State in rush to contain locust invasion ahead of long rains season

BY WANGARI NDIRANGU, KNA

The government is working round the clock to ensure the second wave of the desert locust invasion is controlled before the long rain season, Agriculture CS, Peter Munya says.

The CS noted that rains create a conducive environment for the swarms to thrive.

Speaking during a high-level emergency Desert Locust consultative meeting in Nairobi, Munya added that the government had recently asked the Food Agriculture Organisation (FAO) to work with partners to develop a Desert Locust Management Strategy.

"This strategy in which FAO will be working with the International Fund for Agricultural Development (IFAD) and Emergency Locust Response Project (ELRP) will address the menace in the long term. This will be done soonest in consultation with County governments", Munya said

The CS explained that the 2nd wave of the Desert Locust invasion which began in November last year has so far affected 20 counties.

"We received reports of the first swarms coming in through Mandera, Wajir, Garissa in November and by December all the way to January, this had spread to Marsabit, Isiolo, Samburu and for the first time the coastal counties of Lamu, Tana River, Kilifi and Taita Taveta. Other counties affected now include Machakos, Kitui, Laikipia, Tharaka Nithi, Nyandarua, Nakuru and Elgeyo Marakwet," Munya said.

Current reports indicate that so far, about 183 swarms have settled in the country

Gov't to lease part of its idle land to animal feed producers

CS says the Cabinet has given nod for private investors with sufficient resources to lease government land lying idle in various parts of the country to engage in farming

BY JOSEPH NG'ANG'A

The Government, through the Ministry of Agriculture, will lease idle land to investors who will produce raw material required in the manufacture of animal feeds to bring down their cost.

Agriculture, Livestock, Fisheries and Cooperatives Cabinet Secretary (CS) Peter Munya said the Cabinet has already adopted the cabinet memo and now his office and that of the Attorney General (AG) are working on the detailed policy on leasing in the next two weeks so that it can start being implemented.

Official data shows that 10 percent of Kenya's land is owned by the government in protected areas, rivers as well as institutions. Others are trust land (70 percent) and freehold land (20 percent).

The ministry will publish the terms that will allow farmers to plant on idle government land as it seeks to maximize use in a country where only 20 percent to the land mass is arable.

"We have been working on a policy where we will encourage private to to enable investors with resources and who would like to invest in agriculture production to come forward and lease the land that is idle," said Munya.

Speaking during the launch of the Kenya Dairy Board (KDB) laboratory in Kabete, Munya said the ministry is aware that the cost of milk production in the country is high compared to other countries in the region which is attributed to the high cost of feeding and inefficiencies at the farm level.

"My ministry together with other stakeholders are in discussion to avail quality feeds at competitive prices. We will also continue to petition the National Treasury to look into the issue of tax regimes and other incentives which will help reduce the cost of production to make the sector more viable," said Munya.

The CS explained that the idea is to produce what the country needs to help bridge the gap between the raw materials required for animal feeds and what is required for food security.

bridge the gap on what we require for food security in the country and the raw materials required especially for animals feeds which include oil crops," clarified Munya. The CS said that they want to ensure that the country is self-sufficient to avoid over reliance on other markets. "We will institute animal breeding programs though the Kenya Animal Genetic Resources Centre (KAGRIC) and other partners so that the farmers improve the quality of the animals as he encouraged farmers to increase their uptake of Artificial Insemination (AI) services. He added that his ministry with the guidance of the president intervened in the stabilization of farm gate prices and also directed that new KCC give a minimum payout price of Sh.33 to cushion farmers from low prices, with other milk processors following suit. Through this vibrancy in the sector, the average farm gate price has gone up from Shs.22 in 2019 to the current Shs.38 per liter and growing.

"The dairy sector regulations- which are to be gazetted anytime once operational will help mitigate the fluctuating farm gate prices as they will be setting up minimum prices which will be anchored in law," said Munya.

The CS warned unscrupulous traders who are illegally importing dairy products through the porous border points of Lodwar, Kacheliba, and those trading in illegal imports in Mombasa and Eastleigh saying that the law is catching up with them, as some have been arraigned in court already.

124 more nursing trainees benefit from Beyond Zero bursary after year's break

BY PSCU

The second phase of the Beyond Zero scholarship program has resumed after a 10-month hiatus brought about by the COVID-19 pandemic that forced the government to close down all learning institutions for nine months.

However, the re-opening of schools and colleges has enabled 124 beneficiaries of the program to join various selected campuses of the Kenya Medical Training College (KMTC) to pursue a specially tailored certificate course in Enrolled Community Health Nursing.

The special course designed to boost child and maternal health in marginalised and remote parts of the country will be offered in Loitokitok, Msambweni, Lodwar, Kapenguria and Kitui KMTC campuses.

Irene Umazi Nyawa, a 26 year-old resident of Vipingo village in Kilifi County, is one of the 124 beneficiaries who reported to college in the third week of January this year to start her training as a nurse.

24 year old John Lemaron, a beyond zero beneficiary from Kajiado County serving his Maasai community during an outreach. John graduated from KMTC Loitokitok campus in December 2018

"I am grateful to Beyond Zero and its partners for fulfilling my dream by giving me the chance to pursue the profession I have always loved. This scholarship will lift me out of poverty and also benefit my community," says Irene.

Irene says the Beyond Zero scholarship was a godsend. Coming from a poor family, paying school fees had always been a huge struggle during her high school days.

Despite her passion for becoming a nurse, it was beyond her wildest dreams that one day she would actually be in a nursing class until the Beyond Zero scholarship came calling.

Like Irene, 21-year-old Abdimuhsin Bishar Ahmed from the dry and dusty village of Modogashe on the border of Isiolo and Garissa counties is happy to be in KMTC courtesy of the Beyond Zero scholarship.

"I have always had the passion for becoming a nurse to serve my community. Thanks to the Beyond Zero Scholarship, the dream that was shattered after my father's death has been revived. My school fees is fully catered for," says Ahmed who joined Lodwar KMTC.

Swiss multinational healthcare company, Roche, is funding the second phase of the Beyond Zero scholarship program following the successful implementation of the first phase which was funded by the World Bank and benefitted 1200 students from vulnerable communities.

To date, 753 out of the 1200 beneficiaries of phase one of the Beyond Zero Scholarship program have graduated and are working in hard-to-reach health facilities within their counties providing a wide range of primary healthcare services including immunization, ante-natal care and skilled deliveries among others.

Joel Lemaron, 24, is one of the 11 Beyond Zero Scholarship beneficiaries from Kajiado County who graduated from Loitokitok KMTC in December 2018 and is serving his Maasai community as a nurse at Oldonyo Alasho dispensary under the Universal Health Coverage (UHC) program.

The dispensary, which now serves a population of 1,647 people in the remotest part of Kajiado near the border of Kenya and Tanzania, had closed for a year due to lack of healthcare workers until Joel was posted there.

"In this dispensary, I work as the overall healthcare provider. I do consultation, administration of drugs, refer patients who require further medical care to other facilities, provide immunization to children under five years and also assist mothers to deliver," says Joel.

Kajiado County Executive Committee Member for Health Esther Somoire says the Beyond Zero Scholarship program has helped to strengthen health systems and contributed towards the achievement of UHC in a big way.

"The advantage of this program is that the beneficiaries are locals who are able to work in the most remote places like Oldonyo Lasho, Engong Narok in Kajiado South and Ngororoi in Kajiado West," says Ms Somoire.

In Taita Taveta County, Hellen Manambo who works at Mgange Nyika Health Centre as a nurse says the special training she received at KMTC courtesy of the Beyond Zero scholarship has enabled her to carry out difficult assignments at the health centre.

SENIOR MANAGER SUPPLY CHAIN FOR MANAGING DIRECTOR

"The virus does not move, people move it. We stop moving, the virus dies"

MyGov. Verbatim

National Land Commission determined to give good land governance /management

In this week's verbatim interview, MyGov's Mutiso Mbithi engages the National Land Commission (NLC) Chairman, Gershom Otachi on a wide range of issues related to land use, conflicts and compensation

Briefly tell us what NLC is all about, when, and under what legal provisions it was established.

The National Land Commission (NLC) is a Constitutional Commission established under Article 67 (1) and Chapter 15 of the Constitution of Kenya 2010. It was operationalized by the National Land Commission Act of 2012 and the inaugural set of Commissioners assumed office on 27th February, 2013. The current Commission consists of the Chairman and eight Commissioners; seven Commissioners were sworn in office on 15th November 2019 whilst the other two were sworn in on 21st December, 2020.

What is your mandate as a Commission?

Under Article 67 of the Constitution of Kenya 2010, the Commission is mandated to manage and administer public land on behalf of the National and County governments, initiate investigations into present or historical land injustices and recommend appropriate redress, monitor and have oversight responsibilities over land use planning throughout the country.

The Commission is also mandated to conduct research related to land and the use of natural resources, and make recommendations to appropriate authorities, encourage the application of traditional dispute resolution mechanisms in land conflicts, assess tax on land and premiums on immovable property in any area designated by law, and recommend a National Land Policy to the National government

What major reforms has the Commission implemented since inception?

The Commission has undertaken a number of reforms, and they include;

1. Review of grants and disposition of titles, where it has conducted investigations in various parts of the country to determine the legality of grants and dispositions. A total of 15,513 complaints were received; out of this, 5,773 were investigated/reviewed, with 4,088 determined & gazetted
2. Historical Land Injustices (HLI) – A total of 693 HLI claims were received; out of which 126 were admitted, investigated and determinations issued.
3. Public land information management- The Commission started working on automation of its technical business processes in 2014 drawing from the then legal provision. A pilot of this system was launched in 2016 following gazettement of NLIMS Standards & Guidelines. Following the Land Laws (Amendment) Act of 2016, this function was split between the Commission and the Ministry of Lands and Physical Planning. As a consequence, the Commission has now been partnering with the Ministry in the development of the NLIMS.
4. Land dispute resolution and conflict management- resolved various disputes through Alternative Dispute Resolution mechanisms.

Give us a glimpse of your operational relationship with the Ministry of Lands and Physical Planning

The National Land Commission and the Ministry of Land and Physical Planning are the two main institutions mandated by law to spearhead land reforms in the country. The operations of the two institutions are symbiotic and require a close working relation for each to deliver on its respective mandate.

The Commission has therefore maintained a cordial working relationship with Ministry of Lands and Physical Planning which involves collaboration, and engagement in consultative forums as well as partnership in implementation of reforms in the land sector for efficient and effective service delivery to the tax payers. The Ministry and NLC are jointly engaged in several key projects like Mwache dam in Kwale, Nairobi Expressway, KETRACO transmission lines among others on appropriate land values for valuation and compensation purposes.

Land is an emotive subject, and a major cause of various conflicts today. What mechanisms have you employed to ensure land matters are sorted out once and for all?

Land matters are complex in nature and require concerted efforts from all land stakeholders and government institutions for realization of the desired reforms. The country has already enacted appropriate land laws which are in place and are now guiding the land reform process.

The commission has embarked on implementing related land reforms which has seen it address pertinent land issues since its inception in February 2013. These include settlement of Historical Land Injustices (HLI), Review of Grants and Disposition of Public Land, employment of Alternative/Traditional Dispute Resolution Mechanisms (ADR/TDR) on land disputes.

Further, the Commission has developed its Strategic Plan 2020-2025 (SP) which will guide it as it addresses land issues in the country.

Land ownership in this country is obviously very imbalanced. In your view, what direction should the country take to ensure equitable distribution of land?

Whereas it would appear equitable distribution would be an answer, however various factors need to be borne in mind as we seek a lasting solution to this. These include yield capacity of the land, soil types, rainfall/access to water, population density in the region, and the capacity of the prospective users to make best use of the land. By combining these factors, an optimal land allocation scheme can be designed taking into consideration planning/ zoning requirements.

However, land remains a limited resource and it will never be enough to satisfy each and every citizen/interested party in terms of ownership.

Land grabbing has gained momentum in this country in the past few years. What is the commission doing to minimize this problem?

We have embarked on a programme for recovery of public land that was illegally acquired. Public schools and other state agencies that bore the brunt of this illegality mainly due to the manner in which the land sourced are currently being titled and secured. As we speak, a joint task-force drawn from The Ministry of Lands and Physical Planning, the Ministry Education and the Commission has been working to secure these school lands. A target of 10,000 schools have been titled and the lands secured through fencing with all documentation done and deposited with the CS National Treasury. Moreover, we have cancelled over 5,000 illegal titles relating to public land.

What specific matters have you dealt with so far in the last one year

The Commission as it marks one year in office has been steadfast in facilitating the Government development agenda, as outlined in Vision 2030 and more specifically the Big Four Agenda through;

- Facilitating acquisition of land for infrastructural development projects on behalf of government entities notably

i. SGR Phase II to Naivasha
ii. Expansion of Road network- Nairobi Expressway, Nairobi western bypass road project Likoni floating Bridge and numerous roads across counties(Eldoret bypass, Kisii-Ahero,Mutomo-Kitui)
iii. Dams for water security and irrigation (Lower Nzoia, Mwache, Karumeno, Thwake)
iv. LAPSSET
v. Nairobi military land

- Provision of land for affordable housing projects both at National and County level (NHC Ngara Scheme)
- Involvement in resettlement Programmes for squatters in liaison with Ministry OF Lands, County governments and other stakeholders (Chemilil, Kilifi and Kwale resettlements schemes and multiagency programme for a permanent solution to the Mau forest enchroachment)
- Involved in Public awareness and education forums on community land Act alongside Ministry and other internal and external stakeholders e.g FAO, EU
- Adopted a multi-stakeholder approach to solving disputes in the land sector through normal justice mechanisms and Promotion of alternative methods of resolving conflicts

During the current tenure as a Commission, what have you purposed to do to impact positively the lives of ordinary Kenyans?

The Commission has developed and implemented strategies that will;

- Secure public institutional land
- Enhance access to alienated and unalienated public land for development
- Regularize urban land allocations
- Sustainably manage natural resources
- Develop a comprehensive public land inventory and databases
- Mainstream land use planning in the national and county development agenda
- Promote good land governance
- Provide redress to land disputes
- Provide redress for Historical Land Injustices (HLI)

What is your annual budget and source of funding?

The Commission is funded by the exchequer with a gross expenditure (recurrent and development) estimates put at Sh 1.233 billion in the 2020/2021 financial year (F/Y). This constitutes approximately 36% of the Commission's budgetary estimates.

The funding from the exchequer is inadequate, therefore the Commission has engaged relevant stakeholders and forged partnerships with development partners to plug the deficit.

What challenges do you face as a Commission and what are you doing to surmount them?

Challenges are majorly resource based and these afflict all entities in government. NLC is constrained in fully meeting its mandate by;

a) Financial and budgetary constraints – The Commission has continued to engage Parliament and National Treasury for an increase in budgetary allocation. We have also stepped up our resource mobilization strategies for extra funding from development partners
b) The lapse of the five (5) year time frame for review of grants and disposition of titles to public land in line with section 14 of the NLC Act – the Commission has petitioned parliament for an extension to the lapsed time frame
c) Failure to vest land acquired for public purpose, rendering such land to be at risk of illegal occupation, use and reclaiming or repossession – The Commission has teamed up with the acquiring bodies to undertake vesting of the acquired land with the acquiring bodies.
d) Shortage of staff and restrictions on recruiting staff. The Commission has been gradually recruiting staff by leveraging opportunities arising from collaborations with development partners where there are provisos for getting consultants (technical staff)
e) Inadequate office space – there are discussions on increasing office space leased to the Commission. There is also a long-term vision of acquiring own space to address all the space needs of the Commission

KFCB enlists elders in crusade against moral decadence among Kenyans

BY MUTISO MBITHI (MYGOV)

The Kenya Film Classification Board (KFCB) will partner with the National Council of Elders to reclaim Kenya's moral fabric and encourage the media to be purveyors of clean content.

Speaking at the Nairobi Film Centre while signing an MoU with the KFCB management, led by CEO Dr Ezekiel Mutua, the elders led by their patron Captain (Rtd) Kung'u Muigai said the breakdown of moral values in Kenya and erosion of the leadership code of ethics has seen leaders hauling insults at each, inciting a class war in the country and fighting in public. Muigai termed it a matter of great concern which needs to be nipped in the bud before escalating into worrying levels

To help the country reclaim its moral standing, Captain Muigai urged the media to tone down on airing and propagating obscene content and vowed to ensure all elders in Kenya team up with the Department of Culture and the entire government structure to help restore the already eroded moral values in the country.

The elders who also included the Council Chairman Mr

Phares Ruteere and Major (Rtd) John Seii also decried the kind of immorality being peddled by the media and urged TV stations to avoid airing obscene content as it ended up corrupting the morals of the youth.

The elders further expressed their willingness to act "as the last line of defence to fight against vices like extremism, homosexuality, lesbianism, adultery, fornication, gender based violence, murder at the family level and airing of indecent content in social media, TV stations".

The elders further told the media to stop feeding the youth with unpalatable content in the name of freedom of the press.

Speaking during the ceremony whose theme was "Moral decadence and need to uphold family values and culture", the KFCB CEO Dr Ezekiel Mutua decried the recent incidents of domestic violence, homicides and unruly and violent behaviour among the youth.

He recalled the macabre killings of an entire family in Kiambu county early this year by a young member of the family who by his own admission said he was influenced by a film titled "Killing Eve" and called on the elders to partner with the KFCB to restore morality and good values in the country.

Mutua further attributed rising cases of school riots and burning of dormitories to general breakdown of moral values and lack of social support structures in the upbringing of children at the society level after parents "ran away" from their parenting duties while society has failed the same young Kenyans.

He asked parents to monitor what media content their children were consuming and be alive to the fact that to nurture is a bigger and more honourable than giving birth to children who are left to their own devices and neglect.

" Media must not be conduits for destroying moral values," said the CEO.

State in rush to contain locust invasion ahead of long rains and of this, 157 have been controlled reflecting an 86 percent success rate in control efforts, the CS added.

However, Munya noted that more swarms are expected to invade and settle in the months of February and March based on projections by FAO's Desert Locust Information Office (DLIS).

He noted that although a lot has been done so far, more still needs to be done considering that during the first invasion in 2019, government had established six regional control bases. But with the second wave, two more have been established bringing the total to 8.

Munya confirmed that a developed Plan of Action on Desert Locust Management that was launched sometime back in Naivasha requires at least Sh.3.2B and, so far, everything is on course far as implementation is concerned.

"In the plan, we are looking at three main components of desert locust management, namely round and aerial surveillance, ground and aerial control and lastly, livelihood protection and recovery", he said.

However, for sustainability and to tread on the side of caution due to non-predictive nature of desert locust invasion, CS Munya said that the government has made provisions in the coming days to boost stocks through the World Bank funded ELRP project to ensure that control will be sustained till the end.

He spoke of challenges such as insecurity, poor infrastructure, accessibility to protected areas and inadequate storage and transportation facilities saying the meeting was convened to take a pragmatic approach to address them.

FAO representative to Kenya, Amb. Carla Mucavi said as the second wave unfolds, FAO will continue to monitor closely its effects on livelihoods and will respond appropriately including through conducting an impact assessment.

She noted that the Desert locust control is a very expensive affair to maintain noting that in the first wave, FAO Kenya alone appealed for USD 32 Million out of which they received about USD 20 million.

"FAO Kenya alone has for the second wave put an appeal for USD 8 million out of which we have already received USD 2 million" she said.

Contractor given 3 week ultimatum to complete police housing units

BY JOSHUA KIBET

Police officers in Eldama Ravine station currently living in dilapidated houses will soon have a reason to smile once a modern three storey building is completed in the next three weeks.

The one block housing unit constructed by the government at cost of Sh 117 million comprises 48 bedsitters and twelve two bed room units which are self-contained and set to accommodate senior and junior officers.

Speaking during an inspection tour of the project, members of the National Development Implementation Technical Committee (NDITC) made of five Principal Secretaries gave the contractor up to the end of March to complete the project and hand it over.

The Principal Secretaries led by ICT PS Jerome Ochieng, asked the contractor, Meera Construction Ltd, to expedite the remaining construction works so that the project is commissioned in April.

The PSs who included Harry Kimutai (Livestock), Joseph Irungu (Water & Sanitation), Joe Okudo (Sports), Dr Margaret Mwakima (Regional & Northern Corridor Development) and Government spokesman Col (Rtd) Cyrus Oguna, called on the contractor to improve the quality of workmanship which they noted was unsatisfactory.

National Development Implementation Technical Committee (NDITC) members comprising five Principal Secretaries on a guided inspection tour of Chemususu Water Supply treatment plant in Koibatek.

Others who accompanied the PSs in the extensive inspection tour of projects in Koibatek Sub County included County Commissioner Henry Wafula, Presidential Delivery Unit (PDU) in charge of the County, Martin Rotich and Central Rift Valley Development Water Works CEO Eng Hosea Wendot.

"The quality of workmanship in some areas of the building are of concern. Seriously the quality of work need to be improved. The supervisor should urgently improve on the quality so that we don't come back and find the same mistakes," Jerome said.

Mr Jerome assured the contractor that they were going to fast track the payment of two pending certificates amounting to Sh 22 million and follow up with a 25 percent variation certificate raised to facilitate the construction of additional works like Cabro parking and paved road linking the Block and the camp.

Construction works on the project started in March 2018 and was expected to be completed in August 2020. It currently stands at 95 percent.

The ICT principal secretary said the mission of the inspection tour was to find out why some projects at the grass roots level are stuck or were behind schedule in implementation with a view to unlocking them.

The team members reiterated that the government was committed to ensuring that all presidential legacy and priority projects were accomplished and commissioned as soon as possible for wananchi to derive benefits.

The project once completed, the PSs restated, will provide good housing to 60 police officers and contribute to the Big Four Agenda under affordable housing.

"We are going around the country to have a physical feel of the projects and try to understand some of the challenges hindering their execution and find ways of unlocking to fast track implementation," said Jerome.

The Government spokesman while addressing the press after inspection of multibillion Chemususu water supply constructed at Sh 3.5 billion dispelled rumours peddled by some individuals to the effect that the government had abandoned the Big Four projects to concentrate on constitutional amendments.

He made it clear that the government was committed to completing all legacy infrastructural projects as planned urging wananchi to disregard such baseless allegations.

Fund launched to mitigate impact of climate change

BY WANGARI NDIRANGU, KNA

The Government has launched a Sh 3.4 billion (USD34 million) Green Climate Fund project, aimed at reducing the cost of climate change induced drought on Kenya's economy.

Dubbed 'Towards Ending Drought Emergencies (TWENDE) project, it will benefit over 620,000 people spread across 11 counties in Kenya's Arid and Semi-Arid Lands (ASALs), restoring over 500, 000 hectare rangelands in a landscape of 2.5 million hectares.

The project which is an ecosystem-based adaptation in Kenya's Arid and Semi-Arid rangelands will run for five years, funded by the Green Climate Fund (GCF), The National Treasury and other implementing partners.

National Treasury and Planning Cabinet Secretary Amb. Ukur Yatani said the project will be executed in three components by the National Drought Management Authority (NDMA), the Ministry of Agriculture, Livestock, Fisheries & Irrigation and Conservation International (CI), respectively.

In his remarks, read by the Chief Administrative Secretary (CAS), Nelson Gaichuhie,

CS Yatani noted, "The TWENDE project will reduce the cost of climate change induced drought on Kenya's economy by increasing resilience of the livestock and other land use sectors in restored rangeland ecosystems, as identified in our Nationally Determined Contributions (NDC) and development priorities".

He further reiterated the government's commitment to green climate finance, through the Green Climate Fund, saying the innovative mechanism presented by the GCF will enable the country access climate finance and facilitate the implementation of the Big Four Agenda and Vision 2030, with a climate lens.

Responding to the climate challenge especially in the era of COVID-19, Yatani said it will however require collective and innovative action including significant financial resources from both the public and private sectors.

Tobiko launches Green Climate Fund Project dubbed 'Towards Ending Drought Emergencies (TWENDE)'

BYGRACE OWITI (PCO)

The Environment and Forestry Cabinet Secretary Keriako Tobiko has described the impact of climate change as the biggest threat facing humanity today.

Tobiko says the phenomenon of Climate Change which manifests itself through worsening extreme weather conditions resulting in floods and drought have compromised national aspirations besides impacting negatively on efforts to achieve national goals.

The CS who was speaking in his office during a virtual meeting, said the impact of adverse weather have severely compromised on Kenya's aspirations which are envisaged in the national Constitution, Vision 2030, the Big Four Agenda as well as the gains so far made by the Government.

Tobiko said that the Ministry as the lead agent had taken bold and progressive steps in pushing the Climate Change agenda in the country by putting in place the requisite policy and legal instruments to provide guidance and leadership in an endeavour to address issues of climate change at both the national and county levels.

The Tobiko, enumerated some of the policy instruments put in place by the government in order to mitigate the impact of climate change as the Cli-

A team of Principal Secretaries is introduced to the dam and the works so far accomplished.

Gigantic Thiba Dam to be complete by end year, says project manager

BY IRUNGU MWANGI (KNA)

Construction of the giant Thiba Dam in Kirinyaga County will be completed by this December, the County Development Implementation and Co-ordination committee has been assured.

The project Manager Engineer Stephen Mutinda told the CDICC which was on a tour of the project site that the dam was 52 per cent complete and all the major works have been completed.

"With these major works now completed, what is remaining will be done within now and December when we will officially hand over the mega project to our client the Government of Kenya," Mutinda assured the committee.The committee comprising three Principal Secretaries was also informed of various challenges which the contractor has been experiencing including delayed reimbursement of import taxes for the construction equipment.

It also emerged that some legal challenges concerning land compensation where the dam is being constructed had resulted in some delays though the matter has been now fully resolved.

The PSs in the team include Professor Hamadi Boga of Agriculture, Eng. Andrew Kamau of Petroleum and his Post Training and Skills Development Mr. Alfred Cheruiyot.

Speaking to the press later at the dam site, Eng.Kamau said his team was convinced that the contractor would be able to deliver the Sh 20 billion project by the end of the year.

He said once complete, Mwea rice farmers will plant the crop twice a year since they will no longer depend on rain-fed agriculture.

The dam which will hold 15 million cubic meters of water will be used by the farmers within Mutithi section where the existing scheme is being expanded by 10,000 acres.

Currently, the Mwea Irrigation Scheme has 25,000 acres under rice cultivation but upon expansion, will now add up to 35,000 acres which will translate to double production of paddy rice, according to the National Irrigation Authority Director-General Gitonga Mugambi

"As from next year, upon being handed over the Thiba Mega-Dam, rice production in Mwea will double from the current 120,000 metric tons to about 250,000 metric tons due to the double cropping," Mugambi who was present said. He also said the income from the crop which stands at Sh 9 billion will also shoot up three-fold to about Sh 20 billion per year and improve the wellbeing of the farmers.

Mugambi said the project commenced in December 2018 and was progressing on well despite some of the challenges the contractor had raised.

Later, the team which was being conducted on the tour by the Kirinyaga County Commissioner Jim Njoka visited the Wanguru stadium whose construction works are at 70 percent.

Prof. Boga later told the media at the facility that the contractor had committed to complete the project by August."When completed, this stadium which will have the state of the art facilities will host local, national and even international events thus improving the economic fortunes of Ngurubani town which is within the area," the official noted.

Tourism Fund to train hoteliers in campaign to boost tourism

BY MARTIN MUNYI (KNA)

The Tourism Fund will train hoteliers and other stakeholders in the tourism sector on best practices to attract tourists to their facilities.

Tourism Fund Board of Trustees Chairman Alphonse Kioko said his organisation had entered into a partnership with Kenya Utalii College to offer quality training to hoteliers and tour companies on ways to improve on standards for tourism.

"This is very important because as tourists come to Kenya, there's need to find the standards of hospitality very high, they need to find seamless service whether in the big hotels or the small ones," Kioko said.

Speaking when he met hoteliers and stakeholders in the tourism sector from Laikipia County at a Nanyuki hotel, the Tourism Fund Chairman added that it was important that the basic knowledge of health and service were upheld by players in the sector.

Kioko further said that the aim of the training was to ensure that local and international tourists take Kenya as their preferred destination globally.

The Tourism Board chair further added that the hoteliers would also be trained on bookkeeping to help them properly manage their day to day operations and accounts.

"We want to show them on ways to curb on their losses and improve on their businesses," he said.

At the same time, Kioko called on players in the tourism sector to ensure compliance in remitting the two percent levy to the Fund as the proceeds were used by the government to market tourist destinations across the country.

Tourism Fund is charged with the mandate of collecting two percent revenue from hotels, the homestays, and other facilities that give accommodation and this revenue goes to support the Kenya Tourism Board (KTB) in marketing the country.

However, a section of hoteliers questioned how the two percent levy was being utilised claiming that the trickle effect is never felt in their businesses.

Gilbert Mutembei, the proprietor of Beisa hotel in Nanyuki town lamented that the hospitality industry had been turned into a cash cow due to the many levies and charges from the National and County Governments.

"What is so special in tourism to attract so many levies? We don't see where the levies charged go to and I feel it's time to re-evaluate the country's marketing strategies especially abroad if we have to turn around this sector," Mutembei said.

The hotelier challenged Tourism Fund to get relevance in the sector by being more proactive in engaging players in the industry.

Tourism Fund Chairman Alphonse Kioko addresses hotel owners and other stakeholders in the tourism and hospitality industry during a stakeholders' forum at a Nanyuki hotel on February 9, 2021.

Health workers tipped on management of Covid-19 stigma

BY IRUNGU MWANGI (KNA)

Community health workers in Kirinyaga County will be trained on how to handling stigma associated with the coronavirus as well as home care guidelines.

According to Governor Anne Waiguru, the training which will cover the entire county medical workforce is sponsored by AMREF Health Africa.

Speaking at her office, Waiguru said the the partnership between AMREF and the county government is essential as many of the targeted workers will benefit from the training.

The Governor further said the training will go a long way in equipping healthcare providers as part of providing comprehensive health care to the county residents

"Apart from developing the human capital in the health sector, my administration has also undertaken massive infrastructural development in the sector.

The training, Waiguru said, will take one month and targets 1,500 community health workers who include community health volunteers (CHVs) and community health extension officers.

Speaking at Thiba Health Center during one of the training sessions, the County Community Health Services coordinator, Kagiri Gatama said, the training was a timely intervention that will build the capacity of community health workers to handle the corona virus and other health matters in the community.

Gatama said the role played by community health volunteers was important as it enabled them to penetrate the community and create the much need public health awareness.

"They will be trained on various aspects of Covid-19 and prevention of other communicable and non-communicable diseases so that that they can in turn educate the public on how to deal with such ailments and avoid stigma against people suffering from them, " he said.

Community health workers undergoing training at Thiba Health Center.

Gatama added that community health education has had a huge impact on reduction and prevention of many diseases.

He cited the drastic drop in malaria cases in the county where 360,000 cases were reported in 2005 but over time, the disease prevalence has reduced to the current 25,000 to 30,000 cases per year.

This he attributed to intensified community health promotion that included educating residents on the importance of sleeping under insecticide-treated mosquito nets as a containment measure.

Gatama said the county no longer experiences epidemics such as diarrhea which has been the norm during the mango season, noting that through community health education, people have adopted good basic hygiene practices such as the washing of hands, fruits, and vegetables before consumption.

He said Kirinyaga has also been able to keep Covid-19 in check due to heightened public awareness campaigns that could not be successful without the input of the community health volunteers who are currently engaged in the Covid -19 accelerated prevention campaign.

The health sector in Kirinyaga has made great strides in the recent past with the biggest investment being the modern medical complex that will transform Kerugoya County Hospital from a Level Four to a Level Five facility.

The CS said that the instruments put in place by the Ministry have provided a condusive environment for both state and non-state actors to operate and play respective roles in addressing climate change, saying it was paramount for public and stakeholders' engagements to translate these policies into action for positive impact.

Tobiko further applauded the establishment of the Climate Finance and Green Growth Unit at the Ministry of Finance and Planning which he said was a step in the right direction taking cognizance of finance as a key enabler in climate action.

The CS said that the National Designated Authority for Green Climate Fund and Adaptation Fund was critical in accelerating climate finance flow into the country, adding that, 'resources are finite and to access more funding from diverse base calls for innovation and ingenuity.

Tobiko called for leveraging on resources from the private sector through innovative avenues like green bound and carbon trading which were important as the private sector has a huge potential; to boost the climate financial flows.

The CS said there was therefore need to cast the net wider with a bid to tap more sources of funding to mitigate against climate change including bilateral, multi- lateral engagements and UNFCCC climate finance mechanisms.

The CS underscored the importance for resource mobilization to support climate change adding that mobilization of external resources was critical even as "we strength internal resources mobilization mechanisms".

Youngster hopes to ride out of poverty through rabbit rearing

BY JOYCE WACHAU
(Correspondent)

Commercial rabbit farming in Kenya has for a long time, not gained the ground that farmers would really desire. But lately, rabbit farmers have started earning tidy sums of money by venturing into this enterprise, whose potential as a lucrative venture is quite huge.

In the heart of Githunguri village, Gatanga sub-county, a student Martha Kabura has been working tirelessly in this venture, already having in her possession, 50 grade rabbits at a time the corona pandemic has dashed the hopes of many entrepreneurs.

Having started with only 4 rabbits, she is proud to now showcase just how big her business has grown, to a total of 50 rabbits.

Among her 50 rabbits, she has four main breeds which can be easily distinguished by their features. She rears the California White which can be identified by their black nose, red eyes and black feet, the New Zealand with red eyes, the Dutch with a white tie and lastly the Giant Fleming known for having a brown furry body and whose increase in weight happens so fast.

Martha solely feeds her rabbits on pellets, hay and sweet potato vines that are first left to soften before being fed to the animals. A half handful of pellets is mixed with a half cup of bread crumbs, to save on the feeds, whereby the rabbits are fed only once in a day.

"Rabbits love cleanliness hence their water is changed every day and the hutch cleaned too. To ensure the rabbits remain healthy, they are feed with D.C.P and multivitamins in a bid to boost their immunity," she says.

Another interesting thing is that, once they give birth, the babies should not be touched until they are over 10 days, since the mother can refuse to breastfeed them. They also stand a high chance of contracting diseases if touched. Grass is hung for them and not put on the floor of the cage, so as to enhance cleanliness.

Owing to travel restrictions inhibiting arrival of customers from far, Kabura sells her rabbits locally.

"A rabbit usually goes for Sh3,500 and the meat is sold at Sh400 per kilo," says Kabura as she puts up one rabbit on a scale to determine its weight, when she took through this writer about her rabbit rearing business recently.

When it comes to rabbit farming, nothing goes to waste. Their waste is used in farming and actually the best when it comes to strawberry farming. The skin/fur can be sold to the textile industries while the urine is also used as fertilizer, and an effective insecticide.

"The urine is also sold at Sh150 per litre. Rabbit meat is soft and sweet, hence even kids can easily consume it," explains the young farmer.

"People are yet to have the necessary awareness when it comes to rabbit rearing and production. Many people engage in small scale rearing since they are not equipped with the necessary information when it comes to rabbits," she notes.

When rearing rabbits, it is good to have a few concrete facts that will help one navigate the course. Rabbits are a very territorial lot and hate anything that stresses them. When it comes to mating, the female has to be taken to the male and that act is known as serving. Also to avoid interbreeding which results to inferior breeds, males and females are put in different hutches. They communicate by stomping their feet or as a way of indicating there is danger.

Rabbits require sufficient light and no cold. When putting up the hutches, one should ensure there is space between the top cages and those below, to give room for waste collection. Under the cage, a translucent/plastic iron sheet is placed to collect the urine which is highly corrosive. Normal iron sheets would easily corrode. The hutch should be slanted so that the urine is drained into containers. If not slanted, the rabbits risk the danger of getting sick, once exposed to their waste.

> Rabbits love cleanliness hence their water is changed every day and the hutch cleaned too," – Kabura

Some of the diseases they are easily prone to include; pneumonia, bloating which mostly occurs during weaning but can be countered by glycerine which is also crucial in mite eradication which affects their ears, mouth and feet. Unless controlled, rats can eat up rabbit babies at tender ages.

"Just like any other enterprise, rabbit farming has its challenges. They include high capital injection required to ensure high quality hutch, which normally goes for up to Sh50,000.

Exploitation by middlemen or other farmers is also devastating since they are usually intent on buying rabbits, or the meat at a very cheap price.

"The government should invest in rabbit skin industries since it is hard to get one," appeals Kabura.

The fact that there is no market for rabbit skin makes her dispose them off, which is a loss, considering that they could still fetch good money if they got a market.

Newly minted Teso KMTC campus gets green light to admit students

BY MELECHEZEDECK EJAKAIT
AND MARK ANYANG'

The Kenya Medical Training College (KMTC) Board of Directors has granted the newly established Teso Campus permission to start admissions next month.

The campus located at Kocholya in Teso North constituency received a clean bill of health to operate, following Monday's commissioning, by the KMTC Board of Directors Chairman Professor Philip Kaloki and Busia Governor Sospeter Ojaamong.

Kaloki said the new campus brings the total number of KMTC campuses to two in Busia County and 72 across the country.

"The KMTC board of directors is pleased with this project and we have agreed to accept it as one of our campuses. We are going to officially open it for first admissions in March this year." he stated.

He lauded Teso North legislator, Oku Kaunya, for offering to sponsor the first batch of 120 students through the National Government Constituency Development Fund (NG-CDF) to a tune of Sh.15 million.

He said the KMTC board will offer the Teso North community a special consideration during the March intake so that many students from the constituency can be admitted.

From right Busia Governor Sospeter Ojaamong, KMTC Board of Directors chairman, Professor Philip Kaloki and Teso North legislator Oku Kaunya address the press outside the newly commissioned KMTC Teso campus.

"The board is ready to consider 50% admission for the local community but for March intake, we will admit 100% of locals who will apply," he said.

Kaloki who said the new campus is in line with President Uhuru Kenyatta's agenda on Universal Health Coverage noted that it will additionally foster development in the area and improve the socio-economic status of the local community through employment, real estate and businesses.

Governor Ojaamong hailed the area MP for the multi-million NG-CDF project saying his administration is ready to work closely with all the seven Members of Parliament to foster development in the County.

He said the county will upgrade Kocholya Sub County hospital to Level Five so that it can offer a favourable training environment for students set to join the new campus.

"Kocholia Sub County Hospital currently has state- of -the -art equipment. We shall inject Sh.60 million for its upgrading to Level 5 status to enable students from the new campus to undertake their practicals and attachment," he said.

Kaunya revealed that the NG-CDF invested Sh.45million for the first phase of the project and is set to invest Sh.30million for the second phase this financial year.

He said the NG-CDF will fully sponsor the first 120 students to kick-start the campus.

"We are paying full fees for the students to the tune of Sh.15 million. Through our parliamentary departmental committees on Health and that of Finance, we have been allocated Sh.12 million to build a hostel.

He appealed to the local community to ensure their children apply for the various medical courses to be offered at the college.

"I believe empowering the community starts with empowering the youth and empowering the youth starts with giving them skills" he noted, adding that the college will tremendously transform the area socio-economically.

Sufficient water provision key to resolving perennial cross border conflicts –Wamalwa

BY ODHIAMBO OMONDI (PCO)

Provision of adequate water and development of infrastructure are key to addressing resource-based conflicts in border, arid and semi-arid lands.

Devolution and arid and Semi-Arid Lands Cabinet Secretary Eugene Wamalwa said peace dividends are evident in areas that suffered perennial cross-border conflicts through provision of water.

Speaking in Lodwar during the launch of the UNDP Africa Borderlands Centre, Wamalwa said the cross-border peace initiatives have realized dividends in form of projects in Marsabit, Turkana and West Pokot counties funded by the Government, EU and UNDP.

"The Government has undertaken tangible projects in Marsabit and Moyale for youth to accord a steady income to families and keep the young people from radicalism and other violent activities and environment-friendly benefits for women groups to protect the environment; Urum Water Reticulation project in Turkana benefiting 3,000 households; and Nasal Water Project in West Pokot benefiting 2,000 households", he said.

The CS said the construction of three strategic multipurpose dams, is ongoing in Marsabit (Aldere- Forore), Turkana (Namoni - Angi'kaala) and Kasei, West Pokot counties noting that they are expected to ease pressure on water facilities along the borders as part of the lasting solution to resource-based conflicts. The CS said the Governments of Kenya, Ethiopia and Uganda, in collaboration with IGAD, the UN and other Partners and key stakeholders developed bi-lateral frameworks to foster peaceful co-existence along the border areas. "In the spirit of cross-border collaboration, we are hopeful to develop similar initiatives to benefit cross-border communities between Kenya and Sudan, South Sudan and Tanzania", he said. Wamalwa commended UNDP for launching the Africa Borderlands Centre that is expected to provide research, policy analysis and programming that will be focusing on ways to unlock the potential of Africa's borderlands and transform the lives of communities in these areas.

Present during the launch included Josephat Nanok, Governor Turkana County, Micah Powon, Principal Secretary, State Department for ASALs , Dr. Workneh Gebeyehu,among others.

800 farmers bag Sh 284m grant from World Bank

At least 860 rural based farmer groups in Bungoma County have benefited from a Sh284 million World Bank grant to increase agricultural production in the area.
The grant by the World Bank, in partnership with the national and county governments through the National Agricultural and Rural Inclusive Growth Project (NARIGP) now has a total of 21,500 direct beneficiaries according to the county coordinator, Rebbecca Lusweti.
The funding for Bungoma targets the promotion of poultry, dairy, banana, and beans value addition chains in the selected wards.
The 20 benefiting wards were selected from the sub counties of Sirisia, Mt Elgon, Webuye East, Bumula and Kimilili based on high poverty levels, indigenous persons and potential to increase productivity.
To qualify for the grant, each ward formed a Community Driven Development Committee (CDDC) comprising 20 members that receives all group proposals, vets and escalates to the county project steering committee at the apex for approval before funds are released to the groups through the CDDCs
Each of the 20 ward CDDCs has received between Sh10million to 14 million for their groups given in four categories with amounts ranging between Sh 50,000, to Sh 500,000.
Ms Lusweti said through NARIGP, dairy and poultry farmers in the project areas have been trained on use of new cheap technologies to increase productivity and profitability.
Farmers have been trained on management of dairy cows and goat rearing, fodder production and management, disease control and management, and linkages to marketing cooperatives.

Traffic officers in Murang'a to train bodaboda riders on road safety

Traffic police officers in Murang'a have organised weekly trainings for bodaboda operators to help minimise road accidents.

Murang'a North Traffic Commandant Julius Marwa noted that increased accidents occasioned by the operators have prompted them to start training the riders on how to embrace road regulations.

Speaking to KNA in his office, Marwa observed that they will be training the riders once every week saying most accidents have been caused through careless riding.

In the trainings, the operators will also be educated on how to follow rules when involved in accidents to stop cases where bodaboda riders in the recent past have been burning cars of motorists who knock or collide with riders.

"In a week, here in Murang'a north we record about five accidents involving a bodaboda rider. Unfortunately, when a rider is involved in an accident, the majority of them tend to hide and this poses a challenge of getting the right statistics," explained Marwa.

Majority of riders, he added, lack basic training on road safety and regulations saying those who are being employed to do the business often fail to be keen while in line of duty.

"Those employed on commission are usually careless, their target is to raise the money needed by their employer and in case of an accident, they leave the motorcycle behind and disappear," added the commandant.

Marwa further observed that most motorcycles are not registered saying this also poses a challenge to track a bike which is involved in an accident.

"What we will mostly focus on in the training is about road safety and regulations, registration, insurance and ways of handling accident cases," he added.

A nurse at Murang'a Level 5 hospital who mans emergency section Ms Joyce Sharon observes that in a week they usually handle between three and five cases of bodaboda accidents.
