22. This question is all about past continues tense.

The past progressive describes an action that was in progress at a specific time in the past. It can be used: To describe an action that started in the past and was interrupted by another action: He was writing an e-mail when the phone rang.

In this tense, We can use both When and While so as To describe an action that started in the past and was interrupted by another action. But There is something Which make it a little different b/n while and When.😊 here we goo😊

While or when

With the Past Continuous sentences have clauses that start with 'while' or 'when'. 'While' usually starts the clause with the Past Continuous, 'when' usually starts the clause with the Past Simple. It started raining while I was jogging. / While I was jogging, it started raining.

25. Lemme tell u something abt dis question ☝...

As we have learned it

The phrase😐 I think" is subjective; that is, it is the speaker's opinion, so it may or may not happen!

That's why we can't choose am going to

as i have learned in school, Our teacher told that " if there are the word like Think , might , expect, intend to and etc.... it's impossible to use others tense rather than simple future so as to express something, Which is gonna happen Even if the action is an arrangement."
