FOREWORD
By Alan Shearer
BLACKBURN & ENGLAND

Statistics are important to most players, but even more so to goalscorers like myself. It's good to keep a check on your scoring record, especially when you are enjoying a rich vein of form – and I couldn't be happier right now. Strikers are often judged, and also compared to players from the past, by their goals-per-game records and that is something we take a great deal of pride in. I'm sure goalkeepers feel the same way, albeit for different reasons. From a personal point of view, I'm more than happy with a goal return of something in the region of one every other game and that's a ratio I will be looking to maintain throughout my career . . . and perhaps even as I have done over the past couple of seasons, improve upon.

But it is not just goalscoring statistics which have become such an important part of football, and indeed football banter virtually everywhere you go. The ever-increasing popularity of fantasy football leagues has obviously played its part in that. Suddenly, every player in the Premiership is under scrutiny with our performances on the field being monitored to a remarkable degree. But even though players are under the microscope every week, I think I speak for the majority when I say that fantasy football is very popular among colleagues and opponents alike.

All the different fantasy leagues – not to mention the Fantasy Football League programme on TV – are a bit of fun, but the business of goalscoring is still very much a serious one. And you won't find a better place to keep up with all the facts and figures you need to know about than within the pages of this book. I will certainly be keeping it handy as a source of reference.

INTRODUCTION
David Smith
EDITOR SHOOT MAGAZINE

Just why is Ian Rush in a league of his own when it comes to scoring goals . . . who is top of the stoppers . . . who has the worst disciplinary record in the Premiership? All these questions – and a million others – are answered in this remarkable statistics book. The Premier Players Formbook is the most comprehensive guide to the players who make up the Premiership. Everything you need to know about all the players in the top flight is contained in this reference book which makes all its rivals look positively First Division. The Premiership is the place to be and the Premier Players Formbook is the place to find all the information, facts and stats about every current top flight player.

The 1995-96 season has a hard act to follow after last year's dramatic battle for the Premiership. Forget the sleaze, the scandal, the bribes and even Cantona's kick. Let us, instead, remember the great things which happened on the pitch to make the 1994-95 season one of the most exciting in the history of our national game . . .

* The titanic struggle for the Premiership prize between Manchester United and eventual champions Blackburn . . . and in particular the 32 Alan Shearer goals which ensured Rovers were celebrating a title triumph for the first time in 81 years.
* Matthew Le Tissier, many people's choice for Player of the Year, gave us even more reasons to smile – and the stats' buffs reason to dive into the record books to try and unearth a more prolific goalscoring midfielder than the South Coast genius.
* And what about the wonderful impact made by Liverpool striker Robbie Fowler in his first full season at the highest level. He topped the scoring charts at Anfield where he is already being hailed as the new Ian Rush.

So there you have just three players who illuminated the soccer stage last season and whose names deserve a special place in the record books, and in the hearts of Blackburn, Southampton and Liverpool fans. For the 1995-96 season there will be even more talent on display in the Premiership. Foreign stars like Dennis Bergkamp and Ruud Gullit have chosen to turn their backs on the Italian game and seek their fortune in this country. This recent trend says much about the high standard of football in England, as well as the ambitions of our top clubs. And with Blackburn, Manchester United, Nottingham Forest, Leeds, Liverpool and Everton all competing in Europe in the 1995-96 season, the resurgence of the English game will surely be recognised.

It's a safe bet that names like Le Tissier, Fowler and Shearer were very popular in the many thousands of 'dream' teams created so carefully by football fans everywhere as fantasy football fever swept the country last season.

Almost every national newspaper in the country – and one or two well known football magazines as well – found it impossible to ignore the clamour for this latest type of soccer, side-betting. And the craze is far from over yet. Which is why you need to know as much about the players you are selecting as possible if you want to climb your own fantasy league table. And where is all the necessary information, just a finger tip away? Here, of course, within the fact-packed pages of football's ultimate reference book.

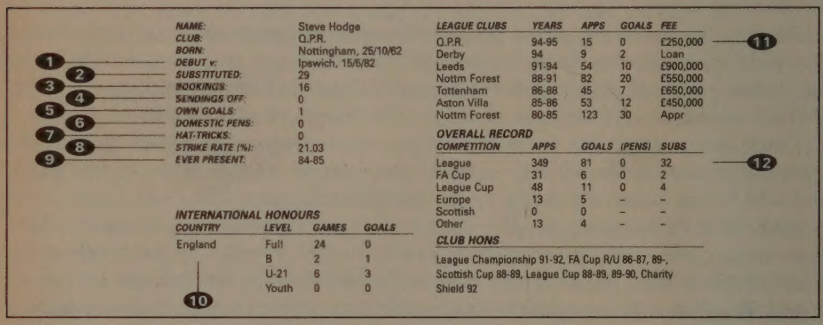

HOW TO USE THIS BOOK

The Premier Players Formbook contains all the facts on all the players in the English premier league – everything from sendings-offs to hat-tricks. But first, a few pointers to help you get the most from the book.

THE PROFILES

The profiles are broken up into five chapters, each dealing with a different position. Each chapter is in turn organised alphabetically by player – making it easy to find the record you want even when players are transferred. Players who play in a number of positions are listed by the position they most commonly play.

Every player in every Premiership squad, as at 23 June 1995, is profiled. Where players were transfered between 23 June and 7 July, their records have been updated.

PROFILE HEADINGS (SEE DIAGRAM) – ALL PLAYERS

Debut (1) – The player's first game in the English or Scottish League.

Substituted (2) – The number of League games from which a player has been withdrawn from play.

Bookings (3) – The number of times a player has been shown the yellow card, in domestic and international games, over the last five complete seasons.

Sendings-off (4) – The number of times a player has been shown the red card, in domestic and international games, over the last five complete seasons.

Own goals (5) – The number of times a player has been credited with scoring an own goal in League, FA Cup and League Cup matches.

Ever present (9) – The seasons for which a player appeared in every League game his club played in.

International Honours (10) – The country listed is the country for which the player is registered. Where a player has yet to play an international, this field is left blank.

League Record (11)
League clubs – this is the complete record of each player's League career. Appearances for non-British clubs and non-League clubs are not listed.

Years – these are the years the player was with the club, not the seasons.

Apps – the number of League appearances, including substitute appearances.

Goals – the number of League goals, including penalties.

Fee – transfer fees quoted are from reputable sources, but there is inevitably some disagreement over exact prices. Where fees are not disclosed by the clubs involved in the transfer, 'Undisclosed' appears in the fee column. An abbreviation is also used to indicate where a player has been signed as an apprentice ('Appr'). Where a player is signed on a free transfer or as a trainee, this is also indicated in the fee column.

Overall Record (12)
Competition (European) – figures are for the European Cup, the UEFA Cup and the European Cup Winners' Cup only.

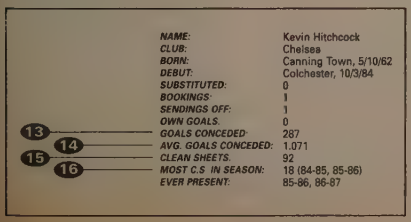

Competition (Scottish) – figures are for the Scottish League, Scottish FA Cup and the Scottish League Cup only.

Competition (Other) – figures are for the English League play-off games, Simod Cup, Full Members Cup, Zenith Data Systems Cup, FA Charity Shield, Sherpa Van Trophy, Anglo-Scottish Trophy, Super Screen Cup, World Club Championship, European Super Cup, Freight Rover/Autoglass Windscreen Trophy, Anglo-Italian Cup, Mercantile Credit and Makita tournament. Appearances made in non-Anglo/Scottish leagues are recorded where possible, as are appearances in the GM Vauxhall Conference.

Appearances – starting appearances, substitute appearances are listed separately.

PROFILE HEADINGS – GOALKEEPERS
Goals conceded (13) – The total number of goals conceded in League matches.

Avg. Goals conceded (14) – The total number of goals conceded in League matches, divided by the number of League appearances (including substitute appearances).

Clean sheets (15) – The number of League games in which a keeper has played and not conceded any goals.

Most c.s. in season (16) – The most clean sheets a keeper has kept in a single season, and the year it was achieved.

PROFILE HEADINGS – OUTFIELD PLAYERS (SEE DIAGRAM ON PAGE 8)

Dom pens (6) – penalty goals scored in League, FA Cup and League Cup matches.
Hat-tricks (7) – League, FA Cup and League Cup matches only.
Strike rate (8) – calculated by dividing the number of goals scored in the League, FA Cup and League Cup by the number of games played in these competitions. A minimum of 40 games must be played for this figure to be included.

GOALKEEPERS – THE COMPLETE LEAGUE RECORD

The full record of Premiership keepers against Premiership opposition. It shows the League record of each keeper for games played against teams in the 1995-96 English Premiership. Players who have never played against top flight opponents are not listed.

GOALKEEPERS – INTRODUCTION

It's obvious that the goals of Alan Shearer were crucial to Blackburn Rovers' Championship triumph. But what about the contribution of their England keeper Tim Flowers? A model of consistency all season, he saved his best almost until last when a faultless display against Newcastle in Rover's penultimate league game kept them in the driving seat. A string of saves earned Blackburn a priceless point in a game they could not afford to lose. Flowers' displays, for both club and country, underline the importance of the man who forms the last line of defence.

One minute, the hero; the next, the villain: there's very little in between for most keepers. You only have to talk to Arsenal's England international David Seaman for confirmation of that. The dying seconds of the 1995 European Cup Winners' Cup final contained every goalkeeper's worst nightmare. Mentally preparing himself for a penalty shoot-out, Seaman was caught out of position as Real Zaragoza's former Spurs star Nayim struck a speculative 50-yard shot goalwards. Seaman back-pedalled, but couldn't prevent the shot crossing the line and the cup was on its way to Spain instead of North London. Never could there have been a more disappointing or cruel way for a season to end.

Not even the dramatic climax to the Premiership campaign experienced by Manchester United keeper Peter Schmeichel could even come close to Seaman's disappointments. The great Dane had been a rock at the back for United all season where his performances were little short of remarkable. He only conceded one goal at home all season! The man with the longest throw-out in football is something of an eccentric and thinks nothing of leaving his goal unguarded to take up a dangerous position in the opposition penalty box in times of crisis. Just as he did in the agonising closing stages of United's final game of the season at West Ham – where the Reds found the Hammers giant Czech keeper Miklosko in fine form.

Another of the game's characters is Bruce Grobbelaar, who was in the news more for his off-the-field activities than his performances on the pitch last season. But whatever you think of the man, there's no arguing with his record. He has won more domestic honours than any other keeper in the game. And it was testimony to his character that in his first game back for Southampton following 'bung' allegations last season he kept a clean sheet. One of many during a remarkable career in England.

And, of course, Schmeichel and Grobbelaar, are not the only overseas keepers to have made an impact in a country which once boasted the best keepers in the world. The days of Banks, Clemence, Shilton and co are long gone, although the likes of Flowers, Seaman and Woods are still proudly flying the English flag in defiance of the foreign invasion. Newcastle, so long in contention for the Premiership title, owed much to the brilliance of their Czech international keeper Pavel Srnicek. Aston Villa too were heavily indebted to the skills of their Australian-born number one Mark Bosnich. Add those names to Ludek Miklosko, Hans Segers, Erik Thorstvedt and Dmitri Kharine and you can judge for yourself the extent of the foreign takeover. But there's still some promising, home grown talent about and, in Spurs' Ian Walker, Sheffield Wednesday's Kevin Pressman and Liverpool's David James, there is ample competition for England regulars Flowers and Seaman.

The styles of every keeper in the Premiership are different . . . as are their career stats.

INTRODUCTION – FULL-BACKS

Full-backs are so often the unsung heroes of any successful side, yet their role in the modern game has taken on a new importance in recent years. With so many teams operating a five-man backline, incorporating a sweeper, the onus on full-backs to get forward in support of the midfield and strikers is greater than ever.

And there can be little doubt that the Premiership contains some of the best attacking full-backs in Europe. One of the best in the business is Manchester United's Republic of Ireland international Denis Irwin who is perfectly at home in either half of the field and looks equally comfortable at right or left back. Irwin combines well with his forward players.

A young man not too far behind is Liverpool's Rob Jones who, but for a cruel bout of injuries, would have been an England regular since bursting onto the scene with a confident and assured debut against France in 1991. He is another player who loves to get forward, but who has the pace and timing in the tackle to recover his ground when a move breaks down. Jones has proved a great buy for Liverpool since he joined the club from Crewe - a great breeding ground for young talent - for just £300,000 in 1990. His transfer value now must be ten times the price Liverpool forked out, although it is unlikely he will be allowed to leave Anfield in the foreseeable future. When fit, Jones' position in a Liverpool defence which boasts £20m worth of talent in Babbs, Scales, Ruddock, and Byornebye, is unquestioned. But Liverpool's number 2 now finds his international spot under threat following the emergence of former Wimbledon defender Warren Barton who joined Newcastle in the summer for a Dons record £4m. The transfer fee of Barton alone is the clearest indication that full-backs are now rated as valuable as their central defensive counterparts. Yet another multi-million pound player to roll off the Wimbledon production line, Barton made his England debut in the ill-fated 'friendly' with Ireland in Dublin, a game brought to a sad halt by mindless idiots. But there are sure to be more caps in the offing for Barton, particularly as he is now playing for one of the so-called 'bigger clubs' in Newcastle.

But it is at left back that England, in particular, are blessed with such a brilliant array of talent. West Ham hard man Julian Dicks, having lost that lunatic edge somewhat, would be considered by some international managers an absolute must. His goalscoring record is exceptional and, though many have come from free-kicks and penalties he also gets his fair share from open-play. If things go well for the Hammers in 95-96 Dicks could be adding a full cap to the B caps he won under Graham Taylor. But for the 93-94 season the West Ham left-back was probably no higher than fourth in the pecking order for an international place, coming in behind Graeme Le Saux, Stuart Pearce and Tony Dorigo.

The man in the number 3 shirt in Terry Venables' current England squad is Blackburn's le Saux – one of only a few Channel Islanders to hit the big time in this country. Le Saux has improved greatly since he quit Chelsea to join Blackburn for a cut price fee in 1993. There's little doubting the wisdom of that move now. He was a key player in Kenny Dalglish's title-winning side, much to the dismay of Stuart Pearce and Leeds' flyer Dorigo who are both keen to add to their international caps.

INTRODUCTION – CENTRE-BACKS

If, at the start of the 94-95 season, you had asked any so-called soccer expert which centre-backs would be the most valuable in the Premiership, the name Colin Hendry is unlikely to have been amongst them. Liverpool's expensive trio of Ruddock, Scales and Babb, possibly; Arsenal's influential skipper Tony Adams, perhaps; Manchester United's man-mountain Gary Pallister, definitely. But, incredibly, the most expensive defenders in the game were forced to take a back seat because of the staggering performances of Championship winner Colin Hendry. The Blackburn defender provided the cornerstone of the Rovers defence . . . marshalling and dominating at the back; threatening and often scoring at key times in the opposite box.

Hendry was a man amongst men for Rovers. His performances in the centre of Rovers' defence also earned him more international recognition for Scotland where he is now considered his country's most important defender.

The same could arguably be said of Arsenal skipper Tony Adams who, together with Tim Flowers, David Platt and Alan Shearer, provides the backbone of the England side Terry Venables hopes will lead the country to European Championship glory in 1996. He has become the most successful skipper in Arsenal's history, leading them to two Championships, two domestic cups and one European Cup Winners' Cup triumph. He rarely misses a game and, when he does, his club suffers.

The red half of Manchester also owes much to its men at the back, most notably Gary Pallister, a £2.3m signing from Middlesbrough, who has formed a dominant defensive partnership with Steve Bruce in recent seasons. Of course, the flair of Cantona, the brilliance of Giggs and the goals of Hughes have been major factors in United's belated return to the top of English football. But the contribution of Pallister and Bruce should not be overlooked. Together with super stopper Peter Schmeichel they have made United one of the most difficult teams to score against.

It is considered important in the modern game for central defenders to be able to play rather than simply 'hoof'. And both Adams and Pallister have become more accomplished in this department. But it is not just skill that a central defender needs to be successful. The pace of the game has increased so much that athleticism has become more important than ever. And there is no stronger or quicker defender than Manchester City's £2.5m defender Keith Curle. His massive transfer tag weighed heavily on his shoulders when he went to Maine Road in 1991. But Curle has since become a model of consistency and City owe him a huge debt of gratitude for helping them retain their Premiership status . . . for another year at least.

No such worries these days for Liverpool, whose defence became something of a standing joke during the ill-fated Graeme Souness era when the club's reputation, once the biggest in Europe, sank faster than the Titanic. And now they can smile again thanks to the formation of the most expensive defence in the country. Ahead of David James in the Liverpool goal now stand three formidable figures in the shape of hard man Neil Ruddock. Mr Reliable John Scales and the elegant Phil Babb. The Red Army is already on the march after a lengthy spell in the trenches and, with those three men ready to tackle the strongest of opposition, Liverpool have their best chance for years of recapturing former Championship glories.

INTRODUCTION – MIDFIELDERS

Where do you start when trying to assess the glittering array of midfield talent currently on display in the Premiership? The list of quality midfielders is mind-blowing . . . Le Tissier, Redknapp, Platt, McAllister, Barmby; just a few of the names which spring instantly to mind. Arguably the cream of the crop is Jamie Redknapp who has developed into one of the most complete midfielders in the country since leaving Bournemouth after just 13 first team games. It took him a while to become established at Anfield but he has slotted perfectly into Roy Evans' new formation and his performances for the Reds took him to the verge of Venables' England squad in 1995. And at 22 the future looks bright for the son of West Ham manager Harry.

But Rednapp is not the only midfielder to make his mark on the south coast. While young Jamie was learning his trade from his Dad, Matt Le Tissier was already dazzling the crowd down at the Dell. The Guernsey-born maestro is one of the most naturally gifted players this country has seen in recent years and it remains a mystery why he is not an England regular. For a midfield player his goalscoring prowess is incredible and there are a few strikers around who would envy a record of something like 100 league goals in the last six seasons. He's a master craftsmen and few people on the South Coast would argue with the fact that Le Tissier kept the Saints in the Premiership virtually single-handed last season. He's been a one-club man since joining Southampton from Vale Recreation in 1986 and, even with top clubs waiting with cheque books open, he's likely to remain a Dell boy for some time.

Leeds United's equivalent of the super Saint is Gary McAllister, probably the most elegant midfielder in the country. His touch, vision and passing ability is second to none and, like Le Tissier, he's capable of chipping in with a few spectacular goals from long range. McAllister, now captain of Scotland and Leeds, arrived in England as a raw recruit from Motherwell in 1985 when he signed for Leicester and developed into an accomplished midfield playmaker. Clubs were queuing up for his signature when he made it clear he wanted to leave Leicester in the summer of 1990, but it was Leeds who won the race. And what a signing McAllister has proved to be, helping Leeds to the League Championship in 1992 just a year after rising from the ashes of the First Division.

But while Rednapp, Le Tissier and McAllister are now established Premiership stars with a wealth of experience behind them, there is an abundance of talent ready to knock them off their perch. Manchester United's Roy Keane has come on in leaps and bounds since he joined the club from Nottingham Forest, while City rival Gary Flitcroft is also making a name for himself in Manchester.

But the versatile Nicky Barmby is one to watch this season after stepping up from the successful England Under-21 side to stake his claim for a place in the full international XI. Barmby came to the fore last season as an attacking midfield player in Gerry Francis' rejuvenated Spurs side. And, with Jurgen Klinsmann a thing of the past, his goals are going to be all the more important for the North London club. But it will be a tough battle for him to establish himself in the England midfield where David Platt, Paul Gascoigne and Paul Ince are dominant figures and the likes of Matt le Tissier and Steve McManaman are often on bench-warming duty.

INTRODUCTION – FORWARDS

Alan Shearer confirmed himself as the king of strikers by blasting 34 Premiership goals and winning the prestigious SHOOT/Adidas Golden Shoe award for 1995. The measure of Shearer's dominance was that he ended a dramatic and triumphant season no fewer than nine goals clear of his nearest rival, Liverpool's Robbie Fowler. In doing so, Shearer underlined his position as the most complete centre-forward in the country, arguably the best since Jimmy Greaves - the ultimate of tributes.

Some people thought that Kenny Dalglish had lost the plot when he paid a then British record £3.3m to Southampton for Shearer in the summer of 1992. But a hundred goals in just three seasons provides conclusive evidence of the fact that Dalglish's bold move was one of the best transfers he'll ever conduct as a manager. There's little doubt that when Shearer eventually moves on – more than likely to Italy next season - he'll become the most expensive British player of all time, valued at something in the region of £12m.

And it's incredible to think that the England striker had to overcome a career threatening, Gazza-type injury to elevate himself to superstar status. His all-round ability has made him the most respected striker in the game and, when you weigh up the standard of the opposition, that is a truly exalted position. Robbie Fowler, Stan Collymore, Les Ferdinand and Andy Cole all tried but failed to stay in the slipstream of the Shearer express, but the Blackburn man left them all standing.

A shin splint problem, coupled with the pressure of his record-busting £7m transfer to Manchester United, made it difficult for Cole to maintain his early season scoring form. He did manage five in a game for United, in the 9-0 win over relegated Ipswich, but Cole still ended the season 13 goals behind Shearer. But now that the former Arsenal forward has settled at Old Trafford – and that he'll be given the chance to strike up an Entente Cordial with Eric Cantona – he's sure to be pushing Shearer all the way for the coveted Golden Shoe this season.

Liverpool youngster Fowler, too, will have his sights set on the prestigious award after alerting the Premiership of his prolific powers in only his first full season. Fowler has clearly learned a lot from his master marksman Ian Rush who has taken something of a back seat on the scoring front with the emergence of the sorcerer's apprentice. The Young Player of the Year, Liverpool born and bred, plundered 25 Premiership goals alone as the Reds celebrated a return to the good old days with a Wembley triumph over Bolton in the Coca Cola Cup.

And for the 95-96 campaign Fowler will be joined by former Nottingham Forest striker Stan Collymore. It's remarkable to think that just three years ago Crystal Palace packed Collymore off to Southend for a fee of just £300,000, and yet now he's an England international worth £8.5m.

In London it's been all change for the men 'up front'. QPR have packed Les Ferdinand off to Newcastle to join forces with Frenchman David Ginola, placing faith in the talented young pairing of Dichio and Gallen – a partnership that fared well for the club at junior levels. While in North London Arsenal have put their faith in Dennis Bergkamp after his nightmare spell in Milan, and Spurs have paid £4.5m to relegated Crystal Palace for Chris Armstrong.

With all this striking talent in the Premiership, clean-sheets will be rare in 95-96.

Premier players formbook

formbook is a comprehensive statistical guide to all the players in the top-flight. It provides an in-depth look at every player in each of the 20 Premiership clubs, giving details of goals scored, age, strike rate, substitutions and bookings.

The facts and figures in the Formbook let you compare all the Premiership's players by position. Assess whether David Batty will deliver more midfield goals than Matt Le Tissier, whether Andy Cole is a more disciplined striker than Chris Sutton, and whether Peter Schmeichel keeps more clean sheets than Ludek Miklosko.

Comprehensive career details, including club and international honours, make this book essential reference for all followers of the great game.

Organised into five chapters, each covering a different position – goalkeeper, centre-back, full-back, midfield and striker – it is easy to assess your favourite players and select the ultimate Premiership eleven.
