Introduction

When Bishop Samuel Ajayi Crowther started to translate the Holy Bible into Yoruba Language about 150 years ago, he found that it was an uphill task; Yoruba is a special language that needs a special attention.

Bishop Crowther found many problems which led him to create some special alphabets. He ended up creating the Yoruba orthography, the template on which Yoruba has been written for many years.

Bishop Crowther's methods solved our problem 150 years ago but these methods are now outdated and are in need of an upgrade.

Transcript is the upgrade, the modern orthography, a more fashionable template that solved the same problems in a digital way.

Bishop Crowther mainly used accents to solve the problem. Transcript translates these accents into real alphabets by using today's technology to solve yesterday's problem. Transcript is easy to write, reader friendly and makes Yoruba look beautiful.

Bishop Crowther's Orthography (CrowtherScript)

The first problem that Bishop Crowther dealt with, as with other languages, was that there were some special sounds in Yoruba that were not found in the Latin Alphabet, so he had to create new alphabets for these sounds. He also discarded a few Latin alphabets that were unfound in Yoruba tones. In specifics, Bishop Crowther Yorubalised the Alphabetic ensemble. He created a new order - the Yoruba Alphabetic ensemble.

- A B D E Ẹ F G Gb H I J K L
- M N O Ọ P R S Sh T U W Y

Special Alphabets

To deal with the perculiar sounds not found in Latin alphabet, Bishop Crowther created four special alphabets:

- gb (as used in agba)
- sh or (as used in shango)
- ẹ (as used in e ẹja)
- ọ (as used in ọmọ)

The problem with ẹ & ọ) is that they are abnormal alphabets. First, they are not on the computer keyboard and secondly, they look chaotic and archaic in our books. Transcript methodically translates the dots below them into real alphabets to make them normal alphabets while still retaining their special character.

Special characters

The other challenge in Yoruba Language was that there were many similar words that needs to be differentiated from one another.

- ère - play
- erẹ̄ - beans
- erè – statue
- ere – profit

Since words are differentiated with tones in Yoruba, Bishop Crowther created tonal accents (è, é) to differentiate our vast array of similar words. That solved the problem but created a chaotic and unfriendly outlook for Yoruba Literature. These accents are also not on the keyboard.

Transcript removed these tonal accents from Yoruba by translating them into real alphabets? Transcript is about changing non alphabetic characters into real alphabets.

Code 1: The Feminine code.
In the way we understand alphabets, vowels are considered as feminine while consonants are considered as masculine. The abnormal dots below Crowther's vowels Ẹ & Ọ. tells us that although they are vowels, they are vowels of a masculine nature, that is, they are masculine vowels (mv), that needs to be feminized (reconverted into their feminine nature)

Transcript removed the dots below these mvs for one main reason – to put an end to the chaotic and archaic nature they created in our books. However, removing these dots will confuse them (Ẹ & Ọ) with normal vowels (E & O). In order to walk away from this dilemma, we use a method called feminishation or the feminine code.

Feminishation is the method of doubling the alphabet after any masculine vowel to show their special character. This is called the double consonant law.

ẹja (fish) is an example.

- The ẹ is an masculine vowel
- In Transcript we remove the dot below the ẹ
- So it becomes a normal e
- To show that this particular e is an masculine vowel, we will double the consonant after it, that is 'j', so it becomes ejja

Other examples are:

- ebbiti, trap.
- ebborra, evil spirit (the e and o in this word all both mvs so the consonants after them were repeated)
- effa, s*ix*.
- effon, mosquito. (the o in this word is an mv but treated in a different way which we will learn under Terminal codes)
- ennun, mouth
- eppa, ground Nut
- erran, meat, Flesh.

Below are more examples

- obbun, dirty person.
- oddun, year.
- olla, regard, honour.
- oppon*, bowl*.
- ottin*, alcohol, alcoholic drink.*
- ottun, right

Exception. There is one exception to this rule, its called the two consonant or two vowels rule. When an mv is followed by two consonants, the feminine code is of no effect.

In the word oppellenger, for example, the n after the masculine vowel e is followed by another consonant g so the feminine code is excusable as we cannot have three consonants at each other's heels.

Another example is Jeun which has two vowels in the middle e and u, this word cannot be feminized because we cannot have three vowels lining up.

The feminine code affects mvs in the beginning and middle of words, mvs end words are covered with terminal codes.

The Feminine Rule for gb and sh
In practice, the two other special alphabets – gb and sh fall under this exception. They cannot be doubled, their special status are covered by two different codes. The Alien code and the Handle code.
When gb appears in a word, the feminine code does not apply except if it appears as the second alphabet in a word, in this instance the handle code h is used to show that it is an Ẹ or Ọ

Handle Code
Ẹgberrin, hegberrin (since we cannot double gb, the h at the beginning of two shows how the next e is to be pronounced).
Ọgborn, hogborn (the h at the beginning also shows how the next o is to be pronounced.)

The use of the Alien code will be explained at a latter chapter.

Code 2: Terminal Codes

Terminal codes translate tonal accents into alphabets. Bishop Crowther identified the upper (á), lower (à) and middle (e) accents as well as the circumflex (ē) and he used them to differentiate similar words.

á	à	ā	é	è	ē	ẹ / ẹ	ẹ́ / ẹ́	ẹ̀ / ẹ̀	ẹ̄ / ẹ̄

These tonal accents are real alphabets by themselves, but we don't know what they are because we did not invent our own alphabets. However, we can convert them into real alphabets by assigning coded alphabetic values to them to show their special character.

Lets start with vowel e for example. This vowel can have three values -

The upper value é
The lower value è
The middle value e

If we use the first letter of Samuel Crowther's name s as the upper accent, and the last letter of his name r and the lower accent and the letter l (for liberal) as the middle accent, we will have a paradigm like the one below.

- è = e^{s} - upper accent
- é = e^{r} - lower accent
- e = e^{l} - middle accent

If we now install these floating values, we will have something like this:

- è = e^{s} = es = upper accent
- é = e^{r} = er = lower accent
- e = e^{l} = el = middle accent

Note: These letters s, r, and l are accents, so they are completely silent at the end of the words, i.e. we do not call them out, they are there to differentiate the words only and not to be heard. If we turn this into a little program, we will see how it changes everything. Lets start with the Yoruba verb rẹ

- rẹ́ - to dye = res
- rẹ̀ - to cut = rer
- rẹ - to be tired = rel

If we run our nifty program through a Yoruba Dictionary, our results will be as below:

- res - orres - (gift), adires (dyed cloth), ires (you).
- rer - orrer, (friend), aberrer (needle), ejirer (twins).
- rel, - Orrel (a town), errel (mud), berrel (to begin), aperrel (basket).

A first look shows straightaway that orres (gift), orrer (friend) and Orrel, (name of a town) have been separated by their terminal codes. In advanced mode of Transcript, other values like t and gh are also used as terminal codes. In theory, any consonant is good enough as a terminal code since they are all silent codes at the back of our words to separate them. Terminal codes are only used to separate all ẹ that ends a word. The other mv ọ is covered by the alien code while feminine vowels e & o are covered under blintermination. If we run this little program on other similar verbs, we will come up a table of masculine verbs.

Masculine Verbs
Ba, conj. Bar, to hit. Bal, to meet. Bel. to peel Ber, to beg Bes, to jump Bi, conjunction Bil, to beget. Birh, to	Bur, to take Bus, to abuse Bul, be rotten Kar, to count, Kas, to reap. Ker, grow worse Kes, to indulge	Dal. to create. Dar, to pour Der, to hunt Des, loose. Di, conj Dil, to become. Dis, to be blocked	Fas, to draw Far, to wipe Fes, to love Fer, to enlarge. Fi, by, to, with. Fir, to swing,

vomit	Kul, to remain Kugh*, to die.*
Gar, to open, Gal, high, tall Ges, wear cap Gbar, sweep Gbas, accept	Kirh, exhort, Kigh, to greet Gber, to sharpen, to plant Gbes, dry	Lar, to appear Las, to lick Les, lazy, Ler, to patch Lel, elastic	Mes, to multiply Mir, to shake Mis, to breathe.
Par, bald Pas, to kill Pes, be long	Jarh, to fight Jas, to break Jel, to loiter. Jer, to eat Jes, to be, Jis, to wake up. Jil, to forgive.	Jur, rotten Jus, to throw Ral, to buy Rar, disappear Rir, to drown. Righ, to see. Rus, to	Sar, to aim at. Sas, to spread in the sun to dry Ses, to strain, to filter.

		carry
Tar, to sell. Tas, to kick Ter, trample Tes, disgrace Tel, to spread Ti, from Til, fasten Tir, to fade.	Shar, to gather Shas, to fade. Shes, to break Sher, to fulfil Shel, to sin. Shir, to miss. Shis, to open,	Wal, to be,, War, to come. Wer, fine Wes, to bath. Wir, inflame Wis, to speak Wur, to swell Wus, to like.	Yarh, to tear Yas, ready Yer, to miss Yes, fit, right, proper. Yis, to turn Yir, tough,

Examples
By running this nifty program again on the verb Jẹ, we will see how words are derived from verbs and how termination helps to separate the inseparable.

- jel, to loiter around, (ejjel, blood, ellejjel*, bloody,* ajojjel*, serenade together,* mujel*, suck blood*)

- jer, to eat, to owe (onjer, food, ajojjer*, eating together,* apanijer*, cannibal*)
- jes, to be, (ejjes, vow, bajes*, ruined,* banujes*, grieved,* awujes*, centre of head*)

The words below showed how terminal verbs separated three words that was otherwise have been inseparable on paper.

- abanijer, a partaker in a feast.
- abanijes, slanderer.
- abanijel, one who walks with us

Finally, let us look at some of the derivations of the verb tẹ

- ter, to trample on, (etter, leprosy adetter*, leper,* tetter*, a vegetable,* aketter*, hat*)
- tes, disgrace, (ettes, shame, tettes*, gambling,* ellettes, stupid person,* ellettel, grasshopper*)

These terminal codes are the levers for derivative words. The verb mi, shows this:

- mir, to shake,* (mirar, to shake the body).
- mis, to breathe, (misi*, to inspire*)

Above, the terminators r and s acted as the springboards for the derivative words, and below, the terminator l showed that it is the springboard for the two derivative words.

- iyyal, mother - (iyyalode, iyyalajeit, iyyalorisha, iyyalaseit,)
- eyyel, bird, (eyye*ll*eit)

Code 3: Blintermination

One major problem occur when we have to separate masculine from feminine vowel endphabets (alphabets at the end of words). Since terminal codes are used to separate words with masculine vowel endphabets, separating words with feminine vowel endphabets will require a different path. If we apply the same rule to all vowel endphabets we won't know which is masculine or *feminine, as in the texts below:

- de – to come
- de– to bind
- dẹ – to ripen
- dẹ – to hunt

If we use terminal codes on all of the above as usual, we will not know which is masculine or feminine.

This is shown below.

- de – to come - der
- de – to bind - des
- dẹ – to ripen - des
- dẹ – to hunt - der

To avoid getting mixed up as seen above, the rule is that terminal codes are reserved for all masculine vowel endphabets.
Feminine vowel endphabets are separated from each other as well as from their masculine counterparts by blinding the termination (blintermination).

The same upper, lower and middle alphabetic values (s, r, l), as used in terminal codes, are still in play to tell us the orientation of the accent. But these silent codes are themselves blinded, that is, shut out by a silent vowel.

So, while terminal codes are silent consonants s r and l, blinters are a combination of two silent alphabets – one vowel, and one consonant – (ir, is, il), etc. The vowel is always behind the consonant, as below:

- Dé – to come – Deil (blinter code)
- Dè – to bind – Deir (blinter code)

Derivation by Blintermination
Below are some words separated by blind termination from their roots.

- deil, to come (adeil, crown, padeil, to shut, oribandeil, by chance)
- deir , to bind (edeir, language, ideir, bondage, idandeir, redemption)

Blinding is done with either i or u
You will notice that some of the verbs were terminated with t, like keit, and shuit. Dough is terminated by ugh, three silent letters. These techniques are used to show that some verbs are irregular verbs.

Feminine Verbs
bour, to cover bough, to peel.	keit, to cry keir, to cut kough to gather kous to meet	deil, to come deir, to bind dough, to cohabit	fout, to fly fough, to be afloat. geit, to cut

jough, to dance, to burn jous, to leak leir, hard leit, more leigh, prep lour, to use lough, nin ough (prep)	peir, to call peit, correct pour, entirely. pous, knead, mix.	reir, to shed reis, to release. roul, to hoe rough, make noise rous, to tell ruir, to stir up	tough, sufficient. toul. stand in line seit, to cook. sour, bear fruit sough, to fart.
gbeil, to lift gbeir, sing chorus. gbour, to affect gbough, to ripen gbout, to rub together	woul, to look wough, to fall	yeir, to be alive. yeil, to understand.	sheir, sh'alaafia nin sheit, to do shuit, cloudy, to gather shur, to excreate

Code 4: Differentiation

Terminal codes and blintermination dealt with verbs with vowel endphabets, these are considered regular verbs because they are vowel terminated and most Yoruba words are vowel terminated. However, there are a few words that are terminated by consonants. We deal with this irregular species by way of differentiation. An example of an irregular verb is Sun

- Sun, to sleep,
- Sun, to move

While we cannot separate these verbs by terminating the vowel endphabets they don't have, we will differentiate them with silent consonants called the differential. Alphabets used as differentials are, as in termination, r (romeo), t (tango) and gh (God's Help). If we look in the dictionary, the words above appeared with their differentials as seen below.

- Sunt, to shift, to roast.
- Surn, to sleep.

The texts retained their original letters s,u, and n, but are differentiated from each other by a silent differential, surn has the romeo somewhere in the middle just before the n, while sunt has the tango as terminator.

Differentials are completely silent, not to be heard, but as a guide to their meaning.
In theory, differential codes are inherited from terminal codes ie the sierra, romeo and liberal codes. However, in practice, four more differentials are in play to represent all the overlapping accents in Yoruba language - tango code, t, whisky code, w and God's help code, gh
Although Bishop Crowther professed three different accents, there are seven overlapping accents. Below, we see a wordgroup manifesting in six accents.

- oguhn, war.
- oguwn, inheritance
- ogunt, god of iron
- oogurn, black magic
- ogun, twenty
- oogun, sweat

Irregular Verbs
karn, to concern kant, to break kon, one kun, to be full kunt, to paint kurn, to grumble	dant, to tempt darn, bright pint, to divide. pirn, to end. pont, to fetch water, porn, ripe.	fun, tight. funt, blow trumpet forn, to blow trumpet. fohn, reduced in bulk
gant, to despise. garn, to sew cloth. gunt, to pound. gurn, long, tall.	mon, to build. mont, clean. morn, to know. munt, sharp. murn, to drink.	narn, to spend. nont, to flog nin, to have nint, uncomfortable
yant, to match. yarn, to neigh yons, to choose yin, short for eyyin. yint, to praise.	rant, to send ront, to spread rins, to grate rint, to walk. ryn, to smile.	sant, to pay. sarn, better sont, to crack sint, to sneeze. sirn, to bury the dead

yirn, to thresh. yunt, to go. yurn, to scratch	runt, to consume rurn, to smell ruwn, broken	 sunt, to move, to roast. surn, to sleep.
tant, to end. tarn, to be related tont, switch the light on	gbont, to tremble. gborn, wise, clever. gbunt, to strike against gburn, deep.	wan, measure wont, scarce worn, they, them shont, to clear a forest. shorn, to flow

Code 5: The Alien key (au)

The combination of a and u, written together and pronounced as masculine vowel ọ is used in Transcript for differentiation. This is used when dealing with in two instances. When dealing the special alphabets gb and sh in the middle of a word and also to differentiate a masculine vowel ọ from a feminine vowel o at the end of a word.

The first scenario is for example in the word ọshun Under the double consonant law, we cannot double the special alphabet sh otherwise we will end up with four consonants following each other as below

- Oshshun. This will be unpronounceable and incorrect way of dealing with this situation, instead we apply the alien key as below.
- Aushun – this solves the problem, this is the way Transcript treats it.

Lets look at another scenario by using the word ọpọlọ, for example.

- ọpọlọ, brain
- ọpọlọ, toad

These are differentiated as below using a combination of the alien key, feminine code and terminators.

- Aupollaut, brain
- Oppollaur, toad

You will notice that the p in brain is not doubled according to feminisation law, this is because the alien key has clearly shown its an ǫ, so the feminine code is excusable.
The alien code is mostly used as terminators for ǫ endphabets to differentiate them from normal o endphabets which were covered under blintermintation.
The table of alien verbs below shows all the alien verbs derived from Yoruba words.

Alien Verbs
kaul, to learn kaur, to write kaus, to refuse shaur, to watch.	faur, to break faus, to wash gaur, stupid, gaul, to hide	yaur, to melt. yaus, deliver fr danger yaul, to rejoice. taul, to go after taur, to urinate.

		taus to bring up
laur, to transplant laus, to grind laut, to depart paur, to inflate paus, plentiful	waur, crooked waus, to wear gbaul, to flourish. gbaur, to hear.	raur, to sprain raut, manufacture raus, to rain. raur, descend. raus, to speak

Examples of derivation:

- kaul, to learn, ekkaul, education, olukaul, teacher
- Kaur, to write, ekkaur, pap, akukaur, hen.
- kaus, to refuse, ikaus, delegation, okkaus, motor car

Code 7: Dealing with The Circumflex

We use the circumflex (fāgun) to drag on words when we want to be more specific. The fāgun is a superscripted accent, like the upper and the lower accent; and because Transcript translates accents into alphabetic values, infinity key replaces the circumflex. Below are the infinity keys.

- ā = aa as in aadotta, 50.
- ō = oo, as in oogun, sweat
- ē = ee, as in eekannan, nails.

- ū = uu, as in oniruuruit, multifarious
- ī = ii, as in omiin, another one.

Code 6: The Infinity
Oftentimes, we use the terminal verb ti, to convey ownership, with the verb completely disappearing. The infinity is shown in these ways:

1. Apostrophe: We can put an apostrophe on top of a word to show its infinity. For example in the words below

- Universiti' Ibadan (Univertsity of Ibadan), not Universitii
- moggaji' worn (the head of their household), not moggajii
- olla' was (our honour), not ollaa

The apostrophe in front of the letter i, shows that the complete sentence is actually – University ti Ibadan, but because the ti verb was lost in infinity, we show this with an apostrophe to guide the reader.

2. Infinite Verbosity: an apostrophe at a word's end signifies an infinity of verbosity as seen below.

- okoul naan laut shuar' – the farm was vast, not okoul naan laut shuaar.

The use of apostrophe is very important because it avoids confusion by maintaining the integrity of our words, our words stay the same while the apostrophe tells us about the drag on the last vowel.

Code 8: Particles

There are seven particles used daily in our sentences. The first of these is - in.

1. in: used as present continuous, in is not treated as a separate word in transcript but made contiguous with its adjoining word as below.

- ingbati - when
- ingbanaan – then
- ingbaur – is that right
- inbel – to be, or exist

2. es and el: these are the transcript equivalents of monoform Ẹ which could be 'you plural' (es), or him (el). So these words are separated by their terminal codes as seen below. Es is the short form for ires

- ti'es nin, its yours (ti ires nin)

- ti'el nin, its his (ti irel nin)
- tires nin, its yours
- tirel nin, its his

Positive and Negative use: This particle also have a way of its being used in a positive and negative way. This can be seen below:

- Es laut – You went
- Es' laut – you did not go. Note the use of infinite verbosity to show a drag on the word which conveys its negativity.

3. as and al

as is the contraction of the word arwas (us).

- as laut – we went, (arwas laut)

it can also be infinitied for future tense as below

- as' laut – arwas yiough laut (we shall go) al is the negative for as. Statement below shows how it used for present and future tense

- al' laut – arwas kous nin laut (we shall not go)

4. ough and ough

ough is a versatile word that has no specific or particular meaning but is used in our daily conversation. Below are some of the way it is used:

- ough laut – he went

- ough d'abaut ough - goodbye
- es k'haaraus ough – good morning

Negative and positive use
ous is used to show negativity as we can see in these texts.

- ough' laut – you will go (positive)
- ous' laut – you will not go (negative)
- in-ough laut – I will go (positive).
- in-ous laut – I will not go (negative)

augh and aus:
augh is used to refer to the first person singular and aus is its negative. They can be expressed as positive or negative statements. Like below:

- augh' laut – you will go (positive)
- aus' laut – you will not go (negative)

mar and mal: these two values can express positive and negative values in our everyday connotation. The mar is reserved for the contraction of emi as or emi yiough, ie mar as.

- mar as laut – go (positive) can be written together as maas laut
- mal laut – do not go (negative)
- ough mal sheit ough – it's a pity (negative)

- ough mar sheit ough – thank you very much (positive)

Is: this particle is more of a circumflex or drag on words, but it's a word in its own right. We can use it nicely as a word or use infinity to express it as below..

- as kir is poweir nileit anant. (this can also be expressed as 'As kir' poweir nileit anant.)
- alubatagh kon kir is darin or alubatagh kon kir' darin

We can join this together with an apostrophe so they appear as below:

- as kir' poweir nileit anant
- alubatagh kon kir' darin

Code 9: Contractions: How to join words together

There are three ways words are joined together in Transcript - homofusion, heterofusion and transfusion.

Homofusion: when words are amalgamated this way, intracodes, (terminal codes within the joined words) disappears but the endphabets remain in play. The fused word becomes homogenous as shown below.

- gbadura: gbas adura – (the terminal code s in gbas disappears)
- fidimullel: fi iddi munt illel - to become established, the nt in munt disappears from the middle of the word

- sotteller: saus teller - to foretell (the alien key au in saus has been overtaken by the feminine code to show the masculine vowels in the middle of the joined word while the terminal code s in saus has been shed. The code r in teller stays in play to show the masculinity of the last vowel.

Heterofusion

Heterofusion makes it possible to join words together in a disjointed form. We are able to join three or more words together in a way that makes the oral speech flow for the special literary effect. Consider the texts below:

- idurough gbas ikoko, nin idurough gbas idder
- idurough gba'koko, n'idurough gba'dder

- iggi worrokkaul ti ough indar innon ruir
- iggi worrokkaul t'indar'non ruir.

Transfusion: This 'on the fly' method is used to join only two words, which if homofused, will be meaningless by itself as a standalone word. In most cases, the first word loses some of its character while the second word appears in full, with exceptions. Adebayo Faleti's poem below is used as an example.

Es Faraballel
ojuir t'ough faraballel nin r'immun

es faraballel
ikanjuir ough sheit' j'ejja eleegun
ennin t'ough faraballel nin r'immun eeguhn
es faraballel
ennin faraballel as j'eddaur igbin
ennin t'ough kanjuir ough leigh sh'aurer abiyammon amoddun ough jinnan k'ennin mar m'eebur suwnjer.
b'agbal bas faraballel yiough bo'bberrer
b'ommodde faraballel as morikir agbal ikanjuir ough m'egbous jinnon, omi gbigbonon ojoojumont l'ebbaur,
as kir is sareis gagbon,
ennikon ough gboddaur fi wurawura dessar ejous,
b'omi ough gbonon, ebbar ough ter,
as f'ennin t'ough was gaari es murn,
es faraballel

The words in bold were joined by Transfusion, inkontradistiction to the those in italics. The words – r'immun, m'eebur, b'agbal, b'ommodde, etc are meaningless by themselves as standalone words. In practice, homofused words will appear in the dictionary while transfused words will not, they are just 'on the fly' contractions used by a writer.

Code 10: The Transnumeric Key

We have a counting system in Yoruba that isn't great. For example, what is 1911, or 1914? What is 888 or 999? What is 105,697?

If these values do exist, not many of us are familiar with them because our counting method is not systematized.
The transnumeric key is the methodical counting system used in transcript. It is a simple and logical counting method modified from on the existing method.
Let us start from the beginning by counting from one to ten.

- 1, eni or okkon or ikon (ookon)
- 2, eji (eeji)
- 3, etta (eetta)
- 4, errin (eerrin)
- 5, arun (aarun)
- 6, effa (eeffa)
- 7, ejeil (eejeil)
- 8, ejjaus (eejjaus)
- 9, essont (eessont)
- 10, ewwar (eewwar)

You will observe that there are two ways of referring to these numbers depending on what we want to say specifically. There is the Numeric part like eni, and the infinity part like ookon. The numeric part is used in transcript for counting while the infinity part is used for dating. But first we are going to create a logical and uniform system, so if we count from eleven to fourteen, we will observe an order of reasoning of our forefathers as below.

- 11, okkonla (10 + 1)
- 12, ejila (10 + 2)
- 13, ettala (10 + 3)
- 14, errinla. (10 + 4)

Now we will of course see clearly that these values are derivatives. Okkonla, 11, is derived from okkon; ejila from eji (2); ettala from Etta (3), while Errinla is comes from errin, (4). If we continue this tradition by building on this derivation principle, up till 19, we will have the following numbers:

- 15, arunla (10 + 5)
- 16, effala (10 + 6)
- 17, ejela (10 + 7)
- 18, ejjolla (10 + 8)
- 19, essonla (10 + 9)

Now, this looks a bit clunky, but lets make the connection and see why these figures are so important and why we should not overlook them.
But first lets count from 20 to 99 the transnumeric way to see thewhole picture.

- 20, ogun

- 21, ogun ookon
- 25, ogun aarun
- 30, augbont.
- 32, augbont eeji
- 59, a*adotta eessont*
- 60, augotta.
- 61, augotta ookon
- 69, augotta eessont
- 70, aadorrin
- 75, aadorrin aarun
- 80, augorrin
- 83, augorrin eetta
- 88, augorrin eejjaus

We have seen how important the infinities are in simplifying the numbering system. One major advantage of this system is that it follows an order we can remember. We don't have to memorize it; it is there with us as long as we can count from one to ten. Let us also count from 100 to 120 and make a connection with the derivatives discussed earlier.

100, augorrun
101, augorrun ookon
102 augorrun eeji
109 augorrun eessont
110, augorrun eewwa
111, augorrun okkonla
112, augorrun ejila

113, augorrun ettala
114, augorrun errinla
115, augorrun arunla
116, augorrun effala
117, augorrun ejela
118, augorrun ejjolla
119, augorrun essonla
120, augorrun ati ogun

The derivatives, arunla, effala, ejela, ejjolla and essontla, no doubt simplified the counting for us from 115 to 119. They are so easy to remember and they follow an elementary, simplistic, logical order. This however is just one aspect of the use of these derivatives; we will see their real importance when we get to the science of Dates. Let us continue with numbers temporarily and count from 121 – 200.

- 121, augorrun ati ogun ookon
- 122, augorrun ati ogun eeji
- 130, augorrun ati augbont.
- 133, augorrun ati augbont eetta
- 134, augorrun ati augbont eetta.
- 140, augorrun ati ogoji.
- 145, augorrun ati ogoji aarun
- 150, augorrun ati aadotta .
- 156, augorrun ati aadotta eeffa.

- 160, augorrun ati augotta
- 167, augorrun ati augotta eejeil
- 170, augorrun ati aadorrin
- 178, augorrun ati aadorrin eejjaus
- 180, augorrun ati augorrin
- 189, augorrun ati augorrin eessont
- 190, augorrun ati aadorrun
- 199, augorrun ati aadorrun eessont.
- 200, augorrun meji

The simplicity of the counting method above speaks for itself. Let us now count up till 999

- 201, augorrun meji ati ookon
- 211, augorrun meji okkonla
- 218, augorrun meji eejjolla
- 300, augorrun metta
- 315, augorrun metta arunla
- 320, augorrun metta ati ogun
- 329, augorrun metta ati ogun eessont
- 402, augorrun merrin ati eeji
- 430, augorrun merrin ati augbont
- 435, augorrun merrin ati augbont aarun
- 544, augorrun marun ati ogoji eerrin
- 656, augorrun meffa ati aadotta eeffa
- 767, augorrun meje ati augotta eejeil
- 888, augorrun mejjaus ati augorrin eejjaus
- 999, augorrun messont ati aadorrun eessont

Now let us count from 1000 up to 1,000,000 and after that we will make a table of dates. First, 1000 to 100,000.

- 1000, h*egberrun kon*
- 1100, h*egberrun kon ati augorrun*
- 1250, h*egberrun kon, augorrun meji aadotta*
- 1914, h*egberrun kon, augorrun messont ati eerrinla*
- 1937, h*egberrun kon, augorrun messont ati augbont eejeil*
- 2000, h*egberrun meji*
- 2006, h*egberrun meji ati eeffa*
- 2245, h*egberrun meji, augorrun meji ati ogoji aarun*
- 3578,h*egberrun metta, augorrun marun ati aadorrin eejjaus*
- 9999, h*egberrun messont, augorrun messont ati aadorrun eessont*
- 10,000, h*egberrun mewwar*
- 10,500, h*egberrun mewwar ati augorrun marun*
- 10,754, h*egberrun mewwar, augorrun meje ati aadotta eerrin*
- 20,000, ogun hegberrun
- 21,000, ogun ookon hegberrun
- 29,000, ogun eessont hegberrun
- 29,100, ogun eessont hegberrun ati augorrun
- 29,457, ogun eessont hegberrun, augorrun merrin

ati aadotta eejeil

- 30,000, augbont hegberrun
- 40,000, ogoji hegberrun
- 90,000, aadorrun hegberrun
- 100,000, augorrun hegberrun

Also, let us count from 100,000 to 1,000,000.

- 100,500, augorrun hegberrun ati augorrun marun
- 110,000, augorrun ati eewwa hegberrun
- 110,419, augorrun ati eewwa hegberrun, augorrun merrin essonla
- 150,000, augorrun ati aadotta hegberrun
- 200,000, augorrun meji hegberrun
- 250,000, augorrun meji ati aadotta hegberrun
- 999,999, augorrun messont ati aadorrun eessont hegberrun, augorrun messont ati aadorrun eessont
- 1,000,000, millionus kon

Finally, let us write down a list of dates in transcript.

- 1000, augorrun mewwar
- 1011, augorrun okkonla
- 1100, okkonla augorrun
- 1250, ejila aadotta .
- 1775, e*jela aadorrin aarun*
- 1914, essonla errinla
- 1960, essonla augotta
- 1937, essonla augbont eejeil
- 2000, hegberrun meji

- 2010*, ogun eewwar*
- 2013, ogun ettalla

The dates above showed the year the South and North of Nigeria were amalgamated was 1914. In Transnumeric this is Essonla Errinla. Nigeria's year of independence is also translated as Essonla Augotta (1960). 2013 (Ogun Ettala)
