	CHANGE AND DEVELOPMENT	RELATION TO RIZAL'S LIFE
ECONOMIC	During the 19th century, the Philippines' economic condition gave rise to Haciendas or the "cash-crop economy". Where large parts of lands would be used for crops considered as cash-crop. Some cash-crops are: Sugar, Tobacco, Abaca, and Coffee. Being open to world trade and having these products abundant in the Philippines, the Philippines became a major exporter for these products and became well-known in other parts of the world. By these events, there was a shift from barter system to moneyed economy.	The economic and social foundation, were laid for Rizal and his contemporaries to conceive of and demand greater autonomy and ultimately independence.
POLITICAL	Political ideas spread more rapidly because of the concentration of people in the town and cities. The development of railways and the development of national newspaper	Dr. Jose Rizal worked to improve the lives of his oppressed countrymen through political and ecclesiastical reform.
SOCIO- ECONOMICAL	The 19th Century gave birth to the middleclass, the lands became the primary source of wealth because of the cash-crops, and being able to afford constructions; it gave rise to technological interconnections among the separated islands of the Philippines. The Philippines' regional diversity became interconnected by railroads, steam ships, and advance in communication. Literacy was also considered a weapon by the Filipinos – a weapon for decolonization.	Dr. Jose Rizal are the one who makes us believe that we need a social acceptance even your color is different we need to respect them because we are all equal.
