Section two: Reading passage

Directions: For questions (11- 20), read the following passage carefully and choose the correct answer from the given alternatives.

First aid is the immediate care given to a person who is injured or who suddenly becomes ill. When there is an emergency, minutes are very important, so first aid has a vital function. Immediate action is necessary when there is a lot of bleeding, when breathing has stopped for any reason, when there is poisoning, or when irritating chemicals come in contact with the skin or get in the eyes.

People should be trained to care properly for injuries to themselves and others at home, at work, or in the community. Even a small injury can be very serious and cause death, so everyone should know first aid techniques.

When first aiders face an emergency, they must be able to keep calm and organize other people to do like them. He or she must know how to supply artificial respiration, control bleeding, and protect injuries. Medical assistance has to be arranged. Knowing how to carry the victim without causing more injuries is very important.

In short, effective first aid depends on prevention, recognition, and organization. In Ethiopia, thousands of people die due to traffic accidents every year because most people don't have first aid information. If more people were trained in first aid, the number of dead people would decrease. You may face an emergency anywhere. One day, somebody from your family may be injured or suddenly become ill. In order not to be helpless in such a situation, you have to know first aid techniques.
