Father figures

A charity in the North East brings young dads together to gain skills and confidence and help them embrace their role as parents

For Josh Wiborg, becoming a father at 18 was an often lonely experience.

He felt isolated, despite his love for partner Katie and their baby twins, Autumn and Winter (below).

“The lads I grew up with weren’t parents and, with nothing in common, we drifted apart,” says Josh, now 21. “I felt isolated. Then I met the guys from North East Young Dads and Lads. I joined their Thursday meetings and my confidence as a dad grew by talking with other lads in my situation.”

Through Neydl, he learned this communication was key to understanding what fatherhood was about.

In autumn this year, Josh gave up his factory job to work in a National Lottery-funded role for Neydl. The acronym is pronounced “needle”, which is appropriate, as the charity is moving the needle on how young fathers from deprived areas are perceived, and helping communities to understand the importance of fatherhood.

“In 2015, I was asked to support a young mothers charity in Gateshead by working with the dads,” says founder and CEO Kevin Stoodley, who has a background in youth work. “I realised this was a forgotten cohort of young men who wanted to be involved in their children’s lives, but were hitting hurdles. Relationship breakdowns, poverty, isolation, stigma fuelled by lack of positive role models – and there was a narrative in professional services that young dads were difficult and disengaged. So I saw a need to connect with these young men, fostering a sense of belonging.

“First, I introduced myself by congratulating them on becoming fathers. They were speechless, because I was the first person to frame fatherhood in that positive way. My job was to walk with them on their fatherhood journey, teaching parenting skills, building confidence, safeguarding mental health and helping them engage with social services in a positive way.”

Nearly a decade on, Neydl has a permanent office in Gateshead’s Baltic Centre, with 13 staff members. Since 2015, it has worked with over 750 young dads, mostly referred by health and social services, homelessness and youth projects, and other charities.

National Lottery funding has been key to Neydl’s success. “It has been an amazing partner, helping us through lockdown with crisis funding to buy mobile phones for members to stay in touch,” Kevin says. Since its launch in 1994, National Lottery players have raised over £50 billion for good causes in the UK, including Neydl.

National Lottery funding was also instrumental in setting up DigiDAD, a free, multi-award-winning online platform providing training in parenting and relationships.

DigiDAD has been crucial in maintaining and building communication, and is now being used to equip young dads with a wide variety of skills, such as social marketing, cookery and finance management.

Earlier this month, Neydl hosted an awards ceremony for young dads. “There was a lot of hugging,” Kevin says. “There’s been a lot of noise around toxic masculinity. We counter that by teaching young men to share their vulnerabilities.”

Josh won an award for outstanding community leadership – and, when it comes to being a great dad, he also leads by example.

“I can talk about my girls all day long,” he says. “And I can’t talk about Neydl enough – thanks to it, I can be the best dad and give Autumn and Winter the best life.”

North East Young Dads and Lads is just one example of thousands of brilliant National Lottery-supported projects that do life-changing work in their communities. To see more stories like this, tune in to The National Lottery’s Big Bash, a star-studded show at the OVO Arena Wembley, with top acts such as Olly Alexander, Craig David and Ella Henderson.

Join the party and watch The National Lottery’s Big Bash on ITV1 and ITVX, New Year’s Eve at 5.45pm

“CLASSIC”?

“A classic timepiece, designed for a lady.” This is how some may describe our Oyster Perpetual Lady-Datejust. Maybe they’re right. Since the early 20th Century, Rolex has designed and crafted watches suited for all women’s wrists, with the same standard of excellence as for all the models that have built its legend. Always pursuing a higher standard. So, if “classic” means perpetuating tradition while combining elegance and precision, grace and resistance, beauty and performance, it is indeed a classic timepiece, designed for a lady. The Lady-Datejust.
