Introduction
We will move with speed tonight as we have a lot to cover. Please, flow along. God bless us. For some weeks now, we have been treating a series called "The School of Marriage," and God helping us, we should round up the series today. I believe we have been blessed so far by the series! If you have not been following the series, kindly get the past teachings and do well to go through them.So, last time, we stopped at Faculty 5, where we talked about parenting and family dynamics. We will be moving on to Faculty 6 now, which is spiritual and moral foundations.

Please, do well to follow as we proceed.

Bible Text: Matthew 7:24:

FACULTY 6
Spiritual and Moral Foundations (Matthew 7:24)

This is the most important of all the faculties, and I must confess that we are in a spiritual world, and any marriage which lacks a spiritual foundation is on its way to crumbling.

Matthew 7:24:
"Therefore whosoever heareth these sayings of mine, and doeth them, I will liken him unto a wise man, which built his house upon a rock:"

So, in this kind of world, building your marriage on the foundation of Christ is like a man who builds his house on the rock.One of the reasons many marriages are having problems is because they never involved God in the beginning. The foundation of the marriage is faulty, and they are now trying to involve God after they started experiencing issues in the marriage.One thing about God is, He doesn't like to poke His nose into what you do not involve Him in. He also wouldn't complete what He didn't start. So, if you didn't involve Him in the foundation of your marriage and you thought you could do it alone, He will also not get involved whenever issues arise in the marriage.

Apart from a spiritual foundation, a moral foundation too is essential. Any marriage which lacks this will raise up vagabonds as children who will tarnish the image and name of the family. And, remember that a good name is better than riches, says the Bible.Furthermore, whether you believe it or not, your marriage is spiritual. Spiritual in the sense that if it's not dedicated to God, it certainly is dedicated to the devil. So, if your marriage is not built on the foundation of Christ, it means it is built on the foundation of the devil, whether you did dedicate it intentionally or you didn't.Just the way if you are not for Christ, you are for the devil—that's how it is. You can't be in between without being for one. It's either you are for God or the devil. The same applies to your marriage. It is either your marriage is for Christ or the devil. It is either built on the solid rock of Christ or built on the sinking sand of the devil.

Are we getting it?

Departments in Faculty 6

A. Shared spiritual growth and faith: Both partners should aim at spiritual growth and share the same faith to avoid problems arising in marriage. In a case where the husband is a Muslim and the wife is a Christian (or vice-versa), such is a very wrong combination! In fact, the devil will be their in-law.

They do not share the same faith in any way. Some keep arguing that we serve the same God, but in the real and true sense, we do not. They don't serve Jesus Christ but Allah. We serve Jesus Christ and not Allah, so the difference is clear!

So, for a family where there is diversity in the faith, how would the children be mentored to follow the Lord? When the husband is teaching the children how to be a good Muslim and the wife is teaching them how to be a Christian, the children will be confused and forced to follow their own paths.

KJV
Joshua 24:15:
"And if it seem evil unto you to serve the LORD, choose you this day whom ye will serve; whether the gods which your fathers served that were on the other side of the flood, or the gods of the Amorites, in whose land ye dwell: but as for me and my house, we will serve the LORD."

When the couple share the same faith and aim at spiritual growth, they will be able to declare that their household will serve the Lord and ensure the children walk in the ways of God. Else, they won't have a say in the spiritual journey of the children. They won't be able to train them the God way because they themselves are not united as a couple and are not with one voice.

B. Building a purpose-driven marriage: Just the way God has a purpose for every individual (why He has created each person), so does He have a purpose for each marriage as long as He joined them together. God does not have a purpose for a marriage where the husband is a child of the devil and the wife is a disobedient child of God.Why did I say disobedient child of God? Because it is only a disobedient child of God that would get married to the child of a devil. And, since God is not involved in such union, He does not have a purpose for them to achieve. But, for every God-ordained marriage, God has a purpose for them. He has a reason. He has brought both the man and the woman together.

It could mean to bring up children who would wreck the kingdom of hell and populate heaven, it could be to serve as guidance to younger generations coming up in the area of godly marriage, etc. So, if you are married and you don't know the purpose of God for your marriage, ask Him. If you and your spouse are spiritual beings and you do the will of God, you will see yourselves knowing God's purpose for your marriage because it always aligns with the destiny of the two partners.
Apart from specific purposes for each marriage, there is a general purpose for every godly marriage.

Ecclesiastes 4:9-12:
"Two are better than one; because they have a good reward for their labor. For if they fall, the one will lift up his fellow: but woe to him that is alone when he falleth; for he hath not another to help him up. Again, if two lie together, then they have heat: but how can one be warm alone? And if one prevail against him, two shall withstand him; and a threefold cord is not quickly broken."

And, it is to help each other grow more in God and replicate God across the Earth through godly children. The reason the Bible talks about two heads being better than one is because they can always come together and chase after a particular purpose.They will help themselves achieve any purpose they set their minds to achieve. So, every couple should aim at building a purpose-driven marriage. It's not just about going forward in marriage but ensuring that they are fulfilling their purposes together in God.A marriage that is not purpose-driven will just keep counting different years of anniversary, yet not making an indelible impact on the Earth. And, I know you don't want your marriage to be like that.

I hope you are with me!

C. Moral leadership and Accountability: Any marriage built on Christ must be morally upright. Christ is never an excuse to be morally irresponsible; in fact, Christ would make you more responsible morally. You can never see a true child of God who lacks morals and ethics; it's not possible.Therefore, couples should ensure they uphold moral leadership in the marriage, as this is part of what the children will learn from. When you see some children misbehaving and acting ill-mannered, most times, it is simply because of what they see their parents exhibiting. A mother who wakes her husband with abuse or lacks respect for her husband will have her daughter doing the same to every guy, even when she is not yet married.Likewise, any father who beats his wife at any slightest provocation is indirectly training a woman beater as a son too. The son would begin to see beating his wife as trying to discipline her.Furthermore, accountability, they say, is key! Any marriage which lacks accountability is draining gradually. 1 Peter 5:3:"Neither as being lords over God's heritage, but being examples to the flock."Every spouse must be accountable to the other. You are not the owner of your own self; your spouse owns you. So, being accountable is really needed, and this helps cover a lot of gaps. When a couple is accountable in their marriage, it makes them instill a sense of accountability in their children also.

The fact that you are the head of the family does not mean you should take decisions anyhow without consulting your wife. It doesn't mean you can go anywhere anyhow without telling anybody. The moment you got married, you joined another being. It's just the way conjoined twins are. One cannot move without the approval of the other; they both work hand in hand. That's how marriage is.Desist from acting as a Lord who can do and undo as you please over the house. It will not help the family progress or move forward. It will also instill the habit of nonchalance in the children. This is part of moral leadership: leading with morality in the heart.

D. Handling temptations and staying faithful: This part cannot be over-emphasized. Faithfulness should be ensured at all cost in marriage. If you are the type of lady who collects a lot of things from male friends, the moment you get married, it should stop! Because your husband must not be kept in the dark about any guy trying to show or give you attention to avoid falling into temptation.

Sometimes, when I hear someone commit extra-marital affairs and the person is blaming the devil or saying he or she was lured, I only laugh because the Bible tells us to flee from all appearances of evil. So, if you keep playing around it, what else do you expect the devil to tempt you with? As a man, your wife must know all the female friends you have, and she must be your bestie/best friend, not anyone else. Also, as a woman, your husband must know all the male friends you have, and he must also be your bestie/best friend, not anyone else. The issues that keep arising in marriage are simply because both partners have best friends aside from their spouses, which is not supposed to be so.

Many use marriage as an escape route from lust, and they later find out that it is never an escape route. If you can't cure lust before entering into marriage, you will still definitely lust after another who is not your wife when you get married.If you are thinking men will stop running after you when you get married, it's a lie! This is why you have to let your husband know every single guy around you. Likewise, the husband is supposed to let his wife know all the ladies who are stylishly winking at him at his workplace.

KJV
1 Corinthians 10:13:
"There hath no temptation taken you but such as is common to man: but God is faithful, who will not suffer you to be tempted above that ye are able; but will with the temptation also make a way to escape, that ye may be able to bear it. God allows any temptation that comes your way to come your way because you are capable of overcoming it. If the temptation is way bigger than you, the Lord will not permit it. So, if as a man, you discover your female secretary is always giving you seductive signals and you do not tell your wife, one day, she will try overpowering your emotions.But when your wife is aware, she knows wise strategies to put in place in order to keep her off her man. She is a woman and understands how women do, so she would know how to apply wisdom being a Christian also.Likewise, if as a wife, a man who is not your husband is always showering you with gifts and you keep receiving them without informing your husband, you are writing a letter to serious danger. You know the man is interested in you, yet you keep accepting his gifts and hanging out with him. Your marriage is already on fire without you knowing.

To avoid issues in marriage, never accept to go out for lunch with the opposite sex who is neither your spouse nor an immediate family member whom your spouse knows. If you are to do that, ensure you inform your spouse first and give him or her every single detail of the outing to avoid issues.You may think this shouldn't be capable of destroying a home, but the truth is, it is capable of doing that! As little as it may be or look like, homes are being destroyed through this. Be wise as serpents and do not allow the devil into your home.

Are you still with me?

Let's move to the next faculty.

FACULTY 7
Personal development and growth (Philippians 2:4)

This faculty deals with watching out for the growth and interests of one another and ensuring you both grow in the marriage. Marriage should not be a time where personal development ends and all you both want to do is produce babies and turn parents only.Marriage is a time to pursue those goals and also grow. It's a time for personal development where you will even have someone to assist you grow more. Marriage is not an excuse to degrade in growth and personal development, it's never an excuse!This faculty talks about how both spouses are to give attention to their growth. The man only shouldn't be the one growing, but the woman too should also grow and develop herself personally. The saying that a woman will end all her life in the kitchen is erroneous and not the will of God. Women too have destinies to fulfill in as much as they are the caretakers of their homes.But, saying they are to only remain in the kitchen means limiting their capabilities and God-given strength and gifts. Women are also called into ministry, as we have diverse kinds of ministries. So, the woman should also pay attention to her growth.

Philippians 2:4:
"Look not every man on his own things, but every man also on the things of others."And, each partner must not be selfish to only look out for his or her interests. Since they have become one, they are expected to work hand in hand and help each other become better versions of themselves. Without much ado, let's delve into the departments in this great faculty.

Stay glued !

Departments in Faculty 7

A. Individual growth in marriage: As I stated while explaining this faculty, each partner must keep growing after the wedding. The fact that both of you were ensuring your individual growth before you got married should make you continue even after getting married.The husband should grow, the wife should grow. Marriage should stop neither of the couple from furthering their career or going in pursuit of more knowledge. Marriage should not be an end to growth, never! Grow, develop yourselves as couples.Men, it's wrong to keep trying to grow while leaving your wife behind; grow together! Because if you don't, you will reap the repercussions. Imagine marrying a lady who only went to the first stage of school and never attended college. And, after getting married, you, as a husband, decide to further your education and later become a professor, yet your wife has never gone to college.One day, you will overhear people mocking your family, saying the husband is learned while the wife isn't. Also, where your wife is supposed to stand publicly and speak, she won't be able to because of her educational standard, and people might tend to look down on her. But, if you grow together, even if she does not reach your level academically or professionally, she would be able to adequately communicate effectively and efficiently anywhere.

Sometimes, when I see a family where the husband is a professor and the wife is a doctor by honor, I tend to always salute the husband for growing together with his wife. Some men are actually too selfish to do that. They only want to grow and don’t mind whether their wives do too.So, individual growth is expedient in marriage. Not only growth in career-wise but also in all ramifications, and even financially. If, as a man, you find it hard to support your wife to grow financially because you think she wouldn't be submissive to you later, then you are being insecure and living in fear.As you grow financially, set up your wife too. Women have this multiplying ability to multiply whatsoever you give them. Invest in them and see them expand their horizons. Also, as you grow spiritually, ensure you reach her and help her grow too. All the studying of the Bible you do, how many times have you taught her what you learned? Avoid selfishness and grow together in grace!

B. Supporting each other's goals: Every man or woman has a goal before getting married, but it's a pity that many forfeit their goals because their spouses are not willing to assist them in achieving them. Never be that kind of spouse to your partner. Be the strongest supporter and fan of your spouse's goals.In fact, before you both get married, write out each other's goals and have it in mind to help each other achieve them. In the early stage of marriage, ensure you both plan on how to help each other achieve the goals, and full support should be rendered at both ends.Galatians 6:2:"Bear ye one another's burdens, and so fulfill the law of Christ."

Carry the burdens of your spouse on your neck and run with him or her. This helps deepen the love between you both because when you fully support the goals of someone, you become so dear to them.If the goal of both of you requires money for accomplishment, plan how you will gather your funds together to sort it out. Plan whose goal you are accomplishing first, and if you can run both at the same time, you should do so.Supporting each other does not only come through money; it comes through attention, quality time, giving quality advice, and encouraging words to one another. And, always reassure your partner that you are always for him or her. Let them be confident in you that you are always forever standing beside them. Support them in their presence and out there!

C. Self-care in a relationship: This department talks about caring for your spouse the way you care for yourself. You are to love him or her just as yourself. I think the reason many marriages keep having issues in this generation is because we still see our spouses as another person. The moment we start seeing our spouses as part of us, a lot would change.Mark 12:31 "And the second is like, namely this, Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself. There is none other commandment greater than these."This is actually a very powerful scripture if you study it well. What does it mean to love your neighbor as yourself? It simply means seeing your neighbor as your own self, and when you see your neighbor as yourself, a lot of things would change in your behavior towards that person.Same applies to when you care for your spouse as if you are caring for yourself. No one would want to care less for his own self. There is this special preference you give to your own body. You always want the best for yourself; best clothes, shoes, food, and materials. So, if you see your spouse as yourself, you will also want these things for him or her.Selfishness would end, envy and jealousy would end, and a lot that you have against others would end. Always pray that God should help you love your neighbor as yourself, and you will see many things change about you. You will also get less angry.

D. Balancing personal space and togetherness: Togetherness should also be ensured. A family that prays together stays together, and a family that stays together can easily pray together. When there is togetherness, each partner feels loved and at home.Togetherness helps strengthen the marriage. This is why couples should never go to bed angry with themselves because they are breaking the bond of togetherness and giving room to the devil to enter their home that way.Each partner should know the difference between having personal time and togetherness. There is time to have your personal time, either with God or just to clear your head, but you should always remember that you are married and togetherness is important. You should never make your spouse think he or she is alone and lonely at any point in time.This is why communication is one of the bedrocks of any relationship. The moment communication starts lagging, the relationship starts going down the drain, whether friendship or courtship.

Are you still following me as we move on to the final and last faculty in this great school?

FACULTY 8
Crisis Management (Isaiah 43:2)

This faculty is a faculty that should not be underestimated at all because it has sent a lot of marriages packing. It has also deprived many marriages of experiencing joy just because the couples never knew how to handle crisis.No one prays for crisis, but it's certain that marriage is not a bed full of roses. It is a journey, and in such a journey, many things are bound to happen (both good and bad), whether you desire it or not. That's the painful truth.You might wonder why I am saying that, and as a Christian, are we supposed to be passing through tribulations? Well, Yes! Because the Bible says we shall pass through trials and tribulations, but we should be of good cheer, for Jesus has overcome the world.

Also, in Isaiah 43:2:When thou passest through the waters, I will be with thee; and through the rivers, they shall not overflow thee: when thou walkest through the fire, thou shalt not be burned; neither shall the flame kindle upon thee."Note that this verse is not saying you won't pass through fire and water, but it says He will be with us even when we pass through these things. So, if it be that we suffer together with Him, then we will be glorified in Him.So, every couple must learn how to handle crisis if preadventure comes during the journey of marriage. Crisis does not only mean destruction like death or destruction of properties. It might be something that makes it hard for couples to make decisions. So, at that point, they need the help of the Holy Spirit and wisdom to actually make the right decisions.

Well, let's dive into the departments in this faculty.

Departments in Faculty 8

A. Handling unexpected life events: In marriage, there are times when the unexpected may tend to happen. There are different life events that can happen to a family, like job loss, collapse of buildings, finding oneself in unpleasant places (kidnapping/abduction), etc.However, in cases like that, couples should always remember the word of God, which says in

Romans 8:28:
"And we know that all things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are the called according to his purpose."
Whatever happens to a true child of God is because God permits it. And, if after praying concerning such, it persists, it might be showing that God has a hand in it and wants to use it for His glory.We should also be discerning to know those things that are from God and from the devil so that we can always rebuke the works of the devil in our family.When unexpected life events happen in a marriage, it is not the time for the couple to be down and sad but to arise in prayers and channel their prayers towards seeking a change. They should always hand over everything to God. It might look hard, but it is actually the best to do in such situations.

B. Navigating loss and grief together: The issue of losing loved ones might leave a deep mark on anyone. Therefore, both partners should be very sensitive if preadventure such happens to their spouse. It is that moment your spouse needs you the most to support, comfort, and encourage him or her. The moment is not the moment to nag at him or her.Some women go through miscarriages during the early stages of marriage, and it could be very painful losing a baby, sometimes after carrying the baby for some months. Therefore, the husband should be very careful during this period not to add to the pain of the woman. But, he should always comfort her and reassure her of his love for her just the way Elkanah was always comforting Hannah when she was barren.Matthew 5:4:"Blessed are they that mourn: for they shall be comforted."Always hold on to the word of God in such situations because words might not be enough to comfort in such moments, but the word of God can always be soothing in the hearts of men. It has a way of making men calm and addressing every situation. Utilize the power in the word of God.

And, finally;

C. Coping with major changes (Relocation, job loss, etc.): In marriage, there are times when the husband or wife might lose his or her job. One of them might be transferred to another state due to the nature of their job and other occurrences.However, in cases such as job losses, the other partner should ensure to stand by his or her spouse so that it won't affect the family. Men, this is why you should establish your wife financially even as you expand too. Never be too insecure to stop her from working so that she will be submissive. A true woman of God will be submissive to her husband.We don't pray for bad things to happen, though, but what if, as a husband, you lose your job and do not get another for months? If your wife is financially established, she will assist in getting provisions at home until you finally get a job and get back on your feet.

And, in issues regarding relocation, the will of God should be sought so as to know what the next step should be. This is why the Bible says that Proverbs 3:5-6:"Trust in the LORD with all thine heart; and lean not unto thine own understanding. In all thy ways acknowledge him, and he shall direct thy paths."

As couples, you should never lean on your own understanding, but always seek God for help. Seeking directions per time, per season is actually the best so that you don't go out of the will of God for your life and marriage.

As God Almighty would have it, we have finished looking at the faculties and departments in the school of marriage. Glory be to the most high God!
Therefore, knowing what the school of marriage is all about, I believe you will make use of everything learnt as you prepare to have godly and heaven on Earth marriage.

Also, for those who are married already, I hope you incorporate what you have learnt as the Holy Spirit helps you.

Therefore, we have come to the end of this series; The School of Marriage.

So, two important information as we end it;

- Firstly, if you have any question to ask concerning the teaching since we started the series, kindly ask now.
- If you know the series really blessed you, I want you to highlight a few things you learnt in the teaching.Looking forward to our responses, brethren.

Questions
Thank you sir. My questions are 1)is it possible for a lady not to visit her partner's house at all during courtship in order to avoid a story that touches heart till they marry? (Note: their relationship is long term like 3-above years). How can such avoid falling into fornication before marriage despite not visiting each other's house?

2) Some people usually say that so far a guy is satisfying you financially & emotionally it is polite to hug,kiss... going to his house to cook,wash clothes... so far he is not Demanding for sex in such relationship in orders to show that is not double dating in such relationship to the guy,please how true is that?

Answers

1. It's not ideal to go visit your fiance at home to avoid temptation. It is when they are together in a secluded area or place that the devil would want to take advantage of that. If they want to meet, they should meet in open places like church, canteen or restaurant, relaxation centre etc to avoid being together in a secluded space.
If you need to visit your fiancee or fiance at home, do not go there alone. Go there with a trusted friend or sibling just to ensure you and your partner are not alone where you can be tempted.

2. It's not true! It's the deception of the devil and what the people of the world do. We are not to join them. Under no circumstances should you turn yourself to a cook in your fiance's house or wash his clothes when you are not married to him.
Kissing shouldn't be heard or talk more engaged in. However, both can still hug themselves and as they do, they should be conscious of the fact that the hug shouldn't lead to any other thing. If they are the type that are still struggling with lust or cannot control themselves, it is advisable they stay without hugging to avoid being tempted by the devil.

I believe your questions are answered!

May God bless us and make our marriages blessed in Jesus Christ name, amen.🙏
