Focused On Jesus

There's only one focus we should keep our hearts fixed on, “Jesus Christ!” through His word by His spirit.

When we take our eyes off the spirit into what is seen (the material), we tend to suffer unnecessary damages to our hearts rather than peace and a steady walk with Jesus.

Our lives will have zero or will be of little eternal value when our hearts are not or completely fixed on Jesus. The measure of peace we'll experience in Christ Jesus will be determined by our focus on Him. Our focus on Him is not only to abide, but also seeing from His presence. When we see from His presence, naturally we'll be thankful to God in every little thing.

Looking more on the outside and less on Jesus will lead only to a disturbed heart, a shaky heart like a rocked rickety bridge. Unless we stay focused on Jesus as we walk this path of life through this bridge of the flesh, although rocked, shaken; our stable and onward path to the throne will not be in anyway hindered or deterred.

It takes the grace of God by Faith to bring us into the path of life. However, it takes focusing on Jesus to keep our hearts steady as we walk this path of life on a shaky bridge of the flesh. The flesh, a rickety bridge caused by death, a look away from Jesus becomes a disturbance to our hearts, but a focus on Jesus turns the thorns of this flesh for our glory, for the glory of God.

Every time our bridge is being shaken, it shouldn't be a cause for discouragement and frustration, but rather a firm focus and a great movement of Faith drawing us speedily to the one we are focused on. Without our bridge being shaken, there really is no movement of faith to usher us speedily but steadily in Christ Jesus, a life of greater value.

When we follow Jesus only because of what we want to get, when we eventually don't get what we wanted as a test to our Faith or as a supplement for the maturity of our Faith , we might likely be tempted to become discouraged, frustrated or depressed, destroying or deterring our relationship, our walk with Jesus if possible.

Focusing on our relationship is simply; focusing on Jesus, what He wants. And when we do so, then all that's needed to live for Him here and now will naturally follow through.

Being focused on Jesus in reality is seeing what Jesus sees as we stay closely with Him always. In all focusing on Jesus is increasingly building our relationship with Him without being deterred by the fallen nature, but rather like stepping stones thrusting us further unto Him.

A life focused on Jesus is a life focused on eternity, a life of peace, a life of divine destiny and a life of greater value. Be focused.
