FACULTY 2:
Emotional and Psychological Health (Proverbs 17:22)

This faculty is a very crucial and highly delicate faculty in the school of marriage. When not handled or managed with care and wisdom, there is a problem in such a marriage. The emotional and psychological health of both partners really matters, and in sustaining a peaceful and understanding marriage, they really need to work these out between them. There is a saying that females are emotional beings, but the truth is no matter how wicked a human is, there is still a part of emotions in such a person except if the person is not a human.There are men that are more emotional than females. Yes, that's the truth! So, both genders are emotional beings, but it may actually be higher in one than the other. So, since both genders are emotional beings, the need for this faculty arises. God created every human with emotions so that we will be able to live upon the face of the earth and act humanely. The reason demons who are in human form lack pity and do not care about destroying people is because they lack emotions as they are not humans. They are only camouflaging as human beings. Let me tell you this, no matter how wicked and deadly a person is, if he or she gets to a very fatal or ghastly accident scene, such would be cut to the heart seeing people groaning in pain and in a pool of blood. And, the instinct to help them will always surface. That's to show that there is still a bit of emotion springing forth in such a person.

Humans are emotional beings; it only differs in level in different people, and it has been commonly discovered that it is high in most women than men. When dealing with this faculty, we should understand that women shouldn't be the only ones whose emotional and psychological health is cared for, but also men. I have heard some say men don't cry, but the truth is, some men actually do cry, and those who do not cry groan and feel down, but they hardly show it publicly. They will mostly lock themselves up and weep in their closets. That's to show that they have emotions, too. I remember many years back when my dad lost his only sister, being left with a brother. When he found out that she had passed away, his eyes became very red, and I knew he was controlling his tears from dropping. His voice was shaking, but he tried controlling himself. Seeing him in that state for the first time, I actually felt so bad because I usually believed back then that men do not cry. But now I understand better. So, this faculty concerns both men and women.

Are you with me?

Let's quickly look at the text for this faculty.

Proverbs 17:22:
"A merry heart doeth good like a medicine: but a broken spirit drieth the bones."

I hope we understand what this verse is saying! In order to make it more simplified, let's check another version of it.

NLT version
Prov 17:22:
"A cheerful heart is good medicine, but a broken spirit saps a person's strength."

When a person's emotional and Psychological health is intact, it is a good medicine! When you spouse is cheerful through your words and actions, it serves as a good medicine to their health. Have you ever tried to think about why those who have nagging wives die even before their time? Or those who have punching bags as husband, why they don't live long. It is simply because their emotional, psychological, mental and even physical health is tampered with. And, when this happens, they are prone to undergoing damage in the health of their bodies.This is because all these different health (psychological, emotional etc) come together to form the overall health of a person. This is why you can fall sick as a lady if the guy you so much loved leaves you. He has tampered with your emotional health and it is now affecting your mental health and the overall state of your body. A broken spirit taps a person's strength and that's very true. When your Spirit is down whether spiritually, emotionally or psychologically, it begins to sap your physical strength. Remember we are Spirits who have souls and live in bodies, right? Whatever happens to the Spirit is translated to the soul and the body picks signals from the soul to react to the situation. This is why it's really essential to critically teach about this faculty in marriage, to avoid a partner draining the strength of the other indirectly or directly.

Now, let's move to the departments in this faculty.

Departments in Faculty 2

A. Emotional intelligence in Relationships: This department is a department that deals with understanding emotional intelligence of both partners. This is highly important as it will help each partner know the way to speak, react, and communicate with the other. We are wired differently and what you might accept, your partner might not accept. Study your partner so well to know what is capable of bringing down his or her emotional health and what is capable of boosting it.
And, for no reason should you play with the emotions of your partner. You might be leaving a lasting damaging impact on them without knowing. Know the length to which you can toy with their feelings.

For example: Some do not really like some kind of surprises and that's the truth. They may love the surprises to some extent, but there is a level to which they can stand it and also the kind of surprise. If your wife does not like house maids (especially females maids) maybe because they are trying to avoid anything rivalry in the future and you now decide to surprise her with a house maid because you want to relief her of her chores. And, after getting one, you still got a female maid, such surprise would be dangerous to her emotional health and she might end up not really appreciating it enough as you thought she would. In fact, you will be surprised if she later tells you to return her after some weeks. So, you must understand the emotional intelligence of your spouse. As a husband, if you decide to shout at your wife because you got angry at what she did, you might be killing her self esteem, confidence and pride and you might be causing her to fear you which isn't supposed to be! As a wife, if you decide to abuse your husband of his lack of financial buoyancy and you think it will make him hustle the more and work harder, you might be destroying his ego as a man and cause him to be aggressive whenever he doesn't have much in his account. And, trust me, he will vent his anger at home. So, both partners must understand, intelligently, the emotions of those they are in a marital relationship with. The book of Galatians shows us how we can go about this.

Gal 5:22-23:
"But the fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, longsuffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, Meekness, temperance: against such there is no law."

The easiest way to understand and act intelligently towards the emotions of your spouse is to love them, be joyful and cause them to be joyful too, give them peace of mind, be ready to suffer long with them when there is a pressing issue.
Be gentle and good to them, believe in them and always let them know that, be humble and meek and lastly, have self control! Control yourself not to act harshly towards them no matter how pissed off you are.

Are you following?

B. Handling Stress and Anxiety Together: In marriage, the way stress and anxiety are handled really matters. Stress cannot be avoided because as long as both partners are trying to ensure the home does not suffer, they will put in their very best, and it can incur stress. However, both partners should understand and know when their spouse is stressed and how to help out. This is why there should be some work/chores that should not be fixed for only one partner in marriage. For example, picking up the children from school should not only be the work of the mother. The father can also pick the children up from school; after all, they are also his children.

For a couple who has yet to have children or whose children are still little and cannot wash the plates, there is nothing stopping the husband from assisting the wife in the kitchen rather than watching television when she is busy. The husband should understand when the wife is really stressed, and the wife should understand when the husband is really stressed, too. Husbands should learn basic home chores, too. Babysitting, washing the babies, taking care of the babies, washing dishes, and even cooking. This will help the man assist the wife whenever she is very stressed. There are times you don't need to disturb your wife or even let her cook while you enter the kitchen to cook for her. It is part of love and sacrifices.

Imagine your wife taking care of the babies, washing clothes, cooking breakfast, and also cleaning the home, and after she is done, she sleeps only for you to start waking her up in the next one or two hours to go cook lunch. It shows such a husband is not considerate because he should know that she ought to rest after stressing herself so much. Likewise, the wife should understand when the husband is really stressed. Your husband comes back from work really tired and stressed out, and instead of telling him to freshen up and asking him what he would like to eat, you just sit him down and begin to say a lot of stories in his ear about what happened when he wasn't around. And, you start complaining later that he dozed off and didn't listen to you. Why on Earth would someone like that, in that tired state, listen to you? So, both partners must know how to help handle stress. Also, do not allow anxiety to creep in. Whenever your partner feels anxious at any point in time, use the word of God to calm him or her down.

Phil 4:6-7:
"Be anxious for nothing; but in everything by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known unto God. And the peace of God, which passeth all understanding, shall keep your hearts and minds through Christ Jesus."

The Bible tells us not to be anxious for anything! This is why the foundation of your marriage must be on Christ so that when anxiety arises, you can fall back easily on God while you and your partner go to God in prayer for clarity and to sort everything out.

I hope you are following!

C. Building Emotional Security: Emotional security is a very important factor in marriage. Make it highly possible for your partner to trust you emotionally. Make your partner feel safe with you emotionally. What this means is that you shouldn't be a threat to the emotions of your partner. Perfect love casts out fear!

1 John 4:18:

"There is no fear in love; but perfect love casteth out fear: because fear hath torment. He that feareth is not made perfect in love."

A person you claim to really love shouldn't be scared whenever he or she is with you. The person should always be happy and want to be around you because of the joy and happiness he or she gets from within. Never use the past or shortcomings of your spouse to bring him or her down emotionally. Let them feel secure emotionally with you. No matter what they have done or the wrong they have done to you, do not talk them down in order to destroy their emotions as payback. That's bad and wrong! Settle disputes amicably and do not allow the devil to use you against his or her emotions.

Let your spouse believe that even if everybody brings him or her down emotionally, you wouldn't. Constant reminders of your spouse's bad past can make them live in fear, always wanting to isolate themselves and feeling terrible. Some might even go to the extent of attempting suicide because the person they trusted and believed in is reminding them of their past.Help your spouse forget those bad pasts and bring out the best in him or her. Remind them constantly of the great people they are and how happy you are to have them as a partner. This will constantly and regularly secure their emotions whenever they are around you, and they will feel safe being with you.

Are we still there?

D. Overcoming Personal Traumas as a Couple: There are times that the couple might experience traumatic events even as a family; however, overcoming this really matters. In a case where a couple lost a child or where the wife experiences a miscarriage, such could actually damage the love and peace in the family if such a situation is not handled appropriately! Nobody prays for such occurrences to happen, but what if such occurs? Both of them are to stay strong and encourage themselves in the Lord by holding onto the promises of God for their home. However, in situations of miscarriage, in most cases, the wife gets more sad and disheartened, and the husband is meant to help her and stand by her at such unpleasant moments. The man really needs to stay strong as the head of the home and encourage his wife because women might really be so down when issues like that arise. Hannah's husband was always consoling her, and he stood firmly by her.

1 Samuel 1:7-8:
"And as he did so year by year, when she went up to the house of the LORD, so she provoked her; therefore she wept, and did not eat. Then said Elkanah her husband to her, Hannah, why weepest thou? and why eatest thou not? and why is thy heart grieved? am not I better to thee than ten sons?"

The husband is not supposed to add more fuel to the fire burning in the heart of the woman at that point in time but to quench the existing one. Also, in a case where the husband loses his job and feels less of a man, the wife shouldn't frustrate him but keep encouraging him, telling him she believes in him and the God he serves. Making the home hot for him at that moment will keep weakening him. A good wife wouldn't do such. Personal traumas should be dealt with wisely in the family. Using the word of God to encourage each other in periods such as these really matters and goes a long way. Isaiah 41:10: "Fear thou not; for I am with thee: be not dismayed; for I am thy God: I will strengthen thee; yea, I will help thee; yea, I will uphold thee with the right hand of my righteousness."

Knowing what God says in His word concerning the couple will help them keep their hopes and faith in God high. This is everything that the second faculty comprises of.

FACULTY 3
Financial Management (Proverbs 21:5)
(Sighs)

This faculty is highly crucial, delicate, and sensitive because everything material in this world can be gotten through money, and the love of money is the root of all evil. Money has separated siblings from one another, husbands and wives; it has turned the back of many against themselves, and it has caused a lot of havoc to people. Many have even turned themselves into slaves of money. It is therefore expedient that if any couple does not take this faculty seriously, there will definitely be a problem in their marriage. The scary part is that, if you check the root or source of any evil, you will find money there. You may think you cannot steal, or you are not capable of stealing, until you are put in a position where you are controlling money and can easily change figures to steal money for yourself.

That is when you will truly know yourself, whether you love money more than God, or you love God more than money. Have you noticed that in a family, whenever money is involved, you begin to see the evil many are capable of doing against their supposed loved ones? Mr. Money has no mercy for anyone who lacks self-control and strict obedience to the word of God. This is why I will be taking my time to explain this faculty and its departments to us so that we understand it well.

Please, follow closely!

Let's see what the text of this faculty has for us.

KJV
Proverbs 21:5:
"The thoughts of the diligent tend only to plenteousness; but of every one that is hasty only to want."

In order to make it more simplified, let's use the NLT version.

NLT
Proverbs 21:5:
"Good planning and hard work lead to prosperity, but hasty shortcuts lead to poverty."

For every family, there is the need for good planning when it comes to finances. In fact, any family that lacks good planning and financial management will suffer greatly! I've seen many families not doing really well just because the husband thinks he can manage his income alone, while the wife also thinks likewise. However, marriage and financial management are actually more than that. Some wives see their salary as "my money," but when their husbands receive their own, the wives see it as "our money"—and also vice versa in the case of some husbands. Funny, isn't it? In every family, there is always someone who would know how to manage funds and resources better between the two partners. Either the wife knows how to manage resources more than the husband, or vice versa. But, women, hear this! Ensure you are not a wasteful spender. Well, we will talk more on this in a moment.

Let's move to the various departments we have in this faculty.

I hope you are still with me!

Departments in Faculty 3

A. Budgeting for couples: As I said earlier, financial management is really key for couples, and budgeting is one part of it. As a couple, always ensure you create a budget for whatever you plan to do. Write down the cost and follow it. Don't just be a family that does not budget for things. You discover that washing manually is stressful, and you plan on getting a washing machine. You also discover that you need something else in the home, create a list of things you need in order of priority! Don't just go ahead and get things without proper budgeting. Budgeting is simply a plan for the coordination of resources and expenditures.

A family that does not budget their finances will not know how to appropriately spend or what to spend on. Dear men, let me give you some advice. Women are home builders, and they know what is needed in the home far better than you do. Always ensure you include your wife so you can both plan the budget for the month or year. I have discovered a bad habit in some husbands, which is that they just go to the market to buy things randomly and bring them home without first consulting their wives. Apart from trying to surprise your wife, there should be no reason to keep buying stuff for the home without you and your wife planning it.

You may think that what you're buying is actually needed in the home, but it's not! You should inform your wife about what you are planning to purchase so that you both know if it's needed at that moment or should be for later. Not everything that is good is meant to be bought. There are times when, as a man, you want to buy something, and although it is good, it might not be the right time to get it as there are other more important things to purchase at that moment. Although there are little things you might not necessarily need to consult your wife about before buying, in most cases, there are many things you should never purchase without consulting her. The reason I'm focusing on the men is because I see this happen often with us. Of course, it happens with women too, though. As a woman, you shouldn't just get yourself everything you like whenever you like; it doesn't sound good. Also, you are to assist your husband with your finances, rather than ALWAYS buying clothes, shoes, and bags for yourself. So, in terms of budgeting, you both should ensure you sit down, count the cost, and go with the best plan. Two heads are better than one.

Luke 14:28:
"For which of you, intending to build a tower, sitteth not down first, and counteth the cost, whether he have sufficient to finish it?"

Proper budgeting helps to make the right decisions and avoid wasteful spending.

Are you following?

B. Investing and Building Wealth Together: This is really important! If there is a greatest supporter who supports your business the most in the world, it should be your spouse. Both partners should ensure they help each other to build together. And this can only happen when there is no jealousy and envy from both parties. Dear men, do not have the ideology that supporting your wife would make her start earning more than you do. What if she does? Is it not your pride? Who owns her? You do! So, if you own her, who owns everything she has? You do also! Always strive to see that you help her and you both grow together. It is to the betterment of the marriage and home because you never can tell. There are situations where the husband lost his job, and the wife takes care of the home using her finances before the husband gets a job again. So, never envy your wife or get jealous of her success. If she is making it, you are the one making it because you are one. Wives, too, support your husband in his business, pray for him that God enlarges his coast, and grow together. Do not allow pride to enter you if you are earning more than your husband. One of the things that men hate is women dominating them or seeing them as inferior beings. So, be humble and submissive and bring out the best in your marriage. In the process of investing and building wealth together, be careful not to engage in dishonest things. Do not allow mammon to get a hold of you. Do not allow money to control you, but be the one to control money.

Proverbs 13:11:
"Wealth gotten by vanity shall be diminished: but he that gathereth by labor shall increase."

Do this together as a couple and see your marriage soar high financially.

Are we there?

C. Debt Management in Marriage:
Proverbs 22:7:
"The rich ruleth over the poor, and the borrower is servant to the lender."

The issue of debt is something couples must be very conscious and careful about. Couples should be careful enough to cut their coat according to the cloth or material on ground. What do I mean? Couples should be very careful not to live an extravagant lifestyle that can land them in debt. Because of a celebration coming up, you now decide to borrow some money to buy different attires, clothes, and shoes just to celebrate such an event. It's wrong! Whatsoever amount you have on ground is what you should plan with. We should be very careful of dipping our heads into debt just because the little at hand is not enough.

It is very easy to borrow money, but hard to pay back. When you want to borrow, the devil will keep telling you it's easy to pay back. But when you want to pay back, you now see how uneasy it is. And, what the devil always wants for us is that we die with loans or debt on our necks because he knows no one will make heaven if he owes anybody till death. It is advisable not to dip your neck into loans as couples. It may look or sound hard, but if it can be avoided, please avoid it. Work hard to avoid such. But never go borrow just because you want to please someone. It's wrong! Also, I've seen men who borrow from their wives.

It really sounds awkward! If you are transparent to your wife about your finances, you won't need to tell her to lend you, she will give you. Okay, let's assume it's from her business and you want to use it to trade your business, and you plan to return it later, please ensure you return it as soon as you get it. Some men trick their wives and tell them they will pay back but never do, and they keep claiming that it is their wife and they may decide not to pay back. I pity such husbands because as long as you "borrowed" it from her, if you don't pay till death, you might not make heaven because you will be regarded as a thief who didn't pay back what he owed. Also, borrowing money from your wife and not paying back will make her gradually lose trust in you.

You may wonder if such a little thing can cause a lack of trust. Of course, it can! And she might not release anything or claim she doesn't have whenever you may seem to need it. Same also applies to the wives. And I think instead of borrowing from your spouse, why don't you tell him or her to give you? Why borrow? Because as long as you borrowed it, you must pay it back! Be careful that you don't put your family on the line due to the way you borrow. Remember that the borrower is a slave to the lender. Don't sell your family out because of borrowing here and there. Also, if you are the type that loves buying things on credit and not paying later, fight that attitude as hard as you can. It is a bad attitude. Depend on God and the works of your hand and never see buying on credit as an option.

What buying on credit does to your family is this:

- It makes people see you as poor people.
- It does not make you have a say whenever you want to go to other places to buy things when you eventually have money. The place you collected goods on credit will term you a bad person.
- It won't make you able to walk freely in the neighborhood.
- It makes people belittle the God you serve.
- It makes people look down on your family.
- It makes you lose your self-respect!

So, fight it as much as you can. Don't see buying on credit as an option. Manage the resources you have and pray to God to bless you.

I hope you learned something!

D. Financial Transparency and Joint Decision-Making: This part is the most important part in this faculty of financial management. It is why many couples have problems in their marriage, and I will do well to unveil some hidden secrets. Since money causes problems in marriage many times, there is a need for financial transparency between the couple to help them trust themselves more and have fewer issues in marriage.Transparency involves making your partner aware of the amount you are earning if you are a salary earner. It involves making your spouse know the amount someone gifted you and how you spend your resources. Never be scared or insecure with your partner when it comes to your finances. Be open! Some men find it hard to involve their wives in their finances. In fact, as a husband, if your wife does not know how much you earn and you are hiding it from her, you are still a baby husband who is not really mature in the school of marriage. As a wife, if you are hiding the amount you are earning from your husband deliberately, you are not also mature. Your spouse should know the amount you earn if you are a salary earner so that you can both plan the home together. If, during the early stage of marriage, there are issues or secrecy, that's one of the things that can cause hiding your finances from your spouse. Some spouses are really guilty of hiding things from their partners, even up to the password to their phones.

What are you hiding, sir/ma? It means there is a cockroach in your cupboard that you are certainly not proud of showing your spouse, and it shouldn't be! We are still coming to the aspect of decision making, but let's deal with transparency first. If you know yourself to be a wasteful spender or someone who cannot really plan things, always allow your partner who can do better in that aspect handle it. It will save you a lot! One thing I've discovered is that women love it when their husbands are very open to them and when their husbands reckon with them. Dear men, let me teach you a secret: most women are prudent when it comes to spending and taking care of the home. Some women are not like that, though.

But, if you notice you have a woman who is prudent and wise when it comes to resources, let her plan your finances for you. You can take part of it, but let the rest be for her to plan with.If you become so open to your wife about your salary or income and you allow her to plan it for you, she will do it to please you. And, the funny thing is that, she will add her money if yours is not complete to get some things at home.That is women for you. Once you are open to them, they will want to please you rather than fighting to make them please you.

Also, in decision making, it should be in unity. Do not make decisions without informing your wife before taking them, except on very rare occasions. Some would want to sell off properties in the house and wouldn't even bother asking their spouses, and such is really bad!

If you are a government worker and you receive your gratuity upon retirement, it is wrong to sit on it saying it is your money. You are to sit with your spouse and see how to better make use of the money. That is wisdom! The husband should understand that every money he has is his wife's, and the wife should understand that every money she has is her husband's. If they both have this mentality, there would be fewer quarrels over money in the marriage. Many people can't do a joint account with their spouses because they believe their spouses do not own their money and because of lack of trust.Both partners should trust themselves with everything they have. Marriage is beyond finances and material things. May God help every damaging marriage out there in Jesus Christ's name, amen.

Invitation

If you know that you are still living in sin and you are ready to repent and begin to live your life in strict obedience to God so that you can overcome every sin in your life to make heaven, please place your right hand on your chest and say this prayer with your mouth.

Say,

"Lord Jesus, I accept You as my personal Lord and Savior. I believe that You died for me and took away my sins so that I will not face the penalty of them. I surrender my life to You today, and I make a decision to obey and follow You. Come into my life now and accept me as Your child. Thank You for saving me, in Jesus Christ's name I pray, Amen."

Congratulations, now you are saved. If you prayed this short prayer, please WhatsApp +2347067511039 and let me know that you have just been saved. I want to have a word with you. God bless you!
