successfully fought many battles, conquered fortresses, and put to death many kings. 3 He advanced to the very ends of the known earth, plundering nation after nation. Finally, his battles reached an end, and he was widely recognized as supreme king, which made him proud. 4 He built a very strong army and ruled countries, nations, and princes; and they all owed allegiance to him.

5 But eventually Alexander fell sick and was confined to bed. He knew that he was dying. 6 He therefore called for his most esteemed officers, those who had been raised with him; and he divided his kingdom among them while he was still alive. 7 Then Alexander died, having ruled for twelve years.[a]

8 Subsequently, his officers began to rule, each in his own territory. 9 They ruled as kings, and after them their descendants ruled for many years. Together they caused much suffering across the earth.

Antiochus Epiphanes and renegade Jews

10 From these descendants sprouted a sinful root--Antiochus Epiphanes. He was a son of King Antiochus, and he had been brought up in Rome as a hostage. Antiochus Epiphanes began to rule in the year 137[b] according to the calendar of the Greek kingdom.

11 At that time, some renegade Israelites emerged. These people went against their ancestral laws and encouraged many other Jews to join them. They spoke up, saying, "Let's make an agreement with the Gentiles around us, because many horrible things have happened to us since we separated ourselves from them."12 The proposal pleased their fellow Jews. 13 Some of them eagerly went to King Antiochus, who gave them permission to start living by the laws of the Gentiles. 14Consequently, they built a gymnasium in Jerusalem, following Gentile custom. 15They even took steps to remove the marks of circumcision, utterly abandoning the holy covenant. They joined with Gentiles and gave themselves over to an evil course.

Antiochus in Egypt

16When Antiochus felt that his own kingdom was fully established, he determined also to take control of the land of Egypt so that he could rule over both kingdoms. 17He invaded Egypt with a very strong force, including soldiers in chariots and on elephants, as well as cavalry and a large fleet. 18When Antiochus met the Egyptian king Ptolemy in battle, Ptolemy and his forces hastily retreated. Many were wounded and killed. 19Antiochus and his forces were able to capture the fortified cities in Egypt and plunder the land.

Oppression of the Jews

20After he conquered Egypt, Antiochus returned in the year 143.[c] He went up to Israel and entered Jerusalem with a strong force. 21With arrogance he went into the sanctuary. He took the gold altar, the lampstand for the light, and all its equipment. 22He also took the table that was used for the sacred bread, drink-offering cups, bowls, gold censers, a curtain, crowns, and the gold decoration on the front of the temple. He stripped it all. 23He took silver, gold, and costly equipment. He took every hidden treasure he could find. 24Taking it all, he went back to his own land. He committed murder and spoke very arrogantly.

25Every community in Israel grieved deeply.
26Rulers and elders groaned;
young women and men became faint.
The women's beauty faded.
27Every bridegroom was saddened, and intended brides sat
mourning in their chambers.
28Even the land shook for its people, and all of Jacob's house was clothed with shame.

Occupation of Jerusalem

29 Two years later,[d] to collect tribute from the Judean cities, King Antiochus sent his chief officer, who came to Jerusalem with a large army. 30 The agent spoke peaceably and the Jews believed him, but he was deceitful. Without warning, he attacked the city, dealt it a brutal blow, and killed many Israelites.
31 He plundered the city. He set fires within it, destroyed its houses, and tore down its protective walls. 32 His forces took women and children as prisoners and seized livestock. 33 After all of this, the agent's forces fortified David's City with a very strong wall and powerful towers, and it became their fortress. 34 They stationed sinful, immoral people there, and these soldiers held down their position. 35 They stocked up with weapons and food, collected the spoils of Jerusalem, and stored them there. They were a great menace.

36 They[e] ambushed the sanctuary.
They were an evil opponent of Israel at all times.
37 Its inhabitants shed innocent blood
all around the sanctuary, and they even polluted
the sanctuary itself.
38 Because of them,
those who lived in Jerusalem fled.
The city became
a dwelling place for strangers.
She was like a stranger to her offspring,
and her children abandoned her.
39 Her sanctuary was as barren as a desert.
Her feasts turned into mourning,
her sabbaths into shame,
her honor into contempt.
40 Her dishonor became as great as her glory had been.
Her joy turned into sadness.

Installation of Gentile worship

41 Then King Antiochus sent word throughout his entire kingdom that everyone should act like one people, 42 giving up their local customs. The Gentile nations all readily accepted the king's command. 43 Many Jews also willingly adopted the king's religion. They sacrificed to idols and violated the Sabbath.
44 The king sent messengers carrying letters to Jerusalem and the surrounding towns of Judah. He directed Jews to follow customs that had been unknown in the land. 45 He banned the regular practices of entirely burned offerings, sacrifices, and drink offerings in the sanctuary. He banned the observance of sabbaths and feast days. 46 The sanctuary and its priests were to be defiled.
47 They should build new altars, together with sacred precincts and shrines for idols. They should sacrifice pigs and other ritually impure animals. 48 Jews were no longer to circumcise their sons. They were supposed to make themselves repulsive to God by doing unclean and improper acts. 49 All of this was intended to make them forget the Law and change its regulations. 50 Whoever didn't obey the king would die.

51 In this way, Antiochus wrote to his whole kingdom. He appointed inspectors over all the people, and commanded the Jewish communities to offer pagan sacrifices, town by town. 52 Many Jewish people, those who abandoned the Law, followed suit and did evil in the land. 53 The king's inspectors[f] drove Israel into hiding in every place of refuge they had available.

54 Now on the fifteenth day of Kislev,[g] in the year 145, they set up a disgusting and destructive thing on the altar for entirely burned offerings in the sanctuary. The inspectors[h] built other altars in the surrounding Judean towns.
55 They burned incense at the doors of houses and in the streets. 56 When they found the Law scrolls, they tore them to pieces and burned them. 57 If anyone was caught in possession of a copy of the covenant scroll or if anyone kept to the Law, that person was condemned to death by royal decree. 58 They were unrelenting in attacking Israelites, all those who were identified as law-observant month after month throughout the towns. 59 On the twenty-fifth day of the month they offered sacrifice on the altar built over the altar for entirely burned offerings. 60 In keeping with the decree, they killed women who had circumcised their sons. 61 They hanged the infant boys from their mothers' necks. The king's agents also killed the families of the women as well as those who had performed the circumcisions.

62But many in Israel stood strong, and they resolved in their hearts not to eat impure food. 63They chose to die rather than to be defiled by the food or to dishonor the holy covenant. And they did die. 64A great anger came against Israel.

Mattathias and his sons

1Maccabees 2 In those days a priest from Joarib's family named Mattathias, the son of John and grandson of Simeon, moved from Jerusalem and settled in Modein. 2He had five sons: John, who had the surname Gaddi; 3Simon, called Thassi; 4Judas, called Maccabeus; 5Eleazar, called Avaran; and Jonathan, called Apphus.

6Mattathias saw the offensive actions against God that were taking place in Judah and Jerusalem. 7He said:

"Horrible! Why was I born to see this-- the ruin of my people,
the ruin of the holy city?
Why was I born to live there when it was given over to the enemy, and when the sanctuary
was given over to strangers?
8Her temple has become like a person stripped of honor.
9Her glorious equipment has been taken away into exile.
Her babies have been killed
in her streets,
her young people
by the enemy's sword.
10Is there a nation that hasn't taken away some part of her majesty and seized upon her loot?
11All her adornment has been taken away.
She is no longer free,
but is instead a slave.
12Look! Our holy place, our beauty, and our glory have all been destroyed.

The Gentiles have trampled them.
[13]Why should we live any longer?"

[14]Then Mattathias and his sons tore their clothes and put on mourning clothes, and they lamented.

Pagan worship refused

[15]At that time, the king's officers were enforcing the decrees to give up Jewish practice. They came to the town of Modein to make its people offer pagan sacrifice. [16]Many from Israel came out to them, including Mattathias and his sons. [17]Then the king's officers spoke to Mattathias: "You're a leader, honored and important in this town, and supported by sons and brothers. [18]Be the first to come and do what the king has commanded, as have all the Gentiles, the people of Judah, and those who are left in Jerusalem. Then you and your sons will be counted among the king's closest political advisors; you and your sons will be honored with silver, gold, and many gifts."

[19]But Mattathias answered loudly, "Even if all the nations that live under the king's rule obey him and have chosen to follow his orders, departing from their ancestral religion,[20]My sons and brothers and I will continue to live according to our ancestors' covenant. [21]We will never abandon the Law and its commands![22]We won't obey the king's orders by turning aside from our religion to either the right or the left."

[23]When he finished speaking, a Jew came forward in plain sight to offer sacrifice on the altar in Modein, in keeping with the king's command. [24]When Mattathias saw this action, he burned with zeal, and his spirit was stirred up. He gave way to his righteous anger, and he ran over and killed the man on the altar. [25]He also killed the king's officer who was overseeing the sacrifice at that time, and he tore down the altar. [26]He burned with zeal for the Law, just like Phinehas did against Zimri, Salu's son.

[27]Then Mattathias shouted loudly in the town, "Everyone who is zealous for the Law and supports the covenant should come with me!"[28]So he and his sons fled to the hills and left behind all that they had in the town.

[29]At that time, many who sought righteousness and justice went to live in the desert. [30]They were there with their sons, their wives, and their livestock because troubles pressed heavily on them. [31]The king's officers and the troops in Jerusalem, David's City, learned that those who had rejected the king's command had gone down to hiding places in the wilderness. [32]Many pursued and overtook them. The king's military forces camped opposite them and prepared for battle against them on the Sabbath. [33]They said to them: "Enough of this! Come out and do what the king commands, and you will live."

[34]But the Israelites replied: "We won't come out, and we won't do what the king commands and so violate the Sabbath."[35]So the enemy immediately attacked them. [36]Still they didn't answer or throw a rock at them or even block up their hiding places. [37]They said, "Let's all die in our innocence. Heaven and earth testify on our behalf that you are killing us unjustly."[38]So the troops attacked them on the Sabbath. They died, with their wives and children and livestock, as many as one thousand people.

[39]When Mattathias and his friends learned about this, they deeply mourned for the dead. [40]They said to each other: "If we all do as our people have done and refuse to fight against the Gentiles for our lives and our commandments, they will soon eliminate us from the earth."[41]So they decided that day: "We will fight against anyone who comes to attack us on the Sabbath. Let's not all die as our people did in their hiding places."

Counterattack

[42]At that time a company of Hasideans,[i] mighty warriors of Israel, united with them. They offered their lives willingly for the Law. [43]Others who became fugitives to escape their troubles joined them as well and reinforced them. [44]Together they organized an army. In their fury, they struck down sinners and renegades. Survivors fled to the Gentiles for safety.

[45]Mattathias and his friends went around tearing down the altars to other gods.[j] [46]They forcibly circumcised boys whom they found uncircumcised within the borders of Israel. [47]They hunted down arrogant people, and their missions were successful. [48]They rescued the Law from the power of the Gentiles and kings, and they never let the sinner regain power.

Last words of Mattathias

[49]Now the days drew near for Mattathias to die, and he spoke to his sons:
"Arrogance and contempt are present everywhere. It is a time of ruin and raging anger. [50]Now, my children, demonstrate zeal for the Law, and give your lives for our ancestors' covenant.

[51]"Remember the deeds of the ancestors, which they did in their day, and you will inherit great honor and everlasting remembrance.

[52]Wasn't Abraham found faithful when he was tested, and it was considered righteousness?
[53]Joseph kept the commandment in the time of his distress, and he became ruler of Egypt.
[54]Our ancestor Phinehas received the covenant of everlasting priesthood because he was deeply zealous.
[55]Joshua became a judge in Israel because he fulfilled the command.
[56]Caleb received an inheritance in the land because he testified in the assembly.
[57]David inherited the throne of the kingdom forever because he was merciful.
[58]Elijah was taken up into heaven because he had great zeal for the Law.
[59]Hananiah, Azariah, and Mishael believed, and were rescued from the flame.
[60]Daniel was delivered from the lions' mouths because of his innocence.

[61]"So you see that from generation to generation, no one who continues to trust God will lack strength. [62]Don't fear the words of sinners, for their glory will turn into dung and worms. [63]Today they may be exalted, but tomorrow they can't be found, because they will have returned to the dust and their plans will have vanished. [64]My children, show courage and grow strong in the Law, because this will bring you honor.

[65]"Look, here is your brother Simon, who I know is a man with purpose.
Always listen to him. He will be your father. [66]Judas Maccabeus has been a powerful fighter since he was a boy. He will command the army for you and lead the battle against the peoples. [67]Rally around yourselves all who observe the Law, and avenge wrong done to your people. [68]Pay the Gentiles back in full, and obey what the Law commands."

69 Then he blessed them and joined his ancestors. 70 He died in the year 146[k] and was buried in an ancestral tomb at Modein. All Israel mourned for him with sorrow.

Early victories of Judas

1Maccabees 3 Then his son Judas, known as Maccabeus, took command in his place. 2 Every one of his brothers and all who had joined his father helped him, and they gladly fought for Israel.

3 He advanced the honor of his people.
He put on his breastplate like a giant.
He strapped on his war armor and waged battles,
protecting the camp with his sword.
4 He was like a lion in his actions, like a lion's cub roaring after prey.
5 He hunted and pursued those who broke the Law.
He burned up
those who troubled his people.
6 Lawbreakers were afraid of him and retreated.
All evildoers were in turmoil.
His hand successfully brought deliverance.
7 He angered many kings,
but he brought joy to Jacob by his deeds.
His memory is blessed forever.
8 He went through the cities of Judah and destroyed the ungodly out of the land.
As a result, he turned wrath away from Israel.
9 His fame extended
to the ends of the earth.
He gathered together

those who were perishing.

[10]Apollonius gathered Gentiles and a large force from Samaria to fight against Israel. [11]When Judas found out about it, he went out to meet him in battle, then defeated and killed him. Judas wounded and killed many, while the rest fled. [12]Then the Israelites seized their spoils. Judas took Apollonius' sword and used it in battle for the rest of his life.

[13]At this point, Seron the commander of the Syrian army heard that Judas had gathered a large company, including a group of faithful soldiers who stayed with him and went out to battle. [14]He said, "I will make a name for myself and win honor in the kingdom. I will make war on Judas and his companions who reject the king's command."[15]Once more, a strong army of godless men went up with Seron to help him take vengeance on the Israelites.

[16]When he approached the ascent to go up to Beth-horon, Judas went out to meet him with a small group. [17]When they saw Seron's army that was coming against them, they said to Judas, "How can we, who are so few, fight against so large and strong a multitude? What's more, we feel faint because we haven't eaten today."

[18]Judas answered, "It's easy for many to be trapped by a few. In the sight of heaven, it makes no difference to win by many or by few. [19]It's not the size of the army that brings victory in battle, because strength comes from heaven. [20]They're coming against us with a lot of pride and evil. They want to destroy us, along with our wives and children. They want to ruin us. [21]But we are fighting for our lives and for our laws. [22]The heavenly one himself will crush them before us. Don't be afraid of them."

[23]After Judas said these words, his soldiers rushed suddenly against Seron's army, and they crushed them. [24]Judas' soldiers pursued Seron's army down the hill from Beth-horon to the plain below. Eight hundred of them died. The rest fled into the land of the Philistines. [25]After this, Judas and his brothers were feared. Terror fell on all the Gentiles around them. [26]Even the king heard about his reputation, and the Gentiles talked about the battles waged by Judas.

Policy of Antiochus

[27]When King Antiochus heard about these matters, he became very angry. So he gathered together all the forces of his empire, a mighty army. [28]He opened up his treasury and gave his soldiers a year's pay in advance, and he ordered them to be ready for anything. [29]Then he realized that the money in his treasury was all used up. The revenues from the country were small because of the turmoil and disaster that he had brought about in the land by abolishing the laws that had existed from early days. [30]He became afraid that he might not have enough funds to provide for his expenses as well as for the gifts that he granted more abundantly than previous kings. [31]He was very troubled by this. Then he decided to go to Persia and collect revenues there and raise a large sum of money.

[32]The king appointed Lysias, a distinguished man from a royal family, to be in charge of his affairs from the Euphrates River to the Egyptian border. [33]He also wanted Lysias to take care of his young son Antiochus until he returned. [34]So he gave Lysias authority over half of his armed forces and war elephants. He gave him orders regarding what he wanted him to do, including the matter of the inhabitants of Judea and Jerusalem. [35]He wanted Lysias to send an army against them to wipe out and destroy Israel's strength and the few remaining in Jerusalem. He ordered that their memory should be completely erased from the place. [36]Lysias was to settle strangers in all their territory and divide up their lands by lot. [37]Then the king took the other half of his forces and left his capital Antioch in the year 147.[l] He crossed the Euphrates River and went through the upper provinces.

Preparations for battle

[38]Lysias selected Ptolemy, Dorymenes' son, as well as Nicanor and Gorgias, two able men who were among the king's chief political advisors. [39]He sent them with forty thousand infantry and seven thousand cavalry to go into Judah and destroy it, as the king had commanded. [40]So they headed out with their whole force. When they arrived, they set up camp in the plain near Emmaus. [41]When traders in the region heard about their plan, they took a great amount of silver and gold, together with shackles, and went to the camp intending to obtain some Israelites for slaves. A force from Idumea[m] and the land of the Philistines also joined them.

[42]Judas and his brothers saw that the situation was becoming increasingly difficult, as the military forces were encamped in their territory. They learned also that the king had commanded their complete destruction. [43]But they spoke to each other, "Let's restore our people after all they've suffered, and fight for our people and the sanctuary."[44]So the congregation gathered to prepare for battle, and to pray and ask for mercy and compassion.

[45]Jerusalem was deserted like a wilderness.
None of her children moved around.
The sanctuary was trampled,
and strangers held the elevated fortress.
Gentiles lodged there.
Joy was taken from Jacob.
The flute and the harp were no longer heard.

[46]Then they assembled and went to Mizpah, across from Jerusalem, because Israelites used to have a place of prayer there. [47]They fasted for a day and put on mourning clothes, sprinkled ashes on their heads, and tore their garments. [48]In addition, they opened up the Law scroll to find answers to the kinds of questions Gentiles would ask of their idols. [49]They also brought out the priestly garments as well as early produce and tenth-part gifts. They stirred up nazirites, who had completed the duration of their solomn promises. [50]Then they cried aloud to heaven:

"What should we do with these people?
Where should we take them?
[51]Your sanctuary is trampled and degraded.
Your priests mourn in humiliation.
[52]The Gentiles are gathered here against us, planning to destroy us.
You know what they are plotting.
[53]How will we be able to withstand them
if you don't help us?"

[54]Then they blew the trumpets and gave a loud shout. [55]Judas appointed leaders of the people in charge of thousands and hundreds and fifties and tens.

56In keeping with the Law, he told all who were building houses or were about to get married or were planting a vineyard or were fainthearted to go home. 57Then the army went on the march and camped south of Emmaus.

58Judas said: "Arm yourselves and be fearless. Be ready early in the morning to fight these Gentiles who have gathered here against us to destroy us and our sanctuary. 59It would be better for us to die fighting than to see the misfortunes of our nation and the sanctuary. 60Whatever may be heaven's will, that's what the heavenly one will do."

Battle at Emmaus

1Maccabees 4 Gorgias took five thousand infantry and one thousand select cavalry, and this division moved out secretly at night. 2He wanted to come to the Jewish camp and attack without warning. Men from the elevated fortress served as his guides. 3But Judas heard about it, and he and his warriors moved out to attack the king's forces in Emmaus 4while the division was absent from the camp. 5So when Gorgias entered Judas' camp during the night, there was no one there. He started looking for them in the hills, because he said, "These men are running away from us."

6At daybreak, Judas appeared in the plain with three thousand men. But they didn't have armor and swords such as they would have liked. 7They saw the Gentile camp, strongly fortified, surrounded by cavalry clearly trained in warfare. 8Judas said to those who were with him: "Don't fear their numbers or be afraid when they charge. 9Remember how our ancestors were saved at the Red Sea,[n] when Pharaoh was pursuing them with his forces. 10So let's cry to heaven to see if the heavenly one will favor us and remember his covenant with our ancestors and crush this army in front of us today. 11Then all the Gentiles will know that there is someone who redeems and saves Israel."

12The foreigners looked up and saw the Israelites coming against them.
13They went out from their camp to engage them in battle. The men with Judas blew their trumpets, and the battle began. 14The Gentiles were crushed and fled into the plain. 15All those who were in the rear were killed by the sword. The Israelites pursued them to Gazara, to the plains of Idumea, and to Azotus and Jamnia. Three thousand Gentiles died. [16]Judas and his forces stopped pursuing them. [17]He said to everyone: "Don't be greedy to plunder, for there is still a battle ahead of us. [18]Gorgias and his force are still near us in the hills. Stand now against our enemies and fight them. Then afterward boldly seize the spoils."

[19]Just as Judas said this, a detachment of Gentiles cautiously appeared, coming out of the hills. [20]They saw that their army had been put to flight and that the Jews were burning the camp, as evident from the smoke over the area. [21]When they saw the devastation and noticed Judas' army in the plain ready for battle, they were terrified. [22]They ran away into the land of the Philistines. [23]So Judas went back to plunder the camp. His army took a great amount of gold and silver, cloth that was dyed blue and purple, and great riches. [24]As they returned, they sang hymns and songs of praise to heaven: "God is good, because his mercy endures forever."[25]That day Israel had a great deliverance.

First campaign of Lysias

[26]The foreigners who escaped went and told Lysias about all that had happened. [27]When he heard it, he was perplexed and discouraged. Things hadn't happened to Israel as he had intended, and they hadn't turned out the way that the king commanded. [28]The next year he gathered together sixty thousand select men and five thousand cavalry, intending to subdue the Israelites. [29]They came to Idumea and camped at Beth-zur. Judas, on the other hand, went out to meet them with ten thousand men.

[30]When Judas saw how numerous their army was, he prayed:

Blessed are you, Savior of Israel, who crushed the attack
of the mighty warrior
through the power
of your servant David.
You handed over the camp of the Philistines
to Saul's son Jonathanand
and the man who carried his armor.
[31]So surround this army

by the power of your people Israel, and let them be disappointed
by their troops and cavalry.
32Fill them with cowardice.
Melt away the boldness
of their strength.
Let them quake in their destruction.
33Strike them down with the sword of those who love you,
and let all who know your name praise you with hymns.

34Then both sides attacked each other. Five thousand men from Lysias' army died in the fighting. 35Lysias saw his troops being defeated and took note of the boldness that inspired Judas' troops--how ready they were to live or die bravely. So he withdrew to Antioch and enlisted mercenaries so that he could invade Judea again with an even bigger army.

Cleansing and dedication of the temple

36At that time Judas and his brothers said, "Look, our enemies have been crushed. Let's go up to cleanse and rededicate the sanctuary."37All the army gathered together and went up to Mount Zion. 38They found the sanctuary deserted, the altar treated with disrespect, and the gates burned. In the courts, bushes had sprung up like in an open field or on one of the mountains. They saw that the priests' chambers were in ruins as well. 39So they tore their clothes and mourned with great sorrow. They sprinkled their heads with ashes 40and fell facedown on the ground. When the trumpets sounded a signal, they cried out to heaven.

41Then Judas chose some soldiers to fight against those stationed in the elevated fortress until he completed cleansing the sanctuary. 42He selected priests who were blameless and devoted to the Law. 43They cleansed the sanctuary and took the polluted stones to a ritually unclean place. 44They discussed what to do about the altar for entirely burned offerings, since it had been polluted. 45They decided it was best to tear it down so that it wouldn't be a lasting shameful reminder to them that the Gentiles had defiled it. So they tore down the altar. [46]They stored the stones in a convenient place on the temple mount until a prophet should arise who could say what to do with them. [47]They then took unfinished stones, in keeping with the Law, and built a new altar like the former one.

[48]They also restored the sanctuary and the temple interior, and dedicated the courtyards. [49]They fashioned new holy equipment and brought the lampstand, the incense altar, and the table into the temple. [50]Then they offered incense on the altar and lit the lamps on the lampstand, which illuminated the temple. [51]They placed bread on the table and hung curtains. Finally, they completed all the work that they had started.

[52]They rose early in the morning of the twenty-fifth day of the ninth month, the month of Kislev.[o] It was the year 148. [53]They offered sacrifice, following the Law, on the new altar for entirely burned offerings that they had made. [54]In the very season, on the exact day that the Gentiles had polluted it, it was dedicated with songs, harps, lutes, and cymbals. [55]All the people bowed to the ground and worshipped and blessed heaven, which had given them success.

[56]So they celebrated the rededication of the altar for eight days and joyfully made entirely burned offerings. They offered a sacrifice of deliverance and praise. [57]They decorated the front of the temple with gold crowns and small shields. They restored the gates and the priests' chambers, furnishing them with doors. [58]The people were extremely glad, and the disgrace the Gentiles brought was lifted.

[59]Then Judas, with his brothers and all the assembly of Israel, laid down a law that every year at that season the dedication of the altar should be observed with joy and happiness for eight days, beginning with the twenty-fifth day of Kislev.[p]

[60]At that same time the Israelites built high walls and strong towers all around Mount Zion so that the Gentiles did not come and trample them as they had done previously. [61]Judas stationed an occupying force there as guards. He also built up Beth-zur to protect it so that the people might have a fortress that faced in the direction of Idumea.

Wars with neighboring peoples

1Maccabees 5 When the Gentiles living nearby learned that the altar had been rebuilt and the sanctuary had been dedicated just as it was before, they became very angry. [2]They sought to wipe out Jacob's descendants who lived among them. So they started to kill and destroy the people.

[3]But Judas waged war on the descendants of Esau in Idumea at Akrabattene because they kept ambushing Israelites. He dealt them a heavy blow, humbling them and taking their goods. [4]He also took note of the wickedness of Baean's sons, who were trapping, catching, and ambushing people on the highways. [5]Judas shut them up in their towers. He camped against them, and by promising their complete destruction, he burned their towers and all who were in them. [6]Then he moved against the Ammonites. He found a strong group with many people and a man named Timothy as their leader. [7]Judas had many battles with them, beat them severely, and struck them down. [8]He also captured Jazer and its villages. Then he went back to Judea.

Liberation of Galilean Jews

[9]Then the Gentiles in Gilead gathered together against the Israelites who lived in their territory, planning to destroy them. So the Jews fled to the fortress of Dathema. [10]They sent a letter to Judas and his brothers:

> The Gentiles around us have gathered to destroy us. [11]They are making preparations to come and capture the fortress to which we've escaped, and Timothy is leading them. [12]Please, come and rescue us from them because many of us have died already. [13]Our people who were in the land of Tob have been killed. The enemy captured their wives, children, and goods. They killed nearly a thousand people there.

[14]While the letter was still being read, other messengers from Galilee, with torn clothing, said similar things. [15]They related that the people of Ptolemais, Tyre, Sidon, and all Galilee of the Gentiles had gathered together "to annihilate us."[16]When Judas and the people heard all this, a great assembly was called to decide what they should do to assist their people who were in distress and were being attacked by enemies. [17]Then Judas said to Simon his brother: "Choose your men and go rescue your people in Galilee. My brother Jonathan and I will go to Gilead."[18]He left Joseph, Zechariah's son, and Azariah, a leader of the people, with the rest of the forces in Judea to guard it. [19]He commanded them, "Take charge of this people, but don't engage in battle with the Gentiles before we return."[20]Three thousand men were assigned to Simon to go to Galilee, and eight thousand were to go with Judas to Gilead.

[21]So Simon went to Galilee, fought several battles with the Gentiles, and crushed them. [22]He pursued them to the gate of Ptolemais. As many as three thousand Gentiles died, and he plundered their possessions. [23]Then he took the Jews of Galilee and Arbatta, together with their wives and children and all they owned, and led them to Judea with great rejoicing.

Judas and Jonathan in Gilead

[24]Judas Maccabeus and his brother Jonathan crossed the Jordan and traveled for three days into the wilderness. [25]They encountered the Nabateans, who greeted them in peace and related all that had happened to their people in Gilead: [26]"Many of them have been cornered inside Bozrah and Bosor, in Alema and Chaspho, in Maked and Carnaim." These were strong and large towns. [27]"Some have been confined in other towns in Gilead. The enemy is getting ready to attack the fortresses tomorrow. They intend to capture and destroy all these people in a single day."

[28]So Judas and his army turned back quickly to Bozrah by the wilderness road. He took the town and killed every male by the sword. He seized all their goods and burned down the town. [29]He left there by night and went all the way to the fortress. [30]At daybreak they looked around and saw a large company, too many to count, carrying ladders and war engines to use to capture the fortress. They were attacking those inside. [31]So Judas saw that the battle had already begun and that the cries of the townspeople went up to heaven. There were trumpet blasts and loud shouts. [32]He said to his forces: "Fight today for your people!"[33]He came up behind them in three companies. They sounded their trumpets and cried out in prayer. [34]When Timothy's army realized that it was Maccabeus, they ran away. But Judas dealt them a heavy blow. As many as eight thousand of the enemy died that day.

[35]Judas turned next to Maapha. He fought against it and took it. He killed every male in it, plundered it, and burned it with fire. [36]After that he marched ahead and took Chaspho, Maked, Bosor, and the other towns of Gilead.

[37]Following this, Timothy assembled another army and encamped opposite Raphon, on the other side of the stream. [38]Judas sent spies to observe the camp, and they reported: "All the Gentiles around us have gone over to him--it's a very large force. [39]They have also hired Arabs to help them. They're camped across the stream, and they're ready to come and fight against you." So Judas went out to meet them.

[40]As Judas and his army were drawing near to the stream of water, Timothy told the officers of his forces, "If Judas crosses the water first, we won't be able to resist him, and he'll surely defeat us. [41]But if he hesitates out of fear and camps on the other side of the river, then we'll cross over and defeat him."

[42]When Judas came to the stream of water, he stationed the scribes of the people there and issued this command: "Don't let anyone start to make camp. Instead, force them all to enter the battle."[43]He then crossed over against them first, and the whole army followed him. All the Gentiles were defeated. They threw down their weapons and ran away into the sacred grounds at Carnaim. [44]But Judas took the town and burned the sacred grounds with fire, together with all who were hiding there. Even Carnaim was conquered, and they couldn't oppose Judas any longer.

Return to Jerusalem

[45]Then Judas gathered all the Israelites in Gilead to go to the land of Judah. It was a very large group, both small and great, with all their wives, children, and goods. [46]They came to Ephron, a large and secure town along the way. They couldn't go around it on either side. They had to go through it. [47]But the townspeople shut them out and blocked up the gates with rocks.

[48]Judas sent them a peaceful message: "Let us pass through your land to get to ours. We won't do you any harm. We'll just pass through by foot." But they still refused to open to him. [49]So Judas ordered that the army camp wherever they were, [50]and the forces did so. All that day and night he fought against the town, and it was handed over to him. [51]He killed every male by the edge of the sword, and he demolished and plundered the town. Then he passed through it, walking over the dead bodies.

52After that they crossed the Jordan and came into the large plain in front of Beth-shan. 53Judas kept rallying those who fell behind and encouraged the people all along the way until he came to the land of Judah. 54They went up to Mount Zion with joy and gladness. They made entirely burned offerings, because they had returned safely. Not one of them had died.

Joseph and Azariah defeated

55Now this is what happened while Judas and Jonathan were in Gilead and their brother Simon was in Galilee in front of Ptolemais. 56Joseph, Zechariah's son, and Azariah (the commanders of the forces that had remained behind) heard about their brave deeds and the war they had fought. 57So they said, "Let's make a name for ourselves too. Let's go and make war on the Gentiles around us."58They gave orders to the troops who were with them and marched against Jamnia. 59Gorgias and his troops came out from the town to engage them in battle. 60Joseph and Azariah were decisively defeated, and they were pursued to the borders of Judea. As many as two thousand Israelites died that day. 61As a result, the people of Israel suffered a great defeat because, wanting to do a brave thing, they didn't obey Judas and his brothers. 62Furthermore, they didn't belong to the family of those men through whom deliverance was given to Israel.

63All Israel and all the Gentiles greatly esteemed Judas and his brothers, wherever their name was heard. 64People gathered to them and praised them.

Success at Hebron and Philistia

65At that time, Judas and his brothers headed out and fought Esau's descendants in the land to the south. He struck Hebron and its villages, tore down its fortress, and burned its towers all around. 66He then set out to enter the land of the Philistines and passed through Marisa. 67That day some priests who wished to do a brave deed died in battle because they had gone out to battle unwisely. 68But Judas turned aside to Azotus in the land of the Philistines. Judas tore down their altars, and he burned the carved images of their gods with fire.
He plundered the towns and returned to Judah.

Last days of Antiochus Epiphanes

1Maccabees 6 King Antiochus was traveling through the upper provinces when he heard that Elymais, a city in Persia, was famous for its great quantities of silver and gold. 2 Its temple was very rich and contained gold shields, breastplates, and weapons that Alexander (the son of Philip, the first Macedonian king to rule over the Greeks) left there. 3 So he went and tried to take the city by force and plunder it. But he was unsuccessful because the city's inhabitants knew about his plan. 4 They resisted him in battle, and he fled. With great disappointment, he planned to return to Babylon.

5 While King Antiochus was in Persia, someone came to him and reported that the armies that had gone into the land of Judah had been thoroughly defeated.
6 Lysias, who had gone first with a strong force, had turned and run from the Jews. The Jews then grew stronger when they took weapons, supplies, and abundant spoils from the armies they defeated. 7 They had taken down the disgusting thing that he had set up on the altar in Jerusalem. Furthermore, they had surrounded the sanctuary and also Lysias' town Beth-zur with high walls like before.

8 When the king heard this news, he was stunned and badly shaken. He took to his bed, sick from grief. Things hadn't turned out for him as he had planned. 9 He lay there for many days because he was deeply depressed. He realized that he was dying. 10 He called his closest political advisors[q] and said to them, "Sleep has left my eyes. I'm depressed from worrying. 11 I say to myself, What distress I've come to! What a great flood I've now been plunged into! Once I was kind and was loved in my power. 12 But now I recall the wrongs I did in Jerusalem. I seized all its silver and gold equipment. I ordered the destruction of the inhabitants of Judah without good reason. 13 I know it's because of all this that these misfortunes have come on me. I'm here, dying of bitter disappointment, in a foreign land."

14 Then he called for one of his advisors named Philip and made him ruler over all of his kingdom. 15 He gave him the crown, his robe, and the seal so that he might guide his son Antiochus and prepare him to be king. 16 Then King Antiochus died there in the year 149. 17 When Lysias found out that the king had died, he arranged for the king's son Antiochus, whom he had brought up from childhood, to rule. Lysias named him Eupator.

Renewed attacks from Syria

18 Meanwhile, the inhabitants of the elevated fortress kept surrounding the Israelites in the sanctuary. They were trying every way they could to harm them and strengthen the Gentiles. 19 Judas decided to destroy them. He brought all the people together to besiege them. 20 They assembled together, built siege towers and other war engines, and attacked the Gentiles in the year 150. 21 However, some of the enemy forces escaped from the blockade, joined by a number of sinful Israelites. 22 They went to the king and said: "How long will you hold back from acting justly to avenge our people? 23 We happily served your father. We did what he said, obeying his commands. 24 Because of this, some of our people have laid siege to the citadel and are hostile to us. Furthermore, they've killed as many of us as they could catch. Now they've taken our wealth. 25 Judas and his forces haven't lifted their hands against us alone. They've also attacked all the neighboring lands. 26 Look, today they've camped against the elevated fortress in Jerusalem to capture it. They've fortified both the sanctuary and Beth-zur.
27 Unless you do something soon to prevent them, they'll do even worse things.
Then you won't be able to stop them."

28 The king was enraged when he heard this. He gathered all his chief political advisors,[r] the commanders of his troops, and those with authority. 29 Mercenary forces from other kingdoms and the Mediterranean islands also joined him.
30 The total number of his forces was one hundred thousand army troops and twenty thousand cavalry, with thirty-two elephants trained for war. 31 They came through Idumea and camped against Beth-zur. For many days, they fought and constructed war engines. But the Jews would go out and burn the war engines with fire and continued to fight bravely.

Battle at Beth-zechariah

32 Then Judas marched away from the elevated fortress and camped at Bethzechariah, opposite the king's camp. 33 Early in the morning the king marched out, taking his army on a forced march along the road to Beth-zechariah. His troops readied themselves for battle, and they sounded their trumpets. 34 They aroused the elephants using grape and mulberry juices, to get them ready for battle. [35]They distributed the animals among groups of soldiers. With each elephant, they stationed one thousand infantry wearing armor and brass helmets. Five hundred select cavalry were also assigned to each animal. [36]The troops positioned themselves wherever the animal was. Wherever it went, they went; and they never left it. [37]Strong covered wooden towers were set on top of the elephants. Special harnesses were fastened on each animal. On each were four armed men who fought from there, and an Indian driver also. [38]The remaining cavalry were stationed on either side of the elephants, to harass the enemy while being protected inside the two flanks of the army. [39]When the sun shone on the gold and brass shields, the hills looked like they were on fire from their reflection and glowed like burning torches.

[40]Part of the king's army was spread out on the high hills, and some troops were on the plain. They held their ranks and steadily moved forward. [41]Everyone who heard the noise of marching feet and clanking arms trembled because the army was very large and powerful. [42]Nevertheless, Judas and his army went forth to do battle. Six hundred of the king's soldiers died. [43]Eleazar, called Avaran, saw that one of the animals was taller than all the others and was equipped with royal armor. He figured that the king must be on it. [44]So he gave his life to save his people and to secure an everlasting name for himself. [45]He ran courageously into the midst of a group of soldiers to reach it, killing men right and left so that they had to give way to him on both sides. [46]He got under the elephant and stabbed it from underneath. He killed it, but it fell to the ground on top of him, and he died there. [47]As the Jews experienced the might and the fierce attack of the king's forces, they turned away and fled.

Siege of the temple

[48]The king's army went up to Jerusalem against them. The king camped in Judea and at Mount Zion. [49]He made peace with the people of Beth-zur. They evacuated the town because they lacked sufficient resources there to withstand a siege (it was a sabbatical year for the land). [50]So the king took Beth-zur and positioned a guard unit there to hold it. [51]Then he camped in front of the sanctuary for many days. He set up siege towers, war engines that threw fire and rocks, machines to shoot darts, and catapults. [52]The Jews made war engines to match theirs, and they battled for many days. [53]But they had no food in storage since it was the seventh year. Those people who had found safe haven in Judea from the Gentiles had eaten the last of the food. [54]Only a few people remained in the sanctuary. The famine was so intense that the others had scattered to their own homes.

Syria offers terms

[55]Then Lysias heard that King Antiochus, before he died, had appointed Philip to bring up Antiochus his son to be king. [56]Philip had returned from Persia and Media with the forces that had gone with the king, and he was trying to seize control of the government. [57]So Lysias quickly gave orders to withdraw and told the king, the commanders of the forces, and the troops, "We're growing weaker every day because our food supply is scarce. The place we're fighting against is strong, and the affairs of the kingdom are pressing urgently on us. [58]Let's come to terms now with these people and make peace with them and their nation. [59]Let's agree to let them live by their laws like they used to do. It was because of their laws, which we abolished, that they got angry and did all these things."

[60]This speech pleased the king and the commanders, so he sent the Jews an offer of peace, which they accepted. [61]The king and his commanders gave their word, so the Jews left the fortress. [62]However, when the king went into Mount Zion and saw how securely the place was built, he went back on his word and ordered that the wall be torn down all around. [63]Then he set off in a hurry to return to Antioch. He found that Philip was in control of the city, so he fought against him and took the city by force.

Expedition of Bacchides and Alcimus

1Maccabees 7 In the year 151,[s] Demetrius the son of Seleucus set out from Rome. He sailed with a small group to a town by the sea and claimed the kingship there. [2]As he entered the royal palace of his ancestors, the army seized Antiochus and Lysias, intending to bring them to him. [3]But when he learned about this act, he said, "Don't let me see their faces!"[4]So the soldiers killed them. Demetrius then took his seat on the throne of the kingdom.

[5]All the immoral and sinful Israelites came to him. Alcimus, who wanted to be high priest, led them. [6]They made an accusation to King Demetrius against the people, "Judas and his brothers have destroyed all your political advisors[t] and have driven us out of our land. [7]Now send someone that you trust to go and see all the ruin that Judas has brought on us and on the king's land. Let that person punish them and all who help them."

[8]The king selected Bacchides, one of the king's chief political advisors and governor of the province called Beyond the River. He was a powerful man in the kingdom and was loyal to the king. [9]The king sent him and sent the wicked Alcimus along with him. He made Alcimus high priest and authorized him to take vengeance on the Israelites. [10]So they marched forward and came with a large force into the land of Judah. Bacchides sent messengers to Judas and his brothers using peaceful but deceitful words. [11]But they ignored the messengers because they saw that they had come with a large military force.

[12]Then a group of legal experts came before Alcimus and Bacchides to ask for just terms. [13]The Hasideans were the first among the Israelites to seek peace with them. [14]They said, "A priest who is descended from Aaron has come with the army, and he won't harm us."

[15]Alcimus spoke peaceably to them and made a pledge to them: "We won't seek to injure you or your friends."[16]So they trusted him. But he seized sixty of them and killed them in one day. This was in keeping with the written word:

[17]The flesh of your faithful ones…
and their blood they poured out
all around Jerusalem;
there was no one to bury them.[u]

[18]Then fear and dread came over all the people. They said, "They are not truthful or just, because they broke the promise they made."

[19]Bacchides retreated from Jerusalem and camped in Beth-zaith. He captured many of the soldiers and some of the people who had deserted to his side. He killed them and threw them into a great pit. [20]He put Alcimus in charge of the country and left a force to assist him. Then Bacchides went back to the king.

[21]Alcimus struggled to maintain the high priesthood. [22]All the troublemakers joined him. They gained control of Judah and did great damage in Israel. [23]Judas saw all the wrongs that Alcimus and those with him had done among the Israelites, exceeding what the Gentiles had done. [24]So Judas went into the surrounding Judean highlands and took vengeance on those who had deserted. He prevented them from going out into the country. [25]When Alcimus saw that Judas and his companions had grown strong, he knew he couldn't resist them. So he returned to the king and brought spiteful charges against them.

Nicanor in Judea

[26]Then the king sent for Nicanor, one of his honored princes who hated and despised Israel, and the king commanded him to destroy the people. [27]So Nicanor went to Jerusalem with a large force. He deceitfully sent a peaceful message to Judas and his brothers: [28]"Let there be no fighting between you and me. I'll come with a few men to see you personally in peace."

[29]So he came to Judas, and they greeted each other peaceably. But the enemy was preparing to kidnap Judas. [30]Judas found out that Nicanor had come to him with treacherous intentions. He was afraid of him and wouldn't meet with Nicanor again. [31]When Nicanor learned that his plan had been discovered, he went out to meet Judas in battle near Caphar-salama. [32]About five hundred of Nicanor's soldiers died. The rest fled into David's City.

Nicanor threatens the temple

[33]After these events, Nicanor went up to Mount Zion. Some priests from the sanctuary and some of the elders of the people came out to greet him peacefully. They pointed out to him the entirely burned offering that was being offered on behalf of the king. [34]But he mocked, ridiculed, and defiled them, and spoke in an arrogant way. [35]Angrily, he swore, "Unless Judas and his army are handed over to me this time, I will burn down this house if I return safely in the future." And he departed in great fury.

[36]Then the priests went inside and stood before the altar and the temple. They wept out loud and said:

[37]You, heavenly one, chose this house to be called by your name and to be a house of prayer and petition for your people.

[38]Take vengeance on this man and on his army!
Make them die by the sword.
Remember their evil slander.
Don't let them live any longer.

Death of Nicanor

[39]Now Nicanor, along with the Syrian army, left Jerusalem and camped in Beth-horon. [40]Judas camped in Adasa with three thousand men. Then Judas prayed:

[41]When the messengers from the king of the Assyrians insulted us with words, your angel went out and struck down one hundred eighty-five thousand.
[42]So crush this army before us today.
Let the rest learn
that he has spoken against your sanctuary in an evil way, and judge him for this wickedness.

[43]So the armies met in battle on the thirteenth day of the month of Adar.[v] Nicanor's army was crushed, and he himself was the first to die in the battle. [44]When his army saw that Nicanor had died, they threw down their weapons and fled. [45]The Jews pursued them a day's journey, from Adasa to Gazara. As they followed them, they kept blasting the battle call on the trumpets. [46]People came out of the surrounding Judean villages. They outflanked the enemy and drove them back toward their pursuers so that they all died by the sword. Not a single one of them was left alive. [47]Then the Jews seized the spoils and the goods left behind. They cut off Nicanor's head and his right hand, which he had arrogantly stretched out. They brought them and displayed them just outside Jerusalem. [48]The people rejoiced greatly and celebrated that day as a day of great happiness. [49]They established this day as a day of annual celebration on the thirteenth day of Adar.[w] [50]And the land of Judah enjoyed peace for a while.

Praise for the Romans

1Maccabees 8 Now Judas heard about the Romans' reputation for being strong and loyal to all who made an alliance with them. They pledged friendship to those who came to them. 2 They were very powerful. Judas had been told of their wars and of the brave deeds that they were doing among the Gauls--how they had defeated them and forced them to pay tribute. 3 He was told what they had done in Spain to get control of the silver and gold mines there. 4 They gained control over the entire region through their planning and patience, even though the place was a great distance from them. They also subdued the kings from the ends of the earth who fought against them, until they crushed them and inflicted heavy casualties on them. The rest paid annual fines to them. 5 They crushed in battle and conquered Philip and King Perseus of the Macedonians,[x] as well as others who rose up against them. 6 They also defeated Antiochus the Great, king of Asia, who went to fight against them with one hundred twenty elephants, with cavalry, chariots, and a very large army. They crushed him, 7 but they took him alive. They declared that he, and those who succeeded him, should pay a heavy fine and turn over hostages as well as some of their best territories. 8 These included the countries of India, Media, and Lydia. They took them from Antiochus and gave them to King Eumenes.

9 The Greeks thought about coming to destroy them. 10 But the Romans became aware of this, so they sent a general against the Greeks and attacked them. Many Greeks were wounded and died. The Romans took their wives and children captive. They plundered them, conquered their land, tore down their fortresses, and enslaved them to this day. 11 They destroyed and enslaved many of the remaining kingdoms and islands that opposed them. 12 But the Romans have kept friendship with their allies and those who rely on them. They have subdued kings far and near, and as many as have heard of their reputation have feared them. 13 Those whom they wish to help come to power, they make kings.
Those whom they wish, they bring down. The Romans have been greatly exalted. 14 Yet even with all this, not one of them has put on a crown or worn purple as a mark of pride. 15 Instead, they built for themselves a senate chamber.
Daily, three hundred twenty senators plan constantly concerning their people in order to govern them well. 16 They trust one man each year to rule over them and to control all their land. All listen to this one man, and there is no envy or jealousy among the Romans.

An alliance with Rome

17So Judas chose Eupolemus son of John and grandson of Accos, and also Jason, Eleazar's son. He sent them to Rome to establish friendship, alliance, 18and also to free the Jewish people from oppression. They observed that the Greek kingdom was completely enslaving Israel.

19They took the long journey to Rome. They entered the senate chamber, and they spoke: 20"Judas, called Maccabeus, along with his brothers and the Jewish people, has sent us to you to establish alliance and peace with you. We seek to be enrolled as your allies and friends."21This proposal pleased the Romans. 22This is a copy of the letter that they wrote in reply on bronze tablets, which they sent to Jerusalem to remain with them there as a memorial of peace and alliance:

> 23May all go well with the Romans and with the nation of the Jews at > sea and on land forever. May sword and enemy stay away from them. 24If > war comes first to Rome or to any of their allies throughout their territory, > 25the Jewish nation should act as their allies wholeheartedly, as the > occasion may indicate to them. 26They will not give or supply grain, > weapons, money, or ships to an enemy that makes war on them. This is > Rome's decision. And they will keep their obligations without > compensation. 27In the same way, if war comes first to the nation of the > Jews, the Romans will willingly act as their allies, as the occasion may > indicate to them. 28They will not give to their enemies any grain, weapons, > money, or ships, just as Rome has decided. And they will keep these > obligations and do so without deceit. 29On these terms, the Romans make a > treaty with the Jewish people. 30If after these terms are in effect and either > party determines to add or delete anything, they will do so at their > discretion. Any addition or deletion that they may make will be valid.
>
> 31Regarding the bad things that King Demetrius is doing to them, we > have written to him, "Why have you made your yoke so heavy on our > friends and allies the Jews?32If they appeal now again for help against you, > we will defend their rights and fight you on both sea and land."

Bacchides returns to Judea

1Maccabees 9 When Demetrius heard that Nicanor and his army had been defeated in battle, he sent Bacchides and Alcimus into the land of Judah a second time. The right wing of the army was with them. 2 They went by the road that leads to Gilgal[y] and prepared for battle against Mesaloth in Arbela. They captured it and killed many people. 3 In the first month[z] of the year 152,[a] they camped against Jerusalem. 4 Then they marched off and went to Berea with twenty thousand infantry and two thousand cavalry.

5 Now Judas was camped at Elasa with three thousand handpicked soldiers.
6 When they saw the huge number of enemy forces, they became afraid. Many of them slipped away from the camp, until no more than eight hundred of them remained.

7 When Judas saw that members of his army had slipped away and the battle was coming close, he was dejected because he had no time to assemble more troops. 8 He felt weak, but he said to those who stayed, "Let's get up and move against our enemies. We may be able to fight them."

9 They tried to change his mind: "We don't have the strength. Let's save ourselves now and come back later with our people to fight them. We are too few."

10 But Judas replied, "Don't even consider running from them. If our time has come, then let's die bravely for our people. Let's leave no reason to question our honor."

Final battle of Judas

11 Then the enemy army marched out from the camp and took its positions to fight. The cavalry was divided into two companies. The slingers and the archers went ahead of the army, as did all the best warriors. 12 Bacchides was on the right wing. Flanked by the two companies, the military force advanced to the sound of the trumpets. Those with Judas also blew their trumpets. 13 The earth shook from the noise of the armies. And the battle raged from morning till evening.

14 Judas saw that Bacchides and the strength of his army were on the right.
Then Judas' most courageous soldiers went with him. 15 They crushed the right wing and pursued them as far as Mount Azotus. [16]When those on the left wing saw that the right wing had been crushed, they turned and followed close behind Judas and his men. [17]The battle became frantic, and many on both sides were wounded and died. [18]Judas himself died, and the rest fled.

[19]Then Jonathan and Simon took their brother Judas, buried him in their ancestral tomb at Modein, [20]and wept for him. All Israel expressed deep sorrow for him and mourned for many days. They said, [21]"What a mighty one has fallen, saving Israel!"[22]Now the rest of Judas' achievements--his wars, the brave things that he did, his greatness--haven't been recorded, but they were many.

Jonathan succeeds Judas

[23]After Judas' death, renegades appeared throughout Israel. All the immoral people reappeared. [24]There was also a very great famine at that time, and the country went over to the enemy's side. [25]Bacchides chose the godless and put them in charge of the country. [26]They hunted down Judas' friends and brought them to Bacchides. He took vengeance on them and treated them terribly. [27]So there was great distress in Israel, the worst since the time when prophets ceased to appear among them.

[28]Then the other friends of Judas assembled and said to Jonathan, [29]"Since your brother Judas died, there hasn't been anyone like him to fight against our enemies and Bacchides, and to deal with those among our people who hate us. [30]So we've chosen you today to take his place as our ruler and leader to fight our battle."[31]Jonathan accepted the leadership at that time in place of his brother Judas.

Campaigns of Jonathan

[32]When Bacchides learned about this development, he tried to kill Jonathan. [33]But Jonathan, his brother Simon, and all those with him heard about it and fled into the Tekoa wilderness. They camped beside the water of the pool of Asphar. [34]Bacchides found out about this on a Sabbath day, and he and his army crossed the Jordan River.

[35]Jonathan sent his brother John, as leader of a large contingent, to beg his friends the Nabateans for permission to store with them the large amount of baggage that they had. [36]But the family of Jambri from Medeba came out and captured John and everything he had. And they left with it.

[37]After this Jonathan and his brother Simon were told, "The family of Jambri is celebrating a great wedding. They are bringing the bride, a daughter of one of the great officials of Canaan, from Nadabath with a large escort."[38]Remembering how their brother John had been killed, they went out and hid under cover of the mountain. [39]They looked out and saw a rowdy procession with a large amount of baggage. The bridegroom came out with his friends and his brothers to meet them with tambourines, musicians, and many weapons. [40]Then those who were with Jonathan ambushed them and began killing them. They wounded and killed many. The rest fled to the mountain, and the Jews took all their goods. [41]So the wedding turned into mourning, and the sound of their musicians into a funeral hymn. [42]After they had fully avenged their brother's death, they returned to the marshes of the Jordan.

[43]When Bacchides heard about this, he came with a large force to the banks of the Jordan on the Sabbath. [44]Jonathan said to his companions, "Let's get up now and fight for our lives. Today things are not like they were before. [45]Look! The battle is in front of us and behind us. The water of the Jordan is on this side and on that, with marsh and thicket. There's no place to turn. [46]Cry out now to heaven so that you may be rescued from our enemies."[47]So the battle began. Jonathan reached out his hand to strike Bacchides, but he escaped and went to the rear. [48]Then Jonathan and his forces jumped into the Jordan and swam to the other side. The enemy didn't cross the Jordan to attack them. [49]About one thousand of Bacchides' soldiers died that day.

Bacchides builds fortifications

[50]Then Bacchides returned to Jerusalem and built strong cities in Judea: the fortress in Jericho, Emmaus, Beth-horon, Bethel, Timnath, Pharathon, and Tephon, all with high walls and gates and bars. [51]He placed soldiers in each of them to harass Israel. [52]He also fortified Beth-zur, Gazara, and the elevated fortress. He put soldiers and stores of food in them. [53]He took hostage the sons of the leading citizens and put them under guard in the elevated fortress at Jerusalem.

54In the second month of the year 153,[b] Alcimus gave orders to tear down the wall of the inner court of the sanctuary--to tear down the work of the prophets.
But he only initiated the project. 55Right at that moment Alcimus had a stroke, and his work was stalled. He was paralyzed and couldn't speak or give commands concerning his house. 56Alcimus died a painful death shortly thereafter. 57When Bacchides saw that Alcimus was dead, he returned to the king. The land of Judah was quiet for two years.

End of the war

58Then all the people who did not live by the Law developed a plan and said, "Look! Jonathan and his people are living in quiet and confidence. Now let's bring Bacchides back--he'll capture them all in one night."59They went and talked it over with him. 60He came with a large military force. Secretly, he sent letters to all his allies in Judea. He told them to seize Jonathan and his followers.
But they weren't able to do it because their plan was discovered. 61Instead, Jonathan's followers captured approximately fifty people who were leaders in this treachery and killed them.

62Then Jonathan, his followers, and Simon withdrew to Bethbasi in the wilderness. He rebuilt the parts of it that had been demolished and fortified it.
63When Bacchides found out about this, he assembled all his forces and gave orders to the Judeans. 64Then he came and camped against Bethbasi. He made war machines and fought against it for many days.

65But Jonathan left his brother Simon in the town while he went out into the country. He took only a few men and 66struck down Odomera and his people, as well as the people of Phasiron in their tents. Then he began to attack and went into battle with his forces. 67Simon and his group left the town and set fire to the war machines. 68They fought Bacchides, and he was crushed by them. They put so much pressure on him that his plan and invasion came to nothing. 69So he was very angry at the renegade Jews who had advised him to return to the country.
He killed many of them before he decided to go back to his own land.

70When Jonathan learned about this, he sent ambassadors to make peace with him and to gain release of captives. 71Bacchides agreed and kept his word. He swore to Jonathan that he wouldn't try to harm him for the rest of his life. 72He returned the captives he had taken previously from the land of Judah. Then he turned and went back to his own land and didn't come again into their territory. [73]So war had ended for Israel. Jonathan settled in Michmash and began to govern the people. He destroyed the godless who were in Israel.

Revolt of Alexander Epiphanes

1Maccabees 10 In the year 160,[c] Alexander Epiphanes, Antiochus' son, landed and occupied Ptolemais. They welcomed him there, and he began to rule.

[2]When King Demetrius heard about it, he assembled a very large army. He marched out to meet Alexander in battle. [3]Demetrius sent a friendly letter to Jonathan to honor him. [4]Demetrius thought to himself, We should make peace with Jonathan before he aligns with Alexander against us. [5]If we don't do so, he will recall all the wrongs that we did to him, his brothers, and his nation.

[6]So Demetrius gave Jonathan authority to recruit troops, to arm them, and to become his ally. He ordered that the hostages in the elevated fortress be released to Jonathan.

[7]Then Jonathan came to Jerusalem and read the letter in front of all the people and those inside the elevated fortress. [8]These people were very concerned when they heard that the king had given him authority to recruit troops. [9]The inhabitants in the elevated fortress released the hostages to Jonathan, and he returned them to their parents.

[10]Jonathan took up residence in Jerusalem and began to rebuild and restore the city. [11]He directed the workers to build the walls and encircle Mount Zion with squared stones for better reinforcement, which they did.

[12]Then from the fortress that Bacchides had built, the foreigners fled. [13]All of them left their places and returned to their own lands. [14]Only in Beth-zur did some Jews remain who had neglected the Law and the commandments, because Beth-zur was a place of refuge.

Jonathan becomes high priest

[15]Now King Alexander heard about all the promises that Demetrius made to Jonathan. He also heard about the battles that Jonathan and his brothers had fought, the brave deeds they had done, and the troubles they had endured. [16]He said to himself, Will we find another man like this? We should make him our friend and ally. [17]So he wrote a letter to Jonathan:

[18]King Alexander to his brother Jonathan. Greetings!
[19]We have heard about you--that you are a mighty warrior and worthy to be our friend. [20]So we have appointed you today to be the high priest of your nation. You are to be named the king's political advisor.[d] You should take our side and keep friendship with us.

He sent also a purple robe and a gold crown.

[21]So Jonathan put on the sacred garments in the seventh month of the year 160[e] at the Festival of Booths. He recruited troops and equipped them with abundant weapons.

Demetrius' letter to Jonathan

[22]When Demetrius heard about these things he was distressed. He said, [23]"What have we done? Alexander has moved more quickly in forming a friendship with the Jews to strengthen himself. [24]I'll also write them words of encouragement and promise them honor and gifts so that I may gain their help."[25]So he sent a message to them:

King Demetrius to the nation of the Jews. Greetings!

[26]We have heard and rejoice that you have kept your agreement and have continued your friendship with us, and have not sided with our enemies. [27]Now continue to keep faith with us, and we will repay you in kind according to the good you do for us. [28]We will grant you many exemptions and give you gifts.

[29]I now free you and excuse all the Jews from payment of tribute as well as salt and royal taxes. [30]Instead of collecting a third of the grain and half of the fruit of the trees as I should, I release you from payment from now on. I will not collect them from the land of Judah or from the three districts added to it from Samaria and Galilee, from this day on and for all time. [31]Jerusalem and its surroundings, its tenth-part gifts and its revenues, will be holy and free from tax.

[32]I will also give up my control of the elevated fortress in Jerusalem and give it to the high priest. He may station people of his own choice to guard it. [33]I set free, without payment, all of the Jews who have been taken captive from Judah into any part of my kingdom. Furthermore, let all officials also cancel taxes on their livestock.

[34]All the festivals will be days of immunity and release for all the Jews who are in my kingdom, including sabbaths, new moons, appointed days, and the three days before and after a festival. [35]No one will have authority to demand anything from them or annoy any of them about anything.

[36]Let Jews be enrolled in the king's forces to the number of thirty thousand. And let the privileges be given them that are due to all the forces of the king. [37]Let some of them be stationed in the king's great fortress. Let some of them be placed in trustworthy positions in the kingdom. Let their officers and leaders come from their own people, and let them live by their own laws, just as the king has commanded in the land of Judah.

[38]As for the three districts that have been added to Judea from the country of Samaria, let them be annexed to Judea so that they may be considered under one ruler and obey no other authority than the high priest. [39]I give Ptolemais as a gift and the land adjoining it to the sanctuary in Jerusalem, to provide the necessary expenses of the sanctuary. [40]I also grant fifteen thousand silver shekels annually out of the king's revenues from appropriate places. [41]All the additional funds that the government officials haven't paid as they used to, they will give from now on for the service of the temple. [42]Moreover, the five thousand silver shekels that my officials have received annually from the income of the services of the temple, this too is canceled, because it belongs to the priests who minister there. [43]As for all who have taken refuge on the grounds of the temple in Jerusalem because they owe money to the king or are in debt, they are released from debt and I will restore all their property in my kingdom.

[44]Let the cost of rebuilding and restoring the structures of the sanctuary be paid from the king's revenues. [45]And let the cost of rebuilding the walls of Jerusalem and revitalizing it all round, and the cost of rebuilding the walls in Judea, also be paid from the king's revenues.

Death of Demetrius

[46]When Jonathan and the people heard these words, they didn't believe or accept them. They remembered vividly the great wrongs Demetrius had done in Israel and how much he had oppressed them. [47]They preferred Alexander because he had been the first to speak peaceful words to them. So they remained his allies all of his days.

[48]Now King Alexander assembled large forces and camped opposite Demetrius. [49]The two kings met in battle, and the army of Demetrius fled. Alexander pursued him and outmaneuvered them. [50]He pressed the battle hard until sunset, and on that day Demetrius died.

Treaty of Ptolemy and Alexander

[51]Then Alexander sent ambassadors to Egypt's King Ptolemy, and they delivered the following message:

[52]I have returned to my kingdom and taken my seat on the throne of my ancestors. I have established my rule by crushing Demetrius to gain control of our country. [53]I met him in battle, and we crushed him and his army. I have taken my seat on the throne of his kingdom. [54]Therefore, let us establish friendship with each other. Give me your daughter to be my wife, and I will become your son-in-law. I will give gifts to you and to her in keeping with your position.

[55]Ptolemy the king replied,

Happy was the day on which you returned to the land of your ancestors and took your seat on the throne of their kingdom. [56]Now I will do for you as you wrote, but meet me at Ptolemais so that we may see each other, and I will become your father-in-law, as you have said.

[57]So Ptolemy set out from Egypt--he and his daughter Cleopatra--and came to Ptolemais in the year 162.[f] [58]King Alexander met Ptolemy, who gave him his daughter Cleopatra in marriage. He celebrated her wedding at Ptolemais with much ceremony, as kings do.

[59]King Alexander then wrote to Jonathan to come and meet him. [60]So he went with majestic apparel to Ptolemais and met the two kings. He gave silver and gold and many other gifts to them and their chief political advisors,[g] and he found favor with them. [61]A group of troublemakers from Israel gathered together to slander him, but the king paid no attention to them. [62]Instead, he gave orders to take off Jonathan's garments and to clothe him in purple. And they did so. [63]The king also seated him at his side, and he spoke to his officers: "Go with him into the middle of the city and announce that no one should bring charges against him about any matter. Furthermore, let no one annoy him for any reason."[64]His accusers saw the honor that was paid Jonathan in keeping with the proclamation. They saw him clothed in purple, so they all fled. [65]In this way, the king honored him and enrolled him among his chief political advisors, and made him general and governor of the province. [66]And Jonathan returned to Jerusalem in peace and gladness.

Apollonius is defeated by Jonathan

[67]In the year 165,[h] Demetrius the son of Demetrius came from Crete to the land of his ancestors. [68]When King Alexander heard, he was greatly distressed and returned to Antioch. [69]Demetrius appointed Apollonius the governor of Coele-Syria, who assembled a large force and camped against Jamnia. Then Apollonius sent the following message to the high priest Jonathan:

> [70]You are the only one to oppose us. I have fallen into ridicule and disgrace because of you. Why do you assume authority against us in the highlands? [71]Now if you have confidence in your military forces, come down to the plain to meet us. Let's match strength against strength there, because I have with me the forces of the cities. [72]Discover who I am and who the others are that are helping us, and you will learn that you cannot stand before us. Twice before, your ancestors were forced to flee in their own land. [73]Now you will not be able to stand up against my cavalry and my army in the plain, where there is no stone or pebble, or place to escape.

[74]When Jonathan heard Apollonius' words, a fire was lit under him. He chose ten thousand men and set out from Jerusalem. His brother Simon met him to assist. [75]He camped in front of Joppa. But the people of the city closed its gates because Apollonius had a defense force there. So they fought against it. [76]And the people of the city became frightened and opened the gates. So Jonathan gained possession of Joppa.

[77]When Apollonius heard the news, he assembled three thousand cavalry and a large army. He went to Azotus and acted as if he were going farther. At the same time, he advanced into the plain, because he had a large troop of cavalry and had confidence in it. [78]Jonathan pursued him to Azotus, and their armies engaged in battle. [79]Apollonius had secretly left one thousand cavalry to the rear. [80]Jonathan found out that there was an ambush behind him. They surrounded his army and shot arrows at his soldiers from early in the morning until late in the afternoon. [81]But his soldiers stood steady, as he had commanded. Eventually, the horses of the enemy got tired.

[82]Simon led his force forward and engaged the foreign enemy in battle since the cavalry was exhausted. He overwhelmed them, and they fled. [83]The cavalry was dispersed in the plain. They fled to Azotus and entered Beth-dagon, the temple of their idol, to seek safety. [84]But Jonathan burned Azotus and the surrounding towns and plundered them. He burned down the temple of Dagon and those who had taken refuge in it. [85]The number of those who died, either by the sword or by fire, came to eight thousand.

[87]He and his companions returned to Jerusalem with a large treasure. [88]When King Alexander heard about all this, he honored Jonathan even more. [89]He sent to him a gold buckle, such as is the custom to give to the king's kindred. He also gave him Ekron and all its surroundings as his possession.

Ptolemy invades Syria

1Maccabees 11 Then King Ptolemy of Egypt gathered a great army, numbering like the sand by the seashore, and many ships. He tried to gain possession of Alexander's kingdom by trickery to add it to his own kingdom.

2 Ptolemy set out for Syria, speaking peaceful words. The people of the towns opened their gates to him. They went to meet him because King Alexander had commanded them to do so, since Ptolemy was his father-in-law. 3 But when Ptolemy entered the towns, he stationed forces as a garrison in each one.

4 When he approached Azotus, they showed him that Dagon's temple had been burned. Azotus and its suburbs had been destroyed. Corpses were lying about, the charred bodies of those whom Jonathan had burned in the war. They had piled them in heaps along his route. 5 They also told the king what Jonathan had done, throwing blame on him. But the king kept silent. 6 Jonathan met the king at Joppa with great ceremony. They greeted each other and spent the night there.
7 Jonathan went with the king as far as the Eleutherus River, and then he returned to Jerusalem.

8 So King Ptolemy gained control of the coastal cities as far as Seleucia by the sea. He kept devising evil plans against Alexander. 9 He sent envoys to King Demetrius to say, "Come, let's make an agreement with each other. I'll give you my daughter to marry, Alexander's wife. Then you will rule over your father's kingdom. 10 I now regret having given him my daughter since he tried to kill me."11 He cast blame on Alexander because he desired to take his kingdom. 12 So he took his daughter away from Alexander and gave her to Demetrius. Ptolemy was estranged from Alexander, and their hostility was obvious to all.

13 Then Ptolemy entered Antioch and put on the crown of Asia. Thus he claimed two crowns for his head, those of Asia and Egypt. 14 King Alexander was in Cilicia at the time, because the people of that region were in revolt.

15 When Alexander heard about it, he came against Ptolemy in battle. Ptolemy marched out and met him with a strong force and caused him to retreat. 16 So Alexander fled into Arabia to seek protection there. King Ptolemy was triumphant. 17 Zabdiel the Arab cut off Alexander's head and sent it to Ptolemy.
18 But King Ptolemy died three days later, and his troops in the fortress were killed by the inhabitants of the towns. 19 So Demetrius became king in the year 167.[i]

Jonathan's diplomacy

[20]In those days, Jonathan assembled the Judeans to attack the elevated fortress in Jerusalem. They built many engines of war to use against it. [21]Certain renegades who hated their nation went to King Demetrius and told him that Jonathan was attacking the elevated fortress. [22]When he heard this, he was angry and set out immediately to go to Ptolemais. He sent an order to Jonathan not to continue the attack but to meet him instead for a conference at Ptolemais as soon as possible.

[23]When Jonathan heard this, he gave orders to continue the siege. He chose some of the elders of Israel and some of the priests and put himself in danger [24]because he went to the king at Ptolemais. He took silver and gold as well as clothing and numerous other gifts. Fortunately, he won his favor. [25]Certain renegades from Israel kept making complaints against Jonathan. [26]But the king treated him as those before him had done. He praised Jonathan in the presence of all his chief political advisors.[j] [27]He confirmed him in the high priesthood and in as many other honors as he formerly had. He made him one of his leading political advisors.

Demetrius' letter to Jonathan

[28]So Jonathan asked the king to free Judea and the three Samaritan districts from the payment of taxes. And he promised him 17,100 pounds of silver. [29]The king agreed. He wrote a letter to Jonathan about all these things:

> [30]King Demetrius to his brother Jonathan and to the nation of the Jews. Greetings!
> [31]This is a copy of the letter that we wrote about you to our advisor Lasthenes. We're sending it to you also so that you may know what it says.
> [32]Greetings from King Demetrius to his father Lasthenes. [33]We have decided to treat the nation of the Jews well. They are our friends and keep their obligations to us. They show goodwill toward us. [34]We have confirmed, as their possession, the territory of Judea and the three districts of Aphairema, Lydda, and Rathamin. The latter districts, with the entire region bordering them, were added to Judea from Samaria. To all those who offer sacrifice in Jerusalem, we have granted release from the royal taxes the king formerly received from them each year, from the crops of the land and the fruit of the trees. [35]Furthermore, we grant them release from all other payments due to us from the tenth-part gifts, the taxes, the salt pits, and the crown taxes from now on. [36]These exemptions are never to be canceled. [37]Therefore, be sure to make a copy of this letter. Give it to Jonathan and display it in a prominent place on the holy mountain.

Intrigue of Trypho

[38]King Demetrius saw that the land was quiet and that there was no opposition to him. So he dismissed his troops and sent them back to their homes. He kept only the foreign troops that he had recruited from the island nations. All the troops who had served under his predecessors hated him.

[39]Now Trypho had formerly been one of Alexander's supporters. He realized that the troops were grumbling against Demetrius. So he went to Imalkue the Arab, who was bringing up Antiochus the young son of Alexander. [40]Imalkue watched over Antiochus carefully until he might hand him over to become king in place of his father. Trypho also reported to Imalkue what Demetrius had done and told him about the hatred of the troops toward Demetrius. He remained there many days.

[41]Now Jonathan sent to King Demetrius the request that he remove the troops in the elevated fortress from Jerusalem, as well as the troops in the fortress, because they continued fighting against Israel. [42]Demetrius sent this message back to Jonathan: "Not only will I do these things for you and your nation, but I will confer great honor on you and your nation if I get an opportunity. [43]In return, you would do well to send me some soldiers to help me, because my troops are in revolt."[44]Jonathan sent three thousand strong men to him at Antioch. When they came to the king, he rejoiced at their arrival.

[45]At that time, the people of the city assembled, one hundred twenty thousand in number, and they wanted to kill the king. [46]But he fled into the palace. Then the people took control of the main streets of the city and began to fight. [47]So the king called the Jews to his aid. They rallied around him and spread out through the city. They killed about one hundred thousand people that day. [48]They set fire to the city, ravaged many goods, and saved the king. [49]When the people saw that the Jews had gained control of the city as they pleased, their courage failed.

They made a request of the king: [50]"Give us peace, and make the Jews stop fighting against us."[51]They threw down their weapons and made peace. So the Jews received honor from the king and all the people in his kingdom. They returned to Jerusalem with a large amount of treasure.

[52]So King Demetrius sat on the throne of his kingdom, and the land was peaceful before him. [53]But he broke his word about all that he had said. He became estranged from Jonathan and didn't repay the favors that Jonathan had done him. Instead, he treated him harshly.

Trypho seizes power

[54]After this, Trypho returned, accompanied by the young boy Antiochus, who put on the crown and began to rule. [55]The troops that Demetrius had dismissed gathered to fight against Demetrius and routed him, so he fled. [56]Trypho captured the elephants and gained control of Antioch. [57]Then the young Antiochus wrote to Jonathan, "I confirm you in the high priesthood, set you over the four districts, and make you one of the king's chief political advisors."[k]

[58]He also sent him gold plates and table utensils, and granted him the right to drink from gold cups, dress in purple, and wear a gold buckle. [59]He appointed Jonathan's brother Simon governor from the peaks of Tyre to the borders of Egypt.

Campaigns of Jonathan and Simon

[60]Jonathan traveled through Beyond the River and among the towns. All the Syrian army gathered to him as allies. When he came to Ashkelon, the people of the city met him and honored him. [61]From there, he went to Gaza, but the people shut him out. So he attacked Gaza and burned and plundered the areas surrounding the city. [62]Then the people of Gaza pleaded with Jonathan, and he made peace with them. He took the sons of their rulers as hostages and sent them to Jerusalem. And he passed through the country as far as Damascus.

[63]Then Jonathan heard that Demetrius' officers had come to Kadesh in Galilee with a large army, intending to remove him from office. [64]He went to meet them but left his brother Simon in the country. [65]Simon camped before Beth-zur and fought against it for many days, hemming it in. [66]Then they asked Simon to grant them terms of peace, and he did so. He removed them from there and took possession of the town. He appointed troops to guard it.

[67]Jonathan and his army camped by the waters of Gennesaret. Early in the morning they marched to the plain of Hazor, [68]where the foreign army met him. They had set an ambush against him in the mountains, but they themselves met him face-to-face. [69]Then the men waiting to ambush emerged from their places and joined the battle. All the men with Jonathan fled. [70]Not one of them was left except Mattathias, Absalom's son, and Judas, Chalphi's son, commanders of the army forces. [71]Jonathan tore his clothes, put dust on his head, and prayed. [72]Then he turned back to the battle against the enemy, routed them, and they fled. [73]When his men who were running away saw this, they returned to him. They joined him in the pursuit as far as Kadesh, where they camped. [74]As many as three thousand foreigners died that day. Finally, Jonathan returned to Jerusalem.

Alliances with Rome and Sparta

1Maccabees 12 When Jonathan felt that the time was favorable, he chose envoys and sent them to Rome in order to confirm and renew friendship with them. [2]He also sent letters in the same vein to the Spartans and to others. [3]The envoys went to Rome and entered the senate chamber. They said, "Jonathan the high priest and the Jewish nation have sent us to renew our former friendship and alliance."[4]The Romans provided letters for them to give to various people to ask them to assure the envoys safe passage back to Judah. [5]This is a copy of the letter that Jonathan wrote to the Spartans:

> [6]The high priest Jonathan, the senate of the nation, the priests, and the rest of the Jewish people. To their brothers the Spartans. Greetings!
> [7]In the past, your king Arius sent a letter to the high priest Onias, stating that you are our relatives as the appended copy shows. [8]Onias welcomed the envoy with honor and received the letter, which contained a clear declaration of alliance and friendship. [9]Generally, we have no need of these things, since we have the holy scrolls as encouragement. [10]Yet we have desired to renew our family ties and friendship with you so that we may not become estranged from you, because considerable time has passed since you sent your letter to us. [11]We remember you constantly on every occasion--at our festivals and on other appropriate days, at the sacrifices that we offer, and in our prayers--as it is right and proper to remember relatives. [12]Furthermore, we rejoice at your success.

[13]As for us, we have experienced many trials and many wars. The kings around us have waged war against us. [14]We have not wanted to bother you and our other allies and friends about these wars [15]because we have the help that comes from heaven. So we have been delivered from our enemies, and they have been humbled. [16]Therefore, we chose Numenius, Antiochus' son, and Antipater, Jason's son, and sent them to Rome to renew our former friendship and alliance with them. [17]We have told them to go to you as well and greet you and deliver to you this letter from us concerning the renewal of our family ties. [18]So please send us a reply.

[19]This is a copy of the letter that they sent to Onias:

[20]King Arius of the Spartans.

To the high priest Onias. Greetings!

[21]It has been discovered in a written record that the Spartans and the Jews are relatives and are both of the family of Abraham. [22]Since we have learned this, please let us know how you are. [23]On our part, we write to let you know that what is yours--your livestock and property--belongs to us, and ours belongs to you. We therefore command that our envoys report to you in keeping with this.

Further campaigns of Jonathan and Simon

[24]Jonathan heard that Demetrius' commanders had returned with a larger force than before to wage war against him. [25]So he marched away from Jerusalem and met them in the region of Hamath. He didn't allow them any opportunity to invade his country. [26]He sent spies to their camp. They returned and reported to him that the enemy was lining up in battle formation to attack the Jews at night. [27]When the sun had set, Jonathan commanded his troops to be on alert. They were to keep their weapons at hand so they could be ready through the night for battle. He also stationed guard posts around the camp. [28]When the enemy heard that Jonathan and his troops were prepared for battle, they were extremely terrified. So they lit fires in their camp and retreated. [29]Jonathan and his troops didn't know about this until morning because they saw the fires burning. [30]Then Jonathan tried to pursue them, but he couldn't catch them since they had already crossed the Eleutherus River. [31]So Jonathan turned aside against the Arabs, who are called Zabadeans, and he crushed and plundered them. [32]Then he broke camp and went to Damascus and marched throughout that region.

[33]Simon also marched through the country as far as Ashkelon and the fortresses in the area. He turned aside to Joppa and took it by surprise, [34]because he had heard that they were ready to hand over the fortress to people that Demetrius had sent. So he stationed a force there to occupy and guard it.

[35]When Jonathan returned to Jerusalem, he assembled the elders of the people and planned with them how to build fortresses in Judea. [36]They also discussed how to build the walls of Jerusalem still higher, and to erect a high barrier between the elevated fortress and the city to separate them. This was to isolate the elevated fortress so that its troops couldn't buy or sell things. [37]So they gathered together to rebuild the city. Part of the wall toward the valley to the east had fallen, and he repaired the section called Chaphenatha. [38]Simon also built Adida in the western foothills. He secured it and installed gates with bolts.

Trypho captures Jonathan

[39]At that time, Trypho attempted to rise up against King Antiochus, put on the crown, and become king in Asia. [40]He feared that Jonathan might not permit him to do this, making war on him. So he kept trying to capture and kill him. He marched out and came to Beth-shan. [41]Jonathan went out to meet him with forty thousand select warriors. He also came to Beth-shan. [42]When Trypho saw that he had come with a large army, he was afraid to lift a hand against him. [43]So he received Jonathan with honor and commended him to all his chief political advisors.[l] He gave him gifts and told his advisors and troops to obey him as they would himself. [44]Then he said to Jonathan, "Why have you put all these people to so much trouble when we're not at war?[45]Tell them to go back to their homes.

Pick for yourself a few men to stay with you, and come with me to Ptolemais. I'll hand it over to you as well as the other fortresses and the remaining troops and officials. Then I'll turn around and go home. That's why I'm here."

46Jonathan trusted him and did what he said. He sent away his troops, and they returned to Judah. 47He kept with himself three thousand troops--two thousand of whom he left in Galilee, while one thousand accompanied him. 48But when Jonathan entered Ptolemais, the people there closed the gates and captured him, and killed with their swords all those who had entered with him.

49Trypho then sent infantry and cavalry into Galilee and the great plain to destroy Jonathan's soldiers. 50But Jonathan's forces believed that Jonathan had been seized and had died along with his troops. They encouraged each other and kept marching in tight formation, ready for fighting. 51When their pursuers saw that they would fight for their lives, they turned back. 52So they all reached the land of Judah safely. They mourned for Jonathan and his companions, and they were very anxious. All Israel mourned deeply. 53All the nations around them tried to destroy them, saying, "They have no leader or helper now. Let's make war against them and blot out their memory from humanity."

Simon takes command

1Maccabees 13 Simon heard that Trypho had assembled a large army to invade the land of Judah and destroy it. 2He saw that the people were trembling and afraid, so he went up to Jerusalem and gathered the people together. 3He encouraged them by saying, "You yourselves know what great things my brothers and I, and our father's family, have done for the laws and the sanctuary. You also know about the wars and the difficulties that we have seen. 4Because of this, all my brothers have died for Israel's sake. I alone am left. 5Now, far be it from me to spare my own life at any time of distress. I'm not better than my brothers. 6Instead, I will avenge my nation and the sanctuary, your wives and children. All the nations have gathered to destroy us out of hatred."

7The spirit of the people was renewed when they heard these words. 8They answered loudly, "You are our leader in place of Judas and Jonathan your brothers.[m] 9Fight our battles, and all that you tell us we will do."10So he assembled the warriors and rushed to complete the walls of Jerusalem and secured it on every side. [11]He sent Jonathan, Absalom's son, to Joppa with a sufficient army. He drove out its occupants and remained there.

Trypho's deceit and treachery

[12]Then Trypho left Ptolemais with a large army to invade the land of Judah, taking Jonathan with him under guard. [13]Simon camped in Adida, facing the plain. [14]Trypho learned that Simon had taken the place of his brother Jonathan and that he was about to battle against him. So he sent envoys to Simon who said, [15]"We are detaining your brother Jonathan because of the money he owes the royal treasury in connection with the offices he held. [16]Send now 5,700 pounds of silver and two of his sons as hostages, to ensure that when he is released he won't revolt against us, and we will release him."

[17]Simon knew that they were speaking deceitfully to him, but he sent for the money and the sons so that he wouldn't arouse hostility among the people. [18]He was concerned that they might say, "Jonathan died because Simon didn't send the money and his sons."[19]So he sent the sons and 5,700 pounds of silver. But Trypho broke his word and didn't release Jonathan.

[20]After this, Trypho came to invade and destroy the country. He circled around by the way to Adora. But Simon and his army kept marching opposite him, every place he went. [21]Now the men in the elevated fortress kept sending messengers to Trypho, urging him to come to them by way of the wilderness and to send them food. [22]So Trypho got all his cavalry ready to go, but that night a very heavy snow fell so he didn't go. Instead, he marched into the land of Gilead. [23]When he approached Baskama, he killed Jonathan and buried him there. [24]Then Trypho returned to his own land.

Jonathan's tomb

[25]Simon sent someone to get the bones of Jonathan his brother, and he buried him in Modein, the city of his ancestors. [26]All Israel mourned Jonathan with great expressions of grief for many days. [27]Simon built a monument over the tomb of his father and his brothers. He made it high so that all might see it. It had polished stone at the front and back. [28]He also set up seven pyramids, opposite each other, for his father and mother and four brothers. [29]He devised an elaborate site for the pyramids, setting up great columns around them. On the columns, he put suits of armor for a permanent memorial. Beside the suits of armor, he carved ships so that all who sail the sea might see them. [30]This is the tomb that he built in Modein, which remains to this day.

Judea gains independence

[31]Trypho dealt dishonestly with the young king Antiochus and killed him. [32]He put on the crown of Asia and became king in his place. He brought great disaster on the land. [33]But Simon built up the fortresses of Judea and put protection all around them with high towers, great walls, gates, and bolts. In addition, he stored food in the fortresses. [34]Simon also sent messengers to King Demetrius with a request to grant relief to the country, because Trypho had stolen many of their goods. [35]King Demetrius sent a reply to this request, and wrote him a letter:

> [36]King Demetrius. To Simon, the high priest and advisor of kings, and to the elders and nation of the Jews. Greetings!
> [37]We have received the gold crown and the palm branch that you sent. We are ready to make a general peace with you and to write to our officials to grant you release from tribute. [38]All the exemptions that we have made to you remain valid. Let the fortresses that you have built be in your possession. [39]We pardon any errors and offenses committed to this day. Plus, we cancel the crown tax that you owe. Whatever other tax has been collected in Jerusalem will not be collected any longer. [40]If any of you are qualified to be enrolled in our bodyguard, let them be enrolled. Finally, let there be peace between us.

[41]In the year 170,[n] the yoke of the Gentiles was removed from Israel. [42]The people of Israel began to write in their documents and contracts, "In the first year of Simon the great high priest, commander and leader of the Jews."

Simon captures Gazara

[43]In those days, Simon camped against Gazara and surrounded it with troops. He made a siege engine and brought it up to the city. He battered and captured one tower. [44]The men in the siege engine leaped out into the city, and a great tumult arose. [45]Together with their wives and children, the men went up on the wall with their clothes torn. They cried out loudly, asking Simon to make peace with them. [46]They said, "Don't treat us according to our wicked acts but according to your mercy."[47]So Simon reached an agreement with them and stopped fighting. But he expelled them from the city and cleansed the houses in which the idols were located. He then entered it with hymns and praise. [48]He removed all pollution from it and settled people there who observed the Law. He also strengthened its defenses and built a house for himself there.

Simon regains the elevated fortress at Jerusalem.

[49]Those who were in the elevated fortress at Jerusalem were prevented from moving around to buy and sell in the country. So they were very hungry, and many perished from famine. [50]They appealed to Simon to make peace with them, and he did. But he expelled them from there and cleansed the elevated fortress from its pollutions. [51]On the twenty-third day of the second month,[o] in the year 171, the Jews entered it with praise and palm branches, with harps and cymbals and stringed instruments, and with hymns and songs. A great enemy had been crushed and removed from Israel. [52]Simon declared that they should celebrate this day annually with rejoicing. He strengthened the defenses of the temple hill alongside the elevated fortress, and he and his soldiers lived there. [53]Simon saw that his son John had become a man, and so he made him commander of all the forces. And John lived at Gazara.

Capture of Demetrius

1Maccabees 14 In the year 172,[p] King Demetrius gathered together his military forces. He marched into Media to find help, in order to wage war against Trypho. [2]When Arsaces, the king of Persia and Media, heard that Demetrius had invaded his territory, he sent one of his generals to capture him alive. [3]The general went and defeated the army of Demetrius. He arrested Demetrius and took him to Arsaces, who put him under guard.

Eulogy of Simon

[4]The land of Judah enjoyed peace all the days of Simon.
He sought what was good for his nation.

His rule was agreeable to them,
as was the honor shown him all his days.
5His crowning achievement was to take Joppa for a harbor, opening the way to the sea with its islands.
6He also extended his country's borders.
He gained full control of the land;
7he took a great number of captives.
He ruled over Gazara, Beth-zur, and the elevated fortress.
He removed the impurities from the elevated fortress.
There were none to oppose him.
8People worked their farmland in peace.
The ground was fertile,
and the trees of the plains were fruitful.
9Old men sat along the sides of the streets and talked about good things.
The young put on impressive military uniforms.
10Simon supplied the towns with food and with the means for defense.
His fame spread to the ends of the earth.
11He established peace
throughout the land,
and Israel had great joy.
12All the people sat under their own vines and fig trees.
No one made them afraid.
13No one was left in the land to fight them, because foreign kings had been crushed in those days.
14He gave help to all the humble ones among his people.
He sought lawful ways.
He did away with evil people and those who sinned against the Law.
15He made the sanctuary glorious,

and added to its holy equipment.

Diplomacy with Rome and Sparta

16 The people in Rome, and those who were as far away as Sparta, learned that Jonathan had died, and they were all very sad. 17 They also heard that Simon his brother had become high priest in his place and that he was ruling over the country and its towns. 18 So they wrote to him on bronze tablets to renew with him the friendly alliance that they had established with his brothers Judas and Jonathan. 19 The tablets were read before the assembly in Jerusalem.

20 This is a copy of the letter that the Spartans sent:

> The rulers of the Spartans, with the city. To the high priest Simon, the elders, the priests, and the rest of the Jewish people, our brothers and sisters. Greetings!
> 21 The envoys who were sent to our people have told us about your glory and honor, and we rejoiced when they came. 22 We made this record in our public decrees concerning what they said: "Numenius, Antiochus' son, and Antipater, Jason's son, Jewish representatives, have come to renew their friendship with us. 23 Our people were pleased to receive them with respect and to maintain a copy of their words in the public archives so that Spartans may have a record of them. They have also sent a copy of this to Simon, the high priest.

24 Following this exchange, Simon sent Numenius to Rome with a large gold shield weighing one thousand manehs, to confirm the alliance with the Romans.

Official honors for Simon

25 When the people heard these things they said, "How should we thank Simon and his sons? 26 He and his brothers, and his father's family, have stood firm. They have fought and repelled Israel's enemies and established our freedom." So they made a written record on bronze plaques and put it on pillars on Mount Zion. 27 This is a copy of the document:

> On the eighteenth day of Elul,[q] in the year 172, the third year of the great high priest Simon. 28 In the great assembly of the priests, the people, and the rulers and elders of the country, the following was proclaimed to us.

29 Wars occurred often in our country. Simon, Mattathias' son, a priest of the sons of Joarib, and his brothers bravely faced danger and fought against the enemies of their nation. They preserved the sanctuary and the Law, and they brought great honor to their nation. 30 Jonathan rallied the nation and became their high priest, and was gathered to his people.
31 Their enemies decided to invade their country and take hold of their sanctuary. 32 Then Simon rose up and fought for his nation. He spent great amounts of his own money to arm soldiers of his nation and give them pay.
33 He fortified the towns of Judea and Beth-zur on the borders of Judea, where enemy weapons had been stored in the past, and placed a group of Jewish soldiers there. 34 He also fortified Joppa by the sea, along with Gazara on the borders of Azotus, where enemies formerly lived. He settled Jews there and provided whatever was needed to restore the towns.

35 The people saw Simon's faithfulness and the honor that he had resolved to win for his nation. So they made him their leader and high priest, because he had done all these things and had acted toward his nation with justice and loyalty. He sought in every way to lift up his people. 36 In his days, things prospered under his leadership so that the Gentiles were driven out of the country, as well as those in David's City in Jerusalem, who had built themselves an elevated fortress. Gentiles used to leave the elevated fortress and defile the sanctuary area, doing great damage to its purity. 37 He settled Jewish troops in the elevated fortress and fortified it for the safety of the country and of the city, and built the walls of Jerusalem higher.

38 In light of all these things, King Demetrius confirmed him as high priest. 39 He also made him one of the leading political advisors,[r] and paid him other high honors. 40 For he had heard that the Jews were considered friends, allies, and brothers by the Romans, and that the Romans had welcomed the ambassadors of Simon with honor.

41 The Jews and their priests have resolved that Simon should be their leader and high priest forever, until a trustworthy prophet should arise.
42 He should govern them and take charge of the sanctuary, appointing officials to oversee its tasks and the weapons and the fortresses of the country. [43]Everyone should obey him. All contracts in the land should bear his name. In addition, he should be clothed in royal purple and wear gold.

[44]None of the people or the priests can annul these decisions or oppose what he says. They cannot convene an assembly without his permission. No one else can be clothed in purple or put on a gold buckle. [45]Whoever fails to follow all of these decisions or acts contrary to them will be punished.

[46]All the people agreed to give Simon the power to act in keeping with these decisions. [47]Simon accepted and agreed to be high priest, to command and rule the Jews and the priests, and to protect them all. [48]Also they gave orders to write this decision on bronze plates and to set them up in a public place in the sanctuary grounds. [49]Finally, they were to place copies in the treasury so that Simon and his sons would have access to them.

Letter of Antiochus VII

1Maccabees 15 Antiochus the son of King Demetrius sent a letter from the sea islands to Simon, the priest and ruler of the Jews, and to all the nation:

[2]King Antiochus to Simon the high priest and ruler, and to the nation of the Jews. Greetings!

[3]Some troublemakers have gained control of our ancestors' kingdom. I intend to take command of the kingdom so that I may restore it to the way it used to be. I have recruited a large number of foreign troops and have equipped warships. [4]I am going to come to the country so that I can move against the people who have destroyed our country and devastated many cities in my kingdom. [5]Therefore, I confirm all of the favorable tax exemptions that previous kings have given you. Also, I consent to any agreements you had with them to release you from other payments. [6]You have my permission to mint your own coins to use in your country. [7]Furthermore, I give freedom to Jerusalem and the sanctuary. All the weapons you made and the fortress you built will remain in your possession. [8]I cancel any debts you owe to the royal treasury now or in the future. [9]When I gain control of the kingdom, I will give you great rewards. I will honor you, your nation, and the temple. Your reputation will become evident in all the earth.

[10]In the year 174,[s] Antiochus invaded the land of his ancestors. All the troops went over to his side. Trypho had only a few remaining. [11]Antiochus pursued him, and Trypho fled to Dor, which is by the sea. [12]He knew that things looked bad for him and that his troops had deserted him. [13]Antiochus camped against Dor with one hundred twenty thousand warriors and eight thousand cavalry. [14]He surrounded the town, and ships joined the battle from the sea. He pressured the town from land and sea, and he didn't let anyone leave or enter it.

Rome supports the Jews

[15]Then Numenius and his companions arrived from Rome with letters to the kings and countries:

[16]Lucius, consul of the Romans. To King Ptolemy. Greetings!

[17]Jewish messengers came to us as our friends and allies to renew our ancient friendship and alliance. The high priest Simon and the Jewish people sent them. [18]They have brought us a gold shield weighing one thousand manehs. [19]Because of this, we have decided to write to the kings and countries to tell them that they should not seek their harm or make war against them, their cities, or their country, or make alliance with those who war against them. [20]We are pleased to accept the shield. [21]Therefore, if any troublemakers have run away to your lands from their country, hand them over to the high priest Simon. Then he can punish them according to Jewish law.

[22]The consul wrote the same thing to King Demetrius and to Attalus, Ariarathes, and Arsaces. [23]He also wrote it to all the countries--to Sampsames, the Spartans, Delos, Myndos, Sicyon, Caria, Samos, Pamphylia, Lycia, Halicarnassus, Rhodes, Phaselis, Cos, Side, Aradus, Gortyna, Cnidus, Cyprus, and Cyrene. [24]They also sent a copy of these things to Simon the high priest.

Antiochus VII threatens Simon

[25]King Antiochus besieged Dor for a second time, continually making war engines and throwing his forces against it. He forced Trypho to stay inside and restricted his movement. [26]Simon sent two thousand select troops to fight for Antiochus. He also sent silver, gold, and a large amount of military equipment. [27]But Antiochus wouldn't accept them. He broke all the agreements that he had made with Simon in the past and became like a stranger to him. [28]He sent Athenobius, one of his leading political advisors,[t] to talk with Simon: "You hold control of Joppa and Gazara and the elevated fortress in Jerusalem. They are cities of my kingdom. [29]You have devastated their territory. You have done great damage in the land. You have taken possession of many places in my kingdom. [30]Now hand over the cities that you have captured and the money you have received from the places you have conquered beyond Judea's borders. [31]Or you can pay me 28,500 pounds of silver for the destruction you have caused and another 28,500 pounds for the tribute money of the cities. Otherwise, I will come and make war on you."

[32]So the king's advisor Athenobius came to Jerusalem. When he saw the magnificence of Simon, including his special cupboard that had gold and silver on it, all representing his considerable position, he was amazed. But he delivered the king's message. [33]Simon replied, "We haven't taken foreign land or property. We've taken only our ancestors' inheritance, which was unjustly stolen by our enemies. [34]Now that we have the opportunity, we will hold on firmly to their inheritance. [35]As for Joppa and Gazara, which you demand, they were causing a lot of problems for our people and land. But we'll give you 5,700 pounds of silver for them." Athenobius didn't say a word. [36]Instead, he returned with great anger and told the king what Simon had said. He also reported on Simon's wealth and all that he had seen, and the king was enraged.

Victory over Cendebeus

[37]Meanwhile, Trypho escaped on a ship and went to Orthosia. [38]The king made Cendebeus supreme commander of the coastal lands, and he gave him infantry and cavalry. [39]He commanded him to camp against Judea, to secure Kedron and its gates, and to wage war against the people. Then the king went to hunt down Trypho. [40]Cendebeus came to Jamnia and bothered the people. He invaded Judea and killed the prisoners of war. [41]Following the king's orders, he fortified Kedron. He stationed cavalry and troops there so that they could go out and raid along the roads of Judea.

1Maccabees 16 John went up from Gazara and reported to his father Simon what Cendebeus had done. 2 Simon summoned his two oldest boys, Judas and John. He said to them, "My brothers and I, and my father's family, have fought Israel's wars from our youth until this day. We have prospered and have delivered Israel many times. 3 But now I've become old. By heaven's mercy, you are mature in years. Take my place and that of my brothers, and go out and fight for our nation. May the help that comes from heaven be with you!"

4 So John chose twenty thousand warriors and cavalry from across the country.
They marched against Cendebeus, camping overnight in Modein. 5 They started out early in the morning and marched into the plain, where a large force of infantry and cavalry was advancing to meet them. A stream lay between them.
6 Then John and his army lined up against them. He saw that his soldiers were afraid to cross the stream, so he crossed it first. When his troops saw his action, they crossed over after him. 7 Then he divided up the army, placing the cavalry in the middle of the infantry, because the enemy had a large number of cavalry.
8 They sounded the trumpets and decisively defeated Cendebeus and his army.
Many of them were killed, and the rest headed into the fortress. 9 During the battle, John's brother Judas was wounded, but John pursued them until Cendebeus reached Kedron, which he had built. 10 Some also fled into the towers that were in the fields of Azotus. John burned them down, killing about two thousand. Then he safely returned to Judea.

Murder of Simon and his sons

11 Now Ptolemy, Abubus' son, had been appointed governor over Jericho. He had a large amount of silver and gold 12 because he was the high priest's son-in-law. 13 He became arrogant and was determined to gain control of the country. He made devious plans against Simon and his sons to do away with them.

14 Now Simon was out visiting the towns in the countryside and attending to their needs. He went down to Jericho with his sons Mattathias and Judas. It was the eleventh month, the month of Shevat,[u] in the year 177. 15 Abubus' son welcomed them deceitfully in the little fortress called Dok, which he had built.
He threw a great banquet for them, but he hid men in the hall. 16 When Simon and his sons became drunk, Ptolemy and his men took their weapons. They rushed forward against Simon, and killed him and his two sons in the banquet hall, as well as some of his servants. [17]So he committed an act of great treachery, returning evil for good.

John succeeds Simon

[18]Ptolemy wrote a report about these matters and sent it to the king. He asked him to send troops to aid him and to turn over the towns and country to him. [19]He sent other soldiers to Gazara to kill John. And he sent letters to the captains asking them to come to him so that he could give them silver and gold and gifts. [20]He sent other troops to capture Jerusalem and the temple mount. [21]But someone ran ahead and told John at Gazara that his father and brothers had died, and also said, "He has sent men to kill you also."[22]When he heard this news, he was greatly shocked. He detained the men who had come to destroy him and killed them because he had learned about their intentions.

[23]The rest of John's actions, his wars, the brave deeds that he did, his achievements, and the building of the walls that he completed--[24]these are written in the records of his high priesthood, dating from the time when he became high priest after his father.

2 Maccabees

1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15

The first letter

2Maccabees 1 To our Jewish brothers and sisters in Egypt.

Greetings! Your Jewish brothers and sisters in Jerusalem and in the country of Judea wish you prosperous peace.
2 May God do good for you and remember the covenant with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, his faithful servants.
3 May God give to all of you the passion to worship him and to do his will with a whole heart and a willing spirit.
4 May God open your heart to his Law and commands, and give you peace.
5 May God listen to your prayers and be reconciled with you and not abandon you in an evil time. 6 We are praying for you here.

7 In the year 169[a] , during the rule of Demetrius, we Jews wrote to you during a critical period of suffering that happened to us in the years after Jason and his followers revolted from the holy land and the kingdom. 8 They burned down the gate and murdered innocent people. We pleaded to the Lord, and the Lord heard us. We offered sacrifices and fine flour, lit the lamps, and set out the sacred loaves. 9 So now you should keep the Festival of Booths in the month of Kislev, 10 in the year 188.[b]

The second letter

The citizens of Jerusalem and Judea, the council of elders, and Judas send greetings and wishes of good health to Aristobulus, teacher of King Ptolemy and a member of the family of the anointed priests, and to the Jews in Egypt. 11 God saved us from great danger when we were battling against the king. So we greatly praise God 12 because he forced those fighting in the holy city to leave.

13 The ruler and his armed forces that went into Persia seemed invincible. But they were slain in the goddess Nanea's temple, when Nanea's priests tricked them. 14 Since Antiochus came in order to marry the goddess, he and his political advisors[c] came into the temple[d] to take the great wealth as payment for her dowry. 15When the priests of Nanea had set it out, the king entered with a few men into the enclosed space of the shrine. After closing off the temple as Antiochus entered, 16and opening the hidden door of the ceiling, they threw stones that struck down the ruler like a bolt of lightning. After dismembering and beheading the bodies, they tossed the heads to those outside.

17May our God who gave up the immoral to death be praised in every way!

18Since we are about to celebrate the cleansing of the temple on the twenty-fifth of Kislev, we thought it right to notify you so that you yourselves might also celebrate the Festival of Booths and Fire, when Nehemiah offered sacrifices after he had built the temple and the altar. 19When our ancestors were taken as captives into Persia, the holy priests secretly took the fire of the altar and hid it in a dry pit. They were careful that no one knew the place. 20Many years later, when it seemed good to God, Nehemiah, who was commissioned by the king of Persia, sent the descendants of the priests who had hidden the fire to retrieve it. After they explained to us that they didn't find the fire, but rather a thick liquid, he ordered them to bring the liquid. 21When they brought up the provisions for the sacrifice, Nehemiah commanded the priests to sprinkle the liquid on the wood and on the items lying there. 22Some time after they did this, as the sun shone brightly from behind the clouds, a great fire flared up and astonished everyone. 23While the sacrifices were burning, the priests prayed, the priests and all the people. Jonathan took the lead while the others, including Nehemiah, responded. 24The prayer went like this:

Lord, Lord God, creator of all,
you are fearsome, mighty,
just, and merciful.
You are the only king
and only generous one.
25You are the only provider,
the only just, almighty, and eternal one.
You save Israel from all evil.
You chose the patriarchs
and made them holy.

[26]Receive this sacrifice on behalf of all your people Israel. Guard your portion and make it holy.

[27]Gather together our scattered people, free the ones enslaved among the nations, watch over those who are despised and loathed, and let the nations know that you are our God. [28]Punish the oppressors and those who commit arrogant acts of violence. [29]Plant your people in your holy place, just as Moses said.[e]

[30]The priests sang the hymns. [31]When the elements of the sacrifice were consumed, Nehemiah commanded them to pour the remaining liquid on larger stones. [32]When this happened, a flame flared up on these stones. But it went out in the presence of the light shining from the altar. [33]When this situation became known, it was reported to the king of the Persians that in the place where the exiled priests hid the fire, a liquid appeared from which Nehemiah's followers purified the elements of the sacrifice. [34]After fencing off the place and declaring it holy, the king examined the matter. [35]The king showed favor to those involved and presented many excellent gifts to them. [36]Nehemiah's circle called this liquid nephthar, which means "purification," but most people call it nephthai.

2Maccabees

2One finds in the records that the prophet Jeremiah commanded those who were deported to take some of the fire, which is the story I've just related. [2]Having given them the Law, the prophet commanded those who were deported not to forget the Lord's commands or to be led astray in their thoughts when they saw gold and silver idols and how they were decorated. [3]With these kinds of words, he urged them not to forget the Law. [4]The same document also states that the prophet commanded, with a solemn divine pronouncement, that the meeting tent and the chest containing the covenant should go with him. The documents reported that he went to the mountain that Moses ascended to see the inheritance that God promised.

[5]When Jeremiah arrived, he discovered a cave where he deposited the meeting tent, the covenant chest, and the incense altar. He blocked up the opening. [6]Some who had accompanied him went along to mark the way but couldn't find it again. [7]When Jeremiah found out, he rebuked them and said: "The place will remain unknown until God gathers the people together again and shows mercy. [8]Then the Lord will disclose these things. The Lord's glory will appear with the cloud, as they were revealed in the time of Moses and when Solomon prayed that the place might be made holy."

9It was also made clear that, since Solomon possessed wisdom, he offered up a sacrifice for the inauguration and completion of the temple. 10Just as Moses prayed to the Lord and fire came down from heaven and consumed the components of the sacrifice, so also Solomon prayed and fire came down to consume the entirely burned offerings. 11Moses said, "Because the purification offering had not been eaten, it was destroyed by fire."12Likewise, Solomon observed the eight days.[f]

13Nehemiah also narrated the same things in his writings and journals. He also told how, when Solomon established a library, he gathered the scrolls concerning the kings and prophets and the scrolls of David and letters of kings regarding offerings for solemn promises. 14In the same way, Judas also gathered together all the scrolls that went missing because of the war, so that those documents are now in our possession. 15So if you need them, send messengers to carry them back.

16Now as we are about to celebrate the Purification Festival, we write to you.
Act honorably by observing the days. 17God has saved all of his people and restored to all the inheritance, even the kingdom, the priesthood, and the holy place, 18as he promised through the Law. We have hope in God that he will quickly extend mercy and gather us from everywhere under heaven into the holy place. He has brought us out of great evils and purified the place.

Author's preface

19This scroll is about the stories of Judas the Maccabee and his brothers, the purification of the great temple, and the restoration of the altar. 20It will tell of the wars against Antiochus Epiphanes and his son Eupator, 21and the appearances from heaven to those who had gloriously performed brave deeds for Judaism. Though they were few in number, they took back the whole country, chased off the barbaric hordes, 22regained the temple renowned throughout the whole inhabited world, freed the city, and restored the laws that were almost abolished--because the Lord with all kindness was merciful to them.

[23]Jason of Cyrene recorded all of these things in five scrolls, which we will attempt to condense into one.

[24]Jason's scrolls contain an abundance of material and pose serious difficulty for those wanting to plunge into the historical accounts because of the amount of detail. [25]We aimed, therefore, to provide something amusing for those who want to read, to make it easy for those inclined to commit facts to memory, and to offer something useful to all those who happen to pick up the scroll. [26]For those of us who engage in the strenuous task of abbreviation, it isn't easy but involves sweat and loss of sleep, [27]just as it isn't easy to prepare a banquet for the enjoyment of others. Nevertheless, in order to gain the praise of many, we endure the task cheerfully.

[28]Leaving the responsibility for accuracy in the details to the original writer, we must follow the guidelines for preparing a summary. [29]Just as the builder of a new house must give thought to the foundation of the whole, so also the one attempting to paint and decorate must investigate what is suitable for its own decoration. This I think also applies to us. [30]The duty of the first author of the history is to occupy the ground, to explore the subject fully, and to inquire closely into the details in particular. [31]The one retelling the shorter version should be allowed to pursue conciseness of expression and to be excused from an exhaustive treatment of the matter. [32]From this point then we will begin the narrative, not adding further to what was already said. After all, it would be absurd to prolong the preface but then cut short the history.

The story of Heliodorus

2Maccabees 3 When the holy city was living in harmony, and people observed the laws rigorously because of Onias the high priest, who was devoted to God and hated evil, [2]the kings used to honor the place and glorify the temple by sending the best gifts. [3]Seleucus the king of Asia even supplied all expenses for the sacrificial service from his own revenues. [4]But a certain Simon from the tribe of Benjamin, who had been appointed administrator of the temple, had a difference of opinion with the high priest about the management of the city market. [5]Since he wasn't able to overcome Onias, he went to Thraseas' son Apollonius, who was governor of Coele-Syria and Phoenicia at that time. [6]Simon told him that the treasury in Jerusalem was filled with untold riches and that it was full of uncounted cash, which didn't belong to the accounts for the sacrifices, but potentially fell under the king's authority. [7]Apollonius met with the king and told him about the funds.

The king chose his chief administrator Heliodorus and sent him with orders to confiscate the funds in question. [8]Heliodorus immediately made the journey, supposedly to inspect the cities of Coele-Syria and Phoenicia but actually to put the king's plan into effect. [9]When he arrived in Jerusalem and was received in a friendly manner by the high priest of the city, he revealed the information that had been reported and stated plainly why he had come. Then he asked whether these things were true. [10]The high priest informed him that these were the deposits of widows and orphans, [11]and also some deposits of Hyrcanus the Tobiad, an exceedingly prominent man. He also said that there were only 22,800 pounds of silver and 11,400 pounds of gold, and that the ungodly Simon had given a false report. [12]It was wholly unthinkable, he added, to commit such an injustice against those who trusted in the holiness of the place and in the dignity and sacredness of the temple that is honored throughout the whole world. [13]But Heliodorus, because of the royal commands, was firm that in any case the king could take these funds. [14]So he set a date and proceeded to inspect these funds. This caused great agony throughout the whole city. [15]But the priests threw themselves down before the altar in their priestly robes and called to heaven to the one who had given the laws about such deposits, that he should keep the deposits safe. [16]Anyone seeing the outward appearance of the high priest would have been heartbroken, because his expression and changed color revealed his inner anguish. [17]Fear and trembling seized the man, making the grief lodged in his heart clear to observers. [18]People burst from their houses in crowds to plead for help because the temple[g] was about to be dishonored. [19]With mourning clothes wrapped beneath their breasts, women filled the streets. The virgins, who usually remained indoors, ran together to the gates and some to the walls, while others peeped through their windows. [20]But all raised up their hands to heaven and pleaded for help. [21]To see the whole crowd on its knees and faces and the great suffering and dread of the high priest was a pitiful sight. [22]So they called on the almighty Lord to protect the deposits for those who had entrusted them.

[23]But Heliodorus carried on with what had been decided. [24]When he and his spearmen approached the treasury, however, the ruler of all spirits and all authority made an awesome display, so that all those daring to come with Heliodorus fainted, terrified and awestruck by God's power. [25]A horse appeared to them with a fearsome rider and decked out with a beautiful saddle. While running furiously, the horse attacked Heliodorus with its front hooves. The rider appeared to be clothed in full body armor made of gold. [26]Two young men also appeared before him--unmatched in bodily strength, of superb beauty, and with magnificent robes. They stood on either side of Heliodorus and beat him continuously with many blows. [27]When he suddenly fell to the ground unconscious, his men grasped him and placed him on a stretcher. [28]This was the same man who had just entered the treasury with a large group of men and a full bodyguard. Now they carried him away helpless, despite his weapons, and they publicly acknowledged God's power. [29]While he was being cut down and left speechless through the divine power and deprived of all hope of recovery, [30]the people were praising the Lord for acting miraculously on behalf of his holy place. And the temple, which had been weighed down with fear and disturbance a short time earlier, was now filled with delight and joy because the almighty Lord had publicly appeared.

[31]Some of Heliodorus' companions rushed to ask Onias to pray to the Most High to give life to the one who was about to draw his last breath. [32]The high priest, fearful that perhaps the king might think that the Jews had done something evil to Heliodorus, offered a sacrifice for the man's recovery.

[33]While the high priest was making the sacrifice for reconciliation, the same two[h] young men, dressed in the same clothing, appeared again to Heliodorus. They stood by him and said, "You owe Onias the high priest your gratitude. Because of him the Lord has graciously given life to you. [34]But you who suffered a beating from heaven must proclaim the great power of God to all." Once they said these things, they disappeared.

[35]Heliodorus offered a sacrifice to the Lord and made many solemn promises to the savior for sparing his life. After thanking Onias, he took his military force back to the king. [36]He testified to everyone about the works of the great God that he had seen with his own eyes. [37]When the king asked Heliodorus who would be the right sort of person to send again to Jerusalem, he said: [38]"If you have an enemy or someone plotting against your government, send him, and he will come back badly beaten if he should come back at all, because some divine power truly surrounds the temple.[i] [39]The one who lives in heaven watches over that place and will strike and destroy anyone coming with evil intent."[40]So this is how matters turned out concerning Heliodorus and the guarding of the treasury.

2Maccabees 4 This Simon, who had informed about the wealth of the temple and acted as an informer against his native land, slandered Onias. [2]He accused the latter of threatening Heliodorus and becoming a perpetrator of evil. He dared to label the benefactor of the city, the protector of his fellow citizens, and a passionate advocate for the laws, as a traitor against the government. [3]His hatred was so intense that one of Simon's men had even attempted to commit murders. [4]Seeing the danger of the dispute--including how Menestheus' son Apollonius, the governor of Coele-Syria and Phoenicia, encouraged Simon's evil--[5]Onias went to the king not to accuse his fellow citizens but to safeguard the public and private welfare of the people. [6]He recognized that without royal attention public affairs would not return to a peaceful state, and Simon would not cease from his madness.

Jason as high priest

[7]After Seleucus died and Antiochus (who was called Epiphanes) received the kingdom, Jason the brother of Onias gained the high priesthood by corruption. [8]He offered the king, in private communication, 20,520 pounds of silver, and an additional 4,560 pounds from another source of revenue. [9]He also promised to pay another 8,550 pounds of silver if he were permitted to set up, under his own authority, a gymnasium and a place for training the young people, and to enroll those living in Jerusalem as citizens of Antioch. [10]When the king had granted this and Jason had taken possession of his office, he immediately made his fellow citizens change to the Greek way of life. [11]He set aside the customs established for the Jews by royal generosity, negotiated through John the father of Eupolemus (the one who had made the official journey to secure friendship and alliance with the Romans). He abolished the lawful government and introduced customs contrary to the law. [12]He eagerly founded a gymnasium right below the elevated fortress[j] and induced the most honorable of the trainees to wear the traditional Greek hat. [13]So the Greek way of life caught on very quickly, and the adoption of foreign customs increased because of Jason--an excessively wicked and ungodly man who was no high priest. [14]Even the priests were no longer devoted to the service of the altar, but they treated the temple with contempt. By neglecting the sacrifices, they hurried to participate in the lawless wrestling spectacles in the arena as soon as the discus-throwing event was announced. [15]They ignored their ancestral honors and sought after Greek status symbols instead. [16]For this reason a dangerous situation engulfed them. Those same people to whom they were devoted and whose way of life they wished to imitate became their enemies and inflicted punishment on them. [17]To be ungodly in the face of the divine laws isn't a light matter, as the following events would reveal.

[18]Once when the king was present at the athletic games they held every five years in Tyre, [19]the evil Jason sent residents of Jerusalem who were now citizens of Antioch as his envoys, carrying three hundred silver drachmen[k] for the sacrifice to Hercules. Because it was inappropriate, the envoys didn't think it was right to use these funds for sacrifice. Instead, they applied the expense to something else. [20]So although Jason designated this sum for a sacrifice to Hercules, the envoys spent it on equipping warships.

[21]After Menestheus' son Apollonius was sent to Egypt for the coronation of Ptolemy Philometor as king, Antiochus thought about his own security because he had received a report that the Egyptian king was hostile toward his government. So after sailing to Joppa, he came to Jerusalem. [22]Jason received him magnificently, and the people of the city welcomed him with torches and shouts. Then Antiochus took his army to Phoenicia.

Menelaus as high priest

[23]Three years later, Jason sent Menelaus (brother of the previously mentioned Simon) to bring funds to the king and settle the accounts of some urgent business matters. [24]When he was introduced to the king, he honored him with an air of authority and bought the high priesthood for himself, outbidding Jason by 17,100 pounds of silver. [25]When he received the king's assent, he turned up holding no qualifications of the high priesthood but instead displaying the temper of a cruel tyrant and the wrath of a savage beast. [26]So Jason, who had replaced his brother in an unjust manner, was now displaced by another and forced to escape to Ammonitis. [27]Menelaus took authority but didn't send any of the promised money to the king. [28]Sostratus the commander of the elevated fortress[l] demanded settlement of the debt, for he had the responsibility of collecting payment. Finally, the two were summoned by the king. [29]Menelaus left behind as deputy of the high priesthood his own brother Lysimachus, and Sostratus left Crates, who was commander of the troops from Cyprus.

30While these things were happening, the people of Tarsus and Mallus rebelled when their cities were given as a gift to Antiochis, the king's secondary wife. 31The king swiftly set off to restore order to the situation, leaving Andronicus, one of his high-ranking officials, as his deputy. 32Menelaus recognized an opportunity, seized some of the temple's gold equipment, and made them a gift to Andronicus, though he had already sold some of them in Tyre and the surrounding cities. 33When he became aware of what was happening, Onias made accusations against Menelaus after arriving at a safe and sacred place in Daphne near Antioch. 34So Menelaus took Andronicus aside and urged him to do away with Onias. Andronicus came to Onias and [m] persuaded him by deception, extending his strong hand with solemn pledges,[n] to come out of safety despite his fear. Then with no regard for justice, he did away with him on the spot. 35For this reason, not only Jews but also many other people were grieved and angry over the wicked murder of this man. 36When the king had returned from the region of Cilicia, the Jews in the city and some Greeks, feeling hatred for the senseless killing of Onias, obtained an audience with him. 37Antiochus was deeply grieved, moved to pity and tears, because of the modest behavior and good conduct of the dead man. 38Burning with anger, he immediately stripped off Andronicus' purple robe, tore off his clothes, and dragged him around the whole city to the place where he had wrongfully killed Onias. There he rid the world of the murderer, giving him the punishment he deserved from the Lord.

39With Menelaus' approval, Lysimachus committed many sacrilegious acts against the city. There was a report that he smuggled much of the temple's gold equipment abroad, so the populace gathered together against Lysimachus. 40Because the crowds were aroused and furious, Lysimachus armed three thousand men and incited cruel force under the leadership of a certain Auranus, a man as senseless as he was old. 41When the people saw Lysimachus' assault, they grabbed stones and blocks of wood--some even took handfuls of ashes--and they hurled these at Lysimachus' men, causing great confusion. 42In the end, they wounded many, killed some, and forced all of them to flee. They overpowered and killed the temple plunderer Lysimachus near the treasury.

43The people brought charges against Menelaus regarding these matters.
44When the king arrived in Tyre, the council of elders sent three men to present the case before him. 45But Menelaus, without an ally, promised enough money to Ptolemy, Dorymenes' son, to gain the king's support. 46So Ptolemy took the king aside into a royal porch area, as though to get some fresh air. He convinced the king to change his mind. 47So Menelaus, the cause of all the evil, was allowed to leave court acquitted of all charges, but the wretched envoys, who would have been found innocent even had they pleaded their case before Scythians, were falsely condemned to death. 48As a result, these men, who had spoken in defense of the city, the people, and the temple equipment, were abruptly subjected to an unjust penalty. 49For this reason, to show their hatred at such twisted justice, even the Tyrians gave generously so that the men could have an impressive funeral. 50But, through the greed of those in power, Menelaus remained in office and persisted in evil as a great conspirator against the citizens.

Antiochus robs the temple

2Maccabees 5 At about this time, Antiochus made his second invasion of Egypt. 2For about forty days, there were visions of soldiers on horses running through the air around the city. They wore gold garments and were armed with spears and 3with drawn swords. They organized companies of cavalry, each attacking and counterattacking, wielding shields and spears and shooting arrows.
Gold ornaments and armor gleamed brightly. 4As a result, everyone hoped that the visions were a good sign. 5When a false rumor spread that Antiochus had died, Jason took no fewer than a thousand soldiers and made an unexpected assault on the city. When the troops on the wall had been defeated, and the city had been seized at last, Menelaus fled into the elevated fortress.[o] 6Jason mercilessly slaughtered his own citizens. He failed to realize military success against one's own people is the greatest misfortune but thought that he was winning trophies from his enemies and not from his fellow citizens. 7But he didn't gain the government; instead, he received shame as a result of his plot and again fled as a fugitive into Ammonite country. 8Finally, he came to a miserable end. Brought up on charges before Aretas the Arab tyrant, he fled from city to city, chased by everyone. Hated as a traitor to the laws and loathed as the murderer of his native land and citizens, he was cast ashore in Egypt. 9He, who had exiled many from their homeland, died in a foreign land after he sailed to the Spartans to seek protection because of their kinship. [10]So the one who had cast out a crowd of corpses to lie unburied died without mourning and received no funeral or place in his ancestral burial plot.

[11]When the news of these events reached the king, he thought Judea was in revolt. So he broke camp and marched from Egypt while wild with emotion, and took the city by force. [12]He commanded his soldiers to cut down without mercy anyone they met and to slaughter those fleeing into their houses. [13]They killed young and old, murdered adolescents, women and children, and slaughtered virgins and infants. [14]Over a three-day period, eighty thousand people's lives were ruined. Forty thousand were killed in hand-to-hand fighting, and no fewer than those slaughtered were sold as slaves. [15]Not content with these measures, he dared to enter into the holiest temple of all the earth, guided by Menelaus, who had become a traitor to the laws and to his native land. [16]Clutching the holy equipment with polluted and unclean hands, Antiochus made off with them and the things donated by other kings to increase the prestige, glory, and honor of the holy place. [17]Antiochus was really pleased with himself, not realizing the Lord had become angry for a short time because of the sins of those who lived in the city. For this reason, he had shut his eyes to the holy temple.[p] [18]If they hadn't previously been involved in so many sins, Antiochus would have been forced to abandon his rashness and been defeated at once when he attacked, just like Heliodorus (the one King Seleucus sent to inspect the treasury). [19]But the Lord didn't choose the nation because of the place, but the place because of the nation. [20]So the temple[q] also shared the misfortunes of the nation, but afterward it also shared in its good fortunes. That which the almighty abandoned in his wrath would again be restored with all glory when the nation was reconciled to the great Lord.

[21]Antiochus carried away 102,600 pounds of silver from the temple and hurried back to Antioch, imagining in his pride and arrogance that it was possible to sail across the land and march across the sea. [22]He left governors who mistreated the people. In Jerusalem there was Philip of the Phrygians, who had a manner more barbarous than that of the man who appointed him. [23]In Mount Gerizim there was Andronicus, and in addition there was Menelaus, who treated the citizens worse than the others. In his hostility against the Jewish citizens, [24]Antiochus sent Apollonius, a Mysian leader of twenty-two thousand soldiers, with the command to slaughter all adult men but to sell the women and children into slavery. [25]When Apollonius arrived in Jerusalem, he pretended to be peaceable. He waited until the holy Sabbath day to take advantage of the Jewish rest from work, and then he led an armed parade of his troops. [26]He suddenly killed with swords all those who had come out to see the spectacle. While running into the city with his foot soldiers, he slaughtered a large number of the crowd. [27]But Judas, also known as the Maccabee, and about ten men with him, fled into the highlands where he (along with those accompanying him) managed to avoid defiling themselves by living like wild animals: they ate grass for food.

Judaism is outlawed

2Maccabees 6 Shortly afterward the king sent out an Athenian elder[r] to force the Jews to turn away from their ancestral laws and stop living according to God's laws. [2]He was also ordered to defile the temple in Jerusalem and to rename it for Zeus Olympus, and to rename the temple in Mount Gerizim for Zeus, Friend of Strangers,[s] just as the people living there requested. [3]The onslaught of this evil was severe and hard for all to bear. [4]The Gentiles filled the temple with wild partying and sexual indulgence. They were entertaining themselves with prostitutes and having sex with women in the priestly chambers. In addition, they carried in unfit things, [5]and the altar was illegally covered with offerings forbidden by the laws. [6]It was impossible to keep the Sabbath or the ancestral festivals, or even simply to profess to be a Jew. [7]Instead, out of bitter necessity, they had to observe the birthday of the king each month by eating the organs of sacrificial animals. When the Festival of Dionysus arrived, they were forced to take part in a procession honoring Dionysus, holding ivy wreaths. [8]At Ptolemais' suggestion,[t] a decision was announced to the neighboring Greek cities that they should adopt the same policy against the Jews and that they should be made to eat the sacrificial portions, [9]and that those who refused to change to Greek practices should be slaughtered. At that point it was easy to see the miserable state that had arrived. [10]For instance, they brought forward two women who had circumcised their sons, with their infants hanging from their breasts. They dragged them around the city publicly, then hurled them down from the city wall. [11]Others gathered secretly into caverns nearby to keep the seventh day, but they were betrayed to Philip. They were all burned together because they were reluctant to defend themselves, out of respect for the most sacred day.

[12]So I urge those stumbling upon this scroll not to shrink back because of these misfortunes but to understand that these punishments weren't for the destruction of our people but for their discipline. [13]It is a sign of great kindness that those Jews who acted immorally weren't left alone for very long but experienced punishments immediately. [14]With other nations the Lord patiently delays punishment until they fill up the full measure of their sins, but with us he decided to deal differently, and is exacting retribution on us before [15]our sins reach their peak. [16]Therefore, he never withdraws his mercy from us. Although disciplining us with misfortunes, God doesn't forsake his own people. [17]Only let this be said to us as a reminder. After this brief digression, it is necessary to go on with the narrative.

Martyrs for the faith

[18]A certain Eleazar, one of the leading scribes, elderly in age and with a most dignified outward appearance, was being compelled to open his mouth and eat pork. [19]But preferring death with honor to life with religious defilement, he proceeded voluntarily to the torture instrument, [20]spitting out the meat. In this he showed how everyone ought to stand fast and reject what isn't lawful to taste despite the intense desire to live.

[21]But those in charge of the unlawful sacrifice, because they had known the man for a long time, took him aside in private and urged him to bring meat that was lawful, prepared beforehand by himself, and then pretend to eat the meat from the sacrifice that the king commanded. [22]By doing this he might escape death and attain friendly treatment because of his old friendship with them. [23]But adopting a dignified perspective worthy of his seniority, his distinguished old age and the gray hair he had acquired, and worthy of his excellent conduct from childhood, and, moreover, worthy of the holy and God-created laws, he declared to them to send him to the grave[u] immediately: [24]"It's not worthy of our old age to act out such a role. Otherwise, many of the young would assume wrongly that Eleazar the 90-year-old had changed to a foreign way of life. [25]If I acted out this charade for the sake of living a moment longer, I would mislead them, and I would be defiled and dishonored in my old age. [26]Even if I escaped the punishment of human beings for the moment, I would certainly not escape the hands of the almighty--whether alive or dead. [27]So I give up my life courageously now to show myself worthy of my old age,[28]and to leave a fine example for the young people of how to die a good death with eagerness and dignity for the revered and sacred laws." After he spoke he immediately approached the torture instrument. 29[v] Those who had shown goodwill toward him earlier now felt hostility toward him,[w] because the words he had spoken seemed insane to them. 30When his life was about to end from the beating, he groaned, "It is clear to the Lord with his sacred knowledge that, although I could have been saved from death, I endure in my body harsh pain from this beating, yet in my soul I cheerfully suffer these things because I respect him."31In this manner he died, and his own death left behind a most noble and memorable example of virtue not only for the youth but also for the majority of his nation.

2Maccabees 7 There were also seven brothers who were arrested along with their mother. The king was trying to compel them to eat the forbidden pork by torturing them with whips and cords. 2One of them, speaking on behalf of the others, said, "What do you hope to ask and learn from us? We are prepared to die rather than sin against our ancestral laws."3The king became angry and commanded frying pans and cauldrons to be heated. 4As soon as they were hot, he commanded that the one acting as spokesman have his tongue cut out, be scalped, and have his hands and feet cut off while the rest of his brothers and his mother watched. 5After the brother was maimed and utterly helpless, the king commanded him to be brought to the fire and fried alive. Although the smoke from the pan had spread widely, the brothers and their mother encouraged each other to die honorably, saying, 6"The Lord God truly watches over us and will come to our aid. Moses testified to this in his song against them, saying, 'God will have compassion on his servants.'"[x]

7After the first brother died in this manner, they led forward the second one with mockery. They ripped off the skin of his head along with the hair and demanded, "Will you eat before every part of your body is punished limb by limb?"

8But he answered in his native language, "Not at all." Therefore, this brother also received in turn the same punishment as the first. 9With his last breath he said, "You, who are marked out for vengeance, may take our present life, but the king of the universe for whose laws we die will resurrect us again to eternal life."

10After this, the third one was mocked. When it was demanded, he put out his tongue quickly, extended his hands courageously, [11]and stated with dignity, "I have received these limbs from heaven, and I give them up for the sake of God's laws. But I hope to recover them from God again."[12]The king and those with him marveled at the young man's spirit, since he considered his agonies nothing.

[13]After this one had died, the tormenters tortured the fourth brother as well. [14]When the end was approaching, he said, "Death at the hands of humans is preferable, since we look forward to the hope that God gives of being raised by him. But for you there will be no resurrection to life."

[15]Immediately afterward, they led the fifth brother forward and began to torture him. [16]While looking at the king he said, "You, though human, have power among human beings and do what you want. But don't think that God has abandoned our people. [17]Just wait and observe his great strength, when God will torture you and your children."

[18]After him they brought forward the sixth brother. As he was about to die, he said, "Don't deceive yourself in vain. We suffer these things because of our own sins against our God. Things worthy of wonder have happened. [19]But don't think you will escape unpunished after trying to fight against God."

[20]The mother was particularly amazing and worthy of an honorable memory. She watched her seven sons die in the course of a single day but accepted it with a stout heart because of her hope in the Lord. [21]She encouraged each of them in their native language. Filled with noble thoughts, she fired up her womanly reasoning with manly courage, saying to them, [22]"I don't know how you grew in my womb, nor did I grant the breath of life to you or arrange what makes you who you are. [23]For this reason, the creator of the world--who brought about the beginning of humanity and searched out the origin of all things--will again mercifully give you both spirit and life, since you disregard yourselves because of his laws."

[24]Antiochus thought that he was being treated with contempt and was suspicious of the tone of her voice. So he appealed to the youngest son, since he was still alive, not only through words but also through solemn pledges. If the young man turned from his ancestral practices, Antiochus promised him, he would make him both rich and prosperous, he would be considered a political advisor,[y] and he would be entrusted with public affairs. [25]When the young man wouldn't accept the offer by any means, the king appealed to the mother to counsel the boy to save himself. [26]After a great deal of urging, she agreed to try to persuade her son. [27]By leaning toward her son and mocking the savage tyrant, she spoke in their native language: "Son, pity me who carried you in the womb nine months, nursed you for three years, nurtured you, and brought you into this stage of life with care. [28]I beg you, child, to look at heaven and earth. See everything that is in them and know that God made these things from nothing, and created humankind in the same way. [29]Don't fear this killer but prove worthy of your brothers. Accept death so that in God's mercy I should recover you with your brothers."

[30]Just at the moment when she finished speaking,[z] the young man said, "What are you all waiting for? I don't intend to obey the king's order, but I hear the command of the Law given to our ancestors through Moses. [31]But you, King, who have invented all sorts of evil against the Hebrews, will by no means escape God's power. [32]We are suffering because of our own sins. [33]If our living Lord is angry for a short time in order to rebuke and discipline us, he will again be reconciled with his own servants. [34]But you, unholy man, the most bloodstained of all people, don't be so proud without having cause. Bloated by futile hope, you raise up your hand against the children of heaven. [35]You haven't at all escaped the judgment of the almighty God, who oversees all. [36]Now our brothers, who endured pain for a short time, have been given eternal life under God's covenant, but you will suffer the penalty of your arrogance by the righteous judgment of God. [37]Just like my brothers, I give up both body and life for the ancestral laws. I call upon God to be merciful to the nation without delay, and to make you confess, after you suffer trials and diseases, that only he is God. [38]Also I hope through me and my brothers to stop the anger of the almighty, who is justly punishing our entire nation."[39]Bitterly annoyed at the young boy's contempt, the king grew angry and treated him worse than the others. [40]And this brother then died with integrity, trusting entirely in the Lord. [41]Last, after her sons, the mother died.

[42]So then with regard to the eating of sacrificial meats and the extreme tortures they suffered, let this account be sufficient.

Judas the Maccabee revolts

2Maccabees 8 Judas, also named the Maccabee, and his companions went secretly into the villages and called together their relatives and those who continued to follow Judaism, enlisting a force of about six thousand soldiers.
2 They called on the Lord to look on the people who were oppressed by all, to take pity on the temple that was degraded by ungodly people, 3 and to have mercy on the city that was being destroyed and about to be leveled. They called on the Lord to listen to the shed blood of those who had appealed to God for help, 4 to remember the needless massacre of innocent infants, and to show his hatred of the evil things said against his name. 5 Once he organized his army, the Maccabee couldn't be stopped by the Gentiles, because the Lord's wrath had turned into mercy. 6 He would come suddenly into towns and villages, set them ablaze, capture a number of the strategically important places, and put many of the enemy to flight. 7 He especially found the night advantageous for such attacks. Talk of his good courage spread everywhere.

8 Philip saw how Judas was progressing little by little and gaining ground with each success, so he wrote to Ptolemy the governor of Coele-Syria and Phoenicia to come to the aid of the royal government. 9 Nicanor, Patroclus' son, one of the king's most important political advisors,[a] was immediately chosen and sent with a military unit of no fewer than twenty thousand men of various nationalities to eliminate Judea's entire population. He also sent with him Gorgias, a general experienced in military affairs. 10 Nicanor agreed to raise the payment that the king owed the Romans--114,000 pounds of silver--by selling the Jewish prisoners of war. 11 Immediately, he sent a message into the coastal cities, summoning them to purchase Jews as slaves, setting the price at fifty-seven pounds of silver for every ninety persons. But he didn't anticipate the judgment that was coming from the almighty.

12 When news of Nicanor's plan reached Judas, he told those with him about the imminent appearance of the military force. 13 The cowardly and those who didn't trust God's judgment ran away and hid themselves. 14 Some were selling all they possessed while at the same time calling on the Lord to rescue those whom Nicanor had sold even before they met. 15 They asked that God do this, if not for their sake then for the sake of the covenants with their ancestors, and because he had called them by his revered and glorious name.

16 The Maccabee gathered around him approximately six thousand men. He encouraged them not to be terrified by their enemies nor to fear the great number of Gentiles coming at them unjustly. Rather, they were to fight honorably [17]and keep before their eyes the outrage committed unlawfully in the holy place, the torture of the scorned city, and the overthrow of their ancestral way of life. [18]"They rely on weapons and daring," he said, "but we trust in the almighty God, who is able to strike down with a single nod those coming against us--and even the whole world."[19]He also gave them examples of when God helped their ancestors, such as when one hundred eighty-five thousand of the enemy died during the time of Sennacherib, [20]or the battle with the Galatians in Babylonia. A total of eight thousand Jewish troops went into action along with four thousand Macedonians, who got into severe difficulty, yet the eight thousand Jewish forces, with the assistance they received from heaven, killed one hundred twenty thousand of the enemy and took the spoils of war.

[21]With such words he so encouraged them that they were prepared to die for their laws and homeland. He divided the army into four parts and [22]appointed his brothers as commanders of each unit. Simon, Joseph, and Jonathan each commanded fifteen hundred men, [23]while Eleazar was publicly to read aloud the holy scroll.

Giving the watchword of "God's help," Judas took command of the first military unit and attacked Nicanor. [24]With the almighty as their ally, they slaughtered more than nine thousand of the enemy, wounding and disabling many of Nicanor's army and driving them all to flight. [25]They seized the funds of those who came to buy them. After pursuing them a long way, they returned while there was still time [26]because it was the day before the Sabbath. For that reason they didn't continue to pursue them. [27]After collecting the arms of the enemy and stripping them of their spoils, they kept the Sabbath, praising and giving thanks to the Lord for saving them that day and for giving them this initial sign of mercy. [28]When the Sabbath had ended, they shared the loot with those who had suffered torture, with the widows, and with the orphans. They divided up the rest with their children. [29]When they had completed these final tasks, they made a common appeal and prayed for the merciful Lord to be reconciled finally with his servants.

[30]In close combat with the supporters of Timothy and Bacchides, they killed more than twenty thousand men and easily took control over some high fortresses. The war spoils that they took they divided equally between themselves and those suffering torture: the orphans, the widows, and also the elderly. [31]They carefully placed the captured armor all together in strategic places, but the rest of the spoils they carried into Jerusalem. [32]They killed the commander of Timothy's troops, a most ungodly man who had caused grief to many Jews. [33]While celebrating victory in their homeland, they burned alive those who had set on fire the sacred gates, including Callisthenes, who had fled into a small house, so that he received the just reward for his sin.[b] [34]But the utterly corrupt Nicanor, who had invited one thousand merchants for the sale of the Jews, [35]was humiliated with the Lord's help by those he despised the most. He stripped off his stately uniform and traveled into Antioch by the inland road like a lone fugitive, having succeeded only in destroying his own army. [36]The one who accepted the mission to collect the tribute for the Romans from the Jerusalem prisoners of war announced publicly that the Jews had a defender and that, as a result, the Jews couldn't be defeated because they followed God's ordained laws.

Antiochus retreats and dies

2Maccabees 9 About this time Antiochus retreated in confusion out of the region of Persia. [2]When he had come into Persepolis, he attempted to loot the temple and take over the city. However, he was decisively beaten when the populace took up arms. Antiochus fled from the inhabitants and had to make a shameful retreat. [3]News reached him at Ecbatana of what happened to Nicanor and to Timothy's forces. [4]Swelling with rage, he planned to make the Jews pay for his own calamity when he was recently forced to flee. So he ordered his chariot driver to keep driving without stopping in order to complete the journey, but the judgment of heaven was already on him. He had said in his arrogance, "When I get to Jerusalem, I will turn it into a mass grave for the Jews."

[5]But the all-seeing Lord God of Israel struck him with a deadly and invisible blow. As soon as he had uttered this statement, he developed a pain in his stomach and a cruel torment in his internal organs from which he could find no relief. [6]This was altogether just, since he had tortured the inner organs of others with many extraordinary torments. [7]By no means, however, did it put a stop to his arrogance. In his contempt, a fiery anger against the Jews still filled him, and he issued a command to increase the speed of the journey. Then he fell from the chariot as it rushed along, and he suffered a severe accident that caused him pain all over his body. [8]Only a short time earlier, he had thought in his superhuman arrogance to command the waves of the sea and to be able to place the mountain peaks in a pair of scales. Now he was thrown down to the ground and was carried in a stretcher[c] for the remainder of his journey, demonstrating God's power to all. [9]Worms issued from the eyes[d] of this ungodly man. While he was living in pain and in agony, his flesh was rotting away, and the whole camp stank of rottenness from his smell. [10]The one who had formerly thought that he could touch the stars of heaven couldn't be transported by anyone because of the intense, unbearable stench.

[11]From this point on, he began to lose arrogance. He felt devastated and became aware of the divine punishment, suffering intense pain every moment. [12]Unable to put up with his own odor, he said, "It is fair to submit to God and for humans to stop thinking that they are God's equals."[13]This repulsive individual solemnly promised to the Lord (although God no longer had mercy on him), declaring that [14]the holy city, to which he was rushing to knock down to the ground and turn into a mass cemetery, was now free. [15]And he would make all Jews equal to the Athenians, even though previously he had considered them unworthy of burial but fit only for bird food, and their infants fit for animals to prey upon. [16]He would adorn the holy temple, which he had formerly looted, with the most beautiful offerings. He would restore the temple equipment many times over and would give liberally from his own revenues to the expenses for the sacrifices. [17]In addition, he would become a Jew and would visit every inhabited place, announcing publicly God's power. [18]When his pains didn't diminish in any way--for God's judgment had come upon him justly--and he had given up hope, he wrote to the Jews a letter of appeal. This was the content:

> [20]If you are in good health and your children and affairs are prospering, I give thanks to God with great joy, having hope in heaven, [21]remembering with affection your honor and goodwill.[e] After returning from Persia and falling ill, which created a serious situation, I regarded it as necessary to think of the common safety of all the people. [22]I haven't abandoned my situation as hopeless but rather hold on to hope that I might recover from the illness. [23]I have also considered, however, that my father (on the occasions when he fought in the upper regions) used to appoint a successor to rule. [24]He did this so that if anything should happen contrary to expectation or even if there should be some unwelcome news, people throughout the country would know that someone was left behind to govern and wouldn't be deprived of their peace of mind. [25]Moreover, observing how neighboring dynasties and kingdoms wait for the right moment and look forward with anticipation to what might happen next, I appoint my son Antiochus as king. Many times when I had to hurry to the upper provinces, I entrusted and commended him to most of you. I have written these orders to him as well. [26]I call on you then, and request each one of you--remembering my benefits both public and private--to be faithful toward me and my son. [27]I firmly believe he will follow my example closely, acting with kindness and generosity, with the intention of accommodating himself to you.

[28]Then the murderer, who also showed God the greatest disrespect, suffered the worst things, just as he had treated others. His life ended pitifully in a foreign area in the mountains. [29]Philip, who was his close friend, transported his body home. But he was suspicious of the king's son Antiochus, so he fled to Ptolemy Philometor in Egypt.

2Maccabees 10

The Maccabee and his companions, with the Lord leading them, recovered the temple and the city. [2]They demolished the altars that the foreigners built near the marketplace, as well as the sacred precincts. [3]They cleansed the temple and made another altar. Then they struck flints to make fire and they offered up sacrifices after a lapse of two years, and they prepared incense, lamps, and the sacred loaves. [4]After they had done these things, they bowed to the ground and pleaded with the Lord that they would not experience such misfortunes again, but if they should ever sin, they would be disciplined by him with fairness and not turned over to slanderous and barbaric nations. [5]On the anniversary of the temple's defilement by foreigners, on that very day, the sanctuary was purified, on the twenty-fifth of the month, which is Kislev.[f] [6]They celebrated eight days with cheer in a manner like the Festival of Booths, remembering how during the previous Festival of Booths they had been roaming about in mountains and caverns like animals. [7]So they held ivy wands, beautiful branches, and also palm leaves, and offered hymns to the one who had made the purification of his own temple[g] possible. [8]They voted and issued a public decree that all Jews should celebrate these days each year. [9]And so the matters concerning Antiochus called Epiphanes came to an end.

Wars of Antiochus Eupator

[10]We will now report about what occurred under Antiochus Eupator, that ungodly man's son, summarizing the distressful events of the dreadful wars. [11]When this man received the kingdom, he appointed a certain Lysias as supreme governor of Coele-Syria and Phoenicia. [12]Ptolemy, called Macron, took the lead in showing justice to the Jews because of the wrongs done to them, and he tried to handle matters concerning them peacefully. [13]Because of this, the king's political advisors[h] accused him before Eupator and branded him a traitor. They accused him of abandoning Cyprus after Philometor had entrusted him with it, and of going back to Antiochus Epiphanes. Because Ptolemy no longer commanded the respect of his high office,[i] he poisoned himself and died.

[14]Gorgias, who became governor of the region, maintained a mercenary army and waged constant war against the Jews. [15]In addition to him, the Idumeans who controlled some strategic fortresses harassed the Jews. They gave safe harbor to those who were driven from Jerusalem and tried to keep the war going. [16]The Maccabee and his followers were praying and calling on God to help them. They rushed against the Idumean fortresses. [17]After mounting a vigorous attack, they gained control of all the sites and held off those fighting on the wall. They slaughtered all those they encountered, killing at least twenty thousand. [18]When no fewer than nine thousand fled into two towers well equipped for a siege, [19]the Maccabee departed to other places that needed his urgent attention, leaving Simon, Joseph, and Zacchaeus with a sufficient force for the siege of these towers. [20]Some men in the towers bribed greedy people around Simon. These people in turn, after receiving seventy thousand drachmen,[j] allowed some of the enemy to slip away. [21]When the Maccabee found out what happened, he gathered the leaders of the people and accused them of selling their brothers for silver by setting free the enemy. [22]He executed the traitors and then quickly took the two towers. [23]He was successful in all things relating to war and killed more than twenty thousand men in the two towers.

[24]Timothy, who was defeated by the Jews earlier, assembled a large number of foreign troops and brought many horses from Asia. He arrived intending to fight against Judea. [25]As he approached, the Maccabee's followers prayed to God for help. Sprinkling their heads with dust, wrapping themselves with mourning clothes, [26]and falling down opposite the foundation of the altar, they begged God to be gracious to them, to be hostile to those hostile to them, and to be an opponent of their opponents, just as the Law promises.[k] [27]After praying, they took up arms and moved out some distance from the city. They drew near to their enemies and then halted. [28]At dawn, each side attacked. As an assurance of success and victory, the Jews had their courage and their trust in the Lord, but the Greeks made rage the driving force of their struggles. [29]When the battle became fierce, five magnificent men from heaven appeared to the enemy, riding on horses with gold bridles and leading the Jews. [30]Two of them took the Maccabee between them, completely protecting him against harm with their own armor, and they shot arrows and thunderbolts into the ranks of their opponents. Thrown into confusion by blindness, the enemy then ran off in different directions, filled with terror. [31]Twenty thousand five hundred foot soldiers and six hundred cavalry were cut down.

[32]But Timothy himself fled into a fortress called Gazara, a secured area commanded by Chaereas. [33]The followers of the Maccabee eagerly attacked the area for four days. [34]Because the place was strongly fortified, those inside verbally insulted the enemy, uttering unlawful words. [35]As the fifth day began, twenty of the young men among the Maccabee's followers burned with anger because of the verbal insults, and they bravely attacked the wall. In savage fury, they cut down anyone they found. [36]As this destruction occurred, others also went up after them against those inside, set the towers on fire, stoked the flames, and burned the offenders alive. When others tore down the gates, letting in the rest of the army, they took the city. [37]They slaughtered Timothy, who had hidden himself in a cistern, as well as his brother Chaereas and also Apollophanes. [38]With these things accomplished, they praised the Lord with hymns and thanks for showing kindness to Israel and giving victory to them.

Lysias and the Jews

2Maccabees 11 Lysias, the guardian and relative of the king, was in charge of the government. After a very short time he became extremely displeased at what happened. [2]He led eighty thousand troops and all his cavalry against the Jews. He intended to make the city a Greek territory, [3]to make the temple subject to tribute like the sacred sites of other nations, and to put the high priesthood on sale every year. [4]He gave no thought whatsoever to the power of God but was inflated by his tens of thousands of foot soldiers, his thousands of cavalry, and his eighty elephants. [5]He entered Judea, drew near to Beth-zur (a strongly fortified town about a half mile[l] from Jerusalem), and attacked it. [6]When the Maccabee's followers received information that Lysias was surrounding the fortresses, they and all the people begged the Lord with laments and tears to send a good angel to save Israel. [7]The Maccabee was himself the first to take up arms, and he urged the others to run risks as he did and to come to the aid of their brothers. They dashed out at once, ready for action. [8]While they were still near Jerusalem, a horseman in white garments and wearing full body armor made of gold appeared to them and led them. [9]All together they praised the merciful God, and their souls were strengthened. They prepared themselves to attack not only men but also the most fierce animals and even the iron walls. [10]They proceeded in battle order, having a heavenly ally thanks to the Lord's mercy toward them. [11]Charging like lions against their enemies, they took down eleven thousand foot soldiers and sixteen hundred horses, and they put all the rest to flight. [12]Most of them escaped wounded and naked, while Lysias himself escaped by disgracefully running away. [13]Showing intelligence, Lysias pondered the reality of this defeat and realized that the Hebrews, assisted by God's power, couldn't be defeated. So he sent a messenger [14]and persuaded them to come to a just settlement in all issues concerning civil rights. He also persuaded[m] them that he would convince the king to become their friend. [15]The Maccabee consented to Lysias' proposals, thinking it was best for all involved. Whatever the Maccabee presented in writing to Lysias concerning the Jews, the king granted.

[16]This is what Lysias' letter[n] to the Jews said:

> [17]Lysias to the Jewish community. Greetings!
> John and Absalom, the men you sent, gave me the administrative document copied below and made a request concerning its contents. [18]Whatever needed to be presented in person to the king, I stated plainly; and whatever was feasible, he has granted. [19]If then you will preserve goodwill toward the government, in the future I will attempt to promote your well-being. [20]But concerning the details, I commanded these men to confer with you, along with my representatives. [21]Farewell!

Year 148, the twenty-fourth day of the month of Dios Korinthos.[o]

[22]This is what the king's letter said:

[23]King Antiochus to his brother Lysias. Greetings!

After our father joined the gods, it was my desire that those who want calm be left alone to tend to their own business. [24]We heard that the Jews haven't agreed to change to the Greek way of life, as our father wanted, but preferred their own way of life and asked to be permitted to have their own law. [25]Since we would choose for this nation to be free from unrest, we have decided to restore to them their temple and to let them conduct their life according to the customs of their ancestors. [26]You would do well, then, to send a message to them and assure them of friendship, so that they might know our policy and be at ease and live cheerfully, achieving their own goals.

[27]This is what the king's letter to the nation said:

King Antiochus to the Jewish council of elders and to all other Jews. Greetings!

[28]If you are well, it is what we wish. We are also in good health. [29]Menelaus has informed us that you want to return home to take care of your own affairs. [30]Those who return by the thirtieth of Xanthicus[p] will have our pledge of friendship with no need for fear. [31]We will allow the Jews to follow their own dietary laws and other laws just as they used to do, and not let anyone bother them concerning any crime committed in ignorance. [32]I have also sent Menelaus to comfort you. [33]Be well!

Year 148, the fifteenth day of the month of Xanthicus.

[34]Also the Romans sent a letter to the Jews that said:

Quintus Memmius, Titus Manius, ambassadors of the Romans, to the people of the Jews. Greetings!

[35]Lysias the king's relative has handed rights over to you, and we agree. [36]But give consideration immediately to whatever he decided to bring to the attention of the king; you should consider and then send someone immediately concerning your views, so that we might make suggestions to you, as is appropriate. We are approaching Antioch, [37]so hurry and send someone so that we might also know of your opinion. [38]Be in good health!

Year 148, the fifteenth day of the month of Xanthicus.

Judas' victories

2Maccabees 12 Having reached these agreements, Lysias returned to the king while the Jews went back to farming. [2]But some of the regional governors--Timothy and Apollonius (Gennaeus' son), Hieronymous and Demophon, as well as Nicanor the commander from Cyprus--wouldn't permit them to live in peace. [3]Some men from Joppa committed a horrible act. After calling together the Jews living among them with their wives and children, they invited them to go sailing in boats that they provided. They acted as if they had no hostility against them at all. [4]This was a decision made by the city as a whole. The Jews accepted the invitation because they desired to live together with them peaceably, and the Jews had no suspicions. But they took them out to sea and drowned them--no fewer than two hundred people. [5]When Judas received news of the cruelty that had happened to his fellow Jews, he gave orders to his troops. [6]After calling out to God the righteous judge, he moved against the murderers of their brothers, setting fire to the harbor by night, burning the boats, and killing those who took refuge there. [7]Because a large area of the city was secured against his attack, he departed, intending to return and root out the entire citizen community of Joppa. [8]He learned that the people of Jamnia were also planning to finish off the Jews living among them in the same way. [9]So Judas mounted a night attack against Jamnia and set its harbor and fleet on fire, so that the gleams of light shone in Jerusalem twenty-eight miles[q] away.

[10]When Judas withdrew about a mile[r] away from Jamnia, in pursuit of Timothy, Arabs attacked him with no fewer than five thousand men and five hundred cavalry. [11]A fierce battle took place, but Judas' followers were successful because of God's help. The defeated nomads asked Judas for a pledge of friendship, promising to give them some livestock and to be of service to them in other ways. 12Judas agreed to make peace because he thought that they might truly be useful to them in many ways. After pledging friendship to each other, the Arabs[s] departed into their tents.

13Judas also made an attack on a city named Caspin, whose defenses included a fortified bridge and surrounding walls. It was inhabited by people from many nations. 14Because the walls had been solidly secured and there was plenty of food for future use, the inhabitants acted disrespectfully. They not only spoke in an insulting way to Judas' men, they were even uttering unlawful insults against God. 15Calling out to the great mighty one of the universe who caused Jericho to fall in Joshua's time even without battering rams or war engines, Judas' forces attacked the wall furiously. 16They took the city by God's will and killed so many men that a nearby lake a quarter of a mile[t] wide appeared to be filled with blood.

17Withdrawing from there, they made a journey of ninety-four miles[u] to Charax, to those Jews who are called Toubians. 18They didn't find Timothy in the area because he left the region without any success, except that he left behind one military force in a well-secured place. 19But the Maccabee's commanders Dositheus and Sosipater marched out and destroyed those Timothy left in the fortified place, killing more than ten thousand men. 20The Maccabee, dividing the army around him in units, set men in command over the units and moved quickly against Timothy, who had with him one hundred twenty thousand foot soldiers and twenty-five hundred horses. 21After receiving information about Judas' approach, Timothy sent the wives and children and their belongings ahead to a village called Carnaim. He did this because the place was difficult to surround or attack on account of the narrowness of the approaches. 22After Judas' first tactical unit appeared, the enemy was afraid, especially when the "one who sees all things" appeared to them. They took flight, running here and there, so that many were injured by their own comrades and pierced by the tips of their own swords. 23Judas pursued them vigorously. Stabbing sinners left and right, he killed as many as thirty thousand men. 24Timothy himself fell into the hands of Dositheus, Sosipater, and their men. He skillfully argued that he should be set free, persuading them that he held many parents and other relatives as prisoners who might not receive any consideration. 25After he promised repeatedly to return them unharmed, they released him for the benefit of the safety of their relatives.

[26]Next Judas attacked Carnaim and the temple of Atargatis, killing twenty-five thousand people. [27]After overturning and destroying these places, he made war also on Ephron, a fortified city with a mixed population, where Lysias made his home. Strong young men fought bravely, however, in front of the walls where there were also many war engines and arrows. [28]Calling on the Lord who crushes the strength of the enemy, the Jews took control of the city and killed about twenty-five thousand people. [29]Then breaking camp and marching from there, they moved swiftly against Scythopolis, seventy-five miles[v] from Jerusalem. [30]But the Jews who lived there reported that the citizens of Scythopolis showed kindness and a civil attitude toward them even in times of misfortune. [31]They thanked them and encouraged them also to be well-disposed toward their people in the future as well. Then they returned to Jerusalem since the Festival of Weeks was about to begin.

[32]After the Festival of Pentecost they moved against Gorgias, the governor of Idumea. [33]He came out with three thousand foot soldiers and four hundred horses. [34]A small number of Jews fell during the battle. [35]Dositheus, one of Bacenor's men, a strong man on horseback, had seized Gorgias. Holding on to the governor's robe, he dragged him down roughly, trying to take the horrible man alive. But one of the Thracian cavalry men assaulted Dositheus, crushed his shoulder, and Gorgias escaped into Marisa. [36]The men around Esdris were fighting fiercely but became weary. Judas called out to the Lord to show himself as their ally and to lead the battle. [37]Beginning to sing hymns in the native language with a loud voice, he suddenly made an attack against Gorgias' men and defeated them.

[38]Judas took his army and came into the city of Adullam. When the seventh day arrived, they purified themselves according to custom and observed the Sabbath. [39]On the next day, it was necessary for Judas and his men to recover the bodies of the fallen and to bury them with their relatives in the ancestral tombs. [40]They found sacred charms, idols from Jamnia that the Law forbids Jews to wear, under the clothing of each of the dead. It became clear to all why these men had fallen. [41]Then they all praised the Lord, the righteous judge who makes hidden things visible. [42]They appealed to God and prayed for the sin that had been committed to be completely wiped out. The honorable Judas called on the people to keep themselves free from sin, since everyone had seen what had happened because of the sin of those who fell. 43After taking a collection from each man, he sent the sum of two thousand silver drachmen[w] to Jerusalem to provide for a sin offering. He was acting honorably and appropriately, thinking about the resurrection. 44If he hadn't been looking forward to the resurrection of the dead, then it would have been unnecessary and frivolous to pray for them. 45He was looking, however, to that best reward laid up for those who die in godliness, and so this was a pious and holy thought. Thus he made an offering of reconciliation so that the dead would be forgiven of their sin.

Events in Modein and Beth-zur

2Maccabees 13 In year 149[x] the news reached Judas' followers that Antiochus Eupator was moving against Judea with a large army. 2With him was Lysias, Antiochus' guardian and head of the government. Each one had a Greek force of one hundred ten thousand foot soldiers, fifty-three hundred cavalry, and twenty-two elephants, as well as three hundred chariots armed with scythes. 3Menelaus also joined them and encouraged Antiochus with many lies, not out of a concern for the safety of his homeland but because he expected that he would be set over the government. 4The king of kings, however, aroused Antiochus' anger against the sinner. When Lysias informed the king that this man was the cause of all the evils, Antiochus commanded that Menelaus be brought to Beroea and executed according to the custom there. 5That place has a tower seventy-five feet tall and full of ashes with a steep rim on all sides leading into the ashes. 6Here anyone guilty of temple robbery or other similar crimes is thrown down to their death. 7In this manner the lawless Menelaus died. He didn't receive a proper burial. 8This was completely just, since he had committed many sins against the altar whose fire and ashes were holy, so in ashes he died.

9The king became barbaric in his thoughts and intended to show the Jews far worse things than his father did. 10When Judas learned of these things, he commanded the community to call on the Lord day and night--now if ever--to help those soon to be deprived of the Law, the homeland, and the holy temple. 11They were to pray that the people who had recently enjoyed temporary relief not be permitted again to come under the control of slanderous nations. 12After everyone had prayed in the same manner together--pleading with the merciful

Lord with weeping and fasting and lying facedown for three days--Judas called them together and commanded them to report for duty. [13]In consultation with the elders, Judas decided to march out to determine the matter by God's help before the army of the king could enter Judah and take control of the city. [14]He left the decision to the creator of the universe and called on his men to fight to the death for the laws, temple, city, country, and citizenship. He made the region of Modein his headquarters [15]and gave his men the watchword "God's Victory." He chose the best of the young men, and attacked the king's quarters in the enemy camp at night. They killed nearly two thousand men as well as the lead elephant, stabbing its rider. [16]After they filled the camp with fear and panic, they departed in good spirits. [17]This had happened just as the day was dawning because the Lord's protection had come to Judas' aid.

[18]Having received a taste of the Jews' courage, the king made an attempt on their military positions through other tricks. [19]He moved against a well-protected watch-post of the Jews at Beth-zur, but he was pushed back. He struck again, but this time he was defeated. [20]Judas sent necessary supplies to those inside. [21]But Rhodocus from the Judean ranks gave military secrets to the enemies. When it was discovered, he was caught and imprisoned. [22]The king negotiated again with those in Beth-zur. They shared tokens of friendship. Then he went away, mounted an attack against Judas' men, and was defeated. [23]Meanwhile, he received news that Philip (left in charge of the government in Antioch) had rebelled. He was entirely caught off guard, and so offered reconciliation to the Jews, accepted their terms, swore to respect all their rights, and reached a settlement. He also offered a sacrifice, honored the temple, and was generous toward the place. [24]He welcomed the Maccabee and made Hegemonides governor from Ptolemais to Gerar. [25]Then he went to Ptolemais. The people of Ptolemais found it hard to accept the agreement. They became very angry and wanted to annul the terms of the treaty. [26]In defense Lysias spoke publicly as well as he could and convinced and appeased them. After gaining their support, he marched into Antioch. So this is how the advance and withdrawal of the king occurred.

Alcimus and Nicanor

2Maccabees 14 Three years later it was reported to Judas' followers that Demetrius, Seleucus' son, had sailed into the harbor at Tripolis with a strong army and a fleet. [2]It was also reported that he had taken possession of the country, killing Antiochus and his guardian Lysias. [3]A certain Alcimus, who had become high priest earlier but had willingly defiled himself during the revolt, became aware that he was no longer safe and that he would no longer have access to the holy altar. [4]He approached King Demetrius in the year 151,[y] bringing him a gold crown, a palm tree, and some customary gifts of olive branches from the temple. He kept quiet that day [5]but waited for the right opportunity to accomplish his folly. Finally, Demetrius called him into the council to ask him about the condition of the Jews and their frame of mind. He replied, [6]"The Jews called Hasideans, whose leader is Judas the Maccabee, maintain a warlike policy and rebel frequently, not permitting the kingdom to have peace. [7]Deprived of my ancestral glory--I speak of course of the high priesthood--I have now come here,[8]first out of a sincere concern for the king's interests and second out of regard for my fellow citizens. Through the recklessness of those mentioned earlier, the entire nation is in a state of misfortune. [9]But, King, since you have knowledge of these things, take thought for both the country and our oppressed nation with the same generosity you have had for all. [10]As long as Judas lives, the government is powerless to establish peace."

[11]Alcimus had no sooner finished speaking when the rest of the political advisors,[z] who strongly disliked Judas, further enraged Demetrius. [12]Immediately choosing Nicanor the commander of the elephants and appointing him governor of Judea, the king sent him out [13]with written orders to kill Judas and scatter those with him, and to install Alcimus as high priest of the greatest temple. [14]The Judean Gentiles who had fled from Judas joined Nicanor in large numbers, thinking that they would benefit from the misfortunes and calamities of the Jews.

[15]When they heard about Nicanor's advance and the support he had from the Gentiles, the Jews sprinkled themselves with earth. They prayed to the one who had established his own people forever and who always helped them by intervening on their behalf. [16]At the command of their leader Judas, they immediately broke camp, marched from there, and met the enemy at the village of Dessau. [17]Simon, Judas' brother, met Nicanor in battle but was slowly losing ground because of the unexpected confusion caused by their enemies. [18]Nevertheless, when Nicanor heard that Judas' troops were fighting bravely and courageously as they struggled for their homeland, he was somewhat afraid to decide the matter through bloodshed. [19]So he sent Posidonius, Theodotus, and Mattathias to develop a peace agreement. [20]When the Jews had carefully inspected the proposal, and their leader Judas had informed the community, who appeared to give unanimous consent, they accepted the terms of the agreement. [21]They set a day on which the leaders from each side would come to the same place in private, a chariot coming from each side, with chairs set out for the meeting. [22]Judas placed armed men in appropriate places, in order to prevent unexpected treachery from the enemies. So they held successful negotiations.

[23]Nicanor lived for a time in Jerusalem and did nothing improper. He dismissed the crowds of ordinary people who gathered there. [24]He kept Judas continually in his presence since he became strongly attached to the man. [25]He encouraged him to marry and to have children. So Judas married, enjoyed tranquillity, and began to live a normal life.

[26]When Alcimus noted the goodwill that Nicanor and Judas had toward each other, he obtained the documents of agreement drawn up between them and went to Demetrius. He claimed that Nicanor was disloyal to the government because he had appointed Judas, who plotted against the king, as his successor. [27]The king was furious and, provoked by the accusations of the thoroughly depraved Alcimus, wrote to Nicanor. He forcefully asserted that he was displeased with the terms of agreement and ordered him to send the Maccabee as a prisoner to Antioch immediately. [28]When this order reached Nicanor, he was upset and found it difficult to revoke the agreements, seeing how the man had done no wrong. [29]But he couldn't defy the king, so he watched for an opportune time to set a trap. [30]But the Maccabee noticed that Nicanor was becoming more reserved toward him, conducting customary meetings in a less courteous manner. Sensing that this new rudeness wasn't for the best, he gathered a large number of men and hid from Nicanor. [31]When Nicanor realized that Judas had completely outwitted him, he went to the great and holy temple where priests were offering up the appropriate sacrifices and ordered them to hand over the man. [32]When they asserted with solemn pledges that they didn't know where he was, [33]he stretched out his strong hand against the temple and made the following pronouncement: "If you don't turn Judas over to me as a prisoner, I will level the sacred area of God, tear down the altar to the ground, and build here a great temple to Dionysus."[34]With these words, he left. But the priests, stretching out their hands to heaven, called on the one who always fights in defense of our nation, saying, 35"You, Lord, who need nothing, made the temple your dwelling among us.

36Now, holy one, Lord of all holiness, keep your newly purified house free from all defilement forever."

37A Jerusalem elder named Razis was denounced to Nicanor as someone who loved the citizens, was well spoken of, and was called "Father of the Jews" because of his kindness. 38Early on in the revolt, he had been put on trial for Judaism and risked body and soul for its cause. 39Wanting to make public the hatred he had toward the Jews, Nicanor sent a group of more than five hundred soldiers to take him, 40because he thought that by arresting him, he would create a problem for the Jewish people.[a] 41When the mob was about to take the tower, forcing open the door of the courtyard, they commanded that the door be set on fire. Razis was surrounded on every side, so he fell on his own sword. 42He wanted to die bravely rather than fall into the hands of sinners and suffer outrages unworthy of his own high birth. 43But the blow didn't strike its mark because of the haste of the struggle and the surge of the mob through the doors.
Running with honor out onto the wall, he courageously threw himself down into the mob. 44When they suddenly drew back, a space opened up, and he landed in the middle of it. 45While still breathing and burning with anger, he rose up, ignoring the gushing blood and the terrible injuries, and made his way through the crowd to stand on a pile of rubble. 46Entirely drained of blood, he tore out his intestines, took them in both hands, and threw them at the mob. As he did this, he called out to the one with authority over life and spirit to return his insides to him, and in this manner he died.

Nicanor's defeat

2Maccabees 15 Nicanor learned that Judas' forces were in the region of Samaria, so he wanted to attack them on the day of rest when there would be no risk. 2But the Jews who were compelled to follow him said, "No! Don't destroy with such cruelty and savagery, but respect the day that is honored with holiness above all others by the one who observes all."

3The repeat offender asked if there was in heaven some mighty one who commanded the keeping of the Sabbath day.

[4]They declared, "The living Lord himself, the ruler in heaven, commands us to keep the seventh day."

[5]Nicanor replied, "And I am the ruler on earth who commands you to take up arms and to carry out the royal orders." Nevertheless, he didn't succeed in carrying out his terrible plan.

[6]Nicanor, holding his head high with all his boasting, decided to build a public monument marking the defeat of Judas' forces. [7]But the Maccabee was fully confident in his hope of obtaining the Lord's help. [8]So he encouraged his troops not to fear the Gentiles' attack but to remember the aid they had previously received from heaven and to look for victory from the almighty now. [9]Reassuring them with words from the Law and the Prophets, and reminding them of the struggles they had overcome, he made them even more eager. [10]Stirring up their spirits, he gave them orders and pointed out at the same time the treachery of the Gentiles and their violation of solemn pledges. [11]He armed each of them not so much with the security of shields and spears as with the encouragement of good words. He also told them about a trustworthy dream--a kind of waking vision--which raised everyone's morale.

[12]In his vision, Judas saw Onias, who had been high priest and was virtuous, good, modest in all things, gentle of manners, and well-spoken. From childhood he had learned all things that properly belong to a good moral life. This man had his hands extended to pray for the entire nation of the Jews. [13]Then in the same manner, another man, noteworthy for his gray hair and dignity, appeared with astonishing and splendid glory. [14]Onias said, "This man is one who loves his brothers and sisters and prays many prayers for the people and the holy city: God's prophet Jeremiah."

[15]Jeremiah extended his strong hand and gave to Judas a gold sword, saying, [16]"Take this holy sword as a gift from God, and with it you will destroy your enemies."

[17]Judas' eloquent and powerful words urged them on to courage and made the young men's spirits brave. They determined not to prepare for a long campaign but to attack honorably and fight hand-to-hand with all courage. In this way the matter would be decided, as danger faced their city, the holy things, and the temple. [18]They weren't as concerned for their women and children, or their brothers and relatives, as they were for the holy temple. [19]Those trapped in the city were also very anxious, fearful of an attack in the open. [20]Everyone was waiting for the upcoming conflict, with fighting units already formed, soldiers drawn up in battle order, beasts sent to strategic positions, and cavalry arranged on either side. [21]The Maccabee saw the masses that were before him, the diverse sorts of equipped military arms, and the fierceness of the elephants, so he extended his hands to heaven and called on the wonder-working Lord. He knew that it isn't through arms that God decides to award victory but he gives it to those who deserve it. [22]He prayed like this: "You, my Lord, sent your angel to Hezekiah king of Judah and he killed one hundred eighty-five thousand from Sennacherib's camp. [23]Now ruler of the heavens, send a good angel in front of us to cause fear and trembling. [24]May your mighty arm terrify those who come with verbal insults against your holy people." With that he stopped speaking.

[25]Nicanor's forces advanced with trumpet calls and battle cries. [26]But Judas' men battled against their enemies with appeals and prayers. [27]Fighting with their hands but praying to God with their hearts and rejoicing in God's appearance, they killed no fewer than thirty-five thousand soldiers. [28]When they returned from the battle to their camp with joy, they found Nicanor lying dead in full armor. [29]With shouts and excitement, they praised the ruler in their native language. [30]Their leader, who had always fought for the citizens with body and soul and had carefully preserved the goodwill toward his fellow citizens from his youth, commanded that Nicanor's head and arm be cut off and carried to Jerusalem. [31]After arriving there, Judas called together his fellow citizens, stationed the priests at the altar, and sent for those from the elevated fortress.[b]

[32]He displayed the head of the repulsive Nicanor and the slanderer's hand, which he had extended against the almighty's holy house while uttering great boasts. [33]He cut out the tongue of the ungodly Nicanor and ordered that it be given to the birds in pieces, and he hung the rewards of his stupidity in front of the temple. [34]Looking to heaven, everyone praised the Lord, who had made himself known, saying, "Blessed is the one who kept his own holy place pure."[35]Judas hung Nicanor's head from the elevated fortress in plain sight of all, as a clear sign of the Lord's help. [36]The people decided to issue a regulation forbidding anyone to forget this day but reminding all to celebrate the thirteenth day of the twelfth month, called Adar[c] in the Syrian language, the day before Mordecai's day.

37 After things turned out this way with Nicanor, the Hebrews controlled the city from that time on. So at this point I will stop. 38 If the story was told effectively, this is what I wanted. But if it was told in a poor and mediocre fashion, this was the best I could do. 39 Just as it is harmful to drink wine or water alone while wine mixed with water is delightful and produces joy, so also may the writing of this story delight the ears of those who encounter this work.

The end.

1 Esdras[a]

Josiah revives the Passover

1Esdras 1 Josiah celebrated the Passover to the Lord in Jerusalem. He sacrificed the Passover lamb on the fourteenth day of the first month.[b] 2He gave the priests, dressed in religious robes, their daily assignments in the Lord's temple. 3He said to the Levites serving in Israel's temple: "Dedicate yourselves to the Lord for placing the Lord's holy chest in the house that David's son King Solomon built. You don't need to carry it on your shoulders anymore. 4Now worship the Lord your God and serve Israel, God's people. Prepare yourselves according to your families and tribes, and according to the plan of King David and the greatness of his son Solomon. 5Take your positions in the temple according to your inherited priestly[c] groups, serving before your people the Israelites. 6Sacrifice the Passover lamb and prepare sacrifices for your people, and conduct the Passover ceremony according to the rules that the Lord gave to Moses."

7Josiah gave to the people a gift of thirty thousand lambs and kid goats and three thousand calves. These came as promised from the king's own possessions to the people, priests, and Levites. 8Hilkiah, Zechariah, and Jehiel[d] (the chief officials of the temple) gave to the priests for the Passover twenty-six hundred sheep and three hundred calves. 9Jeconiah, Shemaiah and his brother Nethanel, Hashabiah, Ochiel, and Joram, military commanders, gave to the Levites five thousand sheep and seven hundred calves for the Passover.

10This is what happened. Early in the morning the priests and Levites, 11holding the unleavened bread, stood in the proper order of their tribes 12and by their inherited groups. They brought the offerings to the Lord according to the scroll from Moses. 13They roasted the Passover lamb over fire as required. They boiled the sacrifices, with a sweet aroma, in copper pots and kettles and carried them over to all the people. 14Later on, the Levites prepared the Passover meal for themselves and for their fellow priests, Aaron's sons, since the priests were offering the fat of the sacrifices until late into the night. 15The temple singers, Asaph's sons, were in their designated positions according to the instructions set down by David and by Asaph, Zechariah, and Eddinus, the king's advisors. The city gatekeepers were at each gate. No one needed to change his daily routine, because the Levites had prepared the Passover meal for them. [16]Everything for the Lord's sacrifice was accomplished on that day. They celebrated the Passover and offered sacrifices on the Lord's altar according to King Josiah's command.

[17]The Israelites celebrated the Passover and the Festival of Unleavened Bread for seven days. [18]No Passover like it had been celebrated in Israel since the time of the prophet Samuel. [19]Nor had any of the kings of Israel ever celebrated a Passover like that celebrated by Josiah, the priests, the Levites, the Judeans, and all of Israel who were living in Jerusalem. [20]In the eighteenth year of the rule of Josiah this Passover was celebrated.

[21]Josiah did the right thing in the Lord's presence, because his heart was devoted to God. [22]The story of his rule was officially recorded in ancient times. The records include those who sinned and committed ungodly acts toward the Lord, beyond those of any other nation and kingdom. Their acts intentionally grieved the Lord, so that the Lord spoke against Israel.

Death of Josiah

[23]Sometime after Josiah's actions, Pharaoh, Egypt's king, went to start a war at Carchemish on the Euphrates. Josiah went out against him.

[24]The king of Egypt sent a message to Josiah: "What do you want with me, King of Judea?[25]I haven't been sent out by the Lord God against you; rather, my war is at the Euphrates. Now the Lord is with me and urges me on. So stand aside and don't oppose the Lord."

[26]Josiah, however, didn't return to his chariot but resolved to fight. He didn't pay attention to the words of the prophet Jeremiah, which came from the Lord. [27]He went to war with Pharaoh in the plain of Megiddo, and Pharaoh's commanders came against King Josiah. [28]The king said to his attendants, "Take me away from the battle, for I'm severely wounded." His attendants immediately took him away from the line of battle. [29]Josiah got into a second chariot. After he was brought back to Jerusalem, he died and was buried in his family tomb.

[30]The whole land of Judea mourned for Josiah. The prophet Jeremiah also grieved for Josiah. The leading citizens, with the women, grieve over him until this day. This has become a tradition for the whole nation of Israel to observe. [31]These events have been written in the official records of the Judean kings. All of Josiah's actions--including his honor, his understanding of the Law of the Lord, all that he did previously, and these things that are now told--are described in the official records of the kings of Israel and Judea.

[32]Then the leaders of the nation appointed Jeconiah, Josiah's son, who was 23 years old, as king to succeed his father. [33]He ruled in Judea and Jerusalem for three months. Then the king of Egypt removed him from his rule in Jerusalem [34]and fined the nation 5,700 pounds of silver and fifty-seven pounds of gold.

[35]The king of Egypt appointed his own brother Jehoiakim as king of Judea and Jerusalem. [36]Jehoiakim put the officials in prison. He seized his other brother Zarius and took him from Egypt. [37]Jehoiakim was 25 years old when he began to rule over Judea and Jerusalem; he did what was evil in the Lord's presence.

[38]Then Babylon's King Nebuchadnezzar went up against him, bound him with bronze chains, and took him away to Babylon. [39]Nebuchadnezzar also seized some of the Lord's holy equipment, carried it off to Babylon, and placed it in his temple. [40]But the things reported about Jehoiakim,[e] his impurity and godlessness, have been written in the scroll about the times of the kings.

[41]His son Jehoiachin[f] ruled in his place. When he was appointed king, he was 18 years old. [42]He ruled in Jerusalem for three months and ten days, and he did evil things in the Lord's presence.

[43]After a year, Nebuchadnezzar removed Jehoiachin to Babylon, along with the Lord's holy equipment. [44]He appointed Zedekiah king of Judea and Jerusalem when Zedekiah was 21 years old. He ruled for eleven years. [45]He also did evil things in the Lord's presence and paid no attention to the words Jeremiah the prophet spoke, which came from the Lord. [46]Although King Nebuchadnezzar had made him swear a solemn pledge in the Lord's name, he swore falsely and rebelled. He was stubborn and broke the laws of the Lord, the God of Israel.

47The leaders of the people and the priests committed godless and immoral acts far beyond the impure ones of the nations. They even corrupted the Lord's temple that had been made holy in Jerusalem. 48The God of their ancestors sent his messenger to call them back, because he was trying to spare them and his dwelling place. 49But they mocked the messengers and made fun of the prophets on the day that the Lord spoke.

Finally, God, with divine anger, brought the Chaldean kings against his chosen nation because of their godless acts. 50The Chaldeans killed the young people around the holy temple. They spared neither man nor woman, young nor old, for God handed over all of them. 51They seized and carried off to Babylon all the Lord's holy equipment, great and small, the treasure chests of the Lord, and the royal stores. 52They set fire to the Lord's house. They smashed the walls of Jerusalem. They burned its towers with fire. 53They utterly ruined all of its radiance. King Nebuchadnezzar led away the survivors to Babylon under guard.
54They became servants to him and to his sons until the rise of the Persian kingdom, which fulfilled the Lord's word through Jeremiah, 55who said, "Until the land has enjoyed its sabbath rest, it will remain untouched,[g] after its destruction, for seventy years."

Exiles return to Jerusalem

1Esdras 2 In the first year of Cyrus as king of the Persians the Lord motivated the spirit of King Cyrus to fulfill the Lord's word spoken through Jeremiah. He made a royal announcement throughout the whole of his kingdom that he also put into writing. 2This is what Persia's King Cyrus says:

> The Lord of Israel, the Most High Lord, has appointed me king of the entire > world. The Lord has commissioned me to build God's house in Jerusalem in > Judea. 3Therefore, if you are from this nation, may your Lord be with you.[h] Go > up to Jerusalem in Judea and build the house of the Lord of Israel--for this is > the Lord who dwells in Jerusalem. 4As many of you live in other places, help > the Lord with gold and silver, with horses and cattle, in addition to pledging > other things dedicated for the Lord's temple in Jerusalem.

5Then the heads of the families of Judah and Benjamin rose up. The priests and the Levites, and everyone whose spirit the Lord aroused, went up to build a house for the Lord in Jerusalem. [6]Their neighbors helped them with everything, with silver and gold, with horses and cattle, and with many other things pledged by those whose minds were inspired to do so.

[7]King Cyrus also brought out the Lord's holy equipment that Nebuchadnezzar had carried away from Jerusalem and placed in his temple of idols. [8]When King Cyrus of the Persians brought these out, he handed them over to Mithridates, his own treasurer, and through him they were given over to Governor Sheshbazzar[i] of Judea. [9]The number of these was one thousand gold cups, one thousand silver cups, twenty-nine silver censers, [10]thirty gold bowls, twenty-four hundred ten silver bowls, and one thousand other objects. [11]They handed over all five thousand four hundred sixty-nine gold and silver objects. So Sheshbazzar, with the help of war prisoners returning from Babylon, carried the equipment back to Jerusalem.

Opposition to rebuilding Jerusalem

[12]Then during the time of King Artaxerxes of the Persians, Bishlam, Mithridates, Tabeel, Rehum, Beltethmus, Shimshai the scribe, and others associated with them living in Samaria and other places nearby wrote the king a letter, opposing those who were living in Judea and Jerusalem:

[13]To Your Majesty, King Artaxerxes, your servants Rehum the reporter and Shimshai the scribe, and the rest of their council, and the judges in Coele-Syria and Phoenicia:
[14]Our master the king, may you know that the Judeans who came up to us have come to Jerusalem and are rebuilding that rebellious and evil city, restoring its marketplaces and walls, and laying the foundations for a temple. [15]If this city is rebuilt and the walls are completed, not only will they refuse to pay foreign taxes, but they will also be able to resist kings. [16]Since the work on the temple is in progress, we didn't think we should overlook such an act but should call it to the attention of our master the king so that if it concerns you, a search may be made in the records of your ancestors. [17]You will discover in the records what has been written about them. You will learn that this city was rebellious, annoying to both kings and other cities. The Judeans were rebels and would regularly set up huge barriers around the city. That is why this city was destroyed. [18]So we now advise you, Master and King, that if this city is rebuilt and if its walls are erected, you will no longer have secure lines of access to Coele-Syria and Phoenicia.

19The king wrote back to the recorder Rehum, Beltethmus, the scribe Shimshai, and their associates living in Samaria, Syria, and Phoenicia, as follows:

20I have read the letter that you sent to me. 21Consequently, I ordered a search to be made. It was discovered that this city has indeed rallied against kings in the past, that the people in it revolted frequently and started wars, 22and that powerful and cruel kings have ruled in Jerusalem and exacted taxes from Coele-Syria and Phoenicia. 23Therefore, I issued orders to prevent these people from rebuilding the city 24and to take care in advance that nothing more be done and that such wicked designs go no further to upset the kings.

25After King Artaxerxes' letter was read, Rehum and the scribe Shimshai and their associates marched on Jerusalem immediately, with cavalry and a large group of armed troops, in order to stop the builders. 26So the building of the temple in Jerusalem ceased until the second year of the rule of Persia's King Darius.

Contest of the bodyguards

1Esdras 3 Now King Darius gave a great banquet for all his subjects, everyone born in his house, all the officials of Media and Persia, 2and all the chief administrators, generals, and district governors who were under him in the one hundred twenty-seven administrative districts from India to Ethiopia. 3They ate and drank, and they left after they had enough. King Darius retired to his bedroom and went to sleep, but he eventually woke up again.

4Then the three young men, the bodyguards who protected the king, said to each other: 5"Let's each offer one word that we think is the most superior thing in the world. To the one whose statement seems wisest, King Darius will give expensive gifts and great prizes as a reward. 6He should be clothed in purple, drink from gold cups, and sleep on a gold bed. He should have a chariot with gold-studded bridles, a turban of fine linen, and a gold necklace around his neck. 7He will sit next to Darius on account of his wisdom and will be called Darius' confidant."[8]Then each bodyguard composed his own statement and sealed it. They placed them under the pillow of King Darius. They said, [9]"When the king wakes up, his servants will give him the written statements; and whoever's statement the king and the three officials of Persia judge to be wisest will be given the victory according to Persian law."

[10]The first wrote, "Wine is superior."

[11]The second wrote, "The king is superior."

[12]The third wrote, "Women are superior, but truth conquers all."

[13]When the king woke up, they gave the written statements to him, and he read them.

[14]Then he sent for all the officials of Persia and Media and the administrators, generals, district governors, and civil authorities. He sat in the council room, and the written statements were read before them all. [15]He said, "Call in the young men to explain their statements."

So they were called together. [16]He said to them, "Give us an explanation for what you wrote."

Superiority of wine

[17]So the first young man, who had spoken of the strength of wine, started: [18]"Gentlemen, how is it that wine is so superior? It misleads the minds of all who drink it. [19]It makes the mind of the king the same as that of the orphan, likewise of the slave and the free, of the poor and the rich. [20]It changes every thought to feasting and cheerfulness, and forgets all grief and every obligation. [21]It fattens all hearts, makes one remember neither kings nor administrators, and makes everyone talk in outrageous sums. [22]When drinking, people forget to be civil even with their friends and relatives, and after a while they draw their swords. [23]When they recover from the wine, they don't even remember what they did. [24]Gentlemen, isn't wine superior, since it forces people to behave like this?" With that, he stopped speaking.

Superiority of the king

1Esdras 4 Then the second young man, who had spoken of the strength of the king, spoke: [2]"Gentlemen, aren't people superior who control land and sea and all that's in them?[3]But the king is most superior, because he is their ruler and master, and whatever he might say to them they obey as soon as they hear it. [4]If he tells them to make war on each other, they do so; and if he sends them out against the enemy, they march and overcome mountain fortresses, walls, and towers. [5]They murder and are murdered, but they don't disobey the king's word. If they win a battle, they bring everything to the king--whatever plunder they take and everything else. [6]Similarly, for those who don't serve in the army or make war but farm the land, whenever they sow and reap, they bring some to the king. They force each other to pay taxes to the king. [7]Yet the king is only one man! If he tells them to kill, they kill. If he tells them to set someone free, they set someone free. [8]If he tells them to strike, they strike. If he tells them to destroy or build something, they destroy it or they build it. [9]If he tells them to cut down something, they cut it down. If he tells them to plant, they plant. [10]All his people and his military powers obey him. Furthermore, he reclines, eats, drinks, and sleeps;[11]but they keep watch around him, and no one can go away to take care of his own matters, nor do they disobey him. [12]Gentlemen, isn't the king superior, since he is to be completely obeyed in this manner?" Then he stopped speaking.

Superiority of women

[13]Then the third young man, Zerubbabel, who had spoken of women and truth, began to speak: [14]"Gentlemen, isn't the king great, aren't men abundant, and isn't wine strong? Who is it, though, that masters them or rules over them? Isn't it women? [15]Women give birth to the king and to all the people who rule over the sea and land. [16]From women they all are born. It was women who brought up those men who plant the vineyards from which wine is produced.

[17]"Women make men's clothes. They bring men honor. Without women, men aren't even able to exist. [18]If men gather gold and silver or any valuable thing, and then see a desirable and beautiful woman, [19]they forget everything to gaze at her. With mouths wide open, they stare at her. All choose her over gold, silver, or any other valuable thing. [20]A man leaves his own father, who raised him, and his own country, and clings to his own wife. [21]With his wife he departs this life, with no memory of his father or mother or country. [22]Therefore, surely you must recognize that women rule over you!

"Don't you work and labor, yet you bring everything and give it to women? [23]A man takes his sword, goes out to travel abroad to raid, steal, and sail the sea and rivers. [24]He faces lions; he walks in darkness; when he steals and robs and plunders, he carries it back to the woman he loves. [25]A man loves his own wife much more than his father or mother. [26]Many men have lost their heads over women, and have become slaves on account of them. [27]Many have perished, stumbled, or sinned because of women.

[28]"Now don't you believe me? Isn't the king great in his authority? Don't all countries fear to touch him?[29]I once saw the king and Apame his mistress, the daughter of the eminent Bartacus, sitting by his right side. [30]She took the crown from the king's head and put it on her own head, and slapped the king with her left hand. [31]At this the king would stare at her with his mouth wide open. If she smiles at him, he laughs; but if she should get angry with him, he humors her so that she may be reconciled to him. [32]Gentlemen, aren't women powerful, since they can do such things?"

Superiority of truth

[33]The king and the officials looked at each other, and the third young man began to speak about truth: [34]"Gentlemen, aren't women strong? The earth is great, heaven is high, and the sun is swift in its course, for it circles the heavens and returns again to its place in a single day. [35]Isn't the one who does these things great? Yet truth is also great and superior still to all of these things. [36]The whole earth calls on truth, and heaven praises it. All of heaven's works[j] move and tremble at the sight of it, and there's nothing wrong with truth. [37]You can't trust wine; you can't trust the king; you can't trust women. No human beings are trustworthy. Everything they do is wrong. There is no truth in them. They will perish in their lies. [38]But truth endures and is valid for all time; it lives and succeeds forever. [39]With it there's no charade or preference, but it does what is right instead of what is wrong or evil. Everyone approves of its deeds. There's nothing unjust in its judgment. [40]To it belongs the strength, the royalty, the authority, and the greatness of all ages. Bless God's truth!"[41]He stopped speaking, and all the people cried out, "Great is truth and superior to all!"

Darius rewards Zerubbabel

[42]Then the king said to Zerubbabel, "Ask for whatever you like, even more than what was proposed, and we'll give it to you, for you've been found to be the wisest one. You may sit next to me and be called my confidant."

[43]Zerubbabel said to the king, "Remember the promise that you made to rebuild Jerusalem on the day that you became king. [44]You promised to send back all the holy equipment that was taken from Jerusalem, which Cyrus set apart when he promised to destroy Babylon and also promised to send it back there. [45]You also solemnly swore to rebuild the temple, which was burned down by the Edomites when Judea was devastated by the Chaldeans. [46]Now Master and King, this is what I ask and request of you, something that is fitting for your greatness. I beg you to fulfill the pledge you solemnly swore to the king of heaven with your own mouth."

[47]Then King Darius stood up and kissed him. He wrote letters for him to all the treasurers, district governors, generals, and administrators so that they would send him out and all those who were going up with him to rebuild Jerusalem. [48]He wrote letters to all the district governors in Coele-Syria and Phoenicia and to those in Lebanon, to bring cedar timber from Lebanon to Jerusalem and to help him rebuild the city. [49]He wrote on behalf of all the Judeans who were going up from the kingdom to Judea, for the benefit of their freedom, that no administrator, district governor, or treasurer should break down their doors. [50]He wrote that all the territory they forcibly took was for them to live in without taxation, and that the Idumeans should leave behind the villages of the Judeans that they had seized. [51]He wrote that 1,140 pounds of silver a year should be given for the building of the temple until it was completely rebuilt. [52] In addition, 570 pounds of silver a year should be given for entirely burned offerings that are provided daily on the altar, in keeping with the commandment that they make seventeen offerings in all. [53]He wrote that all who depart from Babylon to rebuild the city should have their freedom, both they and their children and all the priests who depart as well. [54]He wrote about the expenses and the priests' holy garments in which they were to serve. [55]He wrote that the expenses for the Levites should be supplied until the day when the temple would be completed and Jerusalem rebuilt. [56]He wrote that all who guarded the city should be supplied with land and wages. [57]He sent back from Babylon all the holy equipment that Cyrus had set aside. Everything that Cyrus had said he would do, Darius himself commanded to do them and to send them to Jerusalem.

[58]When the young man Zerubbabel went outside, he lifted up his face to heaven toward Jerusalem and praised the king of heaven: [59]"From you come the victory and wisdom. To you belongs the glory. I'm your household servant. [60]You are worthy of praise, you who have given wisdom to me. I praise you, Lord of our ancestors."

[61]So he took the letters, went to Babylon, and reported this to all of his people. [62]They praised the God of their ancestors, because he had given them amnesty and permission [63]to go up and rebuild Jerusalem and the temple that is called by God's name. They celebrated with music and enthusiasm for seven days.

Those returning from captivity

1Esdras 5 After this the leaders of the family houses were chosen to go up, according to their tribes, with their wives, sons, daughters, their male and female servants, and their farm animals. [2]Darius sent with them one thousand cavalry to restore them back in Jerusalem in peace. With the music of drums and flutes, [3]all of their Jewish relatives were celebrating. Darius commanded them to go along with them.

[4]These are the names of the men in charge of their assigned groups, who went up according to their families in the tribes: [5]the priests, the sons of Phinehas son of Aaron; Jeshua son of Jozadak son of Seraiah, and Joakim son of Zerubbabel son of Shealtiel, from the house of David, from the family line of Phares, and from the tribe of Judah, [6]who spoke wise words to Persia's King Darius, in the second year of his rule, in the first month, the month of Nisan.[k]

[7]These are the ones from Judea who came up out of their captivity in exile, whom King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon had taken to Babylon [8]and who returned to Jerusalem and Judea, each to their own city. They came with their leaders Zerubbabel, Jeshua, Nehemiah, Seraiah, Resaiah, Eneneus, Mordecai, Beelsarus, Aspharasus, Reelaiah,[l] Rehum, and Baanah.

[35]All the temple servants and the family of Solomon's servants numbered 372. [36]These following persons are those who went up from Tel-melah and Tel-harsha, under the leadership of Cherub, Addan, and Immer, [37]who weren't able to prove by their family houses or by their lineage that they had descended from Israel: the family of Delaiah, Tobiah's son, and the family of Nekoda, 652.

[38]Also from the priests, the following persons had assumed the priestly office but were found to be unqualified: the family of Habaiah, the family of Hakkoz, and the family of Jaddus, who had married Agia, one of the daughters of Barzillai, and was called by his name. [39]When they inspected the registry and didn't find the lineage of these men, they excluded them from the service of the priesthood. [40]Nehemiah and Attharias told them not to share in the holy things until a high priest arrives wearing Clarity and Truth.[m]

[41]All those who were from Israel, 12 or more years old, excluding male and female servants, were 42,360; their male and female servants were 7,337; there were 245 harpists and singers. [42]There were 435 camels, 7,036 horses, 245 mules, and 5,525 donkeys.

[43]Some of the leaders of the family houses, when they came to God's temple in Jerusalem, solemnly pledged that they would erect the house on its site, [44]and that they would give to the sacred treasury for the work one thousand manehs of gold, five thousand manehs of silver, and one hundred priests' robes. [45]The priests, the Levites, and some of the people took up residence in Jerusalem and the surrounding area. The temple singers, the gatekeepers, and the rest of Israel settled in the villages.

Work on the temple is delayed

[46]When the seventh month[n] came and the Israelites were all in their own homes, they gathered together in the square near the first gate on the eastern side. [47]Then Jeshua, Jozadak's son with his fellow priests, and Zerubbabel, Shealtiel's son with his group, took their positions and prepared the altar of the God of Israel [48]to offer up entirely burned offerings, according to the stipulations in the scroll from Moses, the man of God.

[49]Some from the other neighboring peoples gathered with them. They erected the altar in its proper place (even though all the other neighboring peoples were hostile to them and were stronger than they were). They offered sacrifices and entirely burned offerings to the Lord at the proper morning and evening times. [50]They celebrated the Festival of Booths, as it is commanded in the Law, and offered sacrifices daily as expected, [51]in addition to the continual offerings and sacrifices on sabbaths, at new moons, and at all the sacred feasts.

[52]All who made a solemn promise to God began to offer sacrifices to God, from the new moon of the seventh month,[o] even though God's temple wasn't yet rebuilt. [53]They gave money to the stonemasons and the carpenters, along with daily meals. They gave gifts[p] to the Sidonians and the Tyrians, to deliver cedar logs from Lebanon and ferry them in rafts to the harbor of Joppa, according to the written orders they had from Persia's King Cyrus.

[54]In the second month of the second year,[q] after they came to God's temple in Jerusalem, Zerubbabel, Shealtiel's son, and Jeshua, Jozadak's son, made a new start, together with their associates and the levitical priests and all who had returned to Jerusalem from captivity. [55]They then laid the foundation of God's temple on the new moon of the second month in the second year of their arrival in Judea and Jerusalem. [56]They appointed the Levites who were 20 years old or more in charge of the Lord's work.

Rising up were Jeshua, his sons and associates; his brother Kadmiel and Jeshua's sons; Emadabun and Joda's sons; and Iliadun's son with their sons and brothers. With them, all the Levites worked with a common purpose doing the work in God's house. [57]So the builders built God's temple. The priests stood dressed up in their robes, with musical instruments and trumpets, and the Levites, Asaph's sons, with cymbals, singing to the Lord and praising him, according to the directions of King David of Israel. [58]They sang hymns, praising the Lord, "God's goodness and glory are on Israel forever."[59]The people blew trumpets and shouted loudly, singing to the Lord on the occasion of the construction of the Lord's house. [60]Some of the levitical priests and leaders of family houses, the elderly who had seen the former house, came to this building with much weeping and wailing. [61]Many others came with trumpets and joy, with a tremendous uproar. [62]But the people couldn't hear the trumpets because of the people's weeping, even though the crowd was blowing the trumpets so loudly that the noise was heard far away.

[63]When the enemies of the tribe of Judah and Benjamin heard it, they came to investigate what the sound of the trumpets meant. [64]They discovered that those who had returned from captivity were building the temple to the Lord God of Israel. [65]So they came before Zerubbabel and Jeshua and the leaders of the family houses and said to them, "We will build with you. [66]We also obey your Lord, and we have been giving offerings to him ever since the days of Assyria's King Esarhaddon,[r] who transported us here."[67]Zerubbabel, Jeshua, and the leaders of the family houses in Israel, however, said to them, "We will have nothing to do with each other in building the house for the Lord our God. [68]We alone will build it for the Lord of Israel, just as Persia's King Cyrus commanded us."[69]But the neighboring peoples harassed the Judeans and hindered their rebuilding. [70]By scheming, spreading lies among the people, and stirring up trouble, they prevented the completion of the rebuilding as long as King Cyrus lived. [71]They were kept from building for two years, until Darius' rule.

Work on the temple is finished

1Esdras 6 In the second year of Darius' rule, the prophets Haggai and Zechariah (Iddo's son) prophesied to the Judeans who were in Judea and in Jerusalem in the name of the Lord God of Israel, who is ruler over them. [2]Then Zerubbabel, Shealtiel's son, and Jeshua, Jozadak's son, went up and began to build the Lord's house in Jerusalem, assisted by the Lord's prophets.

[3]At the same time, Sisinnes, the commander of Syria and Phoenicia, and Sathrabuzanes and their associates came to them and said, [4]"By whose order are you building this house and this roof and finishing all the other things? Who are the builders who are doing all of these things?"[5]Yet the elders of the Judeans enjoyed the gracious protection of the Lord on the exiles, [6]and they weren't prevented from building until Darius could be informed about them and return an answer. [7]Here is a copy of the letter that Sisinnes, the commander of Syria and Phoenicia, Sathrabuzanes, and their associates, the local officials in Syria and Phoenicia, wrote to Darius:

[8]To King Darius. Greetings.

> Our master the king, may you know that when we came to the country of Judea and entered the city of Jerusalem, we found the elders of the Jews, who had been in captivity, building in the city of Jerusalem a large new house for the Lord, of polished stone with costly beams set in the walls. [9]These projects are proceeding swiftly, and the overall work is succeeding. They are completing it with brillance and precision. [10]So we asked these elders, "By whose command are you building this house and laying the foundations of this project?"[11]In order that we might inform you, we questioned them about who the leaders are and demanded a list of the names of the troublemakers. [12]They told us, "We are the servants of the Lord who created the heaven and the earth. [13]The house was built many years before by a great and mighty king of Israel, and it was finished. [14]But when our ancestors angrily sinned against the Lord of Israel who is in heaven, God gave them over into the hands of King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon, king of the Chaldeans;[15]and they tore down the house and burned it, and led the people away as prisoners to Babylon. [16]But in the first year of Cyrus' rule over the country of Babylonia, King Cyrus wrote that this house should be rebuilt. [17]King Cyrus took out the holy gold and silver equipment from the temple in Babylon, which Nebuchadnezzar had removed from the house in Jerusalem and deposited in his own temple.

Cyrus handed it over to Zerubbabel and the governor Sheshbazzar[18]with the order that they[s] take all of this equipment back and place it in the temple in Jerusalem, and that the Lord's temple be rebuilt on its site.
[19]After coming here, Sheshbazzar laid the foundations of the Lord's house in Jerusalem. It has been under construction until now, although it isn't finished."[20]Now, King, if it seems right, please search the royal archives that are in Babylon. [21]If it is discovered that the building of the Lord's house in Jerusalem was done with King Cyrus' consent, and if it seems right to our master the king, please direct us concerning these things.

[22]Then King Darius commanded a search of the royal archives that were kept in Babylon. In Ecbatana, within the palace of Medea, a scroll was found that recorded the following words:

[23]In the first year of Cyrus' rule, King Cyrus commissioned the rebuilding of the Lord's house in Jerusalem, where they offer sacrifices with continuous fire.
[24]Its height should be ninety feet and its width ninety feet, with three layers of polished stone and one layer of new native wood. The expenses should come out of the treasury of King Cyrus. [25]Also the holy silver and gold equipment from the Lord's house, which Nebuchadnezzar removed from the house in Jerusalem and transported to Babylon, should be restored to the house in Jerusalem, to be kept where it used to be.

[26]So he commanded Sisinnes the governor of Syria and Phoenicia, and Sathrabuzanes, and their associates, and those who were appointed as local officials in Syria and Phoenicia to stay away from the place and to let Zerubbabel, the Lord's servant and Judea's governor, and the elders of the Jews rebuild the Lord's house on its site.

[27]I hereby command that it be built completely and that close attention be paid to helping those who have returned from the exile of Judea, util the Lord's house is finished. [28]A sum of money, out of the tribute of Coele-Syria and Phoenicia, should be carefully arranged to be given to these persons, specifically to Zerubbabel the governor, for offerings to the Lord, for bulls, rams, and lambs. [29]Also money should be given for wheat, salt, wine, and oil, continually every year, without arguing, for daily use as the Jerusalem priests may indicate [30]so that drink offerings may be made to the Most High God for the king and his children, and prayers be offered for their lives.

31He further commanded that if anyone should disobey any of the things previously mentioned or previously written, or attempt to cancel them, a beam should be taken out of the house of the guilty, who then should be hung on it, and all their possessions forfeited to the king.

32May the Lord, on whose name they called, destroy every king and nation that will stretch out their hands to prevent or damage the Lord's house in Jerusalem.
33I, King Darius, have declared that it be done with the necessary care described here.

1Esdras 7 Following the king's announcements, Sisinnes, the commander of Coele-Syria and Phoenicia, Sathrabuzanes, and their associates 2supervised the holy work, carefully assisting the Judean elders and the temple officials.
3The holy work flourished, while the prophets Haggai and Zechariah prophesied.
4They finished it by the command of the Lord God of Israel. 5So with the consent of Cyrus, Darius, and Artaxerxes, the kings of the Persians, the holy house was finished by the twenty-third day of the month of Adar,[t] in the sixth year of King Darius.

6The Israelites, the priests, the Levites, and the rest of those who returned from exile acted according to what was written in the scroll from Moses. 7For the dedication of the Lord's temple, they brought offerings of one hundred bulls, two hundred rams, four hundred lambs, 8and twelve male goats for the sin of all Israel, according to the number of the twelve leaders of the tribes of Israel. 9The priests and the Levites stood dressed in their robes, according to their tribes, for the services of the Lord God of Israel according to the scroll from Moses; and the gatekeepers stood at each gate.

10The Israelites who came from exile celebrated the Passover on the fourteenth day of the first month,[u] after the priests and the Levites were purified together. 11Not everyone returning from exile was purified, but the Levites were all purified together. 12The Levites sacrificed the Passover lamb on behalf of the returned exiles, for their brothers the priests, and for themselves. 13The Israelites who had returned from exile, those who had separated themselves from the scandal of the neighboring peoples and sought the Lord, ate the Passover meal.

14They also celebrated the Festival of Unleavened Bread for seven days, rejoicing before the Lord, 15because he had changed the attitude of the king of the Assyrians toward them, to prepare them for the service of the Lord God of Israel.

Ezra leads more exiles out of Babylon

1Esdras 8 Sometime later, during Artaxerxes' rule as the king of the Persians, Ezra arrived. He was the son of Seraiah son of Azariah son of Hilkiah son of Shallum 2son of Zadok son of Ahitub son of Amariah son of Uzzi son of Bukki son of Abishua son of Phinehas son of Eleazar son of the high priest Aaron. 3Ezra came up from Babylon as a legal expert well trained in the Law from Moses, a gift from the God of Israel. 4The king showed him honor because he found favor with the king[v] in all of his requests. 5Going up to Jerusalem with him were some of the Israelites and some of the priests, Levites, temple singers, gatekeepers, and temple servants, in the seventh year of Artaxerxes' rule, in the fifth month.[w] 6They left Babylon on the new moon of the first month[x] and arrived in Jerusalem on the new moon of the fifth month,[y] since the Lord gave them a safe journey. 7Ezra had such a great understanding that he left out nothing from the Law that came from the Lord or the commandments, but he taught Israel all the regulations and decisions.

8The following is a copy of the written decree from King Artaxerxes that he gave to Ezra the priest and reader of the Law from the Lord:

9King Artaxerxes to Ezra the priest and reader of the Law from the Lord.
Greetings.

> 10In accordance with my humane policies, I have given orders that > those who are mindful of the Judean people and of the priests, Levites, and > others in our kingdom, those who wish to do so, may accompany you to > Jerusalem. 11Therefore, let all who wish to do so join with you, just as I > and my seven advisors have agreed, 12so that they might take an interest in > matters in Judea and in Jerusalem, according to the Law from the Lord.
> 13They might bring to Jerusalem the gifts for the Lord of Israel that I and > my advisors have solemnly promised. They might acquire for the Lord in > Jerusalem all the gold and silver that may be found in the country of Babylonia, together with what the nation gives them for the Lord's temple in Jerusalem. 14Gold and silver for bulls, rams, lambs, and what goes with them should be collected 15so that sacrifices may be offered on their Lord's altar in Jerusalem. 16Whatever you and your people wish to do with the gold and silver, do it according to God's will. 17Deliver the Lord's holy equipment that is given to you for use in your God's temple in Jerusalem. 18Whatever else you think of that is needed in your God's temple, pay for it out of the royal treasury.

19I, King Artaxerxes, have commanded the treasurers of Syria and Phoenicia so that whatever Ezra the priest and reader of the Law of the Most High God sends for, they should give to him completely, up to 5,700 pounds of silver, 20up to one hundred kors[z] of wheat, one hundred baths[a] of wine, and a lot of salt. 21Let everything be carried out for the Most High God strictly according to God's Law, so that God's wrath may not come on the king's empire and his family. 22Also no foreign tax or any other fine should be placed on any of the priests, Levites, temple singers, gatekeepers, temple servants, or people working on this temple. No one has authority to impose anything on them.

23You, Ezra, according to God's wisdom, should appoint judges and justices to have jurisdiction over all those who know the Law from your God, throughout all Syria and Phoenicia. You should teach it to those who don't know it. 24All who disobey the Law from your God or the royal law will be strictly punished, whether by death or some other punishment, either fine or arrest.

25[b] Bless the Lord alone, who put this into the king's heart, to glorify his house in Jerusalem, 26and who honored me before the king, the counselors, all of his political advisors,[c] and officials. 27I was encouraged by my God's help, and I gathered people from Israel to go up with me.

28These are the leaders, according to their families and their divisions, who went up with me from Babylon, in King Artaxerxes' rule:

29From the family of Phinehas, Gershom.

From the family of Ithamar, Gamael.

From the family of David, Hattush, Shecaniah's son.

30From the family of Parosh, Zechariah, and with him 150 men registered.

31From the family of Pahath-moab, Eliehoenai, Zerahiah's son and with him 200 men.

32From the family of Zattu, Shecaniah, Jahaziel's son and with him 300 men.

From the family of Adin, Obed, Jonathan's son and with him 250 men.

33From the family of Elam, Jeshaiah, Gotholiah's son and with him 70 men.

34From the family of Shephatiah, Zeraiah, Michael's son and with him 70 men.

35From the family of Joab, Obadiah, Jehiel's son and with him 212 men.

36From the family of Bani, Shelomith, Josiphiah's son and with him 160 men.

37From the family of Bebai, Zechariah, Bebai's son and with him 28 men.

38From the family of Azgad, Johanan, Hakkatan's son and with him 110 men.

39From the family of Adonikam, the last ones, their names were Eliphelet, Jeuel, and Shemaiah, and with them 70 men.

40From the family of Bigvai, Uthai, Istalcurus' son and with him 70 men.

41I assembled them at the Theras River, where I inspected them. We camped at that place for three days. 42When I found no families from the priests or the Levites there, 43I sent word to Eleazar, Iduel, Maasmas, Elnathan, Shemaiah, Jarib, Nathan, Elnathan, Zechariah, and Meshullam, who were the leaders and persons of great learning. 44I told them to go to Iddo, who was the official in charge at the residence of the treasury, 45and ordered them to ask Iddo and his relatives and the treasurers at that place to send us some persons to serve as priests in the Lord's house. 46By the Lord's direction, they brought us knowledgeable persons from the family of Mahli, Levi's son, and grandson of Israel, namely Sherebiah[d] with eighteen members of his family; 47also Hashabiah, Annunus, and a brother Jeshaiah, from the family of Hananiah, and their family, twenty persons in all. 48Of the temple servants, whom David and the leaders had given for the service of the Levites, they brought us two hundred twenty temple servants. All their names were listed in the register.

49Then I announced a fast for the young people before our Lord, 50to seek from him a safe journey for ourselves, for those with us, our children and our farm animals. 51I was ashamed to ask the king for infantry, cavalry, and an escort for safety from our enemies, 52because we told the king, "The Lord's guidance will be with those who diligently seek after him, until everything is put right again."53So we prayed to our Lord about these things, and we obtained mercy.

54I chose twelve of the leaders of the priestly families, Sherebiah and Hashabiah, and ten of their companions. 55I weighed out for them the silver, the gold, and the holy equipment from the Lord's house, which the king himself, his advisors, the officials, and all Israel had contributed. 56I presented to them 37,050 pounds of silver, silver equipment worth 5,700 pounds, 5,700 pounds of gold, twenty gold bowls, and twelve bronze objects of such fine quality that it glittered like gold. 57I told them, "You are holy to the Lord, and the equipment is holy, and the silver and the gold are solemnly committed to the Lord, the Lord of our ancestors. 58Be alert and careful until you hand them over to the leaders of the priestly families, to the Levites, and to the heads of the family houses of Israel, in Jerusalem, in the inner rooms of the Lord's house."59So the priests and the Levites carried the silver, the gold, and the equipment, which was in Jerusalem, and brought them to the Lord's temple.

60On the twelfth day of the first month,[e] we left the Theras River and arrived in Jerusalem by the Lord's guidance. The Lord rescued us from every enemy on the way, and we arrived in Jerusalem. 61After being there for three days, the silver and gold were weighed and handed over to the Lord's house, to the priest Meremoth, Uriah's son. 62With him was Eleazar, Phinehas' son, and with them were the Levites Jozabad, Jeshua's son, and Moeth, Binnui's [f] son. The whole collection was counted and weighed, and the total weight was recorded at that very moment. 63All those who had returned from exile offered sacrifices to the Lord God of Israel, twelve bulls for all Israel, ninety-six rams, seventy-two lambs, and twelve male goats as a well-being offering--all as a sacrifice to the Lord. 64They delivered the king's orders to the royal managers and to the commanders of Coele-Syria and Phoenicia. These officials honored the people and the Lord's temple.

Problem of mixed marriages in Judah

65After these things happened, the leaders came to me and said, 66"The people of Israel, the rulers, the priests, and the Levites haven't separated themselves from the impurities in the foreign neighboring peoples: the Canaanites, the Hittites, the Perizzites, the Jebusites, the Moabites, the Egyptians, and the Edomites. 67They and their families have intermarried with their daughters, and the holy nation has been intermixed with the land's foreigners. The leaders and the officials have been sharing in this unlawful practice right from the start."

68As soon as I heard about these things, I tore my clothes and my priest's robe. I pulled out hair from my head and beard, and I sat down depressed and very sad. 69Everyone who was moved by the word of the Lord of Israel gathered around me as I mourned over this unlawful deed, and I sat there depressed until the evening sacrifice. 70After rising from my fast, with my clothes and priest's robe still torn, I knelt down, stretching out my hands to the Lord, and spoke:

> 71Lord, I'm ashamed and disgraced before you. 72Our sins are greater than what we imagined. Our ignorant deeds have reached heaven. 73From the times of our ancestors, we exist in great sin to this very day. 74Because of our sin and our ancestors' sin, we were handed over--with our brothers, sisters, kings, and priests--to the kings of the earth for death, exile, and plunder. We continue to bear the shame until today.
> 75But you, Lord, have shown to us a measure of mercy, to leave for us a descendant and honor in your holy place, 76to uncover a light for us in the Lord's house, and to give us nourishment in the time of our slavery. 77Even in our servitude we weren't forgotten, but the Lord showed us favor among the kings of the Persians 78so that they've given us provisions, honored the Lord's temple, and rebuilt the ruins of Zion, to give us a solid place in Judea and Jerusalem.
> 79Now that we have these things, what will we say, Lord? We have violated your commandments, which you gave by your servants the prophets: 80"The land that you are about to possess is a land polluted with the foreigners of the land. The foreigners have filled it with their impurity. 81So don't give your daughters in marriage to their sons, and don't take their daughters for your sons. [82]Don't seek at any time to make a peace treaty with them, so that you may be strong and eat the good things of the land and pass it on as an inheritance to your children forever."[83]All that has happened to us has resulted from our evil deeds and our great sins.

[84]For you, Lord, removed our sins, and you gave us such a root as this. Yet we again turned away to disobey your Law by intermixing with the impure of the neighboring peoples. [85]Weren't you angry enough with us to destroy us without leaving a root or a descendant or our honor?

[86]Lord of Israel, you are true. We are left as a root this very day.
[87]Look! We are now before you in our immorality.[g] We can't stand in your presence anymore because of these things.

[88]While Ezra was praying and offering up his confession, weeping in the dust before the temple, a very large crowd of men, women, and youth from Jerusalem gathered around him. There was great weeping among the people. [89]Then Shecaniah, Jehiel's son, one of the men of Israel, shouted to Ezra, "We have sinned against the Lord, and we have married foreign women from the neighboring peoples. Yet there is hope for Israel. [90]Let's swear a pledge to the Lord about this matter, to divorce all of our foreign wives, with their children, as it seems just to you and to as many who follow the Lord's Law. [91]Stand up and take part, for it is your duty, and we are with you to act with resolve."

[92]Then Ezra stood up and made the leaders of the priests and Levites of all Israel swear to do as was said, and they swore that they would.

1Esdras 9

Ezra went out from the temple court to the inner room of Jehohanan, Eliashib's son, [2]and stayed the night there. He neither ate bread nor drank water, as he was mourning for the great immoral deeds of the multitude.

[3]An announcement was issued throughout Judea and Jerusalem to all who had returned from exile that they should gather at Jerusalem. [4]Whoever didn't meet there within two or three days, according to the order of the leading elders, their animals would be used for sacrifice and the people themselves cut off from the company of those who had returned from the exile.

[5]Then everyone from the tribe of Judah and the tribe of Benjamin gathered together at Jerusalem within three days; this was the twentieth day of the ninth month.[h] 6The whole crowd sat in the square of the temple, shivering because it was winter. 7Then Ezra stood up and said, "You have broken the Law and married foreign women, and thus have increased the sin of Israel. 8So confess and give glory to the Lord God of our ancestors. 9Do God's will and separate yourselves from the neighboring peoples and from the foreign women."

10The whole crowd cried out, "We will do what you have said. 11But it's a big crowd, and it's winter, and we aren't strong enough to keep standing outside. This isn't something we can do in one or two days, because we have sinned too greatly in these matters. 12So let the leaders of the crowd remain, and let all those in our settlements who have foreign wives come at a specific time,13with the local elders and judges, until we are free from the Lord's wrath that is against us in this affair."

14Jonathan, Asahel's son, and Jahzeiah, Tikvah's[i] son, accepted these terms, and Meshullam and Levi and Shabbethai supported them as moderators. 15Those who had returned from exile followed these recommendations in every respect. 16Ezra the priest chose for himself the leading men of their families, each by name. On the new moon of the tenth month[j] they convened their investigation of this affair. 17The cases of the men who had married foreign wives were completed by the new moon of the first month.[k]

18Those who were found to have married foreign wives from the priesthood were: 19Of the family of Jeshua, Jozadak's son, and his brothers Maaseiah, Eleazar, Jarib, and Jodan. 20They pledged to divorce their wives and to offer rams as reconciliation for their error in judgment. 21Of the family of Immer: Hanani, Zebadiah, Maaseiah, Shemaiah, Jehiel, and Azariah. 22Of the family of Pashhur: Elioenai, Maaseiah, Ishmael, Nathanael, Gedaliah, and Salthas.

23And of the Levites: Jozabad, Shimei, Kelaiah who was Kelita, Pethahiah, Judah, and Jonah. 24Of the temple singers: Eliashib and Zaccur.[l] 25Of the gatekeepers: Shallum and Telem.[m]

26Of Israel: of the family of Parosh: Ramiah, Izziah, Malchijah, Mijamin, Eleazar, Asibias, and Benaiah. 27Of the family of Elam: Mattaniah, Zechariah, Jezrielus, Abdi, Jeremoth, and Elijah. [28]Of the family of Zamoth: Eliadas, Eliashib, Othoniah, Jeremoth, Zabad and Zerdaiah. [29]Of the family of Bebai: Jehohanan, Hananiah, Zabbai, and Emathis. [30]Of the family of Mani: Olamus, Mamuchus, Adaiah, Jashub, Sheal, and Jeremoth. [31]Of the family of Addi: Naathus, Moossias, Laccunus, Naidus, Bescaspasmys, Sesthel, Belnuus, and Manasseas. [32]Of the family of Annan: Elionas, Asaias, Melchias, Sabbaias, and Simon Chosamaeus. [33]Of the family of Hashum: Mattenai, Mattattah, Zabad, Eliphelet, Manasseh, and Shimei. [34]Of the family of Bani: Jeremai, Momdius, Maerus, Joel, Mamdai, Bedeiah, Vaniah, Carabasion, Eliashib, Mamitanemus, Eliasis, Binnui, Elialis, Shimei, Shelemiah, and Nethaniah. Of the family of Ezora: Shashai, Azarel, Azael, Samatus, Zambris, and Joseph. [35]Of the family of Nooma: Mazitias, Zabad, Iddo, Joel, and Benaiah. [36]All these had married foreign women, and they divorced them, along with their children.

[37]The priests, the Levites, and the Israelites lived in Jerusalem and in the countryside. On the new moon of the seventh month,[n] after the people of Israel were settled in their homes, [38]the whole crowd gathered together in the courtyard near the east gate of the temple. [39]They told Ezra the chief priest and reader to bring the Law from Moses that had been given by the Lord God of Israel. [40]On the new moon of the seventh month, Ezra the chief priest brought the Law before the whole crowd, both men and women, as well as the priests, to hear the Law. [41]He read from dawn until noon in the courtyard near the temple gate, before men and women. The whole crowd gave full attention to the Law. [42]Ezra the priest and reader of the Law stood on the wooden podium that had been prepared. [43]Next to him stood Mattathiah, Shema, Ananias, Azariah, Uriah, Hezekiah, and Baalsamus at his right; [44]and at his left were Pedaiah, Mishael, Malchijah, Lothasubus, Nabariah, and Zechariah. [45]Ezra took up the Law scroll in front of the large crowd (for he was in charge in the place of honor before everyone). [46]When he opened the Law, everyone stood up. Ezra blessed the Lord God Most High, the God of heavenly forces, the almighty, [47]and the whole crowd responded, "Amen." They lifted up their hands. They fell to the ground and worshipped the Lord. [48]The Levites (Jeshua, Anniuth, Sherebiah, Jadinus, Akkub, Shabbethai, Hodiah, Maiannas, Kelita, Azariah, Jozabad, Hanan, and Pelaiah) taught and read the Law from the Lord to the crowd, explaining the meaning.

[49]Then Attharates said to Ezra the chief priest and reader, and to the Levites who were teaching the people, and to everyone, who were all weeping as they listened to the Law: [50]"This day is holy to the Lord. [51]Go your way, eat the rich food and drink the sweet wine, and send some of it to those who have nothing,[52]because the day is holy to the Lord. Don't be sad, because the Lord will honor you."[53]The Levites ordered all the people, "This day is holy; don't be sad."[54]They all went their way, to eat and drink and to rejoice, and to share with those who had none, and to enjoy themselves. [55]They were excited by the words that they had been taught. And they came together.

Prayer of Manasseh

1

Prayer of Manasseh

1 Lord Almighty, God of our ancestors, God of Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, and their righteous children, 2 you made heaven and earth with all their beauty.
3 You set limits for the sea
by speaking your command.
You closed the bottomless pit, and sealed it by your powerful and glorious name.
4 All things fear you and tremble
in your presence,
5 because no one can endure
the brightness of your glory.
No one can resist the fury of your threat against sinners.
6 But your promised mercies are beyond measure and imagination, 7a because you are the highest, Lord, kind, patient, and merciful,
and you feel sorry over human troubles.

Syriac

b You, Lord, according to your gentle grace, promised forgiveness to those who are sorry for their sins.
In your great mercy,
you allowed sinners to turn
from their sins and find salvation.
8 Therefore, Lord,
God of those who do what is right,
you didn't offer

Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob,
who didn't sin against you,
a chance to change their hearts and lives.
But you offer me, the sinner,
the chance to change my heart and life, [9a]because my sins outnumbered the grains of sand by the sea.
My sins are many, Lord; they are many.
I am not worthy to look up, to gaze into heaven
because of my many sins.

Syriac

[9b]Now, Lord, I suffer justly.
I deserve the troubles I encounter.
Already I'm caught in a trap.
[10]I'm held down by iron chains so that I can't lift up my head because of my sins.
There's no relief for me,
because I made you angry,
doing wrong in front of your face, setting up false gods
and committing offenses.
[11]Now I bow down before you from deep within my heart, begging for your kindness.
[12]I have sinned, Lord, I have sinned, and I know the laws I've broken.
[13]I'm praying, begging you:
Forgive me, Lord, forgive me.
Don't destroy me along with my sins.
Don't keep my bad deeds
in your memory forever.
Don't sentence me to the earth's depths,
for you, Lord, are the God of those who turn from their sins.
[14]In me you'll show how kind you are.

Although I'm not worthy, you'll save me according to your great mercy.
15I will praise you continuously
all the days of my life,
because all of heaven's forces praise you,
and the glory is yours
forever and always. Amen.

Psalm 151[a]

1, 2, 3

151A [Hebrew]

A hallelujah of David, Jesse's son.

PsalmApoc 1 I was the smallest of my brothers, the youngest of my father's sons.
He made me shepherd of his flock, ruler over their young.
2 My hands made a flute, my fingers a lyre.
Let me give glory to the LORD,
I thought to myself.
3 The mountains
cannot witness to God;
the hills cannot proclaim him.
But the trees have cherished
my words,
the flocks my deeds.
4 Who can proclaim,
who can announce,
who can declare the LORD's deeds?
God has seen everything;
God has heard everything;
God has listened.
5 God sent his prophet to anoint me;
Samuel to make me great.
My brothers went out to meet him, handsome in form and appearance:
6 Their stature tall,
their hair beautiful,
but the LORD God
did not choose them.
7 Instead, he sent and took me from following the flock.

God anointed me with holy oil;
God made me leader for his people, ruler over the children of his covenant.

151B [Hebrew and Syriac][b]

At the beginning of David's power after the prophet of God anointed him.

PsalmApoc 2 I went out to attack the Philistine,
who cursed me by his idols.
[2]But after I uncovered his own sword,
I cut off his head.
So I removed the shame
from the Israelites.[c]

Psalm 151 [Greek]

This additional psalm is said to have been written by David when he fought Goliath in single combat.

PsalmApoc 3 I was small among my brothers, and the youngest of my father's sons.
I was shepherd of my father's sheep.
[2]My hands made a musical instrument;
my fingers strung a lap harp.
[3]Who will tell my Lord?
The Lord himself, the Lord hears me.
[4]The Lord himself sent his messenger, and took me away
from my father's sheep.
He put special oil on my forehead to anoint me.
[5]My brothers were good-looking and tall, but the Lord didn't take special pleasure in them.
[6]I went out to meet the Philistine,
who cursed me by his idols.
[7]But I took his own sword out of its sheath and cut off his head.
So I removed the shame

from the Israelites.[d]

3 Maccabees[a]

1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7

Battle of Raphia

3Maccabees 1 Now Ptolemy Philopator learned from those who had returned that Antiochus had captured some of Ptolemy's territory. Ptolemy gave orders to all his forces, foot soldiers and mounted soldiers, to break camp. Along with all his forces, and accompanied by his sister Arsinoë, he set out for the region of Raphia where Antiochus' troops had set up camp.

2 Now a certain Theodotus made up his mind to carry out a plot to kill Ptolemy. He took the best of the weapons that had been assigned to him from Ptolemy's own arsenal. He crossed over by night to Ptolemy's tent, intending to put an end to the war by killing him single-handedly. 3 But Dositheus, known as Drimylus' son, had led Ptolemy away and arranged for an unimportant person to sleep in the king's tent. This person then met the fate intended for Ptolemy. (Now this Dositheus was a Jew by birth, but he had changed his mind about their customs and had turned away from the teachings of his ancestors.)

4 When a fierce battle arose, and things were going rather well for Antiochus, Arsinoë went out to Ptolemy's army with pathetic cries and with her hair all in disarray. She urged them to rescue themselves and their children and wives, and bravely promised to give to each man two manehs of gold if they won the battle. 5 And so it turned out that the enemies were destroyed in hand-to-hand combat, and many were taken prisoner. 6 After overcoming the plot, Ptolemy decided to visit the neighboring cities to encourage them. 7 By doing this and by distributing gifts for their sacred shrines, he reassured his subjects.

Ptolemy Philopator at the temple

8 The Jews had sent elders and members of the council to greet him, to bring gifts of friendship, and to congratulate him on recent events. As a result he was even more eager to come to them as soon as possible. 9 So he traveled to Jerusalem, sacrificed to the supreme God, made thank offerings, and did what was appropriate for the temple. As he entered the temple, he was struck with amazement at its brilliance and beauty. [10]And as he admired the orderly arrangement of the temple, he conceived a notion to enter into the holy place. [11]But they said that it wasn't right to do this since even those of their own nation weren't permitted to enter it. Not even all the priests were allowed, but only the chief priest, who was in charge over all, and he could do so only once a year. But Philopator wasn't at all persuaded. [12]Even after the law was read to him, he continued to claim that it was necessary for him to enter, saying, "Even if those persons are denied this honor, I shouldn't be."[13]He asked why, when he was entering every other sacred place, none of those present prevented him. [14]And someone said (without thinking) that he was wrong to speak of this as a sign. [15]"But even if for some reason this were true," Philopator replied, "why should I, of all people, not enter, whether they are willing or not?"

The Jews' reaction

[16]But the priests fell to the ground, still in their sacred robes. They filled the temple with crying and tears, praying to the supreme God to help them and to change the mind of the one who was wrongly imposing himself. [17]Those who were left in the city were troubled and hurried out, thinking something mysterious was happening. [18]The young girls who had been kept secluded at home rushed out with their mothers. They sprinkled their hair with dust and began to fill the streets with weeping and groaning. [19]Even the young women who had just been adorned for their weddings left the bridal bedrooms that had been prepared for the marriage night. Neglecting all proper modesty, they came together in the city in a wild rush. [20]Mothers and nurses left newborn children here and there, some in houses, some in the streets, and crowded together into the most high temple without looking back. [21]The people who assembled offered all kinds of prayers on account of the evil plot of the king. [22]Some of the bolder citizens weren't going to put up with his intended plan or fulfill what he had in mind. [23]They rallied each other to attack with weapons and to die courageously for the sake of the law of their ancestors, creating a great uproar in the holy place. The old men and the elders were barely able to restrain them, but turned them at last to the same stance of prayer.

[24]Now the crowd in front of the temple was occupied in praying, [25]but the elders standing near the king tried in many ways to turn his arrogant mind from the scheme that he had conceived. [26]But he, being made bold and ignoring all their arguments, began to make his approach, determined to carry out his plan.

27So when those who were near him saw this, they turned together with the people to appeal to the one who was fully able to come to their aid and not to overlook this insolent transgression. 28An immense roar went up from the intensity and passion of the crowd's concerted shouting. 29Indeed it seemed that not only the people but also the walls and the entire land were echoing, because at that time all were prepared to accept death instead of making the holy place impure.

Prayer of Simon

3Maccabees 2[b] Then the high priest Simon knelt in front of the temple, extended his hands, and offered this prayer in a dignified manner:

2"Lord, Lord, king of the heavens and master of all creation, holy among the holy ones, only ruler, almighty: Pay attention to us. We are being crushed by an evil and impure man, caught up in his own arrogance and power. 3You are the creator of all things and the just master who rules over all. You judge those who act with violence and arrogance. 4You destroyed those who did evil in the past, even giants. The giants trusted in their bodily strength and boldness, but you destroyed them in a great flood.
5The people of Sodom acted arrogantly and were notorious for their wicked deeds.[c] You destroyed them with fire and sulfur, making them an example to others for all time. 6When the arrogant ruler of Egypt enslaved your holy people Israel, you tested him with many, varied punishments.
You made your power known; indeed, you made known your great strength. 7When the ruler of Egypt pursued Israel with chariots and a multitude of people, you overwhelmed him with the depth of the sea. But those who trusted in you, the one who holds power over all creation--these people you brought safely through the sea. 8And when they saw your powerful work, they praised you, the almighty.

9"Although you, King, created the whole wide earth, you chose this city and set this place apart for your name, though you don't need anything.
You made it wonderful, giving it a splendid appearance, and established its order for the reputation of your great and honored name. 10Because you love the house of Israel, you promised that you would hear our prayer if we came to this holy place and prayed whenever we experienced a setback or were overwhelmed with distress. [11]Indeed, you are faithful and true.

[12]Whenever our ancestors were hard-pressed or humiliated, you helped them and rescued them from great hardships. [13]See now, Holy King, how we are being afflicted and have been subjected to our enemies and are weakened to the point of helplessness because of our many and great sins.
[14]But in the midst of our calamity this arrogant and unholy man is determined to insult the holy place dedicated on earth to your glorious name. [15]For human beings can't enter your dwelling place, the heaven of heavens. [16]But since you were pleased for your glory to rest among your people Israel, you set this place apart. [17]Don't take vengeance on us because of the impurity of these people. Don't call us to account because of their pollution, so that the lawless don't boast in their hearts or rejoice in the arrogance of their tongues, saying, [18]"We trampled the house of holiness just as the houses of idols are trampled."[19]Wipe away our sins and scatter our faults to the winds, and reveal your compassion in this hour.
[20]Let your mercies quickly overtake us. Put praises in the mouths of those who are downcast and crushed in their spirits, granting us peace.

Punishment of Ptolemy Philopator

[21]Then the God who watches over all things, the first father of all, holy among the holy ones, heard this lawful prayer and scourged the one who had claimed too much for himself in his violence and arrogance. [22]God shook him this way and that as a reed is shaken by the wind, with the result that he lay helpless on the ground. His limbs were paralyzed, and he was unable to speak, since he was struck by a just judgment. [23]His friends and bodyguards saw that the punishment that had seized him was severe. Fearing that even his life might fail, they quickly dragged him out, since they were terror-stricken. [24]After a while, the king recovered, and even though he had been punished, he didn't change his heart and mind at all, but went away issuing bitter threats.

Ptolemy Philopator and the Alexandrian Jews

[25]When he had returned to Egypt, he added to his evil deeds with the assistance of his drinking companions and friends, who were strangers to everything just. [26]He wasn't satisfied with his innumerable indecent acts, but he also advanced to such a degree of impudence that he circulated false reports in the various districts. Many of his friends took note of the king's purpose and followed his lead. [27]He proposed to spread blame publicly against the Jewish nation. He set up a stone near the tower in the courtyard with the following inscription carved upon it:

> [28]None who refuse to sacrifice are to enter into their sanctuaries. In addition all the Jews are to be registered and their property cataloged. Those who object are to be taken by force and put to death. [29]Those who are registered are to be branded on the body by fire with the ivy leaf sign of Dionysus and are also to be assigned to their former, limited civic status.
> [30]But so as not to seem hateful to all, he added:
> But if any of them should prefer to join those who have been initiated into the mysteries, these are to enjoy political rights equal to the Alexandrians.

[31]Now some Jews, while pretending to detest the steps to be undertaken for the city's religion, readily surrendered themselves to share in great fame through the association they would have with the king. [32]But the honorable majority were strong and didn't depart from their religion. They bravely tried to save themselves from being registered by resorting to bribes in exchange for their lives. [33]They remained hopeful of obtaining help, and they looked with contempt on those Jews who had deserted them. They considered those who gave in to be enemies of the Jewish nation, and no longer associated with them or offered them assistance.

Genocide, slander, and neighborly advocates

3Maccabees 3 When the godless Philopator learned of this, he became so enraged that not only was he angry at those Jews in Alexandria but he also was very bitterly opposed to those living in the countryside. He gave an order that they should all be gathered together at once into one place and killed by the most brutal means possible. [2]While these plans were being put into action, some people plotted to injure the Jewish nation by circulating a hostile report against them on the pretext that the Jews were hindering others from practicing their own customs. [3]But the Jews were maintaining goodwill and unswerving loyalty toward the royal house. [4]While they worshipped God and conducted their lives according to God's Law, they kept themselves separate in the matter of foods. For this reason they appeared hostile to some people. [5]But they had established a good reputation with everyone through their lifestyle of doing the right thing. [6]Now even though the Jews' good deeds on behalf of the nation were commonly talked about by everyone, those of other races didn't take these into account. [7]Instead, they kept harping on the differences in worship and diet, and claimed that the Jewish people were loyal neither to the king nor to the authorities, but were hostile and strongly opposed to the royal administration. And so they placed significant blame on the Jews.

[8]But the Greeks in the city, who hadn't been injured in any way, saw the unexpected turmoil surrounding these people and the purposeless mobs that were forming. Although they didn't have the power to offer assistance, for they lived under tyranny, they tried to encourage the Jews. They were grieved and assumed that these circumstances would change for the better, [9]because so great a community shouldn't be left to its fate in this way, since it had done nothing wrong. [10]Already some neighbors and friends and business associates secretly drew them aside and promised that they would fight by their side and make every effort to assist them.

Ptolemy Philopator's decree

[11]But the king took pride in his present success and disregarded the authority of the supreme God. Assuming that he would continue in the same plan without hindrance, he wrote this letter against the Jews:

> [12]King Ptolemy Philopator to his generals and soldiers in Egypt and in every place. Greetings and good health.
> [13]Both I myself and our affairs prosper. [14]After our campaign against Asia Minor came to a successful conclusion, as you yourselves are aware, with the gods fighting alongside us, [15]we thought that we should care for the nations inhabiting Coele-Syria and Phoenicia, not with the violence of the spear but with fairness and much kindness, eagerly treating them well. [16]After we had distributed generous funds to the temples in every city, we proceeded also to Jerusalem. We went up to honor the temple of those wretched people who never cease from their folly. [17]They spoke as if they welcomed our presence, but in fact they acted in a way that was dishonest.

When we wanted to enter their sanctuary and to honor it with the most extraordinary and beautiful gifts, [18]they were carried away by their traditional arrogance and prevented us from entering. They were spared a display of our power because of the kindness that we have toward all people. [19]But they made clear their ill will toward us, as the only one of the nations showing such stiff-necked defiance to kings and to their own benefactors. They aren't willing to receive anything as sincere.

[20]But we showed indulgence toward the folly of these people and returned to Egypt in triumph. We treated all the nations in a kindly way and acted in a manner that was proper. [21]Among other things, we made known to everyone our policy of amnesty toward their fellow Jews here because of our alliance with them and the countless matters sincerely entrusted to them from the beginning. We bravely decided to make a change, to consider them worthy of Alexandrian citizenship and to make them partners in the regular religious rites.[d] [22]But they received it in a disagreeable manner and rejected what is good in line with their natural, spiteful character. Turning continually to what is worthless, [23]they not only rejected the priceless offer of citizenship but also showed their contempt, by what they said and by their silence, for those few Jews among them who favored us with honor. In every case they suspected, in keeping with their most shameful way of life, that we would swiftly reverse the policy. [24]We were fully persuaded indeed by such proofs that these people were ill-disposed toward us in every way.

Therefore, we took care so that, if a sudden rebellion should arise against us later, we won't find that we have these evil people at our backs as traitors and uncivilized enemies. [25]We have given an order that as soon as this letter arrives, you are immediately to send to us those Jews who live among you, together with their wives and children, to suffer a certain and shameful death appropriate for enemies. Treat them harshly and abusively, and bind them on all sides in iron chains. [26]We are sure that, when these people have all been punished, the affairs of our state will be established more securely and in a more excellent condition for the future. [27]But whoever shelters any of the Jews, from an elderly person to a child to nursing infants, will be tortured, household and all, with the most horrible punishments. [28]But the one who is willing to give information will receive the property of the person falling under judgment. They will also be given two thousand drachmen[e] from the royal treasury, and will be rewarded with their freedom. 29But every place, without exception, where a Jew is discovered to be sheltered, will be laid waste and burned with fire. It will become utterly useless to every living creature for all time.

30And so the form of the letter was committed to writing.

Rounding up the Jews

3Maccabees 4 Wherever this decree was read, a feast was arranged for the Gentiles at public expense with shouts of joy. Their deep, long-standing hatred was now openly being revealed. 2But among the Jews, there were constant grief, lament, and crying. Everywhere their hearts were on fire as they groaned and bewailed the unexpected destruction that the king had suddenly inflicted on them. 3What district or city, or what inhabited place of any kind, or what streets weren't filled with grieving and weeping for them? 4They were being sent off together by the generals in every city in a merciless and cruel manner. At the sight of these unusual punishments, even some of the Jews' enemies wept over their most miserable expulsion, for they saw their pitiable state and reflected on the uncertain outcome of life. 5A multitude of gray-haired, elderly men were being led away, bent over with age, their feet plodding along under the distress of a forced, swift march, with no consideration given to their age. 6Young women, who had just entered the bridal bedroom for the sharing of life, exchanged joy for weeping and sprinkled dust on their hair that was still wet with perfume. They were led away with their heads bare and began to sing a funeral song together in place of a wedding song, as they were roughly handled by the cruel treatment of a foreign nation.[f] 7These captives were violently dragged away in public view to be put on board ship. 8Their husbands, in the prime of their youth, had ropes tied around their necks instead of festive garlands. They spent the remaining days of their wedding festivities weeping rather than celebrating and enjoying youthful amusements, seeing the grave already yawning at their feet. 9They were driven like animals, constrained by the power of iron chains. Some were fastened by the neck to the ship's benches; some were secured by their feet with unbreakable shackles. 10Moreover, they were plunged into total darkness due to thick planks positioned above them so that they would receive the treatment due traitors throughout the entire voyage.

[11]When these people had been brought to the place called Schedia, and the voyage was finished, just as the king had decreed, Ptolemy ordered the captives to be encamped on the outskirts of the city in the racecourse. This stadium had been built with an immense perimeter and was very well placed for providing a public spectacle to all those returning home to the city and to those setting out from the city into the country for a trip abroad. The captives had no communication at all with the king's forces, nor were they considered worthy of the protection of the city wall. [12]When this was done, the king heard that their fellow Jews were frequently going forth from the city in secret to express sympathy for the shameful misery of their kindred. [13]He became very angry and gave an order to deal with these people in exactly the same thorough fashion as the others, not leaving out any part of their punishment. [14]The entire tribe was to be registered by name--no longer for the service of hard labor described earlier, but to be tortured with the prescribed punishments and, in the end, to be killed within a single day. [15]So the process of drawing up a list of these people was carried out with cruel eagerness and intense diligence from the rising of the sun until its setting, coming to an end, though still incomplete, after forty days.

[16]Filled with constant joy, the king organized banquets at the sites of all his idols. With a mind that had strayed far from the truth and with a polluted mouth, he praised objects that were deaf and unable to speak or give aid, but he spoke improper words against the supreme God. [17]At the end of the forty days, the clerks reported to the king that they were no longer able to complete the task of drawing up a list of all the Jews because of their countless number. [18]Though the majority were still in the country, some still in their homes, and some even on-site,[g] the job had become impossible for all the generals in Egypt. [19]After the king had threatened the clerks severely, claiming that they had accepted money to arrange a plan of escape, he came to be convinced [20]when they explained and offered proof that both the paper supply and the reed pens that they were using had already run out. [21]But this happened by the invincible providence of the one who was giving the Jews help from heaven.

Sleep foils the king's plan

3Maccabees 5 Then the king, completely stubborn and filled with extreme rage and bitterness, called for Hermon the elephant keeper. [2]He ordered him to drug all the elephants--five hundred in number--with heaping handfuls of frankincense and much unmixed wine on the following day. When the abundant quantity of drink had driven them wild, Hermon was to bring them in so that the Jews might meet their doom. [3]When Ptolemy had given these commands, he went back to his partying, having gathered those of his friends and of the army who were especially hostile toward the Jews. [4]But Hermon the elephant keeper promptly began to carry out the orders. [5]The servants in charge of the Jews went out in the evening, bound the hands of those enduring this distress, and arranged for their continued custody through the night. They expected that the entire race would come to a ruinous end. [6]To the Gentiles it seemed that the Jews were entirely without refuge, since in their chains, distress surrounded them on every side. [7]But with persistent cries and tears they all called upon their almighty Lord and merciful God and father, who rules over every power. They continued to pray [8]that he would turn away the evil plot against them and rescue them with a glorious display of power from their impending fate. [9]So their prayer rose earnestly to heaven.

[10]Now when Hermon had made the savage elephants drunk so that they were full of a great quantity of wine and drugged with frankincense, he came to the palace courtyard early in the morning to report to the king. [11]But God sent to the king a portion of sleep, the precious creation from before recorded time, granted night and day by the one who gives it generously to whomever he wishes. [12]By the Lord's doing, the king was overcome by a most pleasant and deep sleep,[h] such that he utterly failed in his unlawful purpose and was completely cheated out of his stubborn plan. [13]And the Jews, having escaped the announced hour, praised their holy God and again prayed that the one who is quickly reconciled to his people would show the might of his exceedingly strong hand to the arrogant Gentiles.

[14]When it was almost the middle of the tenth hour, the person in charge of the invitations, seeing that the guests were gathered, approached the king and nudged him [15]After waking him with some difficulty, he informed him that the time of the banquet was already slipping by, and gave him an account concerning the matter. [16]The king, after considering this, returned to his drinking and commanded those who were present at the banquet to recline across from him. [17]When this had been done, he urged the guests to give themselves over to feasting and to make up for the lost time by celebrating all the more now. [18]After the party had been going on for some time, the king called Hermon in and asked him, with angry threats, why the Jews had been permitted to remain alive through the present day. [19]But Hermon pointed out that he had fully carried out the orders at night, and his friends confirmed his story. [20]So the king, with a savagery worse than the tyrant Phalaris, said that the Jews could be grateful for today's sleep, but "Tomorrow," he said, "without delay, prepare the elephants in the same way for the destruction of the unseemly Jews."[21]So the king spoke, and when all those present gave their unanimous approval readily and joyfully, they all departed for their own homes. [22]But they didn't spend their night sleeping so much as devising all kinds of insults for those who seemed to be doomed.

Forgetfulness foils the king's plan

[23]By dawn, when the roosters began to crow, Hermon had outfitted the beasts and started them moving along in the great colonnade. [24]Crowds of people from throughout the city gathered for the most sorry spectacle and were eagerly awaiting the early morning. [25]The Jews were at their last gasp, since time was short. With tearful prayer and mournful sounds, they stretched out their hands to heaven and begged the supreme God to help them again quickly. [26]Before the rays of the sun were scattered across the sky, while the king was receiving his friends, Hermon approached him and invited him to come out, indicating that the king's desire was ready to be put into action. [27]When he heard this, the king was surprised at the unusual invitation to come out from the palace. He was completely overcome by confusion, and he asked what it was that they had worked so hard to prepare for him. [28]Now this was God's doing, the God who is Lord over all things, who had placed in the king's mind forgetfulness of the schemes that he had previously devised. [29]Hermon and all the king's friends pointed out, "The beasts and the forces have been prepared, Your Majesty, according to your careful plan."

[30]But at these words the king was filled with extreme wrath because the providence of God had scattered every thought of his concerning these matters. He glared threateningly at Hermon and said, [31]"If your parents or children were here, I would have them prepared[i] as a lavish meal for wild animals instead of the Jews. They are blameless as far as I'm concerned, and have demonstrated constant loyalty above all others toward my ancestors. [32]Indeed, if it weren't for the affection of our common upbringing and your service, you would've been deprived of life instead of them."[33]So Hermon endured an unexpected and dangerous threat, and his eyes and face showed his dismay. [34]One by one the king's friends slipped away sullenly, and the guests were dismissed, each to his own business. [35]Now when the Jews heard about what the king had said, they praised God, the Lord, the king of kings, who had made his power apparent in giving them this assistance.

[36]Now the king resumed the entire banquet, according to the same rules, and began inviting the guests to return to their celebration. [37]He summoned Hermon and said with a threat, "How often, you sorry creature, must I command you concerning these same matters?[38]Equip the elephants yet again for the destruction of the Jews tomorrow."[39]But the king's officials, who were reclining at the table with him, were taken aback by his unstable mind and began to protest as follows: [40]"Your Majesty, how long will you test us, as though we were fools, giving an order a third time to destroy the Jews and again reversing your decisions?[41]As a result, the city is in an uproar because of its expectation. It is already swarming with mobs and is very much at risk of being plundered."[42]At that point the king, a Phalaris in every way, was filled with madness and gave no thought at all to the change of heart that had come about in him concerning the punishment of the Jews. He firmly swore an irrevocable pledge that he would send these people to the grave[j] without delay, mangled by the knees and feet of the beasts. [43]He swore he would march against Judea and swiftly burn it to the ground with fire and spear. Their temple, which he hadn't been allowed to enter, he would level with fire, ridding it forever of those who performed sacrifices there. [44]Then the friends and officials departed with joy and confidently assigned the armed forces to the places in the city that were best for keeping watch.

[45]Now the elephant keeper drove the beasts almost to a state of madness with the most fragrant drinks, namely, wine mixed with incense, and he equipped them with frightful trappings. [46]Around dawn, when the city was already filled with countless crowds moving toward the racecourse, he entered the palace and urged the king on to the matter at hand. [47]So the king, filled with rage, rushed out with all fierceness to join the beasts. He wanted to witness with steely heart and with his own eyes the painful and miserable destruction of the previously mentioned people. [48]The Jews saw the dust cloud created by the elephants going out at the gate, the armed force following them, and the marching of the crowd, and they heard the noisy ruckus. [49]Thinking that this was their final moment of life, the fulfillment of their most wretched fear, they gave themselves over to pitiful wailing and weeping. They began to kiss each other, embracing their families and throwing themselves upon each other's shoulders, parents to children and mothers to daughters. Other women had their newborn infants at their breasts drawing their last milk. [50]Nevertheless, when they took into consideration the assistance that they had previously received from heaven, they took their infants away from their breasts and all together bowed down. [51]They cried out with a very loud voice, pleading with the Lord of all power to have mercy on them by intervening, since they now stood at the gates of death.

Prayer of Eleazar

3Maccabees 6 Now a certain Eleazar was a distinguished person among the priests from the country. He had attained an advanced age, and throughout his life he had displayed every virtue. He restrained the elders around him from calling on the holy God, while he prayed as follows:

> [2]Dear King, mighty in power, almighty God Most High, you govern the whole creation with mercy. [3]Look upon the descendants of Abraham, upon the children of sacred Jacob, father, a people set apart as your inheritance, who are strangers perishing in a strange land. [4]Pharaoh, the former ruler of this land of Egypt, with his multitude of chariots, showed great presumption with his arrogant actions and proud boasts. But you destroyed him along with his arrogant army. You drowned them in the sea and showed forth the light of your mercy to your people Israel. [5]Sennacherib, the cruel king of the Assyrians, prided himself in his innumerable forces and had already subdued the entire earth by the spear. He rose up against your holy city, speaking fierce words with arrogant boasting, and you, Lord, shattered him, displaying your power openly to many nations. [6]Daniel's three friends in Babylon voluntarily gave their lives to the fire in order not to serve worthless things. You rescued them, sprinkling the fiery furnace with dew, such that not a hair on their heads was harmed, while you sent the flames forth upon all their enemies. [7]Because Daniel was envied and slandered, he was thrown down into the earth to lions as food for the beasts. But you led him back up into the light unhurt. [8]And you,

Father, looked upon Jonah, when he was wasting away in the belly of a sea monster from the depths, and you restored him unharmed to all his family.

9So you who hate arrogance, most merciful defender of all things, reveal yourself quickly to those of the people of Israel who are being spitefully mistreated by vile and lawless Gentiles. 10If we've gotten tangled up in sins during our exile, rescue us from the hand of our enemies, Lord, and destroy us by whatever fate you choose. 11Don't let these empty-headed people praise their empty gods for the destruction of your dearly loved people, saying, "Not even their God rescued them!"12But you, who have all might and all power, eternal one, look upon us now. Have mercy on us who, by the senseless arrogance of lawless people, are being deprived of life as if we were traitors. 13Let the Gentiles tremble in fear today at your matchless power, honored one, you who possess the power to rescue the people of Jacob. 14The entire multitude of infants and their parents is begging you with tears. 15Let it be shown to all the Gentiles that you are with us, Lord, and you haven't turned your face away from us. But just as you have said, "Not even when they were in the land of their enemies did I neglect them,"[k] so bring it to pass, Lord.

God delivers the Jews

16Now as Eleazar was concluding his prayer, the king arrived at the racecourse with the beasts and all the arrogance of his power. 17When the Jews saw this, they cried out to heaven so loudly that even the nearby valleys echoed, putting the army into a panic. 18Then the most glorious, almighty, and true God showed forth his holy face and opened the heavenly gates. Two glorified angels of frightful appearance descended, visible to all except the Jews. 19They opposed the power of the enemies, filled them with confusion and dread, and made them freeze in their tracks as with shackles. 20Even the body of the king gave a slight shudder, and he forgot his sullen arrogance. 21The elephants turned back on the armed forces that were following them, and they began to trample and destroy them.

22The king's anger was changed into pity and tears because of the schemes that he had previously devised. 23When he heard the loud cry and saw the Jews all lying on the ground awaiting destruction, he wept and violently threatened his friends, saying, [24]"You have used your power badly and acted more savagely than tyrants. You are now attempting to rob even me, your benefactor, of my rule and my life. Secretly you devise things that are of no advantage to the kingdom.

[25]Who has driven from their homes those who have faithfully commanded the fortresses of our country? Who has senselessly gathered them all in this place?
[26]Who has so unjustly rewarded those who from the beginning differed from all the nations in their goodwill toward us in every way, and who often have taken upon themselves the worst human dangers by mistreating them on every side?
[27]Release them from those undeserved chains! Send them in peace back to their homes, and seek forgiveness for the deeds that have been done. [28]Free the children of the almighty, living God of heaven, who from the days of our ancestors until now has given our kingdom constant and notable stability."[29]So the king said these things, and the Jews, who were released immediately, praised their holy God and savior, since they had just now escaped death.

Celebration of deliverance

[30]Then the king went back into the city and called for the official in charge of the treasury. He ordered him to supply the Jews with wines and everything else needed for a seven-day festival. The king decided that the Jews should celebrate their rescue with all joy in the same place where they thought they would meet destruction. [31]So the people who previously had been disgraced and stood near death--at its very brink!--prepared for a festival of deliverance instead of a bitter and most mournful fate. The place that had been prepared for their ruin and burial was joyfully divided up among people in celebration. [32]They stopped singing their sad songs of lament and took up an ancient hymn in praise of their rescuer, the wonder-working God.[l] They threw aside all weeping and wailing and instead sang songs in organized groups as a sign of peaceful joy. [33]The king also assembled a huge banquet because of these events. He kept giving generous praise to heaven for the remarkable rescue that he[m] had experienced. [34]Those who had previously believed that the Jews would be destroyed and would become food for the birds, and who had drawn up the lists of their names and goods with delight, now groaned. For they were clothed with shame, and the fire of their boldness had been thoroughly doused.

[35]The Jews, as we said before, organized singing groups and spent their time in celebration with cheerful thanksgiving psalms. [36]They decided that this would be a holiday to be observed for generations to come by the Jewish community living in exile there. The festival would be kept in a spirit of celebration, not as an excuse for overeating and getting drunk but because of the rescue that God had accomplished for them. [37]They appealed to the king, asking for his permission to return to their homes.

[38]The drawing up of the lists of names was conducted from the twenty-fifth of Pachon[n] to the fourth of Epiphi,[o] over a period of forty days; and their destruction was planned for the fifth of Epiphi until the seventh, a period of three days. [39]But also during those days the Lord of all gloriously displayed his mercy and brought them through without harm, each and every one. [40]So being well supplied by the king, they feasted until the fourteenth day, on which day they made the petition concerning their return.

Ptolemy Philopator's letter

[41]The king granted it to them and wrote the following letter on their behalf to the generals in every city, generously stating his deep concern:

3Maccabees 7 King Ptolemy Philopator to the generals throughout Egypt and to all those put in charge of affairs. Greetings and good health.

[2]We ourselves and our children also enjoy good health since the great God guides our affairs, as is our desire. [3]Certain of our friends, by frequently urging us out of spite, persuaded us to gather the Jews from throughout the kingdom together in one place and to torment them with unusual punishments as traitors. [4]They insisted that our government would never be stable until this was accomplished, due to the hostility that these people were said to have toward all the nations. [5]These friends also drove them along in chains, treating them harshly as slaves, or rather, as traitors. Without any investigation or trial they attempted to destroy them, displaying a cruelty more savage than the barbarians from Scythia. [6]Now we threatened them sternly for these actions, but we granted them their lives (but just barely!) in keeping with the patience that we show toward all people. Because we have learned that the heavenly God surely shields the Jews and fights alongside them as a father for his children, [7]and because we have considered the constant goodwill that they have shown toward us and our ancestors, we rightly hold them innocent of every charge of whatever kind.

[8]We have ordered them all to return, each and every one, to their homes. No one anywhere is to harm them at all, or cast any blame on them regarding these senseless events. [9]You should be aware that, if we ever devise any evil against these people or trouble them in any way, we won't have a human being as our enemy but rather the Most High God, who is Lord over every power. It is he who will enforce the punishment for our actions in every way, and from him there is no escape. Farewell.

Punishment of Jewish lawbreakers

[10]When the Jews received this letter, they didn't rush to depart. Instead, they petitioned the king that they might carry out the punishment deserved by those Jews who had voluntarily turned aside from the holy God and God's Law. [11]They insisted that those who had broken divine laws for the sake of the belly would never be reliable subjects under the king's government either. [12]The king recognized and agreed that they were speaking the truth. So he gave them a free hand to utterly destroy those who had violated God's Law in every place within his kingdom, and to do so with confidence and without needing royal approval or supervision. [13]Then they applauded him, as was fitting, and their priests and all the crowd shouted the Hallelujah joyously and departed. [14]On their way they punished and killed any fellow Jews they came upon who had polluted themselves, making a public example of them. [15]On that day they killed more than three hundred persons, a day that they also observed as a joyous festival since they had subdued the renegades. [16]But those who had held fast to God to the point of death, having obtained the complete reward of deliverance, set out from the city crowned with all kinds of the most fragrant flowers, celebrating and shouting, giving thanks with praises and beautiful hymns to the God of their ancestors, the eternal savior of Israel.

The Jews return home

[17]The Jews arrived at Ptolemais, named "Rose-bearing" because of a distinctive feature of the place, where the fleet waited for them for seven days in line with their common desire. [18]There they toasted their rescue, since the king had generously supplied them, each and every one, with all things they needed until their arrival at their own homes. [19]When they had reached their land in peace, there too, in like manner with appropriate expressions of thanks, they decided to observe these days as a festival for as long as they lived in Egypt. [20]They inscribed the record of these events on a pillar and dedicated a place of prayer at the site of the festival. Then they departed unharmed, free, and overjoyed, being safely returned by land, sea, and river to their own homes, by the king's command. [21]They gained more influence among their enemies than they had had previously, and were held in honor and awe. No one at all kept back their possessions from them. [22]The Jews recovered all their property in keeping with the lists that had been previously drawn up, with the result that those who held anything of theirs returned it to them with the greatest deference, for the supreme God had perfectly performed mighty deeds for their salvation. [23]Bless the rescuer of Israel from now to eternity! Amen.

2Esdras 1

The second scroll of the prophet Ezra son of Saraiah son of Azariah son of Hilkiah son of Shallum son of Zadok son of Ahitub [2]son of Ahijah son of Phinehas son of Eli son of Amariah son of Aziah son of Maraimoth son of Arna son of Uzziah son of Borith son of Abishua son of Phinehas son of Eleazar [3]son of Aaron from the tribe of Levi. Ezra was a captive in the region of the Medes during the rule of King Artaxerxes of the Persians.

Rejection of Israel as God's people

[4]The Lord's word came to Ezra, Chusi's son, in the days of King Nebuchadnezzar: [5]Go and announce to my people their crimes. Tell their children about the sins they committed against me. Let their children also announce this to their own children, [6]because the children have added to their parents' sins. They forgot me and offered sacrifices to foreign gods! [7]Didn't I bring them out of the land of Egypt where they lived in slavery? Why then have they angered me and rejected my advice?

[8]Therefore, the Lord says: Tear out your hair and hurl every kind of disaster at them, because they haven't obeyed my Law. Undisciplined people! [9]How long will I put up with them--and after I granted them so many favors? [10]I have overthrown many kings for their sakes. I plunged Pharaoh together with his servants and his whole army into the sea!

[11]Didn't I destroy the city of Bethsaida for your sake? Didn't I burn up two cities south of you, Tyre and Sidon, with fire and kill those opposing you?[b] [13]Didn't I bring you through the sea, and make walls to your right and left? I gave Moses and Aaron to you as leaders. [14]I gave you a column of lightning for light. These are the many wonderful deeds that I performed among you, but you have forgotten me, says the Lord.

[15]The Lord says this: The quails were a sign for you. I gave you safe places to camp, and there you grumbled. [16]I sank your pursuer along with his army, and yet the people grumble about their own destruction. [17]What kind of return is this for the favors I granted you?[c]

When you were hungry and thirsty in the wilderness, you called out to me, [18]"Why did you lead us into this wilderness to kill us? It would have been better for us to serve the Egyptians than to die in this desert."[19]Therefore, I felt sorry for your groans. I gave you manna, and you ate. [20]When you were thirsty, I split open the rock so that water flowed in abundance. Because of the hot sun,[d] I created trees covered with leaves for you.

[21]I gave you fertile lands. I drove out Canaanites, Hittites, Perizzites, and their children before you. What more can I do for you?! says the Lord.

[22]The Lord says this: In the desert when you were thirsty at the bitter river and insulting my name, [23]I didn't become angry. Instead, I cast wood into the water and made the river sweet.

[24]What will I do to you, Jacob?
Judah, you wouldn't obey me.
I will turn to another nation and give them my name.
They will certainly keep my ordinances.
[25]When those who abandoned me beg for mercy,
I won't have mercy on them.
[26]When they call upon me,
I won't hear them
because they have stained their souls,
and have hands stained with blood.
Your feet aren't slow to commit murder.
[27]You haven't abandoned me;
rather, you have abandoned yourselves, says the Lord.

[28]The Lord says this: Didn't I plead with you like a father with his sons, like a mother with her daughters, and like a nurse who loves her little one, [29]that you should be my people and I your God, and that you should be my children and I your Father? [30]I gathered you as a hen gathers her chickens under her wings. But what will I do with you?

I will throw you out of my presence. 31When you bring me offerings, I will turn my eyes away from you. I didn't command you to observe[e] festival days, new moons, sabbaths, and circumcisions. 32I sent my servants the prophets to you. You took them, mangled them, and slaughtered those who had been sent.[f] But I will make you pay for their deaths, says the Lord.

33The almighty Lord says this: Your house is left empty. I will scatter you as the wind scatters straw. 34Your children will have no children, because they have neglected my commandment, and have done evil in front of me.

35I will hand over your houses to a people who will come from far away. Those who didn't know me will believe me, and those to whom I showed no signs will do what I commanded. 36They didn't see prophets but are mindful of the prophets' antiquity. 37The apostles will joyfully testify to the coming people. Those who didn't see me with their physical eyes believe in their spirit. They have heard the things I said and believe me.

38Now, Father, look with pride and see the people coming from the east. 39I will give them authority, together with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, Elijah and Enoch, Zechariah and Hosea, Amos, Joel, Micah, Obadiah, Zephaniah, 40Nahum, Jonah, Malachi, Habakkuk, and twelve angels carrying flowers.

2Esdras

2The Lord says this: I led forth a people to whom I gave commandments. But they were unwilling to listen, and they ignored my advice 2The mother who bore them says to them: "Go, children, because I am widowed and abandoned. 3I brought you up with joy, but I will send you away with mourning and sadness, because you have sinned in the presence of the Lord God and have done bad things in his sight. 4But now what will I do for you? I am a widow and abandoned by my children. Go, children, and seek mercy from the Lord,5for I am left all alone."

I call upon you, Father, concerning the mother of those who were unwilling to keep your covenant: 6Throw them into confusion and their mother into ruin. May they leave no descendants, 7but be scattered among the nations! May their names be wiped out from the earth because they despised my covenant!

[8]How terrible it will be for you, Assyria--you who are hiding the wicked in your midst! Evil city, remember what I did to Sodom and Gomorrah, [9]whose land was dragged down all the way to hell. I will do the same to those who haven't obeyed me, says the almighty Lord.

The church as God's people

[10]The Lord said this to Ezra: Announce to my people that I have prepared a feast for them, and I will give them the kingdom of Jerusalem, which I was about to give to Israel. [11]I will take Israel's glory for them and give to them the eternal dwelling places I had prepared for Israel. [12]The tree of life will provide them with fragrant ointment, and they won't labor or grow tired.

[13]Ask and you will receive; ask for yourselves just a few days so that your days may be shortened. Already my kingdom is prepared to come, so be watchful in spirit. [14]I call heaven and earth as witnesses: I have dismissed evil and created good, because I live, says the Lord.

[15]Good mother, embrace your children. Give them joy, like a dove that brings up its children. Make their feet steady, for I have chosen you, says the Lord. [16]I will raise the dead from their places and from their tombs, for I have recognized that my name is in them.

[17]Don't fear, mother of the children: I have chosen you, says the Lord. [18]I will send my servants Jeremiah, Isaiah, and Daniel to help you. It was on their advice that I have made you holy. I will prepare twelve trees with various kinds of fruit for you, [19]and seven springs full of milk and honey, and huge mountains bearing roses and lilies, which I have prepared for you and your children. I will fill your children with joy.

[20]Defend the widow's rights. Judge in favor of the fatherless. Provide for those who are in need. Protect the orphan. Clothe the naked. [21]Care for the broken and the weak. Don't mock the lame, but protect them instead. Help the blind to see a vision of my glory. [22]Gather the old and the young within your walls. Watch over your infants. Let your servants and employees rejoice, and your whole community will have good morale.

[23]When I find your dead, I will raise them. I will watch for signs, and I will give them the front seat at the resurrection I will bring about.[g] 24Wait a little;

your rest will come.

25Good nurse, nourish your children. Strengthen those whom you bore and make their feet steady, 26because none of those whom I have given you will perish. I will require them from your number. 27Give it your all![h] Strengthen them! Days of pressure and anguish will come; others will weep and be sad, but you will be happy and have plenty. 28All the nations will be jealous of you, but they won't be able to do anything against you, says the Lord. 29All things tremble before me; my eyes see the pit of hell.[i]

30Rejoice, mother, with your children, and I will rescue you, says the Lord.
31I will remember your children who sleep, because I will seek them out from the breadth of the earth. Strengthen them in the abundance of your glory and show mercy, because I am merciful, says the Lord. 32Embrace those born from you until I come, and show mercy to the others, because my springs will overflow and my favor won't fail.

33I, Ezra, received a command from the Lord on Mount Horeb for Israel, but they rejected this commandment. 34I say to you who hear and understand: Wait for your shepherd. I will give you your eternal rest, because the end of the age and the decline of humankind are near. 35Be prepared for the kingdom's rewards, for everlasting light will shine on you, and eternity is prepared for you. 36Run away from this world's shadow that holds your glory captive. I testify that my savior has been commissioned by the Lord.

37Receive the joy that comes from your glory, all of you, giving thanks to him who has called you to heavenly kingdoms. 38Rise, stand, and see the number of those sealed at the feast, 39those who have transferred themselves from the shadow of this world and received bright garments from the Lord.

40Welcome your full number, Mount Zion. Receive the full tally of your white-robed people who serve you in obedience, because they have fulfilled the Lord's Law. 41Since you have long wished for your children to come, fill up their number. Ask the Lord's sovereign power that your people may be honored as holy, since they were called from the beginning.

42I, Ezra, saw on Mount Zion a great crowd, which I couldn't number. They were all praising the Lord together with songs. 43In their midst was a tall young man, standing above all the rest. He placed crowns on each of their heads, and they were further honored.

I began to wonder, 44and I asked an angel, "Who are these people?"

45The angel answered me, "These are the ones who took off the mortal garment and put on the immortal and confessed the name of God. Now they are being crowned, and they are receiving palms."

46I said to the angel, "Who is that young man who gives them crowns and palms?"

47The angel answered, "That is God's Son, whom they confessed in the mortal world."

I began to praise and celebrate the Lord. 48The angel said to me, "Go announce to his people how many wonders the Lord God has shown you."

First dialogue

2Esdras 3[j] In the thirtieth year after our city was destroyed, I, Salathiel, who am also Ezra, was in Babylon. I was disturbed as I lay on my bed, and my thoughts kept welling up inside me, 2because I saw how Zion lay in ruins and how those who lived in Babylon enjoyed abundance. 3I was deeply disturbed, and I began to speak reverently to the Most High: 4"Supreme Lord, didn't you speak in the beginning, when you fashioned the earth, and did this alone? Didn't you command the earth,[k] 5and it gave you[l] Adam, a lifeless body? But it was the work of your hands, and so you breathed into him the breath of life, and he came to life in your presence. 6You led him into paradise, which your strong hand had planted before earth came to be. 7You gave him one command, and he disobeyed it, and so you immediately appointed death for him and for his descendants. Nations, tribes, peoples, and families without number were born from him. 8Each nation lived by its own will, and people acted without giving you a thought. They acted with scorn, and you didn't prevent them. 9But again, in time you brought the flood over the world and upon those who live in it[m] and destroyed them. [10]Their fate was all the same: as death came upon Adam so the flood came upon them. [11]But you left one of them, Noah, with his household, and all the righteous descended from him.

[12]"When those who lived on earth began to multiply (and multiply they did--children, peoples, and many nations), they began again to act wickedly, even more so than the previous ones. [13]When they committed iniquity before you, you chose one from among them whose name was Abraham. [14]You loved him and showed him alone the end of times, secretly by night. [15]You made an eternal covenant with him, and you told him that you would never abandon his family line. You gave him Isaac, and you gave Jacob and Esau to Isaac. [16]You set Jacob apart for yourself, but you set Esau aside, and Jacob became a great multitude. [17]When you brought his descendants out of Egypt, you led them to Mount Sinai. [18]You bent down the heavens; you shook[n] the earth; you moved the world; you made the abyss tremble; you made the whole cosmos shudder. [19]Your glory passed through the four gates of fire, earthquake, wind, and ice so that you would give the Law to Jacob's descendants, the rules to be observed to Israel's offspring.

[20]"But you didn't take away from them the inclination to do evil[o] so that your Law might bear fruit in them. [21]The first Adam, burdened with this inclination, disobeyed you and was overcome, but so were all those descended from him. [22]The disease became permanent; the Law was in the people's heart along with the wicked root, and that which was good departed and the wickedness remained. [23]Times passed and years were completed, and you raised up for yourself a servant named David. [24]You told him to build a city to your name and to bring you offerings in it from what is yours. [25]This was done for many years. But those who inhabited the city sinned, [26]doing in every matter just as Adam and all his descendants had done, for they too exercised their inclination to do evil. [27]So you handed your city over to your enemies.

[28]"I said then in my heart, Are the lives of Babylon's inhabitants any better? Is that why Babylon has gained dominion[p] over Zion? [29]But when I came here, I saw their countless godless acts. I have seen many sinners during these thirty years.[q] Then my heart failed, [30]because I saw how you sustain these sinners and have spared those who act without giving you a thought. I saw how you destroyed your people and preserved your enemies, [31]and haven't given anyone any clue as to how to make sense of these ways.[r] Does Babylon do better than Zion? [32]Has any other nation known you besides Israel? What tribes have believed your covenants as have these tribes of Jacob, [33]whose reward hasn't appeared and whose labor hasn't borne fruit? I have traveled widely among the nations and seen them enjoying abundance while not giving your commandments a thought. [34]Now then put our sins on one side of a pair of scales, and put the sins of those who live in the world on the other side. Let's see then which way the scales tip. [35]When have those who live on earth not sinned in your sight, or what other nation has observed your commandments as has ours? [36]You will find individuals who have kept your laws, but nations you will not find."

2Esdras 4

[1]Then the angel who had been sent to me, whose name was Uriel, replied: [2]"Your mind[s] has utterly failed with regard to this world, and do you think you can understand the way of the Most High?"

[3]I said, "Yes, my Lord."

He answered: "I am sent to show you three ways and to set three problems before you. [4]If you can say anything to me about one of these, I will show you the way you want to see, and I will teach you why the heart leans toward evil."

[5]I said, "Speak, my Lord."

He said to me, "Go, weigh for me the weight of fire, or measure for me a blast of wind, or call back for me the day that is past."

[6]I answered, "Who alive can do this? How can you ask me these things?"

[7]Uriel said to me: "If I had asked you, 'How many dwellings are in the depths of the sea, or how many springs are in the source of the abyss, or how many paths are there above the dome, or which are the exits of paradise,'[t] [8]you would perhaps have said to me: 'I haven't descended into the abyss nor as yet into hell, nor have I ever ascended to heaven.'[9]But I've only asked you here about fire and wind and the day you have passed through, things you can't exist without, and you haven't answered me about them."

[10]He said to me: "You can't even understand the things that are yours, which you have grown up with. [11]How then can your mind[u] contain the way of the Most High? How can a person who is already corrupted by the corrupt world understand the realm beyond corruption?"

I fell on my face [12]and said to him, "It would have been better not to have come into being than to come here, live in the middle of wickedness, suffer, and not understand why."

[13]He answered me: "I went forth to a forest of trees on the plain,[v] and they devised a plan[14]and said: 'Come, let's go and make war on the sea so that it may recede before us, and let's make for ourselves more forests.'[15]And likewise, the waves of the sea also formed a plan and said, 'Come, let's go up and subdue the forest on the plain so that there too we may complete another region for ourselves.'[16]But the plan of the forest came to naught, for fire came and consumed it. [17]Likewise also the plan of the waves of the sea, for the sand stood firm and prevented it. [18]If then you were judge of these, which would you begin to justify and which to condemn?"

[20]Uriel answered me: "You have judged well. So why haven't you judged well in your own case?[21]As the land is given to the forest and the sea to the waves, so also only those who live on earth can understand the things that are on earth, and only those who live above the heavens can understand the things that are above the height of the heavens."

[22]I answered, "I beg you, Lord, why has the sense of understanding been given to me?[23]It wasn't my purpose to ask about the ways above but about the things that we see every day. Why has Israel been handed over to the Gentiles to our shame? Why has the people you loved been given over to godless tribes? Why has the Law of our ancestors been invalidated and the written ordinances come to nothing?[24]Why do we pass from the world like locusts and our life like a mist? Why aren't we worthy to obtain mercy?[25]What will God do for the sake of his name, which is bestowed on us? About these things I have asked."

[26]He answered me: "If you remain alive, you'll see. If you live, you will often be amazed, because the world is indeed rushing to its end. [27]Indeed, it can't bring the things that are promised to the just during this age, because this world is full of sadness and sickliness. [28]The evil about which you asked me has been sown, and its full harvest hasn't yet come. [29]If that which was sown isn't reaped, and the place where evil has been sown hasn't departed, the field where good is sown won't come. [30]A grain of evil seed was sown in the heart of Adam from the beginning, and how much godlessness it has produced until now and will produce until the time for threshing comes![31]Calculate for yourself how much godless fruit the grain of evil seed will have produced![32]When the innumerable ears of grain are sown, how great a threshing floor will they begin to make!"

[33]I answered: "Where and when will these things be? Why are our years few and evil?"

[34]He answered: "Don't be in a greater hurry than the Most High. You hurry only for yourself, but the Most High on behalf of many. [35]Didn't the souls of the just in their resting places ask about these things, saying, 'How long are we to remain here,[w] and when will the harvest of our reward come?'[36]Then Jeremiel the angel answered them, 'When the number of those like you[x] is complete, for God has weighed the world in a balance[37]and measured the times by measure and numbered the times by number, and he won't move or arouse himself until the prescribed measure is fulfilled.'"

[38]I answered: "Supreme Lord, we all are also full of impiety. [39]Is it perhaps because of us, and because of the sins of those who live on earth, that the harvest of the just is delayed?"

[40]He answered me, "Go ask a pregnant woman whether her womb can keep the baby inside her when she has completed her nine months."

[41]I said, "It can't, Lord."

He said to me: "The underworld[y] and the resting places of the souls are like the womb. [42]As the one who gives birth hastens to escape the distress of giving birth, so these also hasten to give back those things that were entrusted to them from the beginning. [43]Then you will be shown the things you want to see."

44I answered, "If I have found favor with you, if it is possible, if I am worthy,45show me this also, whether there is more time yet to come than has past or whether the greater times have passed over us,46for I know what has passed, but I don't know what is to come."

47He answered me: "Stand off to the right, and I will show you the interpretation of a parable."

48I stood aside and looked, and right there a burning furnace passed before me, and when the flame had passed, I looked and the smoke remained. 49And after this a cloud full of water passed before me, and it poured down much rain with force, and when the rainstorm had passed there remained drops in the cloud.[z]

50He said to me, "Consider for yourself: as the rain is greater than the drops and the fire is greater than the smoke, so the measure that has passed is greater, but drops and smoke remain."

51I prayed and said, "Do you think I will live until those days? Who will be alive in those days?"

52He answered me: "I can tell you in part concerning the signs you ask about, but about your own life I'm not sent to tell you. I don't know.

2Esdras 5

"But about the signs: Look, the days will come when those who live on earth will be seized with great terror.[a] The way of truth will be hidden, and the land will be barren and devoid of faith. 2Injustice will be multiplied beyond what you yourself see and beyond what you have heard of formerly. 3The land that you now see holding sway will have no one left to walk upon it, and people[b] will see it desolate. 4But if the Most High grants that you live, you will see it thrown into confusion after the third period of time.[c] The sun will suddenly start shining by night and the moon by day. 5Blood will drip from wood, and stones will speak out. Peoples will be troubled, and natural courses will be changed. 6A person no one on earth expected will come to power, and birds will migrate together. 7The sea of Sodom will cast up fish; it will utter sounds in a voice that many don't know, but all will hear its voice. 8Chasms will open up in many places, and fire will be shot forth frequently. Wild beasts will roam beyond their territory, and women will give birth to monsters. [9]Salt waters will be found in sources of freshwater. Friends everywhere will begin to fight each other. Reason will be hidden, and intelligence will go into hiding. [10]Many will look for it, but they won't find it, and injustice and lust will be multiplied on earth. [11]One country will ask its neighbor, 'Has justice passed through you, doing what is right?' and the answer will be no. [12]At that time people will hope but not get what they hoped for; they will labor, but they will make no progress. [13]I am permitted to tell you these signs, and if you pray again and continue to weep as you are now doing and fast for seven days, you will again hear greater things than these."

[14]I awoke, my body shuddered greatly, and my spirit labored so that it fainted. [15]The angel who came and talked to me held me, comforted me, and set me on my feet.

[16]On the second night, Phaltiel a leader of the people came to me and said, "Where were you, and why is your face sad?[17]Don't you realize that Israel has been entrusted to you while it is in exile in this land?[18]Arise then, and take some food so that you may not abandon us like a shepherd who leaves his flock in the power of cruel wolves."

[19]I said to him, "Leave me and don't come near me again for seven days. After that, you will come to me." He heard how I spoke and withdrew from me.

Second dialogue

[20]I didn't eat food for seven days, wailing and weeping, as the angel Uriel had commanded me. [21]After seven days, my deepest thoughts were again very troubling to me. [22]Then I recovered my wits and I began again to speak words before the Most High:

[23]Supreme Lord, you chose one vine from every forest on earth and from all its trees, [24]and from all this world's lands you chose for yourself one region,[d] and from all the world's flowers you chose for yourself one lily, [25]and from all the ocean's depths you filled for yourself one river, and from all cities that have been built you dedicated for yourself Zion, [26]and from all the created birds you named for yourself one dove, and from all the flocks that have been made you provided for yourself one sheep, [27]from all the peoples that have multiplied you acquired for yourself one people, and to this people that you desired you gave the Law celebrated by all. [28]Now, Lord, why did you give the one to the many? Why dishonor[e] the one root above all the rest, and scatter your only one among the many? [29]Those who have denied your promises have trampled those who believed in your covenants! [30]If you really hate your people, they should be punished with your own hands.

[31]When I had said these words, the angel who had come to me on the previous night was sent to me. [32]He said to me: "Listen to me, and I will instruct you; pay attention to me, and I will tell you more."

[33]I said, "Speak, my Lord."

He said to me, "Are you really more deeply disturbed over Israel, or do you love him more than the one who made him does?"

[34]I said: "No, Lord, but I spoke in grief. My heart torments me every hour while I try to make sense of the Most High's ways and investigate his decisions."

[35]He said to me, "You can't."

And I said: "Why, Lord? Or else why was I born, and why did my mother's womb not become my tomb so that I might not see the toil of Jacob and the exhaustion of the line of Israel?"

[36]He said to me: "Count for me those who haven't yet been born, gather for me the scattered raindrops, make the withered flowers bloom again for me,[37]open for me the closed warehouses and bring forth for me the winds shut up in them, or show me what a voice looks like. Then I will show you what you ask to see."

[38]I said: "Supreme Lord, who can know these things except one who doesn't live among human beings?[39]But I'm ignorant. How can I speak of these things that you asked me about?"

[40]He said to me: "As you can't do one of these things that were mentioned, so you can't comprehend my judgment or the goal[f] of the love I have promised to my people."

41I said: "Look, Lord, you've made promises concerning these who are alive at the end, but what will those who are before us do, or we, or those who come after us?"

42He said to me, "I will compare my judgment to a crown.[g] Just as there is no delay for those who come last, so there is no rushing for those who come before."

43I replied, "Couldn't you have created all at once those who have been and those who are and those who will be so that you might show your judgment more quickly?"

44He replied to me, "The creation can't run ahead of its creator, nor can the world sustain all at one time those who are created in it."

45I said: "How then could you say to your servant that you will certainly give life to the creation created by you at one time? If, therefore, they will live at one time[h] and the creation will sustain them then, couldn't it sustain them at one time now?"

46He said to me: "Ask a woman's womb: If you bear ten children,[i] why do you only do it over time? Ask it then to produce ten at once."

47I said, "Surely it can't, but only over time."

48He said to me: "I also have given the earth's womb for those who have been sown on it over time. 49As an infant doesn't give birth and a woman who has become old doesn't give birth any longer, so I have set in order the world I created."

50I asked: "Since you have given me opportunity, let me speak before you. Is our mother, of whom you spoke to me, still young? Or is she already approaching old age?"

51He responded to me: "Ask one who gives birth, and she will tell you. Say to her,52'Why are those you have borne now not like those whom you bore before, but are smaller in stature?'[53]She herself will tell you, 'Those who are born in youth's vigor are different from those who are born in the time of old age, when the womb is failing.'[54]Therefore, consider that you yourself are smaller in stature than those who were before you,[55]and those who come after you will be even smaller than you, as born of a creation that is already aging and past the strength of youth."

[56]I said: "I ask, Lord, if you look favorably on me, show your servant through whom you will visit your creation."

2Esdras 6 He said to me: "In the beginning of the earthly world--[j] before the world's exits were made, before the gathered winds blew, [2]before the voices

of the thunders sounded,
before the flashes of lightning shone, before paradise's foundations were made firm,
[3]before beautiful flowers were seen, before the powers of movement were established,
before the innumerable heavenly armies of angels were assembled, [4]before the heights of the air were lifted up,
before the measures
of the firmament were named,
before Zion's footstool was established, [5]before the present years were reckoned,
before the imaginations of those who now sin were alienated, before those who stored up faith
as a treasure were sealed--

[6]then I planned these things. As they were done by me and not by another, so also the end will come by me and not through another."

7 I answered, "What separates the times? When is the end of the first and the beginning of that which follows?"

8 He said to me: "From Abraham to Abraham, because Jacob and Esau were born from him, but Jacob's hand held Esau's heel from the outset. 9 Esau represents the end of this age, and Jacob represents the beginning of the following. 10 The beginning of the one man is his hand, and the end of the other man is his heel.[k] Don't look for anything else between heel and hand, Ezra."

11 I answered: "Supreme Lord, if only you looked so favorably upon me 12 that you would show your servant your final signs,[l] which you showed me in part on a previous night."

13 He answered: "Get up on your feet. You'll hear a loud, echoing voice.
14 Don't be afraid if the place on which you stand is greatly moved 15 while the voice is speaking. Since the word concerns the end, and since the foundations of the earth will understand 16 that the speech is about them, the place will tremble and shake, because it knows that it is destined to be transformed."

17 When I heard, I rose on my feet and listened. There was a voice speaking, and its sound was like the sound of deep waters. 18 It said: "Look! The days are coming when I will begin to come near to visit those who live on earth, 19 when I will begin to examine those who unjustly inflicted harm in their cruelty. When the humiliation of Zion is complete, 20 when the seal is placed on the age that begins to pass away, I will perform these signs: Scrolls will be opened in view of the firmament, and all will see together. 21 Infants a year old will speak with their voices, and pregnant women will give birth to premature babies of three and four months, but they will live and dance. 22 Fields that were not sown will suddenly appear sown,[m] and full warehouses will suddenly be found empty. 23 A trumpet will sound with a blast; when all hear it they will suddenly be terrified. 24 In that time friends will make war on friends like enemies, the earth along with those who live on it will be terrified, and the sources of rivers will stand still so that they don't run for three hours. 25 Then everyone who is left after all these things that I have foretold to you will be saved. These will see my deliverance and the end of my age. 26 They will see[n] the people who have been taken up and who haven't tasted death from their birth. The hearts of those who live on earth[o] will be changed and converted to a different spirit,[27]for evil will be erased and grief extinguished. [28]Faith will flourish, and corruption will be overcome. Truth that was without fruit for so long will be displayed."

[29]While he was still speaking with me, the place on which I stood was shaken,[p] little by little. [30]He said to me: "I came to show you these things this night.[q] [31]If you ask further and fast again for seven days, I will again declare daily[r] to you greater things than these,[32]because the Most High has listened to your voice. The mighty one has seen your virtue and perceived the humility you have had from your youth. [33]Because of this he sent me to show you all these things and to say to you: Trust confidently, and don't be afraid. [34]Don't be hasty to think empty thoughts about the former times, lest you be hasty about the last times."

Third dialogue

[35]After all this I wept again and abstained from food for another seven days, to complete the three weeks that had been prescribed for me. [36]Then on the eighth night my heart was disturbed within me again, and I began to speak before the Most High. [37]My spirit was greatly agitated, and my soul was troubled.

[38]Then I said: "Lord, you spoke from the beginning of creation on the first day, 'Let heaven and earth be made,' and your word accomplished the deed. [39]Then the spirit was hovering, darkness was spread around, and there was silence. There was as yet no sound of a human voice.[s] [40]Then you commanded that a ray of light be brought forth from your treasuries so that your works might be seen.

[41]"Then on the second day you created the spirit of the firmament and commanded that it divide and make a division between the waters so that a certain part might recede upward and another part remain below.

[42]"On the third day you commanded the waters to be gathered together in a seventh part of the earth, but you made six parts dry and preserved them so that some of these might be sown and cultivated, to be of service before you. [43]Your word went forth, and the work was immediately accomplished. [44]Suddenly, fruit blossomed in great abundance in an infinite variety of flavors, and flowers with matchless color and scents of unspeakable fragrance. These things were done on the third day.

45"On the fourth day you commanded the sun's splendor to be made, the moon's light, and the arrangement of the stars. 46You commanded them to serve the human being who was about to be formed.

47"On the fifth day you commanded the seventh part where the water was gathered to produce animals, birds, and fish. 48The silent and lifeless water, as it was commanded, brought forth animals so that peoples might recount your wonders. 49You kept two living creatures[t] in reserve; one you named Behemoth, and the second you named Leviathan. 50You separated them from each other, for the seventh part where the water was gathered couldn't contain them. 51You gave Behemoth one part of the land that had been dried on the third day, where there are a thousand mountains so that he might live there. 52To Leviathan, however, you gave the watery seventh part. You kept them to be eaten by whomever you wish, and whenever you wish.

53"On the sixth day you commanded the earth that it create before you cattle, beasts, and reptiles, 54and over these you set Adam, the leader over all the things you had made. From him we all, the people you have chosen, have been brought forth.

55"I have said all these things before you, Lord, because you have said that you created the oldest age[u] for our sake. 56You have said that the other nations born of Adam are nothing, that they are like spit, and you have compared their abundance to a drop from a pitcher. 57But look now, Lord! These nations that are valued as nothing rule over us and devour us,58while we, your people, whom you have called your oldest offspring, your one and only child, those who are zealous for you, your dearest ones, are handed over to them. 59If the world was created for our sake, why don't we possess our world as an inheritance? How long will this situation last?"

2Esdras 7 When I finished speaking these words, the angel who had been sent to me on the previous nights was sent to me again. 2He said to me, "Rise, Ezra, and hear the words I have come to speak to you."

[3]I said, "Speak, my Lord."

He said to me: "A certain sea is set in a spacious place so that it can be deep and vast,[4]but its entrance is set in a narrow place, like a river. [5]If anyone wants to go to the sea to see it or to rule over it, how can he come into the broad place unless he passes through the narrow?[6]Another instance: A city is built and positioned on a broad plain, full of all good things. [7]Its entrance, however, is narrow and located on a precipice so that there is fire on the right and deep water on the left. [8]There is a single path located between them, between the fire and the water, and the path has only room for human footprints. [9]If that city is given to someone as an inheritance, if the heir doesn't pass through the danger, how will the heir receive the inheritance?"

He said to me: "So also is Israel's portion. I indeed made the world on account of them. [11]When Adam transgressed my ordinances, what had been made was judged,[12]and the entrances of this world were made narrow, sorrowful, and troublesome. They are few and bad, full of dangers and involving people in great hardships. [13]The entrances of the greater world, however, are spacious and secure, and they generate the fruit of immortality. [14]If those who live don't enter these narrow and empty places, they can't receive the things that are in store. [15]Therefore, why are you disturbed, being corruptible, and why are you upset, being mortal?[16]Why haven't you focused your mind on what is still to come, rather than on what is present?"

[17]I answered: "Supreme Lord, you ordained in your Law that the just will inherit these things, but the impious will perish. [18]The just then can tolerate the narrow, hoping for the spacious, but those who have acted impiously endure the narrow and won't see the spacious."

[19]He said to me: "You aren't a higher judge than God, nor more intelligent than the Most High. [20]Better that many of those now alive should perish than that the Law of God, which is laid out before them, be disregarded. [21]God commanded those who come into the world, after they came, what they needed to do to live, and what laws they should observe to avoid punishment. [22]But they weren't persuaded and opposed him. They filled their heads with worthless thoughts, [23]and they invented excuses for their sins. They emphatically denied that the Most High exists, and they didn't learn his ways. [24]They despised his Law and rejected his covenants. They weren't faithful to his statutes, and didn't perform the works he prescribed. [25]Therefore, Ezra, empty things are for the empty and full things for the full.

[26]"Look! The time is coming when the signs appear that I told you about in advance, and the city will appear, appearing as a bride, and the land that is now hidden will be openly displayed. [27]Everyone who is rescued from the evils foretold will see my wonders. [28]My Son the anointed one[v] will be revealed along with those who are with him, and those who remain will rejoice for four hundred years.

[29]"After these years, my Son the anointed one and all who have human breath will die. [30]The world will be turned back to primeval silence for seven days, as in the earliest beginnings so that no one is left alive. [31]After seven days, the world that isn't yet awake will be roused, and the corrupt world will die. [32]The earth will give back those who sleep, and the dust will give back in silence those who dwell in it, and the resting places will give back the souls that have been entrusted to them. [33]The Most High will be revealed on the throne of judgment, and mercy will pass away. Patience will be withdrawn, [34]and only judgment will remain. Truth will arise, faith will recover strength, [35]and works will have their consequences. Reward will come about, righteous deeds will awake, and unrighteous deeds won't sleep.

[36]"The lake[w] of torment will appear, and across from it will be the place of rest. Hell's[x] furnace will be displayed and across from it the delightful paradise. [37]Then the Most High will speak to the nations that have been raised: 'Look and understand whom it is you have denied, whom you haven't served, and whose ordinances you have despised. [38]Look to one side and the other: Here is delight and rest, and over there are fire and torments.' He will say these things to them on the Judgment Day,[39]a day that has no sun or moon or stars,[40]no cloud or thunder or lightning, no wind or water or air, no darkness or evening or morning,[41]no summer or spring or heat, no winter or frost or cold, no hail or rain or dew,[42]no noon or night or early dawn, no shining or brightness or light, but only the splendor of the light of the Most High. All will then begin to see what things are in store for them. [43]It will take a period of about a week of years. [44]This is my judgment and the arrangements made for it. I have shown this to you alone."

[45]I replied: "I said before, Lord, and I say now: Privileged are those now living who observe what you have commanded. [46]But what of those who were the subject of my prayer? Who is there of all the living who hasn't sinned, or who among those who have been born hasn't transgressed your covenant?[47]Now I see that the world to come will bring delight to few but torment to many. [48]The inclination to do evil[y] grew in us. It alienated us and led us into corruption and the paths that lead to death. It showed us the way to damnation and removed us far from life--and this happened not to a few people but to nearly all who were created."

[49]He replied to me: "Listen to me, and I will instruct you and will advise you yet again. [50]Because of this the Most High made not one world but two. [51]Regarding what you said about the just being not many but few and the wicked being numerous, think about this:[52]If you have very few choice stones, will you add lead and clay to their number?"[z]

[54]He said to me, "Not only this, but ask the earth and it will inform you; flatter it and it will tell you. [55]Say to it: You create gold, silver, bronze, iron, and also lead and clay. [56]But silver is more numerous than gold, and bronze than silver, and iron than bronze, lead than iron, and clay than lead. [57]Decide yourself then which things are precious and desirable, what is abundant or what is rare."

[58]I said, "Supreme Lord, that which is abundant is cheaper, because what is more rare is valuable."

[59]He replied to me: "Reflect on what you have thought. One who has what is scarce rejoices more than one who has what is abundant. [60]So also will be the judgment[a] I have promised. I will rejoice over the few who will be saved, because they are the ones who made my honor to prevail now and through whom my reputation is celebrated. [61]I will have no regrets over the multitude who perish, for they are even now like vapor, the equivalent of flame or smoke; they burn and flare up and are quenched."

62I replied: "Earth, what have you brought to birth? If consciousness is made of dust like other creatures,63it would have been better that the dust itself had never been born, so that consciousness shouldn't be made from it. 64But now consciousness grows with us, and due to this we are tortured, because we perish and are aware of the fact. 65Let the human race lament and let the wild beasts rejoice. Let all people who are born lament, but let four-footed animals and flocks be happy!66It is much better for them than for us. They don't expect judgment. They don't know about either the torments or the deliverance that you promise after death. 67But what does it profit us that we will be preserved, only to be tortured with torments?68All who are born are mixed up with violations, full of sins, and weighed down with crimes. 69If we were not to come into judgment after death, it would perhaps have been better for us."

70He replied to me: "When the Most High made the world and Adam and all who are descended from him, he first prepared the judgment and the things that pertain to the judgment. 71Now understand on the basis of your own words--because you said, 'Consciousness grows with us.'72Those who sojourn on earth will be tormented precisely because, although they were aware, they committed violations. Although they received the commandments, they didn't keep them. When they did follow the Law, they falsified its contents. 73What will they have to say in the judgment? How will they respond in the last times?74How long a time the Most High has put up with those who inhabit the world! But this wasn't for their sakes; rather for the sake of the schedule that he has established for the unfolding of the times."

75I replied: "If I have found favor with you, Lord, show this also to your servant: After death, as soon as each person gives up his or her soul, will we be kept asleep until the time comes for you to begin to renew creation, or will we be tormented right away?"

76He replied to me: "I will show you this too. But don't associate yourself with those who have shown contempt, and don't count yourself among those who are tormented. 77You have a treasure of works stored up with the Most High, but it won't be shown to you until the last times.

[78]"Now a word about death: When the final sentence goes forth from the Most High that a person should die, when the spirit recedes from the body so that it may be sent again to him who gave it, the first thing is to stand in awe before the glory of the Most High. [79]If the spirit belonged to one of those who showed contempt and didn't keep the Most High's way, if it was one of those who despised his Law and who hates those who fear God, [80]these spirits don't go into their dwellings but will immediately wander about in torments. They will constantly grieve and be sorrowful for seven reasons:[b]

[81]The first reason--because they despised the Law of the Most High.
[82]The second reason--because they can't now effectively change their hearts and lives so that they might live.
[83]The third reason--because they will see the reward laid up for those who have believed the Most High's testimonies.
[84]The fourth reason--because they will consider the torment laid up for themselves in the last days.
[85]The fifth reason--because they will see the dwelling places of others, guarded by angels in great silence.
[86]The sixth reason--because they see the torment coming upon them from now on.[c]
[87]The seventh reason, which is greater than all the previously mentioned reasons--because they will melt away in confusion and be consumed in disgrace.[d]

"They will wither in fear when they see the glory of the Most High, before whom they sinned when they were alive and before whom they are to be judged in the last times.

[88]"The arrangement for those who kept God's ways is this when they begin to be separated from the corruptible body.[e] [89]In the time of their exile here they labored hard to serve the Most High. Every hour they endured danger so that they might keep the Law of the lawgiver perfectly. [90]Therefore, this is the word about them: [91]First, they will see with great joy the glory of him who receives them. They will have rest on account of seven orders:

[92]The first order--because they have struggled hard to overcome the evil thought fashioned within them so that it wouldn't lead them astray from life to death.

[93]The second order--because they see the panic in which the souls of the wicked wander and the punishment that awaits them.
[94]The third order--seeing the testimony that their maker has testified on their behalf, because when they were alive, they kept the Law that was given through faith.
[95]The fourth order--understanding the peaceful rest that they now enjoy, gathered in their resting chambers, guarded by angels in deep silence, and understanding the glory that awaits them in their last days.
[96]The fifth order--rejoicing at how they have now escaped the corruptible and how they will have a future inheritance; moreover, seeing the narrow space, full of labor, from which they have been freed, and the spacious place they are about to receive and enjoy, now that they are immortal.
[97]The sixth order--when they are shown how their face begins to shine like the sun and how they begin to be like the stars, as beings of incorruptible light.
[98]The seventh order, which is greater than all those mentioned--because they will rejoice with confidence and will trust without being disappointed and will rejoice without fear; for they hasten to see the face of him whom they served when they were alive and from whom they are about to receive a reward now that they are glorified.

[99]"This is the order of the souls of the just, as is announced immediately, and those previously mentioned are the ways of torment that those who paid no heed will suffer."

[100]I answered: "Will time, therefore, be given to souls after they are separated from the bodies to see what you told me?"

[101]He said to me: "They will be free for seven days so that they may see in those seven days the things[f] that have been foretold. After this, they will be gathered in their dwelling places."

[102]I answered: "If you look on me with favor, show your servant further whether on the Judgment Day the just will be able to seek mercy for the wicked or intercede for them with the Most High. [103]Will parents be allowed to intercede[g] for children, children for parents, siblings for each other, relatives for those close to them, faithful ones for those most dear to them?"

[104]He replied to me: "Because I do indeed favor you, I will also show you this. The Judgment Day is decisive.[h] It reveals the seal of truth to all. Even in the here and now a parent doesn't send a child, or a child the parent, or a master his servant, or a faithful friend a dear confidant, so that the one should understand or sleep or eat or be taken care of in the other person's place. [105]Just so, no one will ever intercede for another; everyone will then bear his or her own deeds of justice or injustice."

[106]I answered: "How then do we find that Abraham first interceded for the people of Sodom; and Moses for our ancestors who sinned in the desert;[107]and Joshua, who came after him, for Israel, in the days of Achan;[108]and Samuel in the days of Saul;[i] and David for the plague;[j] and Solomon for those in the sanctuary;[109]and Elijah for those who received the rain, and for a dead person that he might live;[110]and Hezekiah for the people in the days of Sennacherib, and many for many people?[111]If, therefore, the just prayed for the wicked when corruption had increased and injustice had multiplied, why won't it be the same then?"

[112]He answered me: "The present world isn't the end. Glory does not[k] continuously remain in it, and so those who were able prayed for the weak. [113]But the Judgment Day will be the end of this time and the beginning of the future, endless time in which decay is no more,[114]indulgence is undone, unbelief is cut off, but justice is fully grown, and truth arisen. [115]Therefore, no one will then be able to have mercy on someone who has been condemned in the judgment, nor to overwhelm one who has conquered."

[116]I answered: "This is my first and last word: It would have been better if the earth hadn't brought forth Adam, or when it had brought him forth, that it had forced him not to sin. [117]What does it benefit everyone to live in sadness during the present time, and when dead to expect punishment?[118]Adam, what have you done?! If you sinned, the downfall wasn't yours alone but also ours who are descended from you. [119]What benefit is it to us that we are promised an immortal time, but we have done works that bring death?[120]What good is it to us that everlasting hope has been predicted for us, but we have utterly failed?[121]What good is it that safe and healthy dwelling places are reserved, but we have behaved badly?[122]What good is it that the glory of the Most High will protect those who have conducted themselves decently, but we have conducted ourselves indecently?[123]What good is it that paradise will be revealed, whose fruit remains uncorrupted, in which there is plenty and healing,[124]but we won't enter it, for we have visited unseemly places?[125]What good is it that the faces of those who practiced abstinence will shine brighter than stars when our faces are blacker than darkness?[126]While we were alive and doing evil, we didn't think about what we would suffer after death."

[127]He answered: "These are the rules for the contest in which everyone born on earth takes part:[128]Those who are defeated will suffer what you said, but those who conquer will receive what I say. [129]This is the path that Moses declared when he was alive, speaking to the people, Choose life for yourself…so that you may live.[l] [130]But they didn't believe him or the prophets who came after him. They didn't even believe me when I spoke to them. [131]There won't be sadness over their destruction, as there will be joy over those for whom salvation is sure."

[132]I answered: "I know, Lord, that the Most High is now called merciful, since he has mercy on those who haven't yet come into the world. He is called[133]gracious, since he has mercy on those who convert to his Law,[134]and patient, because he shows patience to those who have sinned, since they are his own creation. [135]I know that he is called generous, because he wants to give gifts rather than demand them,[136]and very merciful, because he multiplies mercies more and more to those now alive and those who went before and those who are to come in the future. [137]If, indeed, he hadn't multiplied them, the world with those who live in it would not now exist. [138]He is called[m] giver, because if he didn't give out of his own goodness some relief from their sins to people who committed sins, not one ten-thousandth part of humanity could live. [139]He is called judge, because unless he forgave those created by his word and wiped out the multitude of their offenses,[140]perhaps only a very few would be left from the innumerable multitude."

2Esdras 8

He answered me: "The Most High made this world for the sake of many but the future world for the sake of few. [2]But I will tell you a parable, Ezra. Just as when you ask the earth and it tells you that it provides much clay to make earthenware, but little dust from which gold comes to be, so the present world also works. [3]Many indeed are created, but few will be saved."

[4]I replied: "Therefore, take delight[n] in understanding, my soul, and drink your fill of knowledge.[o] [5]You came into the world[p] unwillingly,[q] and against your will you depart, and you are given but a little while to live. [6]Lord above us--if you will permit your servants to pray before you--give us seed for the heart and cultivation for the understanding that there may be fruit from which every mortal who bears the form of a human being may live. [7]You alone exist, and we are your handiwork, as you have said. [8]Because you give life to the body that is now fashioned in the womb and give it members, your creation is preserved in fire and water. For nine months the womb you have fashioned endures what is created in it. [9]But both the container and its contents will be conserved by your care. And when the womb at last gives forth what is created in it,[10]you have commanded that from the members themselves; that is, from the breasts, milk (the fruit of the breasts) should be provided. [11]By this means, that which is fashioned may be nourished for a time, and afterward you will dispose of this person in your mercy. [12]You nourished him with your justice, tutored him in your Law, and reproved him in your wisdom.[r] [13]You will cause him to die as your creation and give him life as your work.

[14]If, therefore, you will destroy with a simple command one who was fashioned at your command with so much labor, why was he made?[15]Now I will surely speak: You know best about the sum total of humanity, but what about your people who grieve me,[16]and about your inheritance because of which I lament, and about Israel, on whose account I am sad, and about the seed of Jacob because of which I am disturbed?[17]Therefore, I will pray before you for myself and for them, because I see the defects of we who live on earth,[18]but I have heard of the swiftness of the judgment that is to come. [19]Therefore, hear my voice and consider my words, and I will speak before you."

[20]The beginning of the words of Ezra's prayer before he was taken up.[s] He said:

> Lord, you live in eternity.[t] The highest heavens are yours, and your upper chambers are in the air. [21]Your authority[u] is beyond estimation, and your glory is beyond our power to comprehend. The armies of angels wait on in fear, [22]and at your command they are changed into wind and fire. Your word is true, and what you say lasts forever. [23]Your command is powerful, and your precept is fearsome. Your gaze dries up the deeps, and your threat makes mountains melt. Your truth is acknowledged. [24]Hear your servant's voice and listen to my request, the request of one whom you formed, and listen to my words. [25]But me! I will speak as long as I live, and while I still have understanding, I will respond.

[26]Don't pay attention to your people's sins but to those who have served you in truth. [27]Don't consider those who do evil by sinning but those who have kept your covenants in the midst of torments. [28]Don't think about those who have conducted themselves wickedly in your presence but of those who have made it their purpose to know what it means to revere you. [29]Don't set your mind to destroy those who have lived as mindlessly as cows,[v] but look on those who showed forth your glorious Law. [30]Don't be angry at those who are esteemed lower than animals, but love those who have constantly hoped to honor you.

[31]We and those before us have followed ways that lead to death, but it's on account of us sinners that you are said to be merciful. [32]If you desire to have pity on us who have no good deeds to our credit, then you will be called compassionate. [33]The righteous who have many works laid up with you will receive a reward for their own works. [34]What are human beings that you should be angry with them, or a corrupt race that you should be irate with them? [35]In truth, no one born has not violated your commands, and no one who grew up has not sinned. [36]But this shows your goodness, Lord, when you have pity on those who have no stockpile of good works.

[37]He answered me: "You have said some things correctly, and according to your words it will be done. [38]Indeed, I won't think about the formation of sinners or their death or judgment or damnation,[39]but I will rejoice over the creation of the righteous, their journey also, and their deliverance and receipt of a reward. [40]As I've said, then so it is. [41]Just as a farmer sows many seeds on the land, but in time not all seeds that are sown will be saved nor will all the planted things take root, so also not all of those who are sown in the world will be saved."

[42]I answered: "If I have found favor with you, let me speak,[43]because the farmer's seed doesn't grow up, perhaps because it didn't receive your rain in season; or if it was spoiled by abundance of rain, it perishes. [44]But human beings, who are shaped by your hands and named in your image, because they are made in your likeness, for whom you created all things--have you compared them to a farmer's seeds?[45]No, Lord above us, but spare your people and have mercy on your inheritance, for you have mercy on your own creation."

[46]He answered me: "The present things are for those who now are, and the future things for the future. [47]You are a long way from loving my creation more than I do. But you have often associated yourself with the wicked. Never do so![48]But even in this respect the Most High will admire you,[49]because you have humbled yourself, as befits you, and didn't count yourself among the righteous so that you may be glorified the more. [50]Many miseries will afflict those who inhabit the world in the last times because they will walk in great pride. [51]But think of yourself and ask about the glory of those like you. [52]For you, paradise is opened, the tree of life is planted, the future time is prepared, abundance is made ready, the city is built, rest is appointed, goodness is perfected, and wisdom is perfected in advance. [53]The root of evil[w] is sealed off from you, weakness is abolished from you, and death is hidden; the netherworld[x] and decay have fled into oblivion. [54]Sorrows have passed, and the treasure of immortality is displayed to the end. [55]Therefore, don't continue to ask about the great many who perish. [56]They also received freedom, but they despised the Most High, spoke ill of his Law, and abandoned his ways. [57]Moreover, they also trampled his righteous ones. [58]They said in their heart that there is no God, even though they knew that they would have to die. [59]Just as the things that are predicted will receive you, so also the thirst and torment that are prepared will receive them. The Most High didn't intend for human beings to be destroyed,[60]but those who were themselves created defiled the name of their creator and were ungrateful to him who prepared life for them. [61]Therefore, my judgment draws close,[62]which I haven't disclosed to all, except to you and to a few like you."

[63]I answered, "Look now, Lord, you have shown me a multitude of signs that you are about to perform in the last times, but you haven't shown me when they will take place."

2Esdras 9 He answered me: "Measure carefully within yourself, and when you see that a certain part of the signs that were predicted have passed,[2]then you will understand that the time has come in which the Most High will begin to visit the world that he made. [3]When the movement of places, tumult of peoples, plotting of nations, inconstancy of leaders, and confusion of princes appear in the world,[4]then you will understand that it was about these things that the Most High spoke from former days, from the beginning. [5]Just as with everything that has happened in the world, the beginning is known from the end,[y] and the end comes to be seen,[6]so also are the times of the Most High. The beginnings are manifest in prodigies and mighty works, and the end is evident in deeds and in signs. [7]All this--who will be saved, who will be able to escape through their works or through the faith with which they believe--[8]will survive the predicted dangers and will see my salvation in my land and within my borders, which I have made holy for myself for a long time. [9]Then whoever has now abused my ways will be astonished, and whoever rejected them in contempt will linger in agony. [10]Those who didn't acknowledge me when they were alive, even though they received benefits;[11]those who despised my Law while they were enjoying freedom[12]and didn't come to their senses but continued to scoff while the opportunity for a changed life was still open to them--these people must acknowledge me in torment after death. [13]But don't be curious any longer about how the wicked will be tortured. Instead, inquire how and when the righteous, to whom the world belongs and because of whom the world exists, will be saved."

[14]I answered, [15]"I said before and now will say again that those who perish are more numerous than those who are saved,[16]just as a wave is greater than a drop."

[17]He answered me: "As the field is, so is the seed; and as the flowers, so also the colors; as the labor, so also the product;[z] and as the farmer, so the threshing floor. [18]There was a time in this world--when I was preparing for those who now are, before the world in which they would dwell was made for them--no one opposed me, because no one existed yet. [19]Now, however, those who have been created in this world--a world furnished with both an inexhaustible table and an endless pasture[a] --have become corrupt in their habits. [20]I considered the earth--and, observe, it was ruined. I considered my world, and, observe, it was in danger because of the intrigues of those who had come into it. [21]I saw and spared them with great difficulty; I saved for myself one grape out of a cluster and one plant out of a great forest.[b] 22Therefore, let the multitude that was born without purpose perish, and let my grape and my plant be preserved, because I perfected these with much effort. 23But let seven more days pass. Don't fast during this time,24but go into a field of flowers, where no house is built, and eat only of the flowers of the field. Don't taste meat, and don't drink wine, but eat only flowers. 25Pray to the Most High without pause, and I will come and talk to you."

Vision of the woman in mourning

26I went out as he told me into the field that is called Ardat. I sat there among the flowers, I ate of the plants of the field, and their food satisfied me. 27After seven days I was lying on the grass, and my heart was disturbed again as before. 28My mouth was opened and I began to say before the Most High: 29"Lord, you revealed yourself to us, to our ancestors in the wilderness, when they were going out from Egypt and when they were coming into the desert that no one crossed and that bore no fruit. You said:30Listen to me, Israel! Offspring of Jacob, pay attention to what I say!31Look, I am sowing my Law in you, and it will bear fruit in you, and you will be glorified in it forever. 32Though our parents received the Law, they didn't keep it and didn't observe what was lawful. The fruit of the Law didn't perish, nor could it, since it was yours. 33Yet those who received it perished, not keeping what was sown in them. 34Normally, when the ground receives seed or the sea a ship or some other container food or drink, and when it happens that what was sown or what was sent or what was received is destroyed,35those things themselves are destroyed, but the containers remain. But this hasn't been so in our case. 36We who received the Law sinned and will perish, along with our hearts that received it;37yet the Law doesn't perish but remains in its glory."

38While I was saying these things in my heart, I looked with my eyes and saw a woman to my right. She was lamenting and crying with a loud voice, and she was experiencing deep grief. Her clothes were torn, and there were ashes on her head. 39I dismissed my own thoughts, turned to her, and said, 40"Why are you weeping, and why do you grieve so deeply?"

41She said to me, "Leave me alone, sir, so that I may weep for myself and continue in my grief, because I am very bitter inside, and I am depressed."

42I said to her, "What have you suffered? Tell me!"

43She said to me: "I, your servant, was infertile, and I hadn't given birth, although I had a husband for thirty years. 44Hour after hour and day after day during these thirty years I pleaded with the Most High by night and day. 45After thirty years God heard your servant and saw how dejected I was. He attended to my distress and gave me a son. I rejoiced greatly over him, as did my husband and all my fellow citizens, and we greatly honored the mighty one. 46I nourished my son with much labor, 47and when he grew up, I came to take a wife for him and set the day of the marriage feast.

2Esdras 10

"But it happened that when my son went into his wedding chamber, he fell down and died. 2We extinguished all our lamps, and all my fellow citizens rose to console me. I was quiet until the next day, until nightfall. 3But when all ceased consoling me so that I would be quiet, I got up at night and fled, and I came into this field, as you see. 4Now I plan not to return to the city but to stay here, and I will neither eat nor drink but lament and fast without ceasing, until I die."

5I abandoned the thoughts that had preoccupied me and responded to her in anger: 6"'Most foolish of all women, don't you see our grief and what has befallen us?7Zion the mother of us all is afflicted in sadness and utterly dejected. Grieve mightily8now because we all grieve, and be sorrowful because we are all sorrowful. But you are mourning only for one son![c] 9Ask the earth, and she will tell you that she is the one who should mourn, since so many have sprouted upon her. 10From her, from the beginning, all have been born and others will come. Look, nearly all go to ruin, and their multitude is doomed to destruction. 11Who then ought to mourn the more? Shouldn't she who has lost such a great multitude rather than you, who grieve for one?12Perhaps you say to me, 'My lamentation isn't like that of the earth, because I lost the fruit of my womb, which I bore with pains and brought forth with sorrows. 13The earth, however, is just following the way of the earth; the multitude that is present on it goes as it came.'14I would then say to you, 'As you gave birth with grief, so also from the beginning the earth yielded its fruit, humanity, to him who made it.'15Therefore, keep your grief to yourself, and bear valiantly whatever misfortunes befall you. [16]If you declare the decree of God to be just, you will receive your son back in due time and also be praised among women. [17]Therefore, go into the city to your husband."

She said to me, [18]"I will not, and I will not go into the city, but I will die here."

[19]I spoke again to her: [20]"Don't say this, but let yourself be persuaded because of Zion's fate and be consoled because of Jerusalem's grief. [21]You see that our sanctuary is laid waste, our altar is demolished, our temple is destroyed,[22]our harp is brought low, our hymnody has been silenced, our joy is undone, the light of our lampstand is extinguished, the chest containing our covenant has been taken as plunder, our holy things have been defiled, and the name that is invoked over us has been dishonored. Our free citizens[d] have suffered abuse, our priests have been burned to death, our Levites have gone into captivity, our virgins have been defiled, our wives have been raped, our righteous men have been snatched away, our little ones have been given over, our youths have been enslaved, and our strong men have been deprived of strength. [23]Even more than all this, the seal of Zion (for she has now loosed the seal of her glory) is handed over to those who hate us. [24]Shake off your great sadness then, and put away the multitude of your sorrows so that the mighty one may show you favor and the Most High may give you peace and rest from your labors."

[25]While I was speaking to her, look! Suddenly her face shone brightly and her countenance became a flashing splendor. I became afraid of her, and I wondered what was happening. [26]Without warning she let out a noise, a great voice full of fear, so that the earth itself shook with the sound. [27]I watched, and she no longer appeared to me as a woman, but there was a city built, and a place with great foundations appeared. I was afraid, and I shouted with a great voice, [28]"Where's the angel Uriel, who came to me from the beginning? He's the one who's brought me to the end of my wits! My end has turned into decay and my prayer into a reproach."

[29]While I was saying these things, the angel who had come to me in the beginning came to me again and looked at me. [30]I was laid out like a dead man, and I had lost my mind. He held my strong hand, comforted me, set me on my feet, and said to me, [31]"What has happened to you? Why are you agitated? Why are your mind, your intellect, and your understanding all in turmoil?"

I said, [32]"Because you abandoned me. I followed your instructions, and I went out into the field, and look here, I saw and see what I can't describe."

He said to me, [33]"Stand up like a man, and I'll remind you."

I said, [34]"Speak, my Lord, only don't abandon me so that I may not die for nothing. [35]I can't make sense out of what I saw, and I don't understand what I've heard. [36]Or is my mind deceived and my soul dreaming?[37]Now then I beg you to explain this bewildering sight to your servant."

[38]He answered me: "Listen to me. Let me teach you, and I will speak to you about what you fear, for the Most High has revealed many mysteries to you. [39]He saw that you walk the straight way, because you grieve for your people without ceasing and you mourn greatly over Zion.

[40]"Here then is the meaning of the vision. This is the explanation of the woman who appeared to you a little while ago,[41]whom you saw mourning and whom you began to console[42](though now you don't see a woman, but a fully constructed city has appeared to you),[43]and who told you about the fate of her son. [44]This woman whom you saw is Zion, whom you now see built as a city. [45]As for what she said to you, that she was infertile for thirty years, it is because there were three thousand[e] years in the world when offerings weren't yet made in her. [46]After three thousand[f] years, Solomon built the city and made offerings. That is when the infertile woman bore a son. [47]As for what she said to you, that she nourished him with labor, this was the time that Jerusalem was inhabited. [48]And as for what she said to you, that her son came into his wedding chamber and died and that misfortune happened to her, this is the destruction that happened to Jerusalem. [49]Indeed, you saw her likeness, how she mourns her son, and you began to console her over these things that had happened. (These things were to be shown to you.[g])[50]Now the Most High, seeing that you are sincerely saddened and that you suffer for her with all your heart, has shown you the splendor of her glory and the beauty with which she is adorned. [51]For this reason I told you to remain in the field where no house is built:[52]I knew that the Most High was about to show you these things. [53]Therefore, I told you to come into the field where there is no building's foundation,[54]for no work of human construction could survive in the place where the city of the Most High was about to be made manifest. [55]Therefore, don't fear, and don't let your heart be afraid. Go inside and see the splendor and greatness of the building, insofar as you are capable of seeing with your eyesight. [56]After this you will hear as much as the hearing of your ears can hear. [57]You are privileged more than many and are called into the presence of the Most High, as few are. [58]Tomorrow night you will remain here,[59]and the Most High will show you in dream visions what the Most High will bring about for those who live on earth in the last days."[60]So I slept that night and the next, as he had told me.

Vision of the eagle and the lion

2Esdras 11 On the second night I had a dream. I saw an eagle, with twelve feathered wings and three heads, rising up from the sea. [2]As I looked, it spread its wings over the whole earth, and all the winds of heaven blew toward it, and the clouds[h] gathered around it. [3]Out of its wings grew opposing wings. These became small, tiny wings. [4]Its heads were at rest. The middle head was larger than the other heads, but it was also at rest with them.

[5]I kept looking and saw the eagle flying with its wings to rule over the earth and over those who lived on the earth. [6]I saw how everything under heaven was made to submit to it, and no one opposed it, not a single creature that lives on the earth. [7]I looked and saw the eagle rise on its talons and call out to its wings, saying, [8]"Don't all watch together. Let each one sleep in its place and take turns watching,[9]but the heads will be kept for the end."[10]I looked and saw that the voice didn't come from its heads but from the middle of its body. [11]I counted its opposing wings, and there were eight of them. [12]A wing arose on the right side, and it ruled over the whole earth; [13]and while it was ruling, it came to an end and disappeared so that its place vanished. The next one rose up and ruled, and it held sway a long time. [14]While it was exercising its rule, it came to its end, so that it disappeared like the previous one.

[15]Then a voice rang out, saying to this wing, [16]"Listen, you who have held sway over the earth all this time. I announce[i] this to you before you begin to disappear. [17]No one after you will hold sway as long a time--not even half as long."[18]A third wing raised itself up, and it also exercised rulership like the previous ones, and it too disappeared. [19]And so it happened to each of the wings in turn, to come to power and then never to be seen again. [20]I looked, and indeed the wings that followed on the right side also rose up in time so that they too might rule, but some of those who came to power disappeared immediately, [21]while others of them rose up but didn't succeed in establishing their rule. [22]After all this, I looked again, and the twelve wings and two of the little wings had disappeared. [23]Nothing remained on the body of the eagle except the three heads that were at rest and six little wings.

[24]I looked and noticed that two of the six little wings were set apart and remained under the head on the right side, but four remained in their place. [25]I watched as these little wings plotted to rise up and take power. [26]One was raised up, but it immediately disappeared, [27]and then a second, but this one disappeared more quickly than the previous one. [28]I saw the two that were left plotting among themselves that they too should rule, [29]and while they were making their plans, one of the heads that had been at rest, the one in the middle, woke up. This one was bigger than the other two heads. [30]I saw how it formed a partnership with the two other heads, [31]and then how the head turned with those that were with it, and it ate the two little wings that had planned to rule. [32]Moreover, this head gained power over the whole earth and dominated those who lived on it, inflicting great distress. It had greater power over the whole world than all the wings that had gone before.

[33]After all this, I watched as the middle head, just like the wings, suddenly disappeared. [34]There were two heads left, however, which also ruled over the earth and over those who live on it. [35]I looked and watched as the head on the right side devoured the one on the left. [36]I heard a voice saying to me, "Look in front of you and consider what you see."[37]I looked and saw something like a lion being roused, roaring out of the forest. I heard how he spoke in a human voice and said to the eagle, [38]"Listen, you, and I will speak to you. The Most High says to you,[39]'Aren't you the last of the four beasts that I made to rule in my world so that I might bring about the end of my times through them?[40]You, the fourth that has come, conquered all the beasts that came before you, ruling over the world with much terror and over the whole world with harsh oppression. You have lived in the world with deceit for so long![41]You judged the earth, but not in truth,[42]for you have oppressed the meek and injured those who caused no unrest. You hated those who spoke the truth and loved liars. You destroyed the dwellings of those who bore fruit and tore down the walls of those who had done you no harm. [43]Your insolence has ascended to the Most High and your pride to the mighty one. [44]The Most High has reviewed his times. Look! They are finished, and his ages are complete. [45]Therefore, eagle, you must utterly vanish, you and your terrifying wings, your dreadful little wings and your evil heads, and your dreadful talons and all your worthless body. [46]Then the whole earth will be refreshed and restored, set free from your violence, and will hope for the judgment and mercy of him who made it.'"

2Esdras 12 While the lion was saying these words to the eagle, I looked [2]and saw that the head that had prevailed disappeared, and the two wings that had gone over to it rose up so that they might rule, but their rule was weak and chaotic. [3]I watched as they disappeared, and the whole body of the eagle was burned; the earth was filled with fear.

I woke up because my mind was racing and full of fear. I said to myself, [4]Look, you've brought all this on yourself with your probing into the ways of the Most High. [5]Look here! I'm emotionally exhausted and barely alive. I don't have even a little strength left in me because of the great fear that has shaken me this night. [6]Now, therefore, I will pray to the Most High that he may strengthen me to the end. [7]I said, "Supreme Lord, if you do look upon me favorably, if you consider me to be among the more righteous, and if my prayer has indeed risen into your presence,[8]strengthen me, and show me, your servant, the interpretation and meaning of this terrible vision. Console my soul,[9]since you have thought me worthy to be shown the end of times and the last events of the times."

[10]He said to me, "This is the interpretation of the vision that you saw. [11]The eagle you saw rising from the sea is the fourth kingdom. It appeared in a vision to your brother Daniel, [12]but it wasn't interpreted for him as I now interpret it for you or have shown it to you. [13]Look, the days are coming when a kingdom will rise on earth that will be more terrifying than all the kingdoms that came before it. [14]Twelve kings will rule in it, one after the other. [15]The second one to rule will have a longer time than the rest of the twelve. [16]This then is the interpretation of the twelve wings that you saw. [17]As for the fact that you heard a voice that spoke, coming not from its heads but from the middle of its body, [18]this is the interpretation: In the midst of this kingdom's time, great conflicts will arise. It will be in danger of falling; it won't fall then but will be restored again to its beginning.

[19]"As for the fact that you saw eight little wings clinging to its wings, [20]this is the interpretation: Eight kings will arise in it. Their rules will amount to nothing, and their years will be swift. Two of them will perish [21]when the middle of the time draws near, but four will be reserved until the time approaches for its end. Two will be preserved until the very end.

[22]"As for the fact that you saw three heads at rest, [23]this is the interpretation: In the last period the Most High will raise up three kings,[j] and he will renew many things in it, and they will rule the earth [24]and greatly oppress those who dwell on it, more than all the rest who were before them. Therefore, they are called the heads of the eagle, [25]because they will sum up its acts of impiety and complete its last deeds.

[26]"As for your seeing the biggest head disappear, one of the kings will die on his bed, though in agonies. [27]As to the two who are left, the sword will destroy them. [28]The sword of one of them will destroy the one who is with him, but he too will fall by the sword in the last days.

[29]"As for your seeing the two small wings passing over to the head on the right, this is the interpretation: [30]The Most High is keeping these for the eagle's end. This rule will be weak and full of upheaval, [31]as you saw. The lion whom you saw rousing itself from the forest and roaring and speaking to the eagle and rebuking it for its deeds of injustice, as for all the words that you heard him speaking, [32]this is the anointed one. The Most High has kept him for the end of days. He will arise from the line of David, and he will come and speak[k] to them. He will denounce their wicked acts and indict them for their injustice. He will set before them their despicable deeds. [33]He will put them on trial while they are still alive, and after he has convicted them, he will destroy them. [34]Yet he will mercifully liberate the remaining few from my people who are saved throughout my territory. He will make them joyful until the end comes--the Judgment Day, of which I have spoken to you from the beginning.

35"This is the dream that you saw, and this is its interpretation. 36You alone were counted worthy to know this secret of the Most High. 37Therefore, write all these things that you saw in a scroll and hide it away. 38Teach these matters to the wise among your people, whose minds you know can grasp and keep these secrets. 39But wait here yet another seven days so that you may be shown whatever it pleases the Most High to show you."40Then he left me.

When the whole people heard that seven days had passed and I hadn't returned to the city, they all gathered, from the smallest to the biggest. They came and said to me, 41"How have we sinned against you? What wrong did we do to you that you abandon us and sit in this place?42You are the only one of all the prophets left to us, like a cluster of grapes from the vineyard, and like a lamp in a dark place, and like a harbor for a ship saved from a storm. 43Or are the disasters that have befallen us not enough for us?44If you abandon us now, it would have been better for us to have been burned up along with Zion!45We are no better than those who died there." They wept with a loud voice.

46I answered them: "Have confidence, Israel! Don't be sad, house of Jacob.
47The Most High keeps you in memory. The mighty one hasn't forgotten you in your struggle. 48I haven't abandoned you, nor have I gone away from you. I came to this place to pray because of Zion's desolation, in order to seek mercy for the humiliation of your sanctuary. 49Now go home, each of you, and I will come to you in a few days."50So the people went into the city as I told them, 51but I sat in the field for seven days as he had commanded me,[l] and I ate only the flowers that grew in the field, and plants were my food in those days.

Vision of the man from the sea

2Esdras 13 After seven days, I had a dream during the night. 2I looked and saw a wind rising from the sea and stirring up all its waves. 3As I watched, this wind made something like the figure of a man come up out of the heart of the sea.[m] That man was flying among the clouds of heaven. Wherever he turned his face to look, everything that fell under his gaze trembled. 4Wherever an utterance came from his mouth, all who heard his voice melted as wax melts when it feels the fire.

[5]I kept watching these things, and an innumerable multitude of people came together from the four winds of heaven to fight against the man who had come up from the sea. [6]I watched as he carved a great mountain for himself and flew onto it. [7]I tried to see the region or place from which the mountain was carved, but I couldn't.

[8]After this I looked and I saw that all who had gathered to do battle against him were sorely afraid, yet they dared to fight. [9]When he saw the rush of the multitude coming, he didn't raise his hand or hold a spear or any weapon of war. Rather, I saw [10]something like a wave of fire shoot forth from his mouth, and a breath of flame from his lips, and a storm of sparks from his tongue. All these things--the wave of fire, the breath of flame, and the mighty storm--mixed together [11]and fell upon the crowd that was rushing forward, prepared to fight. It burned them all up so that suddenly nothing was seen of the innumerable mob except the dust of ashes and the smell of smoke. I saw this and was amazed.

[12]After these things I saw the same man coming down from the mountain and calling to himself another crowd--a peaceful one. [13]Many people came to him. Some were rejoicing and some were sad, some were even tied up, while some were bringing other people as an offering.

I woke up in great fear and pleaded with the Most High. I said, [14]"From the beginning you showed your servant these wonders, and you considered me worthy that you should receive my prayer. [15]Now show me also the interpretation of this dream. [16]As I turn it over in my mind, I think: How terrible it will be for those who will be left in those days, and how much worse for those who aren't left![17]Those who aren't left will be full of sorrow,[18]since they now know what lies in store for the last days, but they won't live to see them. But how terrible it will be also for those who are left,[19]for that very reason! They will see great dangers, and there will be many kinds of distress, as these dreams show. [20]Yet it is better[n] to encounter these things, even incurring danger, than to pass from the world like a cloud and not see what happens at the end."

[21]He answered me, "I will tell you the interpretation of the dream as well, and I will explain to you the things you spoke about. [22]As to what you said about those who are left, this is the interpretation: [23]He who brings the danger at that time will himself guard those who fall into danger, who have works and faith in the most mighty one. [24]Know, therefore, that those who are left enjoy greater privilege than those who have died. [25]The interpretations of the vision are as follows:

"In that you saw a man going up from the heart of the sea, [26]that is the one whom the Most High has been keeping for many ages. He will liberate God's creation all by himself, and he will put in order those who are left.

[27]"In that you saw something like wind and fire and storm go out of his mouth, [28]and that he didn't hold a spear or weapon of war, yet destroyed the rush of that multitude that had come to fight him, here is the interpretation: [29]Look, the days are coming when the Most High will begin to rescue those who are on the earth. [30]Those who live on earth will go out of their minds. [31]They will plan to wage war against each other, city against city, place against place, nation against nation, and kingdom against kingdom. [32]When these things happen, and the signs that I showed you before take place, then my Son will be revealed, whom you saw as a man rising up. [33]When all the nations hear his voice, then each one will leave its own region and will leave off the wars they were waging against each other. [34]An innumerable mob will be gathered together, as you saw, wanting to come and fight against him. [35]But he will take his stand on the summit of Mount Zion. [36]Zion will come and will appear to all, built and ready, as you saw a mountain carved without hands. [37]My Son himself will indict the assembled nations for their impious deeds--these things were indicated by the storm. He will scold them for their evil plans and reveal the torments with which they are about to be tortured. These things correspond to the flame. [38]He will destroy them without effort by the Law, which was indicated by the fire.

[39]"As to the fact that you saw him collecting to himself another peaceful multitude,[40]these are the ten tribes that were taken captive from their land in the days of King Hoshea, whom King Shalmaneser of the Assyrians took across the river as a captive. They were taken into another land,[41]but they made this plan for themselves: They would leave the multitude of the nations and go into a more remote region, where the human race had never lived. [42]There they would be able to observe their customs, which they hadn't kept in their own region. [43]They went in through the narrow passages of the Euphrates River. [44]Then the Most High gave them signs and stopped the flow of the river until they had passed. [45]They made a long journey through that region for a year and a half, and that region is called Arzareth. [46]They lived there until the last time, and now they begin again to return. [47]The Most High will once again stop the flow of the river so that they can cross. These people make up the multitude gathered in peace,[48]along with those who are left of your people, who are found within my holy boundaries. [49]Then when he begins to destroy the multitude of the nations that are gathered, he will protect the people who have survived. [50]Then he will show them many more signs."

[51]I said, "Supreme Lord, show me why I saw a man rising up from the heart of the sea."

He said to me, [52]"Just as no one can seek out or know what is in the depth of the sea, so no one on earth can see my Son or those who are with him, except in that time when his day has come. [53]This is the interpretation of the dream that you saw, which has enlightened you alone of all people. [54]You have abandoned your own affairs and occupied yourself with mine, and you have sought out my Law. [55]You have given your life to wisdom, and have called understanding your mother. [56]Because of this, I have shown you these things, for you have a reward with the Most High. After three days I will tell you more and explain to you weighty and wonderful things."

[57]I went out from there into a large field, glorifying and praising the Most High for the wonders he performed over time, [58]and because he governs the times and all that comes about in its time. I stayed there for three days.

Ezra renews the scriptures

2Esdras 14 On the third day I was sitting under an oak tree [2]when a voice came out of a bush opposite me and said, "Ezra, Ezra!"

I said: "I'm here, Lord!" and I got up on my feet.

He said to me: [3]"I revealed myself in a bush and spoke to Moses when my people were enslaved in Egypt. [4]I sent him and brought my people out of Egypt, and I led him to Mount Sinai, and I kept him with me for many days. [5]I told him many wondrous things and showed him the secrets of the times and the end of the times. I commanded him, saying,[6]'You will make these words public, but you will keep these other words secret.'[7]Now I say to you,[8]the signs that I showed you, the dreams that you saw, and the interpretations you heard--place them in your heart![9]You will be taken from among human beings, and you will associate from now on with my Son and with those who are like you until the times are finished. [10]The age[o] is no longer young, and the times are beginning to grow old. [11]The age is divided into twelve parts. Nine[p] parts and half of the tenth part have already passed. [12]Two parts in addition to half of the tenth part remain. [13]Now then put your house in order; give solemn instruction to your people. Console the humble among them, and instruct those who are wise.[q] Renounce now this corruptible life,[14]put away short-lived thoughts, cast off from yourself human burdens, strip off your weak nature, push aside the thoughts that most trouble you, and hasten to depart from these times. [15]As for the evils that you have now seen happen, people will yet do worse than these. [16]The weaker the world[r] becomes because of old age, the more will evils multiply upon those who dwell in it. [17]Truth will depart and falsehood will come near. Even now the eagle, which you saw in your vision, hastens to come."

[18]I answered: "I will speak in your presence, Lord![19]Look, I will go as you commanded me and warn the people who are now living. But who will warn those who will be born in the future?[20]The world is in darkness. Those who live in it have no light,[21]because your Law has been burned, and so no one knows what things you have done or what works are about to come to pass. [22]If then I have found favor before you, send a holy spirit into me, and I will write everything that has happened in the world from the beginning, the things that were written in your Law, so that human beings can find the path, and those who want to live in the last days may live."

[23]He replied to me: "Go, gather the people and say to them that they shouldn't seek you for forty days. [24]Gather up many writing tablets, and take with you Sarea, Dabria, Selemia, Ethanus, and Asiel, these five, who are trained to write fast. [25]Come here, and I will light in your heart the lamp of understanding. It won't be extinguished until you have written everything down. [26]When you are finished, you will make some things public, others you will transmit secretly to the wise. You will begin to write tomorrow at this time."

[27]I did as he commanded me. I gathered all the people and said, [28]"Hear these words, Israel. [29]At first our fathers lived as strangers in Egypt, and they were liberated from there. [30]They received the Law of life, but they didn't keep it, and you also transgressed after them. [31]You were given land by allotment in the region of Zion. You and your fathers did evil and didn't keep the ways that the Most High had commanded you. [32]Since he is a just judge, in time he took away from you what he granted. [33]Now you are here, and your relatives live even farther away.[s] [34]If then you will rule your mind and instruct your heart, you will be kept alive, and after death you will attain mercy. [35]Judgment comes after death, when we are restored to life, and then the names of the just will appear and the deeds of the wicked will be exposed. [36]But let no one approach me now or come looking for me for forty days."

[37]I took the five men, as he had commanded me, and we went out into the field and remained there. [38]So it happened to me on the next day that a voice called me: "Ezra, open your mouth and drink what I give you to drink."[39]So I opened my mouth, and a full cup was set before me. It was full of something like water, but its color was like fire. [40]I took it and drank, and when I had drunk it my heart poured forth understanding, and wisdom increased in my heart, for my spirit retained memory. [41]My mouth was opened and wasn't shut anymore. [42]The Most High, moreover, gave understanding to the five men, and they wrote in turns what was dictated, in characters that they didn't know, and they sat for forty days. They wrote by day, [43]but by night they ate bread; however, I spoke by day and wasn't silent by night. [44]Ninety-four scrolls were written in the forty days. [45]Then when the forty days were completed, the Most High said to me, "Make public the ones you wrote first so that the worthy and unworthy may read them. [46]But keep the last seventy so that you may transmit them to the wise among your people. [47]In these are the fountains of understanding, the source of wisdom, and the river of knowledge."[48]And so I did.

A Christian addition

2Esdras 15[t]

Look here, speak in my people's ears the words of the prophecy that I place in your mouth, says the Lord. [2]See to it that they are written down on paper, because they are reliable and true. [3]Don't be afraid of conspiracies against you, and don't be confused by what unbelievers say, [4]because every unbeliever will die in his unbelief.

[5]Look, I am bringing disasters over the whole earth--the sword, hunger, death, and destruction, says the Lord, [6]because wickedness has covered the whole earth, and their deeds are complete. [7]Therefore, says the Lord, [8]I will no longer be silent about their wicked deeds, which they do in their godlessness, nor will I tolerate any longer the things they do wickedly. Look, innocent and righteous blood calls out to me, and the souls of the just cry out constantly. [9]I will surely avenge them, says the Lord, and I will receive all their innocent blood to myself.

[10]Look, my people are led like sheep to slaughter. I will no longer permit them to live in the land of Egypt, [11]but I will bring them out with a great display of my power,[u] and I will strike Egypt with plagues as before, and I will destroy all its land.

[12]Let Egypt howl from its very foundations because of the plague of beating and punishment inflicted by the Lord. [13]Let the farmers who work the ground howl, because they won't have enough seed, and their trees will be devastated by blight, hail, and terrible storms. [14]How terrible it will be for the world and those who live in it! [15]The sword and distress draw near, and nation will rise against nation to fight with spears in their hands.

[16]Human beings won't be able to trust each other. As they grow strong against each other, they will pay no respect to their king or to the powerful chief of their great men. [17]Someone will want to go into the city and won't be able. [18]Cities will be thrown into confusion because of their pride. Houses will be destroyed;[v] people will be afraid. [19]People will have no mercy on their neighbors. They will cause their neighbors trouble by breaking into their houses with swords, to pillage their property, because they are hungry for bread and in great distress.

[20]Look, says the Lord, I am calling together all the kings of the earth, those from the north and from the south, from the east and from Lebanon. I am stirring them up to make them return and restore whatever my people[w] gave them. [21]As they have done to my chosen ones even to this very day, so I will do to them: they will suffer full payback.[x] This is what the Lord God says: [22]My strong hand won't spare sinners, nor will my sword stop fighting against those who spill innocent blood on earth. [23]God's anger has gone forth like fire to devour the earth's foundations and sinners like kindled straw. [24]How terrible it will be for those who sin and don't keep my laws, says the Lord. [25]I won't spare them. Go away, faithless children! Don't defile my sanctuary!

[26]God knows all who sin against him. Therefore, he will hand them over to death and slaughter. [27]Even now disasters have swept over the world, and you will have to endure them. God won't deliver you because you sinned against him.

[28]Look! A terrible sight is appearing from the east! [29]The nations of the serpents of Arabia will go out with many chariots. From the day they begin their journey, their hissing will echo over the earth so that all who hear them fear and tremble. [30]The Carmonians will go forth from the forest[y] in furious rage. They will come with great force and engage them in battle, and they will destroy part of the Assyrians' land with their teeth. [31]After this, the serpents will remember their origin and become strong. They will turn, united in great strength, to pursue them. [32]Their enemies[z] will be confused and silent because of their power, and they will turn around and run away. [33]From the Assyrians' land an enemy will attack them in an ambush and will kill one of them. Their army will fall into fear and terror and their kings into indecision.

[34]Look! Angry storm clouds from the east and from the north to the south--their appearance is very terrible. [35]They will collide with each other and unleash a mighty tempest on the earth, their own tempest. Blood will flow as high as the belly of a horse, [36]a man's thigh, and a camel's hock because of their swords. Great fear and terror will be on earth. [37]Those who see that wrath will be horrified and seized by fear.

[38]After this, the mighty clouds will be moved from the south and the north, and another portion from the west. [39]But the winds from the east will prevail and will stop them, together with the cloud it had stirred up in wrath. The tempest that was to cause destruction will be driven violently from the east to the west. [40]Great, angry storm clouds will be raised up so that they may destroy the whole earth and its inhabitants, and they will unleash over every high and lofty place a terrible tempest--[41]fire and hail, flying swords, and much water--so that all the fields and all the streams will be filled with the great quantity of those waters. [42]They will destroy cities, walls, mountains and hills, trees in the forests, grass in the meadows, and their grain. [43]They will proceed steadily to Babylon to destroy it. [44]They will come to it, surround it, and pour out their tempest and all their wrath over it. Dust and smoke will go up to heaven, and all around will mourn it. [45]Those who survive will serve those who destroyed it.

[46]You, Asia--you who share in Babylon's splendor and the glory of the mask it wears--[47]how terrible it will be for you, wretched one, because you have become like Babylon. You dressed up your daughters for sexual immorality, to please and take pride in your lovers, who have always lusted for you. [48]You have imitated that repulsive one in all her works and devices. Therefore, God says, [49]I will send disasters upon you--widowhood, poverty, hunger, sword, and disease--to desolate your houses, to bring you to devastation and death. [50]Your glorious strength will dry up like a flower when the heat that is sent against you rises. [51]Plagues will leave you weak and impoverished, wounded by whips, so that you can't receive your powerful lovers. [52]Would I have been so jealous of you, says the Lord, [53]if you hadn't constantly killed my chosen ones, rejoicing, clapping your hands, and talking about their deaths when you were drunk? [54]Make yourself beautiful! [55]The fee due a prostitute is in your lap. Because of this, you will get what's coming to you. [56]As you will do to my chosen ones, says the Lord, so God will do to you and will give you over to disasters. [57]Your children will die of hunger, and you will fall by the sword. Your cities will be laid waste, and all your people will fall by the sword in the open field. [58]Those who are in the mountains will perish by hunger. They will be so hungry for bread and so thirsty for water that they will eat their own flesh and drink their own blood. [59]Already made miserable by the earlier disasters, you will come to suffer even more troubles. [60]As they return from Babylon, passersby will strike the repulsive city and will destroy her. They will destroy another portion of your glory and your land as they return from Babylon. [61]You will be mown down by them like hay, and they will come upon you like fire. [62]They will devour you and your cities, your land, and your mountains. They will burn all your forests and fruit-bearing trees with fire. [63]They will take your children captive, plunder your wealth, and put an end to your beautiful face.

Oracles of doom against the nations

2Esdras 16 How terrible it will be for you, Babylon and Asia! How terrible for you, Egypt and Syria! [2]Dress yourselves in mourning clothes. Howl over your children and grieve for them, because distress has drawn near to you. [3]The sword has been sent against you, and who can turn it away? [4]Fire has been sent against you, and who can extinguish it? [5]Disasters are sent against you, and who can ward them off? [6]Can anyone ward off a hungry lion in the woods? Or put out a fire in dried hay, once it has begun to burn? [7]Or repel an arrow shot by a strong archer? [8]The Lord God sends disasters; who can ward them off? [9]His anger blazes like fire; who can extinguish it? [10]When lightning flashes, who isn't afraid? When it thunders, who doesn't feel fear? [11]The Lord threatens, and who isn't shaken to the core in his presence? [12]The earth and its foundations shake. The sea heaves from the deep; its waves and fish are sent into turmoil when the Lord shows his face and reveals the glory of his power. [13]The one who shoots the arrow is mighty in glory; the tip of the arrow he releases is sharp and won't miss when it's shot to the ends of the earth. [14]Look, disasters are sent forth, and they don't turn back until they fall upon the earth. [15]Fire is lit and not extinguished until it consumes the foundations of the earth. [16]As an arrow that is shot by a powerful archer doesn't turn back, so the disasters that will be unleashed upon the earth won't turn back.

[17]I am doomed! I am doomed! Who will save me when those days arrive?

[18]The beginning of groaning and an abundance of sighing! The beginning of famine, and many will perish; the beginning of wars, and powerful ones will be afraid; the beginning of disasters, and all will be terrified. [19]What will they do when the disasters come? [20]Look! A plague of famine has been sent out, and the distress it inflicts is like a whip, a punishment for discipline. [21]But in the midst of all these, they won't turn from their sins and won't keep the plagues in mind.

[22]Look! In a short time provisions will be so cheap on earth that people will think that peace has been established for them, but then disasters will blossom all over the earth--the sword and famine. [23]They will lack life's necessities, and the sword will scatter those who survive the famine. [24]The dead will be tossed out like dung, and there will be no one to console them, for the earth will be left abandoned, and its cities will be cast down. [25]No farmer will be left to till the ground or to sow seed upon it. [26]Trees will yield fruit, but who will harvest them? [27]Grapes will ripen, but who will gather them? There will be vast, empty wastelands. [28]A person will want to see another human being and hear his voice.

[29]Ten will survive out of an entire city; out of a field only two who have hidden themselves in dense groves and fissures in the rocks will be left. [30]As three or four olives are left on individual trees in an olive orchard, [31]or as in a vineyard that has been harvested a few clusters are left by those who diligently search the vineyard, [32]so in those days three or four will be left by those who search house to house with the sword. [33]The earth will be left desolate, and its fields will be taken over by thornbushes, and its roads and all its paths will sprout thorns, because sheep won't pass on them. [34]Virgins will mourn, having no bridegrooms; women will mourn, having no husbands; their daughters will mourn, having no support. [35]Their grooms will be killed in war, and their husbands will perish from famine.

Exhortations to God's suffering people

[36]Listen to these things and understand them, you servants of the Lord.
[37]Here is the Lord's word. Accept it. Don't disbelieve the things that the Lord speaks about. [38]Look, the disasters are approaching and won't be delayed. [39]A woman in the ninth month of pregnancy, when the hour for giving birth arrives, experiences great pains around her womb for two or three hours beforehand, but when the infant is ready to come forth from the womb she doesn't delay for a moment. [40]In the same way, these disasters won't delay to come forth on the earth, but the world will groan and pangs will envelop it.

[41]Hear the word, my people. Prepare yourselves for battle, and in the midst of disasters be like strangers on earth. [42]Let the person who sells be like a person who is about to run away, and let the person who buys be like a person who is about to lose. [43]Let one who does business be as one who makes no profit; one who builds as one who won't get to live in the building; [44]one who sows as one who will not reap; one who prunes as one who will not harvest; [45]those who get married as people who will have no children; and those who don't marry as though they were widowed, [46]because those who toil, toil for no reason.
[47]Foreigners will gather their fruits, plunder their wealth, knock down their houses, and take their children captive, for in captivity and hunger they will produce their offspring. [48]Those who transact business do so only to be plundered. The longer they adorn their cities and houses, possessions and persons, [49]the more I will be enraged against them on account of their sins, says the Lord. [50]Just as a proper and good woman is enraged at a woman who is promiscuous,[a] [51]so justice will be enraged against sin when it tries to make itself beautiful, and will accuse it to its face since he who defends will come, hunting up sins on the earth. [52]Therefore, don't be like it or its ways.

[53]Look, just a little longer and sin will be removed from the earth and justice will rule over us. [54]Let sinners not deny that they have sinned, for God will burn coals of fire over the head of those who say, "I haven't sinned before God and his glory."[55]Look, the Lord knows all the works of humanity, their devices, their plotting, and their hearts. [56]He said, "Let the earth be made," and it was made; "Let heaven be made" and it was made. [57]At his word the stars were established, and he knows their number. [58]He examines the abyss and its treasuries. He measures the sea and its contents. [59]He shut up the sea in the midst of the waters and suspended the earth over the waters by his word. [60]He stretched out the heaven like a vaulted ceiling and sank its pillars into the waters. [61]He put springs of water in the desert and lakes on the tops of mountains to send forth rivers from on high so that the earth might drink. [62]He formed the human being and put a heart in the middle of his body and gave him spirit, life, and intelligence [63]and the breath of God almighty, who made all things and examines the things that are hidden in dark corners. [64]He certainly knows your designs and what you think in your hearts.

How terrible it will be for those who sin and want to hide their sins. [65]The Lord will certainly examine all their works and will put you all on parade. [66]You will be put to shame when your sins are paraded before people; your own sins will stand up as your accusers on that day. [67]What will you do? How will you hide your sins before God and his glory? [68]Look, God is judge. Fear him. Stop sinning and forget your wicked practices, never again to commit them. Then God will lead you out and deliver you from all tribulation.

[69]Look, the rage of a large crowd will be stirred up against you. They will take some of you and try to feed you meat that was sacrificed to idols. [70]Those who consent to this will be mocked and disgraced by them and trampled underfoot. [71]There will be great uprisings against those who fear the Lord in many places and in neighboring cities. [72]People will be like maniacs on account of their own distress. They will spare no one, seeking to plunder and destroy those who still fear the Lord. [73]They will destroy and rob their possessions and throw them out of their own homes. [74]In that time, the genuine commitment of my chosen ones will be shown, as gold that is tested by fire.

[75]Listen, my chosen ones, says the Lord, the days of distress are at hand, and I will deliver you from these. [76]Don't fear or hesitate, for God is your leader. [77]You who keep my commandments and precepts, says the Lord God, don't let your sins drag you down, and don't let wickedness get the upper hand over you. [78]How terrible it will be for those who are choked by their sins and covered over by their iniquities, as a field is choked by overgrowth and its paths are covered over by thorns so that a human being can't pass through. It is shut off and consigned to destruction by fire.

The principle of clear thinking

4Maccabees 1 I'm about to prove a most important philosophical principle: godly thinking[a] is supreme over emotions and desires. I would be giving you good advice then to pay close attention to philosophy. 2This principle is essential for knowing what to do in every situation, and it also includes the praise of the highest moral trait--I'm talking about good judgment. 3Therefore, if clear thinking is shown to control the emotions that prevent self-control, such as the tendency to overeat and rampant desire, 4then it is clear that it also rules the emotions that prevent us from acting in a just way, such as ill will, and those emotions that prevent us from acting with courage, such as anger, fear, and pain.

5Perhaps some people would object: "If clear thinking can control emotions, why doesn't it do away with memory loss and ignorance?" But that's just ridiculous. 6The mind doesn't have control over such things, but it controls the emotions and desires that resist justice, courage, and self-control. And it does this so that we won't surrender to the emotions, not in order to destroy them.

7I could show you that clear thinking has power over emotions and desires in any number of ways. 8However, I can do this best by showing you the heroic courage of those who died to preserve their moral character: Eleazar, the seven brothers, and their mother. 9By ignoring their pain to the point of death, all of these persons showed that clear thinking had complete control of their emotions. 10On the anniversary of these events, it is appropriate for me to praise the moral achievements of those who died along with their mother to preserve their virtuous character. I would also call them fortunate because of the honor in which they are held. 11All people, including the ones who tortured them, were amazed at their courage and patient endurance. What's more, they caused the defeat of the tyranny that had oppressed their nation. They conquered the tyrant by their endurance. As a result, their homeland was purged of its filth through their actions. 12I will say more about this shortly. First I will begin with my main point, as is my custom, and then I will return to their story, giving glory to God, who possesses all wisdom.

Definition of terms

[13]So we are exploring the question of whether clear thinking has full power over the emotions. [14]We need to define what careful reasoning is, what we mean by emotion, how many different kinds of emotions there are, and whether clear thinking has full power over all these things. [15]Clear thinking then is the mind-set that uses plain logic to choose the life of wisdom. [16]Next, wisdom is the knowledge of divine and human behavior and what causes the behavior. [17]This knowledge in turn comes from the instruction provided by the Law, through which we learn about divine matters reverently and human matters to our advantage. [18]The different kinds of wisdom are good judgment, justice, courage, and self-control. [19]Good judgment is the ruler among these kinds of wisdom, because clear thinking controls the emotions with it. [20]There are two general categories of emotions: pleasure and pain. Each of these shows up in different ways in the body and in the soul.

[21]Several other emotions accompany pleasure and pain. [22]Desire comes before pleasure, and joy follows it. [23]Fear comes before pain, and grief follows it. [24]Anger is a mixture of both pleasure and pain, as anyone who thinks about the experience would agree. [25]With pleasure there is a tendency to form bad habits, and this is the most varied of the emotions. [26]In the soul, bad habits show up as pride, love of money, thirst for honor, delight in conflict, and envy. [27]In the body, they show up as eating anything and everything, the tendency to overeat, and indulging in binge eating in private. [28]Just as pleasure and pain are two plants growing from the body and the soul, so there are many branches shooting off from each of these plants. [29]But clear thinking, like an expert gardener, pulls out the weeds, trims, supports, waters, and cares for the plants in every way. So it tames the jungle of habits and emotions. [30]Clear thinking is the guide of moral character, but it has full power over the emotions.

clear thinking and the Law

Consider first the way in which clear thinking shows that it is supreme over the emotions through the exercise of self-control. [31]Self-control means having control over your desires. [32]Some desires come from the inner person, and others come from the body. Clear thinking obviously has control over both.

33Otherwise, how is it that when we are attracted by foods that we aren't allowed to eat, we can walk away from the pleasure that we would get from them? Isn't it because clear thinking is in control over our desires? I think so. 34We keep our distance when we crave any of the foods that are forbidden to us by the Law, whether it is seafood, birds, animals, or anything else, because of the self-control that comes from clear thinking. 35The sensible mind curbs the drives of the appetite, keeping them in check, and clear thinking silences the impulses of our bodies.

4Maccabees 2 So why is it surprising when the soul's desire to join with something beautiful is defeated? 2Joseph, an example of self-control, is praised for this very thing.He had full control over his sexual desire through mental effort. 3Although he was a young man in his sexual prime, he defeated his sexual urges[b] with clear thinking. 4Clear thinking isn't just being able to have control over strong sexual urges but over every other desire as well. 5So the Law says, "You will not desire your neighbor's wife or anything that belongs to your neighbor."6Since the Law commanded us not to desire, I should be able to convince you even more that clear thinking is able to control desires.

This also proves true in the case of emotions that prevent justice. 7It is obvious that clear thinking is in charge of the emotions--otherwise, how could someone who always indulges in binge eating in private, or a person who tends to overeat, or a person who tends to get drunk, learn a better way? 8As soon as people who love money decide to live according to the Law, they are forced to change their way of life, lending to those who ask without charging interest and canceling all debts in the seventh year. 9If people are greedy, they are forced by the Law through clear thinking, so they don't pick up the grain in the field that they missed the first time or go back through the vineyard to pick the last clusters of grapes.

In every other matter we can also see that clear thinking controls the emotions. 10The Law even controls affection for parents so that a person does not desert moral values because of them. 11It exercises control over a husband's love for his wife so that he corrects her if she ignores the Law. 12It rules love for children by punishing them when they do wrong. 13It comes before the affection for friends, and it challenges them if they are doing evil. 14Don't think it's strange that clear thinking should have control over hatred between enemies. Because of the Law, we don't cut down an enemy's orchard in war, but instead we try to keep an enemy's property safe from destruction and help rebuild what has fallen down.

15Clear thinking even keeps the more violent emotions in check, like the thirst for power, desire for glory, pride, self-importance, and jealousy. 16The sensible mind rejects these destructive emotions, along with anger, because it rules over that emotion as well. 17When Moses was angry at Dathan and Abiram, he didn't act against them in anger. Instead, he controlled his anger with clear thinking. 18The sensible mind, as I have said, is able to get the upper hand over the emotions, transforming some and defeating others. 19If this were not the case, why did Jacob our wise ancestor denounce the households of Simeon and Levi for the unreasonable killing of the whole nation of Shechem, saying, "Their anger is cursed"? 20If clear thinking couldn't control anger, he wouldn't have said this. 21When God formed human beings, God planted emotions and character traits inside them. 22At that time, God also set the mind on the throne in the middle of the senses, to function as a holy governor over them all. 23God gave the Law to the mind. Whoever lives in line with the Law will rule over a kingdom that is self-controlled, just, good, and courageous.

Clarification about godly thinking

24Someone might say, "Then why doesn't clear thinking control memory loss and ignorance, if it is in charge of the emotions?" But that argument is completely ridiculous.

4Maccabees 3clear thinking doesn't appear to have control over its own tendencies, but it does control those emotions that come from the body. 2None of us can eliminate that kind of emotion, but clear thinking makes it possible for us not to be slaves to our emotions. 3None of you can eliminate anger from your soul, but clear thinking can help you deal with your anger. 4None of you can completely eliminate meanness, but clear thinking can fight alongside you so that you don't have to give in to your cruel tendencies. 5Clear thinking does not uproot the emotions, but it is their opponent.

Example of King David

[6]This can be shown more clearly by the story of when King David was thirsty. [7]David had been attacking the enemy[c] all day long, and he had killed many of them with the help of his nation's soldiers. [8]When it was evening, he returned to his royal tent, dripping with sweat and completely exhausted. The whole army of our ancestors was camped around it, [9]and all the others were eating dinner. [10]However, the king was extremely thirsty. Even though there were plenty of water springs in the camp, he couldn't quench his thirst with them. [11]Instead, he was obsessed with an unreasonable desire for water from the enemy's camp. [12]His guards began to complain bitterly about the king's desire. Then two strong young soldiers, embarrassed because of the king's craving, put on their armor, grabbed a pitcher, and went behind the enemy lines. [13]They sneaked past the guards at the gate and began searching through the whole camp. [14]They found the spring and courageously brought the king a drink. [15]But even though he was on fire with thirst, David understood the terrible danger that this drink posed to his soul. It had equal value to the blood of the men who risked their lives to fetch it.[d] [16]So he pitted clear thinking against his desire, and he poured out the drink as an offering to God. [17]The sensible mind can overcome the pressures of the emotions and put out the flames of undisciplined desires. [18]It can overcome the most intense pain in the body and reject the emotions' attempts at gaining control with the dignified character of clear thinking.

Setting: a lesson from history

[19]But the present occasion invites us to give an illustration from history that demonstrates the power of self-controlled clear thinking. [20]Our ancestors were enjoying peace and success because of their obedience to the Law. Even Seleucus Nicanor, king of Asia, set apart money to help support the temple worship and recognized the Jewish constitution. [21]At that time, certain people attempted to overthrow the government. They upset the nation's harmony and caused a lot of trouble.

4Maccabees

4 A man named Simon was a political opponent of Onias, who held the office of high priest for life. Onias was an honorable and good man. Simon was unable to injure Onias, even though he falsely accused him of all kinds of crimes, pretending to act on the nation's behalf. He went into exile and planned to betray his nation. [2]So Simon came to Apollonius, the governor of Syria, Phoenicia, and Cilicia, and said, [3]"Since I am devoted to the king's interests, I have come here to report that several tons of silver[e] in private funds have been deposited in the temple treasuries. These funds are not temple property but belong to King Seleucus."[4]When Apollonius learned these things, he praised Simon for watching out for the king. Then Apollonius went to Seleucus to tell him about the stash of treasure.

[5]When Apollonius received authority to take action, he quickly advanced into our nation, bringing along the villain Simon and heavily armed troops. [6]He said that he was commanded by the king to come and confiscate the private funds that were stored in the treasury. [7]The people angrily protested. They thought it would be terrible if the people who had deposited money in trust in the sacred treasury were robbed. They did whatever they could to prevent it.

[8]However, Apollonius went on to the temple, making threats. [9]The priests stood in the temple, together with their wives and children, begging God to protect the holy place that was being treated so shamefully. [10]While Apollonius was approaching with armed soldiers to seize the money, angels on horseback appeared from heaven with flashing weapons. Apollonius and his soldiers were shaking with fear. [11]Apollonius fell down half dead in the temple court that was open to people of every nation and lifted his hands up to heaven. With tears, he begged the Hebrews to pray for him and to intervene with the heavenly army. [12]He admitted that he had committed a sin for which he deserved to die, but he promised that, if he were spared, he would tell people everywhere about the divine favor that shelters the holy place.

[13]The high priest Onias was touched by these words, but he was also aware that King Seleucus might assume that Apollonius was killed by human plots rather than by God's justice. Therefore, Onias prayed for him. [14]When he was unexpectedly delivered from danger, Apollonius left and told the king everything that happened.

Antiochus begins to oppress the Jews

[15]After King Seleucus died, his son Antiochus Epiphanes came to power. He was a proud and horrible man. [16]Antiochus removed Onias from the office of high priest and installed Onias' brother Jason in his place. [17]Jason had agreed to pay the king 208,620 pounds of silver every year if he were made high priest.

18So Antiochus appointed Jason to the office of high priest and made him the ruler of the nation. 19Jason changed the nation's culture and the government so that they completely contradicted the Law. 20He constructed a Greek school and athletic complex in the heart of the city and abandoned the care of the temple.

21God's sense of justice was provoked by these things, so God caused Antiochus himself to start a war against the nation. 22While Antiochus was at war with Ptolemy in Egypt, he heard that the people in Jerusalem had celebrated when they heard a rumor about his death. So Antiochus rushed off to attack them. 23After he had defeated them, he gave an order that anyone who was caught following the traditional Jewish Law should be put to death. 24However, his orders had no effect on the people's commitment to keep the Law. He saw that they simply ignored his threats and punishments. 25Even women were thrown down from a cliff headfirst along with their infants because they continued to circumcise their sons, though they were fully aware that they would suffer the consequences. 26When Antiochus saw how his orders were despised, he himself tried to use torture to force each and every person in the nation to give up Judaism by eating foods that were unacceptable to Jews.

Antiochus challenges Eleazar

4Maccabees 5 The tyrant Antiochus was sitting in a high place surrounded by his advisors and armed guards. 2He ordered his soldiers to bring the Hebrews forward one by one and to force them to eat pork and meat from animals sacrificed to idols. 3If anyone refused to eat the forbidden meat, they were supposed to be tortured to death by being stretched on a wheel. 4When they rounded up many people, the guards dragged Eleazar forward as the first from the herd to stand in front of the king. He was a man from a priestly family, a legal expert, and quite old. He was known to many in the tyrant's court because he had been around for so long.

5Antiochus looked at him and said, 6"'Old man, before I begin to have you tortured, I would advise you to eat the pork and save yourself. 7I respect your old age. Even though you have had gray hair for a long time, you don't seem to have a mature understanding of things, since you observe the Jewish religion. 8Why are you disgusted by eating this animal's delicious meat? It's a gift that nature has given to us. [9]It's stupid not to enjoy pleasant things that aren't shameful, and it's wrong to refuse nature's gifts. [10]I will think that you are even more stupid if you continue to disobey me to your own disadvantage for the sake of your brainless ideas about the truth. [11]Come on! Wake up from your silly philosophy, and get rid of your brainless thinking! Adopt an attitude that is more appropriate for a mature person, and adopt a philosophy that is to your advantage![12]Take pity on your old age, and respect my generous advice. [13]Think about this: if there is some power watching over you and your religion, it will excuse you for any action against the Law if you are compelled to do it."

Eleazar's defense

[14]When the tyrant had finished pressuring Eleazar to eat forbidden food, Eleazar asked to say something. [15]Antiochus gave him permission, and Eleazar began to give the following speech:

[16]"Antiochus, we are persuaded to live our lives in line with the divine Law! We think that nothing is more compelling than our obedience to the Law. [17]That's why we don't think it's right to disobey the Law under any circumstances.

[18]"Even if, as you assume, our Law were not truly divine and we were wrong to think it is divine, even then it would be wrong for us to ruin our reputation for our godly way of life.[f] [19]So don't think it's a minor sin for us to eat forbidden foods. [20]Whether we disobey the Law in a small matter or a big one, it is equally important, [21]because we are showing equal contempt for the Law itself.

[22]"You look down on our way of life as though living this way were unreasonable. [23]However, our way of life teaches us self-control, so that we can have control over any pleasure or desire. It trains us to be brave, so that we willingly bear any suffering. [24]It educates us about justice, so that it is always our custom to treat everyone fairly. It educates us in the godly way of life, so that we worship with due respect the only God who really exists.

[25]"So we don't eat forbidden foods. We believe that God gave us the Law. The creator of the cosmic order has shown us compassion by giving us the Law in accordance with nature. [26]He has allowed us to eat what is most appropriate for our lives, but he has forbidden us to eat meat that would interfere with our welfare. [27]You are acting like a tyrant, trying not only to force us to break our Law but you are trying also to make us eat forbidden food that we hate just so you can make fun of us. [28]You won't have a chance to laugh at me. [29]I'm not going to break the sacred promises my ancestors made to keep the Law,[30]not even if you dig out my eyes and set my guts on fire. [31]I'm not so old and cowardly that I can't exhibit youthful strength in my mind out of respect for God. [32]Get your torture devices ready, and build up the fires to make them burn hotter. [33]I don't pity my old age so much that I will tear down the Law of my ancestors by my actions. [34]I won't prove disloyal to the Law that made me who I am today. I won't renounce the virtue of self-control that I value so dearly. [35]I won't put my own philosophical principle to shame, nor renounce the honor of my priestly office or my knowledge of the Law. [36]But as for you, King, you won't pollute my mouth that I have kept pure all of my life nor my long life of living under the Law. [37]My ancestors will welcome me as pure: as a person who isn't afraid of your violence, even to the point of death. [38]You may intimidate a person who has no sense of God, but you won't dominate my religious principles with either your words or your actions!"

Eleazar endures torture

4Maccabees 6 When Eleazar had answered the tyrant's arguments, the soldiers who were standing by hauled him off to the instruments used for torture. [2]First they tore off the old man's clothes, though he was still decently dressed by his respect for God. [3]They tied his arms behind him and began to whip him from both sides [4]while an official kept calling out, "Obey the king's orders!"[5]But Eleazar was dignified and generous. He experienced the truth of his name[g] and seemed like a person being tortured only in a dream. He didn't change his resolve in any way. [6]The old man kept his eyes raised toward heaven while the whips tore into his flesh, ripped his sides, and made his blood flow. [7]His body fell to the ground because it couldn't stand the pain, but he kept his thinking upright and unbending. [8]One of the cruel guards rushed up to him and started kicking him in his side to make him stand up again. [9]But Eleazar endured the pain, ignored the agony, and put up with the suffering. [10]Like an honorable athlete in the games, the old man defeated his torturers while they were beating him up. [11]His face dripping with sweat and gasping for breath, he amazed even the torturers with his courage.

12 Some members of the king's staff were moved by Eleazar's situation, partly out of pity for his old age, 13 partly because of their previous relationship with him, and partly out of admiration for his endurance. These people came to him and said, 14 "Eleazar, why are you throwing your life away so thoughtlessly in the midst of these torments? 15 We will set some cooked meat in front of you. Save yourself by pretending that it is pork and eat it."

16 Eleazar screamed out as if this advice were even more painful than the whips: 17 "May we who are Abraham's children never think so wickedly that we would pretend to act this inappropriately because we are cowards! 18 To change our ways now would be the truly thoughtless thing to do. We have lived in line with God's truth well into old age and earned a reputation for keeping the Law.
19 We would become an example of ungodly behavior for the younger people, and pave the way for them to eat forbidden food. 20 It would be a disgrace for us to become a joke for our lack of courage, just to survive a little longer. 21 This tyrant would look down on us as cowards because we weren't willing to defend the divine Law to the point of death. 22 For all these reasons, children of Abraham, die well for the sake of showing God proper respect! 23 As for you, soldiers of the tyrant, what are you waiting for?"

24 When the king's advisors saw that he remained confident in the face of torture and didn't appreciate their compassion, the guards carried him to the fire.
25 They burned his body with diabolical devices, and then they threw him on the ground and poured disgusting liquids into his nostrils. 26 Eleazar was now burned down to his bones and on the edge of death. He raised his eyes toward God and said, 27 "God, you know that I could have saved myself; instead, I am being burned and tortured to death for the sake of your Law. 28 Have mercy on your people. Make our punishment sufficient for their sake. 29 Purify them with my blood, and take my life in exchange for theirs." 30 When he said this, the holy man died with dignity from the torture. By thinking clearly, he resisted even while facing the pains of death for the sake of the Law.

Eleazar is praised as an example

31 So without question, godly thinking rules over the emotions. 32 If the emotions had overpowered clear thinking in these events, we would have given evidence of their superior strength. [33]But as it is, since clear thinking conquered the emotions, we are correct to affirm its authority to rule. [34]It's only right for us to affirm that clear thinking has greater power when it has gained control over the response to physical pain. It would be ridiculous to say anything else. [35]So I am showing that clear thinking maintains control not only in the face of physical pain but also in the face of pleasure, without giving way to any of these things.

4Maccabees 7 Our father Eleazar's godly thinking was like a skilled captain, steering the ship of godly living over the sea of the emotions. [2]Although the tyrant's storms beat against the ship and the powerful waves of torture crashed over its decks, [3]Eleazar kept the rudder of godly living straight until he sailed into the harbor of immortal victory. [4]No city under siege and attacked by every kind of cleverly devised machine has ever held out like that completely holy man did. Torture and racks ravaged his holy soul, but he conquered his opponents by using godly thinking to protect his commitment to godliness. [5]Our father Eleazar made his mind up so it was like an overhanging cliff that broke the raging waves of the emotions.

[6]Eleazar, you are a priest who is worthy of the office. You didn't pollute your teeth; you didn't contaminate your stomach by eating the forbidden foods. Your stomach had room only for godly behavior and purity. [7]How you were in harmony with the Law and a philosopher of the divine life! [8]Whoever has the occupation of administering public affairs in line with the Law should be a person like you. They should protect the Law with their own blood and with genuine tears, and suffer to the point of death! [9]Father, you confirmed our commitment to obey the Law through your endurance that brought you honor. You didn't desert the holy way of life that you had praised so sincerely. Your actions made your words about divine philosophy convincing. [10]Old man, you had greater force than torture! Elder, you are more powerful than fire! Eleazar, you are supreme ruler over passions! [11]Our father Aaron ran into the midst of the people, armed with a container of burning incense, and had the victory over a fiery angel. [12]In the same way, Aaron's descendant Eleazar, though eaten up by fire, kept his thinking straight. [13- 14]The most remarkable thing is that he became young again in spirit through clear thinking, though he was an old man whose body was no longer hard and strong--his muscles were soft, and his joints were weak. He made the many devices of torture ineffective with clear thinking, such as Isaac had shown. [15]How honorable is old age, respected gray hair, and a law-abiding life that the faithful seal of death made complete!

[16]So if an old man thought nothing of being tortured to death for the sake of showing God proper respect, without question godly thinking is the commander of the emotions. [17]Some people might object, "Not everyone has command of the emotions, since not everyone uses wisdom."[18]But the people who are fully committed to give God proper respect from the heart are alone able to control the sensations of the body. [19]This is because they believe that they don't die to God but rather continue to live for God like the ancestors of our nation, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. [20]So there is no contradiction in the fact that some people seem to be completely controlled by their emotions because of weak thinking. [21]If a person lives by the complete rule of philosophy, trusts God, [22]and knows that it is a privilege to suffer anything for the sake of their moral character, that person will be able to control the emotions through godly practice. [23]Only the wise and courageous rule their emotions.

Antiochus confronts the seven brothers

4Maccabees 8 By following a philosophy consistent with godly thinking, young boys have held out against even more cruel instruments of torture. [2]When the tyrant was publicly defeated in his first attempt by failing to force an old man to eat polluting food, he was overwhelmed by a violent rage and ordered other Hebrew prisoners to be dragged forward. Anyone who ate the polluting meat would be released, but anyone who refused would be tortured even more severely. [3]After the tyrant had given these instructions, seven brothers together with their mother were brought before him. These young men were handsome, modest, well-born, and charming in every way.

[4]The tyrant looked at them as they stood grouped around their mother like a chorus, and was pleased with them. He was struck by their physical appearance and obvious dignified character, and so he smiled at them and invited them to come closer. He said, [5]"Young men, I feel nothing but admiration and favor for each and every one of you, and I have great respect for the size and beauty of your family. Not only would I counsel you not to express the same insanity as that old man who was just tortured, but I would encourage you to obey me now and so enjoy the privileged life[h] I can offer you. [6]I can be generous to those who obey me in the same way as I can punish those who disobey me. [7]Trust me! Abandon your traditional way of life, and I will give you positions in my government. [8]Enjoy your youth by changing your customs and adopting the Greek way of life. [9]However, if you disobey me and make me angry, you will force me to destroy each and every one of you with terrible punishments and tortures. [10]So take pity on yourselves, since I feel sympathy for your youth and handsome appearance even though I am your enemy. [11]Bear in mind that if you disobey, you have nothing to look forward to except to die on these devices of torture!"

[12]As he said these things, he gave orders for the instruments to be brought forward in order to frighten them into eating the polluting food. [13]The guards laid out the instruments in front of them: wheels and machines for pulling joints apart, racks, clubs, and instruments for applying heavy tension, grills and extremely large frying pans, tools to crush fingers, iron claws, wedges, and burning coals. The tyrant continued: [14]"Young men, be afraid. Whatever justice you respect will have mercy on you, since you are being forced to break the Law."

The brothers' response to the tyrant

[15]The brothers heard the promises and saw the terrible instruments, but they weren't afraid. Instead, they resisted the tyrant's arguments with their own philosophy and defeated the power of his tyranny through clear thinking. [16]But let's think about what arguments they might have used if they had been cowardly and unmanly. Wouldn't they have argued like this? [17]"What pitiful and stupid people we must be! When the king has invited and urged us to accept his favor,[18]why are we happy to make useless resolutions? Why should we dare to disobey when death will be the outcome?[19]Men and brothers, shouldn't we be afraid of what these instruments can do and carefully consider the threats of torture? We should run away from our useless beliefs and from our pride that will lead to our destruction![20]Let's have compassion on our youth, and show pity for our mother's old age as well. [21]Let's take seriously the fact that, if we disobey, we are dead men![22]Divine justice will not blame us because we were afraid of the king and his power over us. [23]So why should we deprive ourselves of this pleasant life and cheat ourselves out of this sweet world?[24]Let's not fight against fate or take hollow pride in being tortured. [25]The Law itself would have difficulty giving us the death penalty since we sin out of fear of these instruments. [26]Why are we eager to fight a losing battle or so interested in being stubborn when we know it will kill us? We can enjoy a trouble-free life if we just obey the king!"

[27]Even though these young men were about to be tortured, they didn't say or even think about such things. [28]They held their emotions in check and had full control over their pain. [29]Therefore, as soon as the tyrant finished giving them advice about eating the forbidden food, they said together with one voice and with the same mind:

4Maccabees 9"What are you waiting for, tyrant? We are ready to die rather than sin against the commandments handed down by our ancestors![2]We would be a disgrace to our parents if we didn't maintain our commitment to the Law and to Moses our chief advisor. [3]You, tyrant, advise lawless behavior. In your hatred for us, don't pity us more than we pity ourselves![4]We consider your pity, which offers safety at the cost of breaking our Law, to be more bitter than death. [5]You are trying to frighten us with threats of torture and death as if you've learned nothing from Eleazar just a short while ago. [6]If the old men among the Hebrews fulfilled their duty toward God by enduring torture for the sake of godly character, it would be even more appropriate for us who are young to die with contempt for the same torture that our aged teacher defeated. [7]So put us to the test, tyrant! Even if you are able to kill us because of our godly character, don't think that you can truly harm us by these tortures. [8]We will gain the awards of moral character through this suffering, and we will be with God, for whose sake we suffer. [9]You, however, will be tortured forever by divine justice, as your cruel thirst for blood deserves."

The first brother's torture and response

[10]When they had said these things, the tyrant was not only upset by their disobedience but was also infuriated by their ungratefulness. [11]He gave the word, and the soldiers brought the oldest brother forward. They tore off his clothing and tied his arms and hands on each side with leather straps. [12]The soldiers beat him with whips until they were completely tired out, without accomplishing anything. So they tied him to the wheel. [13]They stretched the honorable young man around this instrument until all his limbs were pulled out of joint. [14]Although every part of his body was broken, he spoke out against the tyrant, saying, [15]"You bloodstained tyrant, you are an enemy of divine justice, and you have the mind of a savage! You don't abuse me like this because I have murdered someone or acted in a way that wasn't godly but because I protect God's Law!"

[16]The guards said, "Say that you will eat pork so that you can be set free from these tortures!"

[17]But he replied, "You dirty thugs! The wheel is not stretched tight enough to choke off my mind! Keep cutting my limbs, burning my flesh, and twisting my joints. [18]Through all of this suffering, I will persuade you that the Israelites alone can't be defeated when it comes to moral character!"[19]While he was still saying these words, they spread fiery coals below him. They fanned the flames and tightened the wheel even more. [20]By this point, the wheel was covered in blood, the burning coals were being put out by the gory drippings, and chunks of flesh were falling off parts of the machine. [21]Even with all the ligaments of his bones severed, the dignified son of Abraham didn't cry out loud. [22]Instead, he endured the torture with honor, as if he were transformed by the fire into a life without end. He said, [23]"Imitate me, brothers. Don't desert your post in this contest or deny the courage we share as brothers![24]Fight the holy and dignified battle for our godly way of life. The just providence that watched over our ancestors might become merciful toward our nation and might punish this cursed tyrant through that battle!"[25]After he had said these words, the devout youth died.[i]

The second brother's torture and response

[26]While everyone was still in awe over the oldest son's strong will, the guards dragged forward the next-oldest son. They put on iron gloves with sharp claws and tied the young man to the torture device. [27]Before they began to torture him, they asked if he would eat pork. When they heard his courageous answer, [28]they acted like wild leopards. They ripped out his muscles with their iron claws, tore his flesh all the way up to his chin, and tore his scalp off. He bore the pain with difficulty and said: [29]"Any kind of death is sweet for the sake of the godly way of life of our ancestors!" Then he said to the tyrant, [30]"You are the most barbaric tyrant of all. Don't you think that you are being tortured worse than I am, since you are seeing the proud logic of tyranny defeated by our endurance for the sake of our godly way of life?[31]I ease my pain with the pleasure that comes from godly character. [32]But you are tortured by the threats that hang over your head, because you have no respect for God. You bloodstained tyrant, you won't escape the revenge of divine wrath!"

The third brother's torture and response

4Maccabees 10 When the second brother had also endured a heroic death, the third brother was brought forward. Many people urged him again and again to taste the pork in order to save himself. [2]He shouted out in response: "Don't you know that I come from the same father as those who have just died, that the same mother gave birth to me, and that I was raised with the same teaching?[3]I won't deny these dignified family ties!"[j] [5]The guards were furious at his bold speech. They used their instruments to pull his hands and feet out of joint, and dislocated his arms and legs. [6]Then they broke his fingers, arms, legs, and elbows. [7]In spite of this, they weren't strong enough to break his will, so they put away their tools and tore off his scalp the way the Scythians do it--they used their fingernails. [8]Then they dragged him to the wheel. As they were pulling his spine apart, he saw his own flesh falling off his bones and his blood pouring out. [9]When he was on the edge of death, he said, [10]"You bloodstained tyrant, we are suffering these things because of our godly training and moral character. [11]But you will endure endless torture because of your lack of respect for God and your cruel thirst for blood!"

The fourth brother's torture and response

[12]After he died like a true brother, they dragged the fourth one forward. They said, [13]"Don't show the same craziness as your brothers. Obey the king and save yourself!"

[14]He replied, "You don't have a fire hot enough to turn me into a coward. [15]I swear by the privileged deaths my brothers have suffered, by the eternal curse that will come on the tyrant, and by the everlasting life of those who love God: I will not deny my ties with my dignified brothers![16]Think up some new tortures, you tyrant, so that you can learn that I am a brother of those you have already tortured!"

[17]When Antiochus heard this, the blood-sucking, murderous, and completely disgusting man ordered them to cut out the man's tongue.

[18]But he said, "Tear out my tongue! God still hears those who are silent. [19]See? Here's my tongue! Cut it off. You won't make my mind quiet by doing that![20]For God's sake we gladly allow our bodies to be cut to pieces. [21]God will quickly hunt you down for this, because you are cutting out a tongue that has been musical when it praised God with hymns!"

The fifth brother's torture and response

4Maccabees 11 When the fourth brother had died from cruel torture, the fifth rushed forward and said, [2]"I'm not about to refuse to be tortured for the sake of moral character, you tyrant![3]I've come forward of my own free will so that by killing me, you will receive even more severe punishment at the hands of God's justice for more crimes![4]Enemy of moral character! Enemy of the human race! For what crime are you destroying us in this way?[5]For honoring the creator of all things and living according to his moral Law?[6]Such things deserve honor, not torture!"[k] [9]While he was still speaking, the guards tied him up and dragged him to the catapult. [10]They forced him down onto his knees, bound him to the machine, and placed iron clamps on his thighs. They began to work the wheel, drawing him backward around a wedge until he was curled back all the way like a scorpion. With all his bones pulled out of joint, [11]gasping for air and racked by pain in his body, [12]he said: "Tyrant, you are doing us a huge favor without intending to, because you are giving us the chance to show our firm commitment to the Law through this honorable suffering."

The sixth brother's torture and response

[13]After he had died, the sixth brother, still just a boy, was brought forward. The tyrant asked him if he was willing to eat pork and so be set free. [14]He replied, "I may be younger than my brothers in age, but I'm their equal in understanding. [15]We were born and raised to live by these principles, so we should die together for their sake. [16]If you think torturing me for not eating polluting food is the right thing to do, then torture away!"[17]When he said this, they marched him up to the wheel. [18]They stretched him tight until his back broke, and they roasted him from underneath with fire. [19]They ran sharp spits, which they had heated in the fire, through his ribs and burned through his guts.

[20]In the middle of this torture he said, "This contest is suitable for our godly way of life. So many of us brothers have been called to an arena of suffering because we respect God and we remain undefeated! We haven't been defeated in this contest![21]Godly knowledge can never be beaten, you tyrant. [22]I will die with my brothers also because I'm fully armed with moral character. [23]I myself will call for an avenger to come against you. You invent new ways to torture people, and you are an enemy of those who are truly devout![24]The six of us boys have brought your tyranny to an end. [25]You haven't been able to make us change our minds or to force us to eat polluting food. Isn't this a sign that your rule of tyranny is over?[26]Your hot fires feel cold to us; your catapults are painless; your violence has no real power. [27]The guards of the divine Law are set over us, not the guards of a tyrant. Because of this, our clear thinking remains undefeated."

The seventh brother's response and death

4Maccabees 12 When the sixth brother also died a privileged death after being thrown into a burning-hot kettle, the seventh and youngest of all came forward. [2]When he saw that the boy was already in chains, the tyrant felt pity for him, despite the verbal abuse he had endured from the boy's brothers. He called the boy closer and tried to encourage him, saying, [3]"You see the result of your brothers' lack of sense. They died in terrible pain because they disobeyed.
[4]If you don't obey me, you too will experience horrible torture and die long before your time. [5]But if you listen to me, you will be my friend, and you will be put in charge over the affairs of the kingdom."[6]After giving his advice, Antiochus sent for the boy's mother to take pity on her after she had lost so many sons and so she could persuade her remaining son to obey and save himself.

[7]After his mother encouraged him in Hebrew (as we will discuss later), [8]he said, "Let me go. I want to speak to the king and all his friends."[9]They were very happy with the boy's announcement, so they quickly let him go. [10]He ran to the nearest container of burning coal [11]and said, "You unholy tyrant! Of all evil people, you are the farthest from God! You received your kingdom and all good things from God. So why have you felt no shame for murdering God's servants and torturing the champions of the godly way of life?[12]For these actions, justice is waiting for you with a stronger and everlasting fire and torture, from which you will never, ever be released![13]As a human being weren't you ashamed? You are a wild animal! You cut out the tongues and abuse and torture people who have feelings just like you and who are made of the same flesh and blood as you. [14]By dying honorably, they fulfilled their religious duty to God. You, however, will howl bitterly for killing without reason these champions of the godly way of life."[15]Then, since he also was about to die, he said, [16]"I'm not going to desert the good example of my brothers. [17]I call on the God of our ancestors to show mercy to our nation. [18]On you, however, he will take revenge both now while you are alive and after you are dead."[19]After praying against the tyrant, he threw himself into the container of burning coal and so gave back his life.

Praise for the brothers' achievements

4Maccabees 13 So if the seven brothers rose above suffering to the point of death, everyone should recognize that godly thinking is supreme over the emotions. [2]If they had shown that they were slaves to their emotions by eating the polluting food, we would have admitted that they were conquered by the emotions. [3]But it didn't turn out that way at all. Instead, they dominated the emotions through the kind of clear thinking that deserves praise in God's opinion. [4]We can't fail to notice the mind's leadership because they had power over both emotions and pain. [5]How can anyone not recognize the ability of good thinking to govern the emotions in such people as these, since they didn't turn away from the severe pain of fire?

[6]The towers at the entrance of harbors hold back the crashing waves and make a calm place for sailors entering the harbor. [7]In the same way, these youths' ability to reason correctly was seven towers beating back the storm of the emotions and defending the harbor of their godly way of life. [8]Standing together like a holy chorus of the godly way of life, they encouraged each other, saying, [9]"Brothers, let's die together like brothers for the sake of the Law! Let's imitate the three young men in Assyria who refused to back down when facing the same fiery test. [10]Let's not be cowards when we are called to demonstrate religious devotion to God."

[11]One said, "Have courage, brother!" Another said, "Keep going with honor!"[12]Still another reminded them, "Remember where you came from.

Remember the father by whose hand Isaac was ready to be killed because of his devotion to God!"[13]All of them were looking at each other with faces that were bright and full of courage, and said, "Let's set ourselves apart for God with all our hearts. He gave us our lives, so let's use our bodies as guards around the Law. [14]Let's not be afraid of the one who wants to kill us;[15]because the soul's contest is great, the danger of eternal punishment prepared for those who break God's command is severe. [16]So then, let's arm ourselves fully with the power that clear thinking gives for the control of the emotions. [17]If we die this way, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob will give us a warm welcome, and all the ancestors will praise us."[18]The brothers who were left behind were calling out to each one as he was being dragged away, "Don't let us down, brother, or be disloyal to the brothers who have died before us!"

Love between siblings

[19]No doubt you are aware of the powerful love that exists between brothers and sisters. Divine and wise providence gives this kind of love through the father and plants it in the mother's womb. [20]These brothers all spent the same length of time in the same womb. They were formed over the same period of time. They grew from the same blood, and they were brought to full term with the same life. [21]They were born after the same amount of time, and drank milk from the same fountains. The same fond embraces nurtured brotherly love in their souls. [22]They grew more fervent as they were brought up together enjoying each other's company day after day, and being shaped by the same education, particularly their training in God's Law.

[23]So it is clear, when such mutual sympathy and love for each other had been established, these seven brothers had even more sympathy for each other. [24]They loved each other so much because they had been educated in the same Law, held the same moral values, and were raised together to live a life that is just. [25]Their affection for each other and harmony grew even more because they shared a common passion for good character and conduct. [26]Family love for each other was made even more desirable to them by their godly behavior. [27]Still, even though nature, custom, and good habits made their love toward their brothers stronger, the brothers who were left alive put up with seeing their brothers tortured to death because of their godly way of life.

4Maccabees 14 More than this, they encouraged them to put up with abuse, not only ignoring their own pain but also controlling the feelings of brotherly love.

2How clear thinking is more royal than a king, and it is freer than a free person! 3How holy and harmonious was the symphony of the seven brothers for the sake of their godly way of life! 4None of the seven boys gave in to fear or hesitated in the face of death. 5Instead, all of them rushed to face death by torture, as if they were running a race toward immortality. 6They were like our hands and feet that move together in harmony, led by the mind. So also these holy boys moved together in harmony toward death as if they were moved by the spirit of respect for God that lasts forever. They were moved to make an agreement with death for the sake of that life.

7How holy was this group of seven, these brothers in harmony! They were like the seven days of creation that danced together around the godly way of life. 8So also these boys surrounded and destroyed their fear of torture when they danced in a circle of seven.

9Now we tremble when we hear about the trials of these young men. They not only saw what was going on but heard the threats directed against them and had to bear the suffering, and this included the pain of being burned by fire. 10What could possibly be more painful than this? The power of fire is strong and fast. It destroys bodies quickly.

The mother is the best example

11Don't think it's surprising that clear thinking had full control over these men during their torture, since even a woman's mind held contempt for even more varied suffering. 12The mother of these seven young men endured the torture of each one of her children.

13You see how a mother's love for her children is a very complex feeling. Everything is focused on a sympathy that she feels for them deep down inside. 14Even animals without understanding have sympathy and love for their young, just as human beings do. 15For example, birds do this. The tame ones protect their young by building their nests on the roof of a house. 16Other birds build their nests on mountain peaks, in steep canyons, and in the holes of trees or treetops, so they can hatch the baby birds and stop anything from coming too close. [17]If they can't stop something from coming too close, they do whatever they can to help their young. They fly in circles around their young driven by anguished love, warning their young with their calls. [18]But why is it necessary to demonstrate the fact that animals without understanding have sympathy for their young? [19]When it is time to build their hive, even the bees defend themselves against those who come too close. They sting like an iron dart anyone who comes near the hive, and fight even to the death. [20]But the young men's mother wasn't moved by sympathy for her children. She had the same heart as Abraham.

4Maccabees 15 How the clear thinking of these children was a tyrant over their emotions and how respecting God was more precious to the mother than her own children! [2]The mother had two options in front of her: the godly way of living, and saving her seven sons for a while, as the tyrant promised. [3]She preferred the path of respect for God, saving her sons for eternal life, as God promised.

[4]How can I describe the emotions of parents who love their children? We stamp a remarkable similarity in heart and in appearance on the character of small children. This is especially true of mothers, who have even more sympathy than fathers toward the feelings of their children because they gave birth to them in great pain. [5]To the extent that mothers are weaker and give birth to many, that's how much more they love their children. [6]And this mother of seven loved her children more than any other mother. Through seven pregnancies, she planted profound love toward them within herself. [7]She was forced to have sympathy for each one through the multiple pains of giving birth. [8]Yet she ignored her concern for her children's temporary safety because of her respect for God. [9]Not only that, but the character and conduct her sons showed in the way they were ready to obey the Law only increased her profound love toward them. [10]They showed themselves to be just, self-controlled, brave, high-minded, and devoted to each other. Moreover, they showed how much they loved their mother as they obeyed her by staying true to God's commands even to the point of death.

[11]Though so many forces were pulling against the mother to feel her children's pain out of her love for them, none of the many tortures they suffered were strong enough to undermine her clear thinking. [12]Rather, the mother urged them individually and all of them together to a death for the sake of their godly way of life.

[13]Sacred nature, a love spell cast over parents, devotion to children, tender care, and the unyielding passion that mothers show--how powerful they are! [14]Even though this mother watched her children tortured and burned up one after another, she kept her resolve firm for the sake of their godly way of life. [15]She watched as the fire devoured her children's flesh, their fingers and toes scattered all over the ground, the flesh of their faces torn off like masks down to their chins.

[16]How the mother was tested by pains far worse than the labor pains she suffered for them! [17]How the woman gave birth alone to such perfect devotion! [18]You didn't change your direction when your oldest son took his last breath, or when your second son was in torment and looked at you pitifully, or when the third son died. [19]You didn't cry out loud when you looked into each one's eyes, gripped by their own pain, or when you saw on the faces the signs of death approaching. [20]You didn't burst into tears when you saw the burned flesh of one child piling up on the burned flesh of the others, severed hands on severed hands, severed heads beside severed heads, bodies piled up on bodies, or when you saw the place filling with many spectators of their torture.

[21]The children's voices calling out to their mother from the midst of their torture held her attention more strongly than the Sirens' singing or the song of swans captures the attention of those who hear them. [22]How great was the pain that this mother suffered while her sons were being tortured by wheels and hot irons! [23]However, godly thinking strengthened her to ignore her natural love for her children. Godly thinking created in her a masculine courage in the middle of this suffering. [24]Even though she saw the destruction of seven children and the various devices of torture, the excellent mother ignored all these things because of her faithfulness toward God. [25]Her life was like a courtroom, and many powerful voices were speaking out--nature, family, a parent's love, and the instruments of torture set out for her children. [26]This mother held two ballots in her hand: the first sentenced her children to death; the second rescued them. [27]She chose not to seek the kind of rescue that would keep her seven sons safe for a short time. [28]This daughter of devout Abraham remembered her ancestor's endurance.

29You are the mother of the whole nation. You stood up for the Law, defended the godly way of life, and won the contest that was raging deep inside you.
30You were better than men when it came to determination, and braver than men when it came to endurance! 31Noah's ark, which carried the future of the whole world inside of it during the flood that swallowed up creation, steadily endured the waves. In the same way, you, the guardian of the Law, endured the storms honorably for the sake of the godly way of life, 32though you were battered from every side by the flood of the emotions and by the strong winds of your children's torture.

4Maccabees 16 So if a woman who was an elderly mother of seven sons put up with seeing her children tortured to death, then without question godly thinking is the master of the emotions. 2I have shown that not only men have control over their emotions but also a woman scorned the greatest torture.
3The lions that surrounded Daniel weren't as wild, and Mishael's fiery furnace wasn't as burning hot as this mother's natural love for her children. Her love was stirred up inside her as she saw her seven sons tortured in so many ways. 4But the mother put out the fire of her feelings that were so many and so strong with clear thinking.

5Think about this too: If this woman, even though she was a mother, had been weak-spirited, she would have mourned for them. Maybe she would have said something like this:

6"Look at how miserable I am with one sorrow piled on another! I gave birth to seven children, and now I'm nobody's mother!

7"Look at how I gave birth seven times all for nothing! Seven pregnancies, without anything to show for it! Years of fruitless childcare and years of miserable nursing! 8My sons, I bore the long pains of labor for you and even more stress in raising you for no reason!

9"Look at my children! Some aren't married, others are married, but none of them have children! Now I will never see your children or have the pleasure of being a grandmother. 10I had so many and such beautiful children, and now I'm a widow and left all alone in my many sorrows. [11]When I die, I won't have any of my sons to bury me."

[12]But this holy and devout mother didn't cry for any of her sons with funeral songs. She didn't try to talk any of them out of dying, and she didn't grieve for those who were already dying. [13]Instead, she had a mind that was as tough as nails.[l] She gave all of her sons a second birth into a life without end. She encouraged them, urging them on to death for the sake of respect for God.

[14]Mother, you were a soldier for God in the cause of the godly way of life, though you were old and a woman! You even conquered a tyrant with your resolution. You have proved to be stronger than a man in both speech and action! [15]When you and your sons had been arrested and you were watching Eleazar being tortured, you began to say to your children in the Hebrew language:

> [16]"My sons, you have been summoned to an honorable contest, in which you will give evidence that will prove your nation's worth. Compete willingly for the Law of our ancestors. [17]It would really be a disgrace if you young men lost your nerve in the face of this torture after an old man endured so much suffering out of respect for God. [18]Remember that you have had a place in this world and enjoyed life only because of God. [19]Because of this, you owe it to God to put up with any distress for his sake. [20]This is why our father Abraham moved quickly to sacrifice Isaac his son, who was supposed to become the father of a nation. Isaac also didn't shrink back when he saw the sword in his father's hand bearing down on him. [21]Daniel, that righteous man, was thrown to the lions and Hananiah, Azariah, and Mishael were flung into the blazing furnace and endured it for God. [22]So you must show the same faithfulness toward God and not be angry. [23]After all, it isn't logical for people who truly know and serve God to not hold out against pain."

[24]By encouraging them with these words, the mother of the seven brothers persuaded each one of her sons to die rather than disobey God's commandment. [25]They knew very well that those who die for God will also live in God's presence, just like Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, and all the ancestors of the nation.

4Maccabees 17 Some of the guards reported that, just as they were about to grab the mother and put her to death as well, she threw herself into the fire before anyone could touch her body.

[2]Mother, together with your seven sons, you made the tyrant's violence look like nothing! You defeated his evil plans, and displayed dignity and bravery by your faithfulness. [3]You were set with honor like a roof on top of seven pillars, your sons. You held them firm without moving as you endured the earthquake of their torture. [4]So therefore be confident, holy-minded mother! Keep firm that hope in God that fueled your endurance. [5]The moon that is in heaven with the stars is not as royal as you. You lit the path of respect for God for your seven sons who are like stars, and you now stand in front of God in honor, firmly set in heaven along with them. [6]Your sons were true descendants of our father Abraham! [7]If we had the skill of an artist to paint a picture showing the story of your commitment to God, wouldn't those who viewed the painting tremble to see a mother enduring the experience of seven children being tortured to death in so many ways?

The martyrs' achievements

[8]What would be an appropriate message that could be carved on their tomb to remind our nation's people? Perhaps these words:

> [9]HERE LIE BURIED AN OLD PRIEST, AN OLD WOMAN, AND SEVEN CHILDREN BECAUSE OF THE VIOLENCE OF A TYRANT WHO WISHED TO DESTROY THE HEBREW WAY OF LIFE.
> [10]THEY WON JUSTICE FOR THEIR NATION BY FIXING THEIR EYES ON GOD AND ENDURING TORTURE TO THE POINT OF DEATH.

[11]The competition in which they were engaged was truly divine. [12]Moral character itself handed out awards that day, having proved their worth through their endurance. Victory brought immortality through an endless life. [13]Eleazar was the first competitor. The mother of the seven children and the brothers competed also. [14]The tyrant was the opponent, and the world and the human race were the audience. [15]Respect for God won the day and crowned its champions. [16]Who wasn't amazed at the athletes who were competing in the name of the divine Law? Who wasn't astonished?

17The tyrant himself, along with all his political advisors, was amazed at their resistance, 18for which they now stand in front of God's throne and live a blessed life forever. 19Moses says, "All those who have set themselves apart for you are in your care."20These people who have dedicated themselves to God are honored, therefore, not only with this privilege but also because they kept our enemies from ruling our nation. 21The tyrant was punished, and our nation was cleansed through them. They exchanged their lives for the nation's sin. 22Divine providence delivered Israel from its former abuse through the blood of those godly people. Their deaths were a sacrifice that finds mercy[m] from God.

23When he saw their extraordinary courage and their commitment in the face of torture, the tyrant Antiochus held up their endurance as an example to his own soldiers. 24This made them dignified and brave when they fought battles or destroyed villages, and so they conquered and raided all of their enemies.

4Maccabees 18 Israelite children, all you who are descended from Abraham, obey this Law and worship God in every situation. 2Don't doubt that godly thinking rules over the emotions. This includes not only desires and the feelings that come from the inside but also the suffering that comes from the outside. 3Because of this, those who gave up their bodies to suffering for the sake of the godly way of life not only won human admiration but were also judged to be worthy of a divine reward. 4The nation was at peace again because of them. Once obedience to the Law had been revived across the nation, they slaughtered their enemies. 5The tyrant Antiochus was punished on earth, and he continues to be punished after death. By no means could he force the Israelites to adopt a foreign way of life and to change the customs of their ancestors in any way, and so he left Jerusalem and marched out against Persia.

The mother's moral principles

6The mother of the seven sons also shared these moral principles with her children: 7"I was a virgin who was sexually pure: I didn't go outside of my father's house, but I carefully took care of the body that was formed from a rib.
8No man who takes advantage of women ever tempted me to have sex in an isolated field. The destructive, lying snake didn't ruin my innocence either.
9When I was in my prime, I lived with my husband. He died when my children had grown up. He was privileged to have lived his life enjoying good children, and to have been spared the pain of losing them. [10]While he was still with you, he used to teach you the Law and the Prophets. [11]He read to you about Abel, who was killed by Cain, and about Isaac, who was offered as an entirely burned sacrifice, and about Joseph in prison. [12]He used to tell you about Phinehas' total commitment, and to teach you about Hananiah, Azariah, and Mishael in the fire. [13]He used to praise Daniel in the lions' den--he called Daniel privileged. [14]He kept reminding you about the scripture in Isaiah that says, Even if you go through fire, the flame will not burn you up.[n] [15]He used to sing to you the songs of David the psalmist, who said, The righteous person is bothered by many trials.[o] [16]He used to quote Solomon's proverb: There is a tree that gives life for those who do what God wants.[p] [17]He reinforced the truth of Ezekiel, where it says, Will these dry bones live?[q] [18]And he didn't forget to teach you the song that Moses taught, which says,[19]I kill and I bring things to life: this is your life and the length of your days."[r]

Conclusion

[20]How that day was bitter and yet not bitter! That was when the bitter Greek tyrant smothered fire with more fire in his cruel copper pots. That was when he dragged those seven sons of that daughter of Abraham back and forth in his furious anger between the catapult and other torture devices. [21]That was when he skewered their eyes through the pupils, cut out their tongues, and put them to death with all kinds of torture. [22]Because of these acts, divine justice pursued and will pursue the cursed tyrant. [23]The sons of Abraham together with their prizewinning mother have been joined with the chorus of their ancestors and have been given pure and immortal souls by God, [24]to whom belongs the glory forever and always. Amen.
